'BRAIN TRUST' STREWS RADICAL IDEAS SWIFTLY

Change Every Phase of U. S. Life, Aim.

Herewith is commenced a number of articles revealing the members, the motives, and the activities, thus far, of the Roosevelt brain trust.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Symbol of radicalism, the brain trust has spread swiftly these last twelve months through every artery of the American government.

It has worked, sometimes openly, ofttimes covertly, by itself and through others, toward the creation of new forms of government.

In these changed forms, paraded as the New Deal, there appear to be no more traditions and safeguards held sacred, some since the days of '76, some even longer, since the Magna Charta, others of younger but none the less precious heritage.

Aim at Every Phase of Life.

The brain trust has aimed at every phase of the American scene, except, perhaps, religion.

It members already have gained great headway.

In the regimentation of agriculture: Farmers may plant so much wheat, grow so much cotton, raise so many hogs.

In the control of industry, the codes of the NRA lay down arbitrary laws which an army of burocrats has been formed to enforce.

In the actual seizure of industry the government now has authority, vested in a nest of five of its creature corporations, to engage in growing and making, buying and selling, almost any form of goods or service required by a consuming public.

Domination of Finance.

In the domination of finance eight of the ten greatest banks of the nation, effectively in control over national credit, are today under at least partial ownership and control of the federal government.

The brain trust reaches out even for the American family and plans to move them by hundred thousands from lands held barren onto subsistence homesteads.

The brain trust has aimed at control over communications, has plans to muzzle the American press, already has set up ponderous machinery to control government information, and has established a surveillance over the press.

House Inquiry Is Stifled.

So it has seeemed the time to examine into the brain trust, to bring it into the light of public discussion. The congress, through a committee appointed by the house, had the opportunity to investigate the brain trust, was challenged and entreated so to do by a Republican minority. But the congress, its actions controled by the executive branch, has stifled the inquiry before it really began.

Strictly speaking, there is no "brain trust." The term has become a symbol, however, well recognized by all those who applaud as well as those who condemn the New Deal. President Roosevelt has used the term, declaring that the administration does well to employ "brains" in the government.

To many others, in the houses of congress and in the citizenry, the term is a symbol for that new class of theorists inducted into government affairs by the New Deal, a class whose leaders desire the overthrow of the traditional social and economic order of the land.

Phrase Has Lingered On.

When the phrase was first applied—by James Kieran, political writer for the New York Times—the brain trust was a cohesive, easily identified group which then, in September, 1932, was engaged in advising the Democratic candidate for the presidency, Mr. Roosevelt.

The phrase has lingered on, but today it represents much more than a group. Its original members have not all survived. But hundreds of others have come under the symbol, have percolated everywhere in the government. New leaders of the theorists have appeared.

They have separated into cliques; work independently and often at complete cross purposes. To this cause may be attributed the inconsistencies which have featured some phases of the New Deal.

They Hold No Massmeetings.

They hold no massmeetings. They have no common leader except as they recognize the President as their leader. But they still are the brain trust. It is easiest, in describing such a

TUGWELL CALLS NEW DEAL PLAN WILL OF PEOPLE

Sees Dictatorship as Only Alternative.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—The New Deal is an expression of the will of the American people, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell told the American Society of Newspaper Editors tonight.

REXFORD G. TUGWELL.

As an agent of democracy the official who has been called the brain trust's most radical member, avowed himself "a thorough conservative."

No government at Washington could regiment the people of the United States against their traditional genius for doing what they wanted to do, declared the man whom administration critics have labeled an exponent of Russian-inspired communism.

It was, he asserted, the Old Deal which was guilty of regimentation. Capitalist, employer and financier of the days before 1929 regimented "people" for the benefit of the "things" that meant their own profit. The New Deal, he explained, sought to regiment "things" for the benefit of "people."

Voices Veiled Warning.

To the newspaper executives he issued a veiled warning. To oppose the will of the people by standing against the New Deal was to invite a government by dictatorship such as now rules over 350 million of the world's inhabitants, he declared. Therein, he said, lay the real threat to freedom of speech and press.

"There, gentlemen," he proclaimed, "lies your real enemy, and not at Washington."

The Roosevelt program as described by the former Columbia professor was not the scheme for an American soviet state ascribed to him by Dr. William A. Wirt. He pictured to his hearers a political and economic policy bent on observing scrupulously the inherent conservatism of the American nation.

He mentioned no names, but he referred to the charges of radicalism that have been directed against him.

Restates "Fundamentals."

"Because discussion is now wider and more disposed to be critical, this seems to be an appropriate time and place to restate some of the fundamentals of that Americanism to which we are born and which we all desire to cherish," said Mr. Tugwell. "This is appropriate, from my point of view, not because my own motives have lately been questioned by those who consider themselves and the country to have been injured by the President's program, but because it has been made to appear that what is being done by this administration is somehow alien to our traditions and institutions."

"It is my belief that the core of the American tradition is to be found in a kind of defiance to fate," he continued. "We will not do what we do not want to do, and coercion cannot make us. We can be fooled, but not for long. We have a precious inventiveness which gets us out of holes. We have a saving irreverence of authority. These basic traits determine the structure of our laws and of our government.

Against "Regimented Scheme."

"No one, with the slightest sense of history, would try to fit such a people into a regimented scheme, would try to think for them instead of getting them to think for themselves. Indeed, any one who has known them by living their lives, by really being one of them in body and spirit, would know in his heart, with no need for consideration, that law, government, and social organization for such a people must be instruments through which their characteristic actions, resistances, imaginations could find appropriate expression. Law, government, and social organization will inevitably fail if they are not this.

"In this respect I unhesitatingly avow myself a thorough conservative. I do not believe that people can be compelled to do for long anything that is alien to their national character, and I do not believe that there are any safe compulsions which may be used on human nature."

The secretary cited the rise and fall of prohibition as an example of

DEAN OF BRYN MAWR AVERS WOMEN HAVE TOO MUCH LEISURE

Cincinnati, O., April 21.—(AP)—Criticizing women for not making more outstanding contributions to city government, Dr. Helen Taft Manning, dean of Bryn Mawr college, declared last night they have too much leisure.

DR. HELEN TAFT MANNING. [Acme Photo.]

The daughter of the late William Howard Taft, former President, told the American Association of University Women, northeast central section, that many educated women will answer "we haven't got time" and the answer will be justified in many cases. But, she added, "the plain fact of the matter is that the divorce courts and doctors' offices of the country are filled with women of approximately my own age who are suffering from the same malady under different names—too much leisure and too little in the way of avenues of escape to take their minds off their vexing personal problems."

She said that "surely college women ought to be able to plan activities so as to concentrate their attention and energies on tasks which are really worthwhile."

Club Woman Tricks Friends, Gets $100,000

Kansas City, Mo., April 21.—(AP)—A popular and trusted business woman's perfidy to unsuspecting friends, club associates, and business firms over a period of 20 years came to light here today when the bubble burst and disclosed that Miss Martha Biggerstaff, 50 years old, had embezzled more than $100,000.

Her health broken and no longer able to cover up her speculations, Miss Biggerstaff was taken to a hospital. Physicians said she was suffering from a malignant growth on the spine and had only a short time to live.

Obtains Her Resignation.

Officers of the Woman's City club, of which she was treasurer, said Miss Biggerstaff admitted a shortage of $41,000 in her accounts. Mrs. Charles M. Bush, club president, visited Miss Biggerstaff at the hospital and obtained her resignation.

Investigators found that she had speculated in grain and had victimized women who intrusted money to her for investment. Mrs. W. J. Doughty, secretary of the Woman's City club, said her life savings, $26,000, had been dissipated.

Recently Miss Biggerstaff had been employed by the First Mortgage Savings and Loan association, but Vincent M. Hagerty said the extent of her wrongdoing there appeared to be limited to canceling the investment accounts of friends and appropriating their subsequent remittances.

Takes $20,000 from Firm.

Investigators said that Miss Hattie McKim probably had lost $20,000, Miss Eleanor McKee about $10,000, and Miss Florence Oeschli, a lesser amount.

It was disclosed that nearly 20 years ago Miss Biggerstaff took $12,000 from a clothing firm where she was cashier. Next she was discharged from an investment firm for paying her bills from the company's stamp account. In 1922 a trust company dropped her when it was discovered she had taken mortgages from the building and borrowed $7,200 on them.

There was no prosecution in any of the cases. The embezzlements came to light when she wrote checks that her bank deposits would not cover.

DOG PRESENTED MEDAL; SAVED HIS MASTER'S LIFE

Syracuse, N. Y., April 21.—(AP)—Masters Milstead Byng got two hero medals today and yawned.

"Charles F. Bulkley very nearly lost his life, and would have, if it were not for this dog," J. Henry Cassidy of the S. P. C. A. told 150 bright frocked little girls and a dozen boys in a special presentation ceremony.

Masters Milstead Byng, 11 month old black spotted English setter, folded up with a thump on the platform, black nose pointed toward the youthful audience and closed his mournful eyes.

"Two other people died in the same fire. This dog barked to awaken his master, but Mr. Bulkley is a little deaf, so Byng tore the bed clothing off him and licked his face until he awoke."

Byng went through a contortion, scratching at a flea, making his collar jingle.

"And that is why the American Humane association and the Massachusetts S. P. C. A. are presenting these hero medals."

Byng was willing to shake hands with the children, to sit up, to lie down, but not to have his picture taken. A little persuasion turned the trick.

Texas Honors Heroes Who Fought Against Mexico

Houston, Tex., April 21.—(AP)—Under the stately live oak trees that guard Texas' shrine of liberty—the San Jacinto battleground—thousands of Texans paid homage to the heroes of the Lone Star state's struggle against Mexico for independence. On this battleground ninety-eight years ago Gen. Santa Ana, the "Napoleon of the west," met his Waterloo at the hands of Gen. Sam Houston's "boy army" of 783 men, who took by surprise and routed the numerically superior Mexican forces and captured Santa Ana.

NRA Victim Surprised He Violated Law

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—It would take a lot more prosperity and almost any conceivable amount of additional ballyhoo to convince Mrs. Jacob Maged of Union City, N. J., that there is any merit whatsoever in the New Deal scheme of things, popularly referred to as the NRA.

Mrs. Maged is the wife—widowed for the time being—of the tailor sentenced in Jersey City's Court of Quarter Sessions yesterday to serve thirty days in jail and pay a fine of $100 because he charged 35 cents for pressing a suit of clothes in violation of the cleaners and dyers' code which fixes the minimum charge at 40 cents.

"The NRA is a fake," said Mrs. Maged today as she bustled about her absent husband's tiny little shop on Griffith street, Union City, sorting clothes for the Sunday trade. "It's like a big elephant catching a little fly."

Difficult to Understand.

Mrs. Maged finds it difficult to understand why her husband was singled out for sentence "when there are so many others doing the same thing"—i. e.: undercutting the code prices. In fact she protested today that it was the "bargain rates" maintained by his competitors that forced her husband to shave his prices below the code minimum.

"We had to do it," she insisted. "But we were caught."

Mrs. Maged, the mother of four children, went to the county jail today to see her husband, but the jail was getting its weekly cleaning and she was told to come back tomorrow.

Interviewed in the jail tonight, Mr. Maged said the imposition of the fine and the jail sentence "was all a mistake, a misunderstanding." He said the judge had not given him a chance to explain that he had at first mistaken the NRA investigators for racketeers. He added that when he became convinced that the men were really NRA investigators, he charged the forty cent minimum rate required by the code for pressing clothes.

Attitude of Defiance.

Meanwhile both the judge who meted out the unusual sentence—Judge Robert V. Kinkead—and the prosecutor, J. Raymond Tiffany, assistant attorney general of New Jersey, expressed sympathy for the luckless victim of code operation but maintained that he had "openly defied the law after repeated warnings."

Judge Kinkead, before whom Maged pleaded guilty, explained that he had sent two probation officers to investigate the case, and they reported that the tailor's attitude was one of defiance, also that any attempt to have him understand he must comply with the code was useless.

"I have a full report from the probation officers, and I don't think you realize the seriousness of your offense," the judge told the tailor. "Perhaps after hearing Mr. Tiffany outline what your offense means not only to this community but to the state at large you may come to the realization that we are under a change in our social order, and that it is necessary for the government and the state to regulate the business of an individual like yourself, even to the extent of telling you that you must charge certain prices, and that you cannot charge less than your competitors.

Judge Expresses Sympathy.

"I feel sorry for you. I know you have a wife and four children. I am sorry that you have to be the one singled out to be a warning lesson to other individuals in a similar situation."

In meting out his sentence, Judge Kinread told the blinking defendant that it was not the money involved, "for that was small," but that there was a principle at stake, a principle of vital interest to the state. The country, said Judge Kinread on that memorable occasion, was in the midst of a changing social order; state and federal authorities, to reduce unem-

MEDIATOR QUITS WHEN NEITHER SIDE WILL YIELD

Men Snub President on Pay Plan.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—A nation-wide railroad strike loomed threateningly tonight upon collapse of administration efforts to mediate the current wage dispute between the rail brotherhoods and railroad managements.

With a terse declaration that he seemed "able to accomplish nothing," Federal Coördinator of Transportation Joseph B. Eastman suddenly withdrew late today from his rôle as presidential mediator in the rail wage controversy.

Both sides in the dispute, he stated, had rejected the compromise settlement proposal laid down by President Roosevelt, under which the workers would agree to a continuation of their present 10 per cent cut in lieu of a 15 per cent reduction suggested by the operators.

As the result of Mr. Eastman's withdrawal from the controversy, a strike ballot among railroad workers to determine whether or not they will walk out, was regarded as inevitable. Should the decision be to strike, the entire Roosevelt recovery program would be seriously endangered.

Workers See No Alternative.

From A. F. Whitney, president of the Railway Labor Executive association, late tonight came an ominous warning that a general strike seemed the only weapon left to the rail workers of the country.

"Our only alternative appears to call for a strike ballot in order to prove our point in this matter," said Whitney, "and if this is done there there can be but one answer from the men who have been receiving such a beggarly stipend."

Mr. Whitney declared it was "tragic" that the railroad workers of the nation had been driven into a corner and "forced to show their teeth." He declared that the brotherhoods had no fault to find with President Roosevelt or with Mr. Eastman. But the workers, he asserted, cannot be expected to agree with the President at all times.

"We cannot agree with him," Mr. Whitney declared, "when he follows the attitude expressed in his letters to Mr. Eastman and ourselves insisting upon extension of the present wage agreement."

Try Coal Problem Again Today.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, meanwhile gave up for today his efforts to restore harmony between mine workers and operators in the strike-torn southern bituminous coal field. After a conference that lasted well into the evening, it was announced that the southern operators would "sleep" on a compromise proposal offered them by the NRA head and would meet with him tomorrow in a final effort to reach a settlement.

Although it had been expected that the failure to reach an agreement in the coal dispute tonight would force Johnson to turn the matter over to the President himself, the NRA chieftain will make one more attempt it was said to compromise the issue.

In his final conference with the union chieftains, it was learned, Mr. Eastman suggested that they meet jointly with spokesmen for the railway operators and the suggestion was accepted. The plan was tendered subsequently to the managers committee, and since no further action was taken it was assumed that they had declined to participate in the joint parley.

Positions of "Disputants."

At any rate, Mr. Eastman returned to his office and without further notice to either the managers or the brotherhoods issued this statement:

"The railroad labor executives have notified me definitly that they were unwilling to agree to a settlement along the lines laid down by the President in his letter of yesterday and the railway managers have notified me they they were unwilling to consider a settlement more favorable than that suggested in the President's letter.

"Under the circumstances, there seems to be nothing I can accomplish as mediator, and I am withdrawing. That means that the controversy will continue under the provisions of the railway labor act in an orderly way, and I believe the parties eventually will settle their difficulties."

Whether the administration will make further direct efforts to compromise the rail situation was a matter of conjecture. President Roosevelt, however, has warned that unless some early settlement is reached he will appoint a fact finding committee to investigate the entire rail wage structure.

Existing railroad wage agreements expire on July 1, and the President is insistent that the present negotiations produce an agreement or blow up immediately so that his committee will have ample time to explore the problem before then.

Although it was the rail operators' refusal to join in a parley with spokesmen for the brotherhoods which precipitated Mr. Eastman's withdrawal as administrator arbiter today, it was the persistent refusal of labor leaders to accept the presidential compromise proposal which was credited with preventing an amicable settlement.

The labor representatives, it was learned today, had vainly pleaded with President Roosevelt not to make public yesterday his letter to Coördinator Eastman in which he denounced demands for restoration of the wage cut on the grounds that increased railroad earnings would do more good in wider employment and improved service.

Employers Disclaim Responsibility.

Shortly after Mr. Eastman announced his withdrawal from the negotiations, the railway conference committee of managers issued a statement in which they placed full responsibility for the impasse on the shoulders of the brotherhoods.

"The efforts of Federal Coördinator Eastman to compose the railroad wage situation failed because the representatives of the employés refused to continue the 10 per cent deduction in pay checks of employés after July 1, 1934, although the President of the United States repeatedly urged such a continuance."

The managers' committee reviewed the progress of the dispute since their original proposal that rail workers take a 15 per cent cut, denying the contention of the brotherhoods that conditions in the railroad industry have improved sufficiently to justify a restoration of pre-depression pay.

Willing to Comply.

"The conference committee of managers," said the statement," expressed its willingness to subordinate its effort to secure a reduction of 15 per cent in basic rates to the request of the President that a wage controversy should not be precipitated now.

"It also offered to provide a method of adjusting the compensation of the lower paid men referred to in the President's second letter. We were willing to do this with a profound hope that a continuation of national recovery should be such as to justify this action. The President's proposals have been repeatedly rejected by the representatives of the employés.

"If a wage controversy be now precipitated upon the country we direct attention to the fact that it results from the refusal of the employés to accept the extension pressed upon them and us by the President, and upon the basis of which the federal coördinator of transportation has attempted to compose the immediate situation."

Because 21,000 southern soft coal miners are already out on a bloody strike, the coal negotiations carried on by Johnson were even more tense than the threatening railroad situation.

What Johnson's compromise offer was could not be learned.

His original order had set a flat seven hour day and higher wages for the southern bituminous fields. When Alabama operators refused to accept the order and sought an injunction against it their miners struck.

STRIKERS CALM DOWN A BIT IN ALABAMA FIELD

Birmingham, Ala., April 21.—(AP)—Peace prevailed in Alabama's strife-torn coal fields today as the second week of idleness ended for 21,000 miners, and a basis for resumption of operations was being sought in Washington.

The roving bands of Negro pickets armed with clubs and sticks have disappeared from the highways, but orderly picketing was under way at some of the closed mines.

The situation in other industries dependent on the mines for fuel, however, grew increasingly acute, with at least one plant, the Gulf States Paper company at Tuscaloosa, announcing it will close down Monday.

DOLLAR CAUGHT IN NEW WORLD CURRENCY WAR

Roosevelt Stands Pat on Silver Issue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Administration worry concerning the success of the New Deal's monetary program reached a new stage of intensity today.

President Roosevelt's devalued dollar was hurled back into a seething international currency war by French raids on American gold holdings and by general fear over congressional sentiment for silver or other inflationary legislation.

To support the dollar on the international exchange, the treasury prepared to authorize the first American gold exports since the gold export ban was laid down during last year's bank holiday.

Silverites at White House.

At the same time the President was dealing in person at a White House conference with the senators whose demands for legislation to remonetize and boost the price of silver have become an increasingly irritating economic and political factor.

Cabled news that the dollar had fallen to the gold point on the Paris bourse lent point to the President's attempt to allay the silver senator's demands with promises that he would study the situation and the possibility of using a portion at least of the permissive power he already has to enhance silver prices.

Roosevelt Stands Pat.

Beyond permissive legislation, it was made clear the President would not go. He repeated his determination not to stand for any bill of a mandatory nature. The senators had to be content with the knowledge that the most they can persuade the President to approve is some such measure as the Dies bill in the form in which it passed the house—that is, permissive only.

The only official announcement to come out of the meeting was a statement that the conferees "had engaged in a thorough discussion of the whole world monetary question, including both gold and silver."

The fact that gold was talked of as well as silver, indicated that Mr. Roosevelt had used the day's developments with respect to his gold policy as an example to emphasize a reiterated opposition to mandatory legislation requiring enormous silver purchases as contemplated in proposed senate amendments to the Dies bill.

Borah Among Those Present.

Though professing satisfaction at the "sympathetic" treatment accorded them by the President, the silver senators very obviously had not received the sort of word they would have liked.

The silverites in attendance at the conference were Senators Borah [Rad., Rep., Idaho], one of the most insistent on silver remonetization, King [Dem., Utah], Pittman [Dem., Nev.], Shipstead [Farmer-Labor, Minn.], Adams [Dem., Colo.], Thomas [Dem., Okla.], and McCarran [Dem., Nev.]. Also there were Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Eugene Black, governor of the federal reserve board, Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], president of the senate finance committee, and Herman Oliphant, special treasury counsel.

The silver senators were promised further conferences provided they can heal the rift within their own ranks and agree on legislation acceptable to the White House. Certain ones like Senator Borah and Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] are for mandatory legislation or nothing. Others are willing to give in to the President's wishes. Permissive legislation is admittedly nothing but a sop to keep the silver agitators quiet.

Already Has Such Power.

As Senator Harrison explained following the conference, it is his view and presumably that of the President that Mr. Roosevelt already has power enough under the Thomas amendment to remonetize silver according to any formula he sees fit to select. Were it not for the crisis with respect to the gold policy and the anxiety of the administration over the disturbing silver talk, there doubtless would be no concessions at all to the silverites.

The drop in the exchange value of the dollar has made the President's position one requiring delicate political diplomacy. Much will depend on the success of the determination to approve gold exports announced today.

Gold shipments abroad to bolster the dollar probably will start early next week unless the value of the dollar recovers before that time. The dollar already is selling at such a discount in Paris that international bankers will find it profitable to buy gold here and sell it abroad.

No application to export gold has yet been received by the treasury, but it was learned today that applications will be readily granted. The treasury believes that by selling gold freely abroad for a short time it can check the slump of the dollar.

The theory on which the administration is working is that if it contines to sell gold at $35 an ounce, the official price set when President Roosevelt devalued the dollar, the world price cannot go far above that point. The French gold price is now about $35.10 an ounce. This 10 cent margin is enough to make American gold exports profitable, and it is this margin which the treasury hopes to wipe out by selling freely.

Laid to French Rumors.

"Industrious circulation of rumors by the French," about American monetary plans and outlook was blamed in high official quarters for the weakness of the dollar abroad. The French, in order to drain gold from America to their own treasury, have been spreading reports that President Roosevelt will soon devalue the dollar a second time, it was said.

Added to the French rumors has been uncertainty over the outcome of agitation in congress for huge silver purchases by the treasury. The prospect that this or some other inflationary measure might be passed over the President's veto has undermined some of the dollar's former strength abroad.

Should the treasury's policy of selling gold freely at $35 an ounce fail to support the dollar and to stop the gold drain, foreign gold raids might eventually drive America off the gold standard again as they did last March, observers pointed out. Treasury officials, however, were confident no such crisis would arise. They are positive that they can ride out the new attack.

How It Would Operate.

The action which will touch off the gold exporting machinery, the treasury explained today, will be certification by the federal reserve bank of New York that the price of gold has reached the export point. Thereafter, the treasury will approve export licenses automatically until the foreign gold price has been brought back under the export point.

By "export point," treasury experts explained, they mean a foreign price for gold which is sufficiently high so that a banker or dealer could buy gold here, pay all the shipping and insurance charges, and sell it abroad at a profit. Treasury officials estimated that when the foreign price of gold goes above $35.10 an ounce exports would be profitable.

Late this afternoon the treasury still had received no certification from the New York Reserve bank. Neither had it received any gold export request. Machinery was ready and waiting, however, in anticipation of demands early next week.

Georgia Hosiery Mill Claims It Complied with NRA Spirit

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 21.—[Special.]—With a federal grand jury summoned to consider charges against it, the Richmond Hosiery mills at Rossville, Ga., two miles south of here, issued a letter to its stockholders today claiming that "We have complied fully with the spirit of the recovery acts and 98 per cent with the technical requirements of the code."

Garnett Andrews of Chattanooga, president of the mills, said in the letter that the only offense that could be charged against the plant was operating at a greater capacity for a period last winter than was fixed by the NRA rather than to turn off "170 or more of our employés, who had nowhere else to work."

Understood Two Objectives.

Mr. Andrews' statement declared the company understood that the NRA had two main objectives.

"These are increase and spread employment and the increase of wages with the hope that purchasing power would thereby be increased and general prosperity advanced," the statement said. "With these objectives we have been in full sympathy."

"Having in mind preventing unemployment, we continued to operate our plant during the trying three years following the crash in the face of tremendous losses, largely in order to avoid throwing fifteen hundred odd people out of employment. We took orders at whatever price we could to run the plant regardless of loss to our stockholders."

Mr. Andrews then detailed how a surplus of $680,043.78 on Nov. 30, 1929, had been converted on March 31, 1933, into a loss of $106,410.40, and how the officials of the mill had considered closing down, but "always decided to keep going and keep our many employés out of the breadline and the soup kitchen at whatever loss to our investments and preserve our organization."

Adopt Wage Standards.

"Following the enactment of these measures we promptly adopted the wage standards prescribed and practically almost doubled our pay roll, in round figures from $17,000 to $30,000 per week, although required at the same time to reduce working hours to such an extent that we were forced to let out hundreds of our employés, reducing the total from 2,195 in July to 1,736 in August.

"I come now to refer to the particular matter of alleged violation of the hosiery code of which we have been accused, and for which an effort is being made to condemn us and punish us. Now note that no complaint has been made of the wages we paid; none of working any employés overtime; none of any unfair treatment of our people in any respect."

HIT BY TRAIN; INJURY FATAL.

William P. Irving, 49 years old, 127 West Seventy-fourth street, brakeman for the Pennsylvania railroad, died at the Augustana hospital yesterday from injuries incurred March 25 when he was knocked down by a switch engine in the railroad yards.

150 MINERS DIE IN BLAST; 250 TRAPPED IN PIT

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, April 21.—A subterranean explosion in the Kakanj coal mines near Sarajevo tonight killed at least 150 miners, said late reports which evaded a censorship.

It was called the worst industrial disaster in Jugo-Slavia's history. First reports placed the death toll somewhere between 80 and 300.

The explosion was variously ascribed to fire damp and to a cigaret. All the engineers escaped death. They were at lunch outside the mine.

Recover 24 Burned Bodies.

Additional official information from the disaster scene said 24 bodies, burned beyond recognition, had been removed from the gallery nearest that where the blast occurred.

It was reported 250 trapped miners failed to answer signals. Engineers said it was a miracle if any of them remained alive.

During the Austrian occupation of Jugo-Slavia in 1915 a disaster in the same mine killed 18 persons.

Tonight's explosion occurred in the lower galleries so that all workers then in the mines were trapped helplessly. Rescue work was made virtually impossible.

Shortly before midnight a total of 76 bodies had been recovered.

Women Seek Husbands and Sons.

Pathetic scenes were enacted at the pit head where hundreds of weeping women swarmed seeking their husbands and sons.

Military units were rushed to the mine to aid in the rescue work. Some of the soldiers expressed the opinion that their efforts might be entirely in vain.

Police lines were placed around the scene to keep frantic relatives from the pit head.

WORST BLAST IN BALKANS.

The disaster at the Kakanj mines threatens to be the worst in the history of southern European coal mining.

Available records list this as the only mine explosion of major proportions in the Balkans in recent years.

The greatest toll of life on record in a mine disaster occurred at Courriere, France, in 1906, where 1,060 miners were killed.

Laura Ingalls in Cuba After 16,000 Mile Flight

HAVANA, April 21.—(AP)—Laura Ingalls, apparently thriving on her 16,000-mile aerial solo tour around South America, landed here today and announced plans to hop off for Miami at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow enroute back to New York. She has visited 23 countries on her long flight.

Miners Die in Blast

Map shows approximate location of the Kakanj coal mines near Sarajevo, Jugoslavia, where at least 150 miners were killed last night in a subterranean explosion. It was reported 250 trapped men failed to answer signals and it is feared they, too, were killed. The mine is about 95 miles southwest of Belgrade.

ARRAIGN DAKOTA GOVERNOR AND 7 OTHER LEADERS

Fargo, N. D., April 21.—(AP)—In proceedings without parallel in the history of North Dakota, Gov. William A. Langer was arraigned today before Judge Andrew Miller in United States District court here.

The governor and eight others were indicted jointly on two charges—conspiracy to extort funds from federal employés and blocking orderly operation of an act of congress. Gov. Langer is believed to be the first North Dakota chief executive to face charges constituting a felony.

The indictments were returned by a grand jury which investigated allegations relief workers paid with government funds had been forced to contribute to the support of the Leader, administration newspaper.

Since his removal as head of federal relief activities in the state as the first public development in the investigation in this state, Langer has steadfastly denied guilt, terming the various developments "politically inspired."

He heads one faction of the Non-Partisan league, split this year over his administration. The league in turn is a part of the Republican party.

Today's proceedings lasted only 14 minutes.

The court fixed May 22 at Bismarck for the start of the term of court at which the cases will be tried. Gov. Langer was permitted to sign his own bond.

All of the accused except State Senator Oscar Erickson, listed as "publisher" of the Leader, were present. Erickson was reported as ill.

Those who appeared today, besides the governor, were Oscar Chaput, business manager of the Leader; Frank Vogel, state highway commissioner; Harold McDonald, solicitor; R. A. Kinzer, former executive secretary of the federal relief committee; his son, Joseph Kinzer, and Paul J. Yeater and G. A. Hample, employés in the highway department.

ployment and raise standards of living, were regulating industry by means of codes.

Would Punish Big Violator.

Mr. Tiffany explained that it was not the policy of his office to prosecute small shop owners. On the contrary, he asserted that the attorney general was more interested in checking violations by large concerns, including coal and milk dealers.

He said that Isidore Colton, director of the cleaners and dyers' code, with headquarters in Newark, repeatedly went to see Mr. Maged to try to induce him to comply with that provision of the code requiring tailors to charge 40 cents for pressing a suit, whereas Mr. Maged charged 35 cents.

When the complaint finally reached the attorney general's office Mr. Tiffany declared that he had gone to see the tailor and had spent almost half a day trying to persuade him to abide by the terms of the code. To all of his entreaties, according to Mr. Tiffany, Mr. Maged replied:

"No speak English."

When the assistant attorney general began to explain through a daughter and she started to reply her father stopped her, according to Mr. Tiffany, with:

"You keep quiet."

"Then you do speak English?" asked Mr. Tiffany in surprise.

"I don't know what you mean," replied the tailor.

Explains Through Girl.

"I then explained through the girl that we were not interested in sending any one to jail," said Mr. Tiffany, "but that it was important for all under the code to observe its provisions. Mr. Maged replied:

"'You can't tell me how to run my business.'"

"'You may make it necessary for us to take this case to court,' I warned him.

"'If you can send me to jail, go ahead,' replied Mr. Maged."

EDUCATOR WARNS OF THE DANGER IN NEW DEAL POLICY

Asks Brain Trust Experts to Watch Their Step.

The life and intellectual liberty of higher education institutions is being menaced by heavy taxation and dictatorial policies of the New Deal, Lotus D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, told educators at the final session of the North Central association convention in the Stevens hotel yesterday. At the same time Dr. Coffman issued a warning to the professors of the "brain trust."

"Perhaps a warning may be given to the college professors who are now helping both state and federal governments in carrying forward their programs," Dr. Coffman said. "It is that the professors shall do the things they are qualified to do and not allow themselves to be drawn off into kinds of administrative responsibilities for which they have no qualifications.

A Risky Experiment.

"This is a risky experiment in which we are engaged. The placing of so much power in the hands of politicians is always fraught with grave danger. We fear them because we know them.

"Although the American people have not been clear as to what this program means, they have with great unanimity accepted it as an experiment, and vast numbers of them have become intense advocates of it.

"So intense has the spirit of advocacy become that criticism of the program has been stigmatized as unpatriotic. But some criticism there must be if we are to build safely and sanely for the future."

Danger to Education.

The greatest danger for education in the "new deal" is the effect which naturally flows out of every attempt to regiment everything, Dr. Coffman said.

"When professors become serfs to dominate political opinion then the foundations of civilization rests upon on insecure footing," he said. "Intellectual liberties are imperiled in America. They are in danger of falling prey to the fires of party passion, in the interests of a special group, and to new pressure flowing from the national program."

Leads to Dictatorship.

Turning to the increasing tax burden and the policies of the administration, Dr. Coffman said:

"Government regulation necessarily affects every type of institution it touches. Regulation often becomes a kind of credal political philosophy leading to dictatorship. It is notorious that wherever dictatorships exist there has been little or no intellectual liberty.

"Intellectual liberties are imperiled in America. They are in danger of falling prey to the fires of party passion, in the interests of a special group, and to new pressure flowing from the national program. The New Deal tax attack on wealth means a further blow to education, since it will hit gifts and endowments."

Predicts Fewer Gifts.

Dr. Coffman saw danger to the existence of gift supported schools in the new heavy taxes on wealth. "An outcome of the heavy taxation of wealth will mean that there will be fewer private gifts of consequence for colleges, universities, libraries, museums, and charities," he said. "They will find it increasingly necessary to rely upon tuition fees for support.

"With the people taking possession of wealth for their own use and welfare, it will be interesting to observe to what extent they will be willing to spend upon tax supported institutions."

Dr. Coffman spoke at the morning session of the convention after the association had elected B. L. Stradley, Ohio State university examiner, president to succeed H. M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, Appleton, Wis., and selected Chicago as its 1935 convention city.

Other Officers Elected.

Other officers elected were: I. M. Hughes, president of Iowa State college, first vice president; L. N. McWhorter, assistant superintendent of school, Minneapolis, second vice president; A. W. Clevinger, University of Illinois, secretary; E. H. K. McComb, principal of Manual Training High school, Indianapolis, treasurer. Harry M. Gage, president Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Ia., was reëlected chairman of the commission on higher education, and F. L. Hunt, Culver Military school, chairman of the commission on secondary schools.

Dean Charles H. Judd of the department of education, University of Chicago, addressed the final session on the subject, "Education and the General Social Order." He said that education is failing to supply the present needs of society.

The executive committee approved the proposal of the commission on higher education to name a committee to assist Chicago school officials in the establishment of three junior colleges in the fall. Dean George A. Works of the department of education, University of Chicago, will appoint the committee.

CURRY DEPOSED AS CHIEF OF TAMMANY

John F. Curry (center, with gray hair) leaving Tammany hall in New York after he was deposed as chief of organization by a vote of the executive committee of the New York City Democracy. He has headed the Hall for five years.

THREE FACTIONS BATTLE TO RULE TAMMANY HALL

Ahearn Candidate for Curry's Post.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Tammany Hall for the first time in its history was today without a leader or an official head. It resembled an armed camp with at least three bitter and belligerent factions, intrenched and waiting for the warfare which is regarded as certain to break forth when the first move is made to elect a successor to John F. Curry, deposed yesterday by vote of the executive committee.

Insurgents Elated.

Greatly elated by their victory, leaders of insurgents were considering a plan to go into action next week and try to drive through immediately by electing one of their number successor to Curry.

The first proposal was that a steering committee should be named to function as managers of the county organization, at least for a few weeks until things had calmed down. But the more headstrong of the revolters were for quick action, fearing that if a steering committee is formed there may come new combinations and alliances which will rob them of the fruits of their victory.

Fight in Committee Seen.

This first development, the morning after the great battle, showed how things already are drifting from bad to worse. The organization was so completely bewildered that none knew what to do. Even in the makeup of a steering committee, if that procedure is adopted, there is certain to be a fight for recognition, as each faction struggles for an advantage.

Edward J. Ahearn, prime mover and leading spirit of the revolt which overthrew Curry, was said to favor calling another session of the executive committee early next week to a vote on a new leader. Ahearn, himself, is the leading candidate for the leadership.

Nazi Bishop Halts Activity of Y. M. C. A. in Germany

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, April 21.—The German Y. M. C. A., after prolonged negotiations, has obtained from Reichsbishop Mueller a measure of autonomy. To begin with, the Y. M. C. A. had to make concessions. It will receive a delegate from the reich church into its governing board. It must confine its evangelistic activities to "extra-parochial work" and to youths over 18. Religious instruction to younger persons is claimed as a monopoly of the church, and the Y. M. C. A. agrees to keep in close touch with church officials.

HARVARD CLASSMATES OF ROOSEVELT HIS GUESTS IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Members of the class of Harvard '04 staged a reunion at the capital today. Their host was their classmate, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States. With their wives and children—some 800 or 900 in all—they were entertained by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at a reception and party on the White House lawn.

The President greeted his guests in the Blue room of the White House as they arrived. From the Blue room the guests filed to the lawn, where tea was served from marquees. Be-Roosevelt had at dinner the President's shipmates aboard the Amberjack II. on the cruise to Campobello Island last summer. The owner of the schooner, Paul Rust of Marblehead, Mass.; John Cutter of Dedham, Mass.; George Briggs of Boston, and James Roosevelt, the President's eldest son, completed the list.

BERLIN PASTORS CHALLENGE RULE OF BISHOP TODAY

BERLIN, April 21.—(AP)—Public challenge to the "autocratic rule" of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller was prepared by the Opposition Pastors' Emergency federation tonight for presentation in Protestant churches here tomorrow.

"The present church government is built not upon holy writ but upon the secular principle of leadership," the manifesto asserts. "tIs constitution reaches a climax in the autocratic rule of the reichsbishop. Such dictatorship, which disinherits the congregation as a flock that has to be silenced we as Protestant Christians cannot accept. The bishop's task is not to rule over the church but to serve it.

"The reichsbishop has not rescinded those laws which establish his dictatorship over the church. We insist upon a radical revision of the church revolution of 1933."

This "revolution" gave the Nazi German Christians of Dr. Mueller full control of the church administration.

Catholic Leader Protests Sentence; Nazis Raise It

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 21. — A court in Munich raised the sentence of Johann Lohr, president of the Catholic Union of Workers and former member of the Bavarian diet, to one year in prison. Lohr was accused of having insulted the Nazi government during a private meeting. He originally was sentenced to ten days in prison and was ordered to pay a fine. He protested and the higher court increased the sentence to a year.

BISHOP FORBIDS CATHOLICS TO DUEL IN GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 21.—Catholic students today were forbidden to engage in duels or attend duels, under the threat of immediate excommunication, by the bishop of Berlin. Mass trial duels [mensuren], in which students slash each other with sabers to display their courage, have been reintroduced by the Nazis and have been carried on a wide scale.

Catholic dignitaries contend that "these contests only serve as rehersals for real duels and keep alive the idea of false honor, offense, and retribution incompatible with the Christian faith.

"The first duel or first trial duel attended by a Catholic, even as an onlooker, leads automatically to his excommunication," says the Berlin paper of the Catholic bishop.

Nazi students are protesting loudly. Their leader at Breslau said students side with "the leader Hitler, who believes honor can be avenged only with blood."

The Labor Front, in its "strength through joy" movement, is endeavoring to introduce the laboring classes to the joys of fencing formerly reserved to aristocratic students and army officers. The body has organized courses in fencing. Twenty-three girls and seven young men have enrolled. Organizers explained the lack of interest shown by men was due to their activities in the storm troops.

COL. ROOSEVELT PREDICTS END OF SOCIALIST TREND

Laments Loss of Ancient Rights Under New Deal.

Asbury Park, N. J., April 21.—[Special.]—Declaring that the government under the New Deal is headed toward a socialized state with public institutions being scuttled over night and untried theories put in their place shunting individual liberties into the past, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, president of the National Republican club of New York, predicted today a return to rugged individualism with the Republican party once more victoriously leading the way.

Addressing the third annual convention of young Republicans of New Jersey here, Col. Roosevelt and other speakers pointed out that unnecessary spending, loss of constitutional rights and the sacrifice of individualism were the prices of the New Deal.

"I am a strong believer in young men's and women's movements," Col. Roosevelt said.

"We must give careful attention to shaping the policies of the Republican party. We've got a stake and we must have a clear cut program. If we don't have, we haven't the right to win.

Attacks Policy of Waste.

"We should have a platform calling for sound money. There are 65 million insurance policies and 25 million dollars in savings banks," the speaker added declaring the present "unstable" monetary policy was discouraging industry and thrift.

A balanced budget was also advocated by the colonel who said, "we can't get along as individuals if we spend more than we get. The administration in Washington is trying to waste its way out of the depression."

Citing the Public Works administration program and figures taken from its own report, Col. Roosevelt declared it provided for the pulling down of serviceable buildings and the erection of buildings no more serviceable.

"Such destruction of capital cannot be justified on any basis," he declared.

PWA Cash for Golf Course.

Quoting from a PWA report, Col. Roosevelt cited a plan outlined for construction of a tourist hotel at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. He declared this money would be wasted, as no tourists go to St. Thomas. Among other expenditures provided under the PWA he says was $63,000 at Waterbury, Conn., for a nine hole golf course, and $25,000 for statute of Liberty improvements.

"Hundreds of millions are being spent for plowing up crops and buying pigs with the announced intention of cutting down production of farm products," the colonel said, "while on the other hand hundreds of thousands of dollars are being spent for agricultural extension work to increase farm production. These instances could be multiplied a hundredfold. We're not going to solve our problems this way, we can only solve them by the practice of tax reduction and economy."

ROOSEVELT CONSIDERS ENLARGING OFFICES AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt is seriously considering enlargement of the executive office to accommodate the increased force necessary as a result of the huge volume of business.

The office, located on the west side of the White House, was remodelled and enlarged at the start of President Hoover's administration but the White House staf already has outgrown it.

Several plans have been drawn but none has been approved. Meanwhile some of the White House stenographers are using rooms in the large state department building across the street.

Sol J. Freudenheim, New York jewelry salesman, was robbed of $40,000 worth of unset diamonds yesterday by a man who leaped out of an alley north of Randolph street on Wabash avenue and seized a brief case containing the jewels after tripping his victim. The robber escaped in a car which swung to the curb to pick him up.

Freudenheim, who is a member of the New York firm of J. Freudenheim and son, told the police he was walking north in Wabash avenue on his way to call on several customers. The gems, he said, were in two leather pouches within the brief case. Two witnesses supplied police with the license number of the car in which the bandit fled.

Wife Dies of Poison Taken in Death Pact

Mrs. Helen Martin, 59 years old, who swallowed poison in a suicide pact with her husband on April 12, died yesterday at her home, 6339 Kimbark avenue. The husband, John, 63 years old, is expected to recover. He told the police he was once prosperous and he and Mrs. Martin spent their last pennies to buy the poison, preferring to die rather than live on charity.

Three Northwestern Co-eds Honored for Scholarship

Three sororities at Northwestern university yesterday awarded Pan-Hellenic scholarship honors to members. Those chosen were Amelia O'Neal of the Ambassador East hotel, by Delta Gamma; Katherine Krug, 7301 Prairie avenue, by Alpha Chi Omega, and Enid Overoeder, 2211 Leland avenue, by Delta Zeta. Each had the highest scholastic average in

The Ponderosa or American wonder lemon tree in the Garfield park conservatory is now in the process of flowering, it was announced yesterday by August Koch, chief horticulturist. Along with the flowers, there is ripening fruit on the tree, which is a common characteristic of citrus trees. The fruit of this lemon tree sometimes weighs as much as two and a half pounds apiece.

Buys Pistol to Kill Self, Sentenced for Gun Toting

Despondent and determined to kill himself, Daniel Norton, 50 years old, 4904 Magnolia avenue, yesterday was condemned to live at least a year and a half. He was sentenced to serve that length of time in the house of correction by Judge Frederick W. Elliott in South State Street court for carrying the pistol with which he intended to commit suicide because of his inability to find work.

TUGWELL CALLS NEW DEAL PLAN WILL OF PEOPLE

Declares Dictatorship Is Only Alternative.

Again, he brought his argument back to the personal to deny the allegations of his communistic leanings. Again, he claimed that he was the very opposite of a revolutionist.

"Seven years ago I visited Russia for two months," said Professor Tugwell. "That visit has often been considered sufficient proof of my adherence to communism, as though communism could be caught by contagion, like mumps or measles. I suppose there does not exist in the whole country today a more convinced believer in the democratic process than I am. But I happen to be really interested in its survival and eager to adapt it to the modern world so that it can survive. For this something more than windy eulogies to liberty is necessary.

Sees Threat to Democracy.

"Democracy has been living a precarious life among our business institutions; its enemies in this country were in a fair way to have it strangled and laid quietly aside until the New Deal came along. For they did not realize that real democracy cannot be destroyed without provoking a revolt on the part of its practitioners. Farmers were being starved off their land, workers were denied access to idle factories. You know all these recent chapters of our history. And you know as well as I do that a kind of specious and purely formal political process was being used as a stalking horse for privilege and threatening oligarchy. I have never lent myself to this supreme chicancery and I am not likely to do so so long as I keep any realistic sense at all."

Admittedly there was a considerable difference between the Tugwellian theory of the American tradition and that held by those more commonly called conservatives.

There was, for example, the matter of regimentation.

The administration of the Agricultural Adjustment act and author of the new Food and Drugs bill did not consider such legislation to be "regimentation." But he found plenty of regimentation being practiced by industrial leaders under the old order.

Strikes at "Coercion."

"When there are thousands of people working together in a business enterprise, and those people are Americans, things will not run smoothly unless that enterprise bases its operations on free and full consent throughout the organization, rather than on economic coercion or arbitrary management," he said.

EXPRESSES "REVOLT"

The New Deal expressed the revolt of men and women against the slavery "of machines, of systems, of corporate and financial devices." He chided those who sought to perpetuate the old order for being confused in thought.

"It is my conception of the New Deal that it shall ensure the subjugation of things, and restore to men the freedoms they have earned, together with all the advantages which ought to accrue from our victories over nature," he said. "Those who are shouting 'regimentation' now do not recognize the inevitability of this process; they are those who have greatly benefited from the subjection of man to things.

"The beneficiaries of private industrial regimentation cannot prevail, of course, for it is not in the nature of Americans to permit it."

Holds Change Inevitable.

To the editors Mr. Tugwell preached the inevitability of the changed order. It would succeed regardless of weaknesses in those who sought to administer it.

"If these men misconceive their mandates, or if they are inefficient or arrogant," he remarked, "they will disappear and others will take their places."

Where democracy was set aside was in the period prior to 1933 when those in authority refused to remedy causes and contented themselves with attacking symptoms, he argued.

"Social change in America cannot go on any faster than the people who are affected want it to go on," he went on. "That is one of the assurances against any danger that it may go too fast in this country. Those who are favored under present arrangements have too ready a remedy against excessive speed. Also, for the present it must be remembered that we suffer from years of blocking. Changes can come slowly if progress is not altogether stopped. But when it is stopped an accumulation of desirable policies is ready to be let loose and much more rapid changes result.

Fixes '29 Collapse Blame.

"The resistance mechanisms are almost too perfect. They brought about complete collapse in 1929 and prevented any change for some three years. Now that some of the necessary measures have at last been taken and some recovery has been assured, the forces of reaction are again in full cry. No one could be found a year ago who wanted to stop everything.

"Now there are a noisy few who want to go back to 1929, and they would pillory as enemies of what they call the American system those who still do not want to interrupt the orderly movement of democratic change or to go back where we were when that movement had been successfully inhibited. The sovereignty of the American people is the real source of this administration's power."

"I for one do not wish to supplant this sovereignty with another kind whose theory is that for some groups and interests there should be immunity from political control. That way lies economic oligarchy."

DEFENDS EXPERIMENTS

The brains truster defended the Roosevelt policy of experimentation. Private enterprise had felt perfectly free to experiment, he pointed out.

"The objections to the process which have been made most vociferously up to now have come from industrialists and financiers," he declared. "This is, of course, because for the first time they have been made the subjects of it."

"The real objection," he went on, "is not to the method. It is to its success. For the first time controls of sufficient timeliness and flexibility have been found to be really effective. Critics say that the government ought not to experiment because it destroys business certainty. But the same argument works both ways. Industrial experimentation has made men's livings insecure. It came to the point where even a good farmer cultivating fertile soil efficiently could not succeed, where very few workers were employable after forty, where unemployment was growing yearly even in prosperity."

He defended the AAA, claiming that it was necessary in order to fit American agriculture to world conditions; that it was heedful of the rights and wishes of the individual farmer.

Contrary to the formula of his more bellicose and vituperative confrere, Gen. Hugh Johnson of the NRA, Prof. Tugwell was inclined to be conciliatory toward the press.

Says Criticism Welcome.

He began by saying:

"It is human, I suppose, to prefer praise to blame and to desire sympathy rather than hostility to the great national movement of free social coöperation which we are now in; but I realize that the science of human nature—which we describe as politics—becomes cheap and tawdry chicanery if its practitioners are debarred, even by the unorganized coercion of mass emotions, from the right to oppose and criticize. And since there is no major point of the President's policy where it is necessary to shrink from criticism or to conceal the facts, I desire to congratulate you on the recent evidences in your respective publications of an awakened public interest in the discussion of our public affairs.

"I only wish that the more analytical phase of this interest and critical discussion had begun earlier, at the time when the main features of the New Deal were being hammered out in congress and throughout the administration."

ASKS PRESS SUPPORT

He pleaded for press support of the New Deal conception of democracy and the right to experiment.

"I plead with you," he said, "as exponents of freedom of speech, to ask yourselves whether democracy and experimentation are not the only practical means for overcoming the present evils with which the country is beset."

He attempted to show that the Roosevelt program was no menace to freedom of speech and press—though he failed to mention such things as newspaper codes and censorship orders.

Points Fay to "Freedom."

Then as he went on, he sought to show that only through the success of the New Deal could the American system—and freedom of speech—be preserved against overthrow by the forces that surely would rise if the people's will were denied.

"If you have felt some apprehension that the New Deal menaced your freedom, it must have been something born in your own minds," said Secretary Tugwell. "There are enemies of that freedom abroad; but they are not members of the government. Indeed there are not people at all. They are ideas. Does the press enjoy the same freedom under other systems which it enjoys under ours? Those who would create conditions which require violent correctives are your real enemies. No matter what those conditions are, whether war, or social upheavals at home; or even the rise of one of those militant nationalist movements with which the world has had too much experience lately—those are the real threats to that freedom which we regard as precious.

Points to Dictatorships.

"Over three hundred and fifty million people who thought that they were free fifteen years ago are now living under dictatorships of one kind or another. Those who can look out upon the world as you do cannot fail to appreciate that a great part of it is already in the grip of nationalist movements which have extinguished democracy and written warped definitions of freedom. There, gentlemen, lies your real enemy, and not at Washington.

"The democratic process or the experimental method will never threaten the real freedom of the press. That would be a contradition in terms, for neither can succeed without the fullest and freest discussion of every proposal. There is no other way in which the necessary foundation of public consent can be built. The New Deal is not somtthing which can establish itself in the mind of a dictator or a small governing group. That was the fatal theory of the system from which we are turning away. Its base has to be as broad as the economy which has to be brought under control and as deep as the minds and the hearts of the people whom it affects."

SEES MILLIONS JOBLESS

In closing, Prof. Tugwell admitted that the New Deal program was only at the beginning. He predicted that the end of the year would still find millions jobless.

"How," he concluded, "do you suppose these men and their families feel about the academic question whether it is recovery we want, or whether it is reform? My friends these two words have no separate meaning.

"Eeither it is a New Deal or it is the Old Deal. The Old Deal brought this insecurity into the midst of their homes; if we returned to what we had before it would still be there, and we should have outraged them baselessly. We have set out farecs not toward theories or labels, but towards the necessary actions."

SEES REAL PERIL IN INEXPERIENCE OF BRAIN TRUST

Meyer Warns Editors of 'Experimentation Alibi.'

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—The country's "most immediate danger" was said tonight by Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, to lie "in the inexperience of the young intellectuals who are now apparently directing the policy of the administration."

Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board during the Hoover administration and member of the war industries board under President Wilson, was addressing the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

He said the Post "has no political affiliations whatever." He did not refer to President Roosevelt by name, but made frequent references to the "brain trust."

Hits "Experimentation" Alibi.

"It is no wonder," he said, "that they consider law and theory as all that is necessary for sound government, but they forget that no battery of fine phrases can ever take the place of fact and that no law is ever better than its administration.

"Prohibition has only lately proved that, and a large part of the New Deal legislation will prove it again. Experimentation is, after all, nothing but a method, yet it is being used by the brain trust as the world's greatest alibi in all history."

"The impression of widespread local favoritism and graft in the CWA and the fact that criminal prosecutions of local officials are already reported to be under way in the Home Owners' Loan corporation, indicate that centralized planning and administration for 130,000,000 people scattered over a vast continent is not as simple as at first it may have seemed to the young theorists of the brain trust."

Cites Paper's Policies.

"Another danger which I see in the attitude of the brain trust is that they clothe themselves in an atmosphere of righteousness."

"We are firmly convinced," he said in discussing the Post's policies, "that individual initiative is essential to progress and that society should be organized to further that individual self-expression."

"We have fought steadily on behalf of a sound currency and we are unequivocally opposed to inflationary monetary manipulation."

He declared the stock exchange bill by including provisions "which will result in state control of industry" was "a glaring example" of legislation "put forward ostensibly for one purpose while deceitfully establishing powers for other purposes."

H. S. VANCE, AUTO CHIEF, REFUSES LABOR BOARD JOB

Harold S. Vance, vice president of the Studebaker corporation at South Bend, Ind., who came up through the ranks from a 15 cents an hour job with the company, yesterday declined an appointment to represent industry on the Chicago regional labor board which was offered to him by President Roosevelt. Vance's reason was the press of business affairs. The labor board is headed by Dr. Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago. The Rev. William A. Bolger, C. S. C., economics professor at Notre Dame university, accepted an invitation to represent labor on the board. Both appointments were proffered through Senator Robert Wagner, chairman of the national labor board.

STATE NRA BILL FACES HOT FIGHT AT SPRINGFIELD

Public Hearing Is Slated for Wednesday.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—[Special.] —Administration Democrats in the Illinois house face a hard fight next week in attempting to secure passage of the state NRA bill—the measure which ran into a storm of disapproval when it was introduced last week at the request of the New Dealers in Washington.

The opposition may be dormant until Wednesday when a public hearing will be had at the request of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. The business men have indicated that they will take after the "dictatorial" features of the bill on the grounds that it would make every state and municipal employé in Illinois a policeman for the NRA.

Legislative experts say the bill would bear the same relationship to the NRA as the Illinois search and seizure act bore to the Volstead law. The state enforcement provision is the means by which the National Recovery administration wishes to back its ideas of regimenting business with criminal penalties.

Horner Silent on Bill.

Although he maintained silence on the bill today, it was indicated that Gov. Horner will do all he can to see that it is passed. His floor leader, Representative Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, introduced it and this automatically marked it as an administration measure to be supported by the Democrats.

How successful will be this usual procedure could not be determined for there was no test of sentiment on the bill. Some of the Democrats will probably be for it, simply because the governor wishes it approved, but most of the Republican leaders have already said that they will battle it at every opportunity.

About the only clear sign of Republican support came from Representative R. G. Soderstrom of Streator, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor. He will undoubtedly urge its passage. It is the model law sent from Washington and has been approved by labor organizations.

If the governor plans to push the bill through the present special session of the assembly, prospects of adjournment by next week-end were remote, for if it does pass the house there still remains the senate hurdle, and Republicans on that side are already planning to do battle if the opportunity comes their way.

Smarting Over Defeat.

The fight to put over the governor's bill to divert a part of the gasoline tax revenue to the school fund is set for Tuesday. This battle also will be a warm one, with Republicans opposing the administration.

The minority members backed a plan to increase the fund by diverting liquor tax revenue. It passed both houses but was vetoed by the governor last Tuesday. Attempts to pass it over the veto failed.

The Republicans are still smarting over their defeat and have indicated they will do all they can to keep the gas tax bill from receiving even 77 votes, to say nothing of the 102 votes the governor hopes it will tally. If it does draw 102 votes in the end it will have to go back to the senate because that body passed it with only 26—a majority vote. Thirty-four votes would be required under the emergency clause.

The NRA and the school bills are the two most important subjects remaining on the calendar, but the dissention both have caused may prolong the session several weeks.

Building Thronged

The Coliseum was thronged yesterday by adults and youngsters alike who came to view in all its glory, that first sure sign of spring, the circus.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace show, with its 600 performers, and its multitude of animals, including elephants, seals, camels, giraffes, and many strange beasts, is a regular old fashioned circus. There are the bespangled ladies, clowns, aerial kings and queens, human butterflies, jugglers, and educated animals. There are twenty-three three-ringed acts.

There is the "human pendulum," who is carried around suspended by his head in the mouth of an elephant; Cyse Odell and her aerial act; the Christiani's, who give an exhibition of hazardous feats of horsemanship; Bombayo, who performs on a bounding rope, and the Codonas and Hills, daring young men on the flying trapeze.

A mecca for lovers of horses are the Hagenbeck-Wallace stables, where hundreds of thoroughbred and prize draft horses are on view to the public. The fat lady, tall man, midget, snake charmer, and Albinos, can all be found on the freak platform in addition to a long-necked African princess.

FLYER'S MOTHER, 77 AND BLIND, BECOMES PAINTER

Miami, Fla., April 21.—(AP)—Blind, the mother of the late Glenn H. Curtiss, aviation pioneer, finds solace at her easel, spreading on canvas she cannot see, remarkably true pastels of scenes memory keeps fresh.

"Never mind, mother," Curtiss who paced the field of flying for a quarter of a century, consoled her after she awakened one morning six years ago to find the world blotted out, "you'll find things to keep you busy."

But even he scoffed with the rest of the family when Mrs. Curtiss determined to find her happiness in the arts.

Now she works as many hours a day with her pastel sticks or brushes as her failing strength will permit, with her daughter, and a younger sister handing her the colors she requires. She is 77 years old.

1,000 GERMANS OBSERVE HITLER BIRTHDAY HERE

The militant strains of "Horst Wessel," battle song of the Nazis, were heard last night as more than 1,000 persons gathered under the auspices of the Friends of New Germany at the Germania club. The celebration was over the 45th birthday of Adolf Hitler, although his birthday was on Friday.

The swastika and various Nazi mottoes decorated the large ballroom. An assortment of books and pamphlets on the German chancellor and his avowed objectives was offered for sale outside the ballroom. Other evidences of Hitlerism were the gold swastika on coat lapels and the many "tooth brush" style mustaches similar to that of Hitler.

PUBLIC TO PRAISE AIR MAIL POLICY, FARLEY PREDICTS

Postal Chief Insists Old Contracts Were Frauds.

Newark, N. J., April 21.—(AP)—Stoutly defending the cancelation of air mail contracts, Postmaster General James A. Farley today said his action was justified by evidence that "the contracts were fraudulent and contrary to the public interest."

"I am sure that the result of competitive bidding for air mail contracts, arranged for yesterday by the administration will prove that the action in canceling the former contracts was justified," he added, departing from a prepared address.

"I am equally certain that the public, in the end, will appreciate that the thing was done."

Claims Documentary Evidence.

Addressing a gathering at the corner stone laying of the new federal building, Farley declared "much has been said in the air mail propaganda to the effect that the air mail contracts were canceled without a hearing.

"As a matter of fact, when the contracts were canceled the postoffice department was in possession of written minutes of the meetings of the air mail contractors which showed conclusively that there had been collusion between the contractors themselves and between the contractors and officials of the postoffice department, and that the contracts thus executed were fraudulent and were entered into without competitive bidding as required by law."

Charges Powerful Connections.

The annulment of the contracts, the postmaster general said, has been, in some quarters, "deliberately misconstrued and misrepresented" and has been "the object of much political sniping."

"Some of the concerns whose contracts were canceled were owned or affiliated with powerful banking interests, holding and manufacturing companies."

The generalissimo of the Roosevelt campaign said "unconscionable profits had been made and exorbitant salaries and bonuses had been derived from stock promotions based on these fradulent contracts.

"BRAIN TRUST" SPREADS RADICAL IDEAS SWIFTLY

Aims to Change Form of U. S. Government.

heterogeneous company, to divide its members into doctrines, and thus the new brain trust falls handily into three groups, and these are hereby labeled for identification:

1. The Collectivists.
2. The Legalists.
3. The Monetarians.

Collectivists Most Numerous.

In this order, then, will these writings discuss the brain trust.

The Collectivists, far outnumbering their colleagues and wielding by far the greater power over the administration activities, include such as Tugwell and Wallace, Richberg and Johnson, Ickes and Perkins, Berle and Taussig, and many others.

The Legalists are an extraordinary group bowing before a justice of the Supreme court of the United States—Brandeis—as their god, and before a Harvard law professor—Frankfurter—as their master.

The Monetarians, led paradoxically by a one time professor of agricultural economics—Warren—are seemingly falling from grace. The President has indicated that his faith in the panaceas of the Monetarians, their "managed currency," has dimmed. But they still sit in his councils.

Guided by Their Cabinets.

In past administrations of the American government Presidents have been guided in their decisions by their cabinets. In the forming of Mr. Roosevelt's major policies, only four out of the ten members of the cabinet have taken any measurable part.

These four are Wallace, Morgenthau, Ickes, and Perkins. They are all immediately identifiable as members of the brain trust.

The six who play almost no part in the creation of ideas for changing the course of government are Hull, Roper, Cummings, Farley, Swanson, and Dern. Many observers might include Secretary of State Hull in the first list, but actually he is seldom at the White House on business. He runs the state department quietly and efficiently. He is known to be opposed to many of the policies of the New Deal, but his reserve and his loyalty to the President make his conservatism a silent conservatism.

Farley Political Impresario.

Farley is the political impresario of the administration. The others, Roper, Cummings, Swanson, and Dern, are politicians. Roper and Cummings administer their own departments, obeying the orders of the White House. Swanson's department, and Dern's, are run for them.

Past Presidents have sought and obtained, for their cabinets and for key posts in the administration and as advisers, prominent business men of the country who have proved their ability by notable successes.

None of the present cabinet is outstanding as a business man and neither is any of the brain trust.

The leaders in both houses of congress for many years, perhaps since the beginning of the republic, frequently were counseled by the Presidents.

Seldom Called to White House.

Nowadays, the senators and representatives are seldom called to the White House. They are summoned when there is revolt at the capitol.

Customarily, when important legislation was to be put through past congresses the bills were drawn by the committee chairmen and their technical stafs.

Now the bills are drawn by the brain trusters, and when they are ready they are sent to the senators and the representatives with orders that they are to be introduced, to be supported by argument and to be adopted. Almost all of the legislation implementing the New Deal has been drawn by the brain trust. A majority of the house and a good part of the senate, it is freely declared, had not read fully the most important bills when they were approved, and would not have understood their import or significance if they had read them.

The question has been raised by Dr. William A. Wirt and the Committee for the Nation whether the brain trust has President Roosevelt "in the middle of the swift stream from which he cannot escape."

He has been set up by some as a Kerensky who, one day, when the brain trust sits firmer in the seats of power, may be replaced by a Stalin.

The President is the only power above the brain trust. He alone can watch and direct and restrain the brain trusters in their course. It has been shown, as will be discussed in these writings, that radicalism shoots throughout the membership of the brain trust.

So the problem arises: Can the President, can any one man, whatever his intellectual attainments, keep watch on a 100, 200, 300 or more brain trusters in his administration?

Some of the leaders of the brain trust have been given the weightiest responsibilities, and free authority to perform tasks most vital to the commonwealth. Candid men are asking whither they will lead.

PANAMA CANAL 'BOMBARDED' BY 'ENEMY' PLANES

3 Hour 'Battle' Rages; Result Is Undecided.

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, April 21.—Whether, given actual war conditions, United States naval forces would have routed the defenders of the Panama canal with bombs, destroyed Albrook air field while a majority of its planes were grounded and put out of operation the Miraflores locks will never be known.

This is because there were no umpires to hand down a decision on victory or defeat in the colorful three hour struggle today for possession of the Panama canal. During this struggle practically the entire United States navy stole into Balboa following a surprise massed plane attack after an initial plane assault had apparently been defeated and the planes retired.

Naval Forces Claim Victory

While there was no decision, the naval forces claimed that they had accomplished their mission despite heavy aircraft and submarine losses. Army officials said the close formation of the navy's bombers had proved an easy target for the defending anti-aircraft guns.

The first blood was drawn early this morning, when three bombers from the defending army, flying about 100 miles south of Balboa, dropped six theoretical 500 pound bombs on the aircraft carrier Lexington, "destroying the carrier with many planes aboard." The next action came when the naval forces destroyed Albrook field.

In the meantime army pursuit planes had gone aloft and attacked naval bombardment squadrons en route to destroy the Miraflores locks. Almost simultaneously army bombers swooped down, surprising and destroying the aircraft carrier Langley, following a vicious naval plane attack.

Submarines Fight Battleships.

Submarines from the Coco Solo naval base reported that they had engaged several battleships, and claimed victory.

While the rival air forces indulged in a dramatic display of strength, defending gunners fired upon the main body of the approaching fleet, the progress of which was observed by planes since early morning notwithstanding a heavy smoke screen thrown by destroyers, which impeded the shore batteries' work.

Naval officers pointed out that the situation of the navy attacking fixed land fortifications is most unusual, while in a massed air duel, planes based ashore are more difficult to destroy than planes on airplane carriers and battleships.

The navy will now pass through the canal for further exercises in the Caribbean sea. The dirigible Macon is now en route to the Caribbean from Pacific coast to join the fleet.

DRUGGIST SHOT TWICE IN BATTLE WITH ROBBERS

Sam Lieberman, 45 years old, 5466 Ellis avenue, manager of a drug store at 5501 Indiana avenue, was shot twice last night in a gun fight with three Negro bandits who tried to rob him in the store.

When the bandits appeared, Lieberman disarmed one of them and started firing. Another of the robbers, out of the line of fire, shot Lieberman in the left side and left arm. The gunmen then fled, one of them limping as if wounded, without getting any money.

Lieberman was taken to the Woodlawn hospital. His condition is believed to be serious.

WHAT NEWLYWEDS SHOULD KNOW TO BE TAUGHT BY THE TVA

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 21.—(AP)—The Tennessee valley authority is going into the home making business and teach young married couples how to get more out of life.

Dr. Arthur Morgan, TVA chairman, told the Tennessee Valley institute here that the authority is negotiating for property consisting of 100 homes, 500 acres of good farm land, and 2,000 acres of timber.

Young married couples from the mountains will be invited to occupy the houses with the condition they take a four year course in home making.

The men will be given work on the farms or cutting timber while the wife studies cooking, choice of food, gardening, care of children, and other household tasks.

Dr. Morgan said it was one way of "building a new social order" and help people "get their roots down" so they will be prepared to take care of themselves in a better way.

5,000 TEACHERS STAGE PARADE THROUGH LOOP

More than 5,000 teachers, parents and students paraded through the loop yesterday in protest against delay in the enactment of legislation which would relieve the financial plight of the teachers. The march was organized by John Fewkes of Tilden Technical High school, chairman of the teachers' voluntary emergency committee.

The paraders assembled at Congress street and Michigan boulevard. It moved north to Jackson boulevard, west to La Salle street, north on La Salle street past city hall, east on Randolph street and south on Michigan boulevard to the plaza at Congress street, where Fewkes made a few remarks.

The marchers carried placards, some of which bore the legends: "The laborer is worthy of his hire," and "Chicago, a fair for the world, unfair to teachers." Others read: "NRA, No Relief Allowed," and "When do we eat?" The paraders seemed in a happy frame of mind. As they moved north in the financial district a barrage of ticker tape and confetti descended upon them.

Chairman Fewkes complained that the salaries of the teachers are nearly 8 months in arrears and demanded that the banks forthwith lend the board of education enough money to give the teachers their back pay.

Army Flyer Forced Down, Narrowly Escaping Death

Brownsville, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—Narrowly escaping death, Lieut. H. S. Bear of Carlisle, Pa., an army flyer, landed in a wheat field near Brownsville today after being forced down from an altitude of 7,000 feet. His single seated pursuit plane turned over and was damaged but Lieut. Bear was aided from the cockpit unharmed.

READY IN HOUSE FOR SHOWDOWN ON M'LEOD BILL

Fate of Bank Payoff May Be Decided Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Wild parliamentary maneuvering by the Democratic leadership and a sizable group of rebellious congressmen today set the stage for a house showdown next Monday on the widely agitated McLeod bank payoff bill.

While parliamentarians scratched their heads to devise further stratagems, both sides engaged in a hectic battle to gain a pre-curtain advantage. Late in the day the leadership scored an apparent coup d'état, but it failed to daunt the bill's determined advocates. Striving feverishly to retaliate, they assembled in secret meeting to chart their campaign, and it was certain that only a roll call in the house will decide the issue.

Coughlin Seeks Hearing.

Sponsors of the measure, which calls for federal payment of closed bank depositors, were reinforced today by Father Charles Coughlin, the Detroit radio priest. He was primed to deliver a typically forceful demand for the legislation at a hearing before the banking and currency committee. But the committee preferred not to hear him and didn't. Whereupon his cohorts set up the cry that he had been deliberately snubbed.

To this charge the Democratic leaders gave only a tongue-in-the-cheek denial. By reporting out the measure, the banking and currency committee invalidating a discharged petition, already signed by the necessary 145 members, which would have forced the bill to a vote, and there were few who preferred to believe Mr. Rainey and Majority Leader Byrns had no hand in bringing about the committee's action.

Error Is Corrected.

Only the repeated faux-pas of Representative Henry Steagall [Dem., Ala.], the committee chairman, prevented the action from being taken earlier. As a matter of fact once the Alabaman reported out the wrong bill. Hastening back to the committee room, he re-summoned his committee and reported out the right bill, but illegally. He finally got it straight today, however, and the Democratic leaders felt they had the situation under control.

The McLeod bill forces, on the other hand, were planning to contest the strategy devised by the leadership. The bill is to be called up Monday, under the petition, and Speaker Rainey will rule that it is out of order since the action of the banking and currency committee invalidated the petition. Sponsors of the legislation will challenge the speaker's ruling—they have warned him already—and Mr. Rainey's dictum will be put to a vote. The crucial ballot that will decide the matter.

Two New York Detectives Shot; One Dies Instantly

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Two detectives patrolling the upper Broadway sector were shot down tonight by two men whom they sought to question on the sidewalk at Seventy-fifth street.

One of the detectives pitched across the curbing, killed instantly, and his comrade fell with wounds in his chest and head. Their assailants escaped.

A passerby, Florence Goldstein, was struck by a stray bullet during the skirmish as she fled into a hotel nearby.

Detective James J. Garvey, a veteran on the force, was shot through the heart and died instantly. His wounded companion was Detective Francis G. Gleason.

FINED FOR BREAKING DOOR.

Bernard Laziski, 25 years old, 2425 West 26th street was fined $1 by Municipal Judge Frederick Elliott, yesterday for disorderly conduct. He broke a plate glass door in the Palmer house after he was discharged as a bartender.

CONG. J. M. BECK TO DISCUSS NRA AT MEETING HERE

Read These Significant Facts

Men and young men! Months ago we set out to give Chicago the greatest value-giving sale of this generation. All of the details that made this event possible would fill a volume. Here we can only give you the highlights. First of all we determined from a national survey that 62% of the men in America were buying suits at $35. With this price, then, as our goal we set out to give more for $35 than had ever been offered before. Our entire clothing staff went to work. Picture if you can countless conferences with woolen people—careful inspection of plants—analyzing of costs—testing of fabrics—scouting for last minute styles and you will have some idea of the pains we took to make this a superlative presentation . . . Plan your clothing needs for a year ahead—for summer vacation—for sport—for business—for university—then come to The HUB and make the buy of your life.

100 Extra Sales People

To assure quick and satisfactory selection we have added to our large regular sales force, 100 trained sales people.

250 Feet of Window Display Our entire window frontage on State Street and Jackson Boulevard has been given over to the display of this merchandise. 12 huge windows—250 feet of space. We invite our customers to come down town today—Sunday—and see these suits in advance of the sale.

Battery of Express Elevators We have overlooked no detail in convenience to our customers. Express elevators will be at your service all day to take you directly to our new clothing floor.

Highway Instructions to Out-of-Towners

THE HUB is located on Jackson Boulevard—a State Highway. Customers living within 250 miles radius can drive in within a few hours. Two hours' free garage parking for all customers.

THREE WEDDINGS IN A DAY CLAIM CHICAGO SOCIETY

Jane Black, Grace Dewes, Priscilla Carver Wed.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Three large weddings held the spotlight yesterday afternoon for society in Chicago and on the north shore. Miss Grace Dewes, daughter of Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, became the bride of George Stickle Oram, son of Mrs. King S. Oram of Rockaway, N. Y., in a ceremony read at 4:30 in the Dewes home at 2314 Lincoln Park West.

At the same hour in St. Mark's church in Evanston Miss Jane Black, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Black, exchanged her wedding vows with Gerald Van Doren, son of Mrs. Ray N. Van Doren, and at 8 o'clock last night in Trinity church in Highland Park Miss Priscilla Carver, daughter of the Robert K. Carvers, became the bride of Henry E. Payne, son of Mrs. Henry E. Payne of Charleston, W. Va.

Dewes-Oram Wedding.

The Dewes-Oram wedding was performed by the Rev. John Timothy Stone in the presence of relatives and close friends. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of heavy ivory satin and an heirloom veil of rose point lace. The waist of the gown was embroidered with orange blossoms and orchids. The elbow length sleeves were of rosepoint and there was a yoke of the lace at the neckline. She carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride was attended by her two sisters, Miss Dorothy Dewes as honor maid, and Miss Elizabeth Dewes as bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in larkspur blue ruffled chiffon dresses and cartwheel hats. Chester Baylis Jr. of Rockaway, N. Y., served Mr. Oram as best man, and Joseph Oram Jr., John Lincoln, and Richard Reeves ushered.

The bride and groom and their mothers received in the drawing room after the ceremony. Mrs. Dewes wore hydrangea blue crêpe romain with a large hat of darker blue. Mrs. Oram wore a flowered print, a large black hat, and orchids. After the wedding trip she and Mr. Oram will be at home in Morristown, N. J.

Black-Van Doren Nuptials.

The Rev. Robert Holmes assisted by the Rev. Harold Bowen officiated at the Black-Van Doren nuptials. The bride wore antique ivory satin with long sleeves full to the elbow. The gown buttoned down the back and swept into a long train. Her rosepoint veil fell in a triangle about her face, hanging from a coronet. Another rosepoint veil formed a high collar, fastened around her neck by orange blossoms, and rippled down the back of the dress. She carried a cornucopia of gardenias and forget-me-nots.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Lester Dunbar, the bride's sister, wore purple corded silk under a purple cape with a cowl in back lined in forget-me-not blue. The bridesmaids, Mrs. John Tittle, Mrs. Philip Wernher and Mrs. Minier Sargent, wore the reverse of Mrs. Dunbar's costume. Arthur Knox of New York served as best man and ushering were Mr. Wernher, Mr. Tittle, Mr. Sargent, Gilbert Black, the bride's brother; James Keatch, David Van Vactor, and Joseph Hawthorne of New York.

Carver-Payne Ceremony.

For her wedding to Mr. Payne Miss Carver wore white satin, princess style, with a long train edged in a ruffle and a tulle veil fastened to a cap of braided satin. Her honor maid, Miss Mary Ann Page of Red Wing, Minn., wore a green taffeta evening gown with ruffles in back that fell in a short train and a tulle hat braided with taffeta to match. The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Bullard, Miss Janet Bard, Miss Emily Norcross, and Miss Janet Willard, wore similar gowns in a lighter shade, with brown hats. The Rev. Christoph Keller read the ceremony. Charles K. Payne II. served his brother as best man and ushering were a cousin, William Payne, and Lyman McBride of Chicago and Donnally Sheets and Russell Cameron of Charleston.

Miriam Hopkins Sprains Ankle in Three Foot Jump

Hollywood, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—Miriam Hopkins jumped from a three foot window ledge on the Paramount lot today, spraining her left ankle. She will be inactive for at least two weeks, as an X-ray showed a badly torn ligament.

ABOARD THE S. S. LURLINE, Wilmington, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—Eight bells from the bridge, the ship signal for 4 o'clock, were the wedding chimes today for Raquel Torres, Mexican movie actress, and Stephen Ames, New York broker.

It was their idea of something romantically different. Instead of the bride and groom rushing off to catch the honeymoon boat for Honolulu, it was up to the guests and marrying magistrate to scurry ashore before the liner pulled out to sea.

Rene Torres, sister of the actress, was selected as bridesmaid, with Paul Ames, brother of the bridegroom, in the rôle of best man.

Ames was the second husband of Adrienne Ames, actress, who, after their divorce, wed Bruce Cabot, actor.

The new Mrs. Ames has been in pictures for five years, and this marks her first step in matrimony. Twenty-five years old, and a native of Hermosillo, Sonora, Mexico, Raquel Torres went from a Los Angeles convent into a picture rôle in "White Shadows of the South Seas" with Monte Blue.

FOUR GUNMEN ROB STORE.

Four shotgun bandits invaded the Public Service company of Northern Illinois branch sales store at 7422 Madison street, Forest Park, yesterday and escaped with $100 after threatening four employés and two customers.

FOUND GUILTY OF EMBEZZLEMENT.

Youngstown, O., April 21.—[U. P.]—Fred A. Labelle, former secretary of the Mahoning Valley Sanitary district was found guilty tonight of embezzling $8,500 public funds in 1930.

COURT RULES LINN TRUST TAXABLE IN AGGREGATE

The Illinois Supreme court in a decision made public yesterday held the trust fund of $1,894,824 established by the late William Robert Linn was taxable for inheritance purposes in the aggregate and not in the component parts in which it is divided among beneficiaries in his will. The high court reversed the ruling of the Cook County Circuit court which had computed taxes for the component parts and set a total tax of $199,184.

The case was remanded for trial with instructions for the Circuit court to regard the trust fund in the aggregate. This will result in a higher inheritance tax because the total trust fund figure is in higher brackets than would be any of its parts and the tax rate will be higher.

Mr. Linn, who died Jan. 28, 1930, was 79 years old and had been the oldest member of the Chicago Board of Trade in point of service. His will bequeathed $25,000 to charities and $270,000 to relatives, and created the balance of the estate as a trust fund. His three children, Miss Mabel Linn, 209 Lake Shore drive; Howard Linn of Lake Bluff, and Mrs. Dorothy Linn McCormick, are equal beneficiaries of the trust.

CONGRESS QUIZ ENDS HERE; TALK OF IMPEACHMENT

Federal Judges Appear Before Subcommittee.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

The judiciary subcommittee of the national house of representatives, which has been investigating equity receiverships and bankruptcies in the Chicago federal courts, will make its report to congress "within the next few weeks."

The report, it is said, will include recommendations looking toward impeachment action in congress. This was learned from a reliable source yesterday after the subcommittee, headed by Congressman Tom D. McKeown [Dem., Okla.], had concluded its Chicago inquiry—at least for the present session of congress—with the questioning of Judges Walter C. Lindley and James H. Wilkerson of the United States District court. Besides Chairman McKeown, members of the subcommittee in attendance were Congressman U. S. Guyer of Kansas and Randolph Perkins of New Jersey.

JUDGE WILKERSON.

JUDGE LINDLEY.

Insull Case Studied.

The one day session designed to give the judges an opportunity to be heard was the third and briefest the committee has held in Chicago. There was a series of meetings last November, when the committee concerned itself principally with the equity and bankruptcy cases in Judge Charles E. Woodward's court.

Another series, held last month, dealt with the Security Life Insurance company and the Insull receiverships in Judge Lindley's court and various equity cases before Judge Wilkerson. Judge Woodward was invited to appear before the committee in November, but declined.

Judges Lindley and Wilkerson accepted the invitation yesterday and were heard in executive session, because some of the cases in question are still pending.

Neither the judges, the committee members, nor their counsel, George Lavin, would discuss the nature of the examination after its conclusion yesterday, but it was presumably along the lines of the evidence previously taken. Chairman McKeown made no formal statement, but stated that the subcommittee's report was nearing completion and would be presented "a long time before June 30," the deadline.

Judges All Republicans.

Whether the congressman contemplate a recommendation of impeachment against more than one judge could not be ascertained. Neither would the source who disclosed that impeachment action will be sought give the name of any individual judge. Whatever recommendation is determined upon must go first to the judiciary committee as a whole, which in turn will make its report to the house. The house has sole power of voting impeachment and the senate sole power of trying the men accused.

Each of the three judges whose equity and bankruptcy cases were scrutinized by the subcommittee is a Republican. The chairman of the subcommittee, Congressman McKeown, is a Democrat, but the other two members who were in Chicago, Guyer and Perkins, are Republicans. The judiciary committee as a whole, of course, has a majority of Democrats, with Congressman Hatton W. Sumners of Texas as its chairman.

Suggests Changes in Laws.

Judge Lindley was before the committee, in a jury room of the United States courthouse, for an hour and a half. He is reported to have made suggestions on the desirability of changing the laws to prevent receivership and equity abuses. "Remedial legislation" is the avowed purpose of the committee's inquiry.

In the hearings last month it was disclosed that Judge Lindley ordered bids for reinsuring the policyholders of the Security Life Insurance company kept secret and that a contract giving the business to the Central Life Insurance company of Illinois was ordered, drawn, entered, and later amended in Judge Lindley's chambers.

It was testified that the amendment was entered without notice to paid up and term insurance policyholders, whom the company was exempt from reinsuring. Ald. John A. Massen, who was appointed receiver of the Security Life by Judge Lindley, insisted that there was nothing improper about the conduct of the case and that the amendment did not affect the rights of the policyholders.

Ettelson Before Committee.

The committee, last month, examined former Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson regarding the Insull receiverships. Attorney Ettelson, who was heard by the committee in executive session, charged more than a year ago that fraud and collusion were practiced in placing the Insull cases in receivership and that Judge Lindley was imposed upon. This led to an inquiry before Federal Judge Evan A. Evans, who sustained the allegations of collusion in the Insull Utility Investments case, and later before Judge Lindley, who held a "town meeting" to determine whether fraud was practiced upon the court. The judge has this matter under advisement.

Three members of the Chicago bar, George I. Haight, Francis X. Busch, and Homer H. Cooper, appeared yesterday on behalf of Judge Wilkerson with analyses of the principal equity cases in his court, including the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway case, the Illinois Life Insurance case, the Chicago Surface Lines cases, the Daniel Boone Woolen Mills case, the Garard Investment Trust case, and the American Bond & Mortgage case.

They asked permission to present their analyses to the committee before the calling of Judge Wilkerson for any questions the congressmen might wish to ask. It was explained that Judge Wilkerson was ill when the matter came up and that he asked the lawyers to make an analysis of his equity cases.

Only Hear the Judge.

George F. Cummerow, investigator for the committee, told the lawyers that the congressmen would hear only Judge Wilkerson, whereupon the judge took copies of the brochure and went before the committee. He was there about fifteen minutes, after which he emerged smiling. "It's all over. That's all there is to it," he said.

The previous hearings had dealt at length with the St. Paul railway case, which was before Judge Wilkerson from 1925 to 1928. The distribution of $2,476,088 in fees to receivers, counsel, bond trustees, and masters in chancery was gone over and it was brought out that—like a great many other equity cases in Chicago—the receivership was prearranged. Of these fees, $244,000 went to the late Edward J. Brundage, one of the receivers, who was regarded as a close friend of Judge Wilkerson.

During the same period Attorney Brundage, by appointment of Judge Wilkerson, was receiver for the Daniel Boone Woolen Mills company, drawing total fees of $38,000. The Supreme court of the United States ordered jurisdiction in this matter returned to a state court, on the ground that the company had fraudulently obtained the appointment of a federal receiver.

150 Equity Cases Handled.

The lawyers yesterday pointed out that Attorney Brundage was appointed receiver in only two equity and no bankruptcy cases and that his law firm, Brundage, Landon & Holt, was receivers' counsel in only two relatively small equity cases. During a period of 12 years, they stated, there were 150 equity and 1,385 bankruptcy cases before Judge Wilkerson. They also pointed out that 133 different receivers were appointed, that there were only 43 cases in which two receivers were appointed and 6 cases in which three were appointed.

The inquiry into the conduct of equity and bankruptcy cases in Judge Woodward's court, concluded last November, was concerned with the frequency of appointing Loucks, Eckert & Peterson [now Eckert & Peterson], as counsel for receivers. This law firm employed Judge Woodward's son, Harold C. Woodward, whose earnings jumped from $1,300 in 1930 to $13,000 in 1931. It was disclosed that Loucks, Eckert & Peterson received a total of $225,889 in fees in nine equity cases before Judge Woodward, while the aggregate of attorneys' fees in 17 other equity cases before the judge was $47,901.

RULES AUTO THEFTS ARE NOT INCLUDED IN HABITUAL CRIME ACT

The Illinois Supreme court held yesterday that conviction of stealing a motor vehicle does not make a person liable under the habitual criminal act. The court granted Sidney Parker, sentenced to life as an hibitual criminal, a new trial on a charge of burglary, and the trial court was directed to ignore the part of the indictment mentioning previous convictions, one of which was for the theft of a car.

Some judges had held the theft of an automobile should be considered the same as any other larceny, and larceny is one of the crimes specified in the habitual criminal act. The upper court's finding was that as the automobile larceny law was passed long after the habitual criminal act, it could not be included in the provisions of that act. The court reversed and remanded the case of Richard Basile, sentenced to life in prison for slaying of Maurice Marcusson, Chicago policeman, in January, 1933. Basile was the driver of a car containing four youths whom Marcusson attempted to question. Tony Rocco, who fired the shot that killed the policeman, was sentenced to 199 years.

P. E. O. Sisterhood to Open State Convention Tuesday

Three hundred delegates will attend the three day convention of the Illinois state chapter, P. E. O. Sisterhood to open Tuesday in the Palmer House. Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, will speak at the banquet Tuesday evening. An educational fund program will be held Wednesday evening for the benefit of the Cottey Junior college, Nevada, Mo., which is owned by the sisterhood.

POST AND SETTLE WIN TROPHIES FOR AVIATION FEATS

Mrs. Lindbergh Also Gets a Harmon Prize.

PARIS, April 21.—(AP)—Two American aviation feats of 1933—Wiley Post's world flight and Lieutenant Commander T. W. G. Settle's stratosphere balloon ascension—were rewarded today with the Harmon International trophies of the International League of Aviators.

In addition, Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh was awarded the national trophy as the outstanding American aviatrix for her flight around most of the Atlantic with her husband in search of a commercial transoceanic air route.

Rosendahl Wins Trophy.

Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, famous dirigible expert of the United States navy, also was awarded a national trophy.

International trophies are provided for the "champion" aviator, spherical balloon pilot, dirigible pilot and aviatrix each year by Clifford B. Harmon, American aviation enthusiast.

Hugo Eckener, of Graf Zeppelin fame, won the international dirigible award and Mlle. Maryse Hiltz, Frenchwoman who flew to Asia and back solo, won the international award for women flyers.

The awards are made on the basis of a poll taken among the "principal aeronautical authorities and journals throughout the world" and past winners of the trophies. Post, who went around the world—15,596 miles in 7 days, 18 hours, 49 minutes—received more than four times as many votes as any other flyer for the 1933 aviator's prize, while Settle, who rose to more than 58,000 feet in his penetration of the stratosphere, also was an easy winner of the spherical balloon pilot's award.

National trophies also are granted by Harmon, the recipients for 1933 including the Italian, Francesco Agello, who established a new seaplane speed record of 440 miles an hour. The Argentine aviator, Francisco Mondez Concalvez; the Chilean aviator, Marciel Arredondo, and a woman flyer, Viola Blackburn; the Salvadorean pilot, Herman Baron, and the Spanish flyers, Mariano Barberon and Joaquin Collar, who perished on their flight to Mexico.

Accept New Records.

The altitude record of 14,433 meters [47,352.2 feet or 8.96 miles] set by the Italian, Renato Donati, at Rome on April 11 was accepted today by the International Air federation. Other records accepted were those of James R. Weddell, who with a class C plane flew 428.38 kilometers an hour [about 266 miles] at New Orleans last Feb. 17, and S. J. Wittman, who flew 221.307 kilometers an hour [137½ miles] in a light plane of the fourth category at New Orleans on Feb. 14.

HOUSE VOTES MILLION TO BUY NEW RACING AIRPLANES FOR ARMY

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Congress is beginning to loosen the purse strings on the building of speed planes by the army and navy.

The $316,000,000 war department appropriation bill, approved today by the house and due for final congressional action in the senate Monday, allowed up to $1,000,000 to be expended by the army, under the direction of the President, on racing airplanes.

Not since 1930 has either the army or navy had money for such development. As a result, all the outstanding world speed trophies and records have gone to other nations. In 1930 congress, at the insistence of then representative and now Mayor La Guardia of New York, allowed only $220,000 for the navy.

The army and navy figure it takes about $3,000,000 to build and fly a speed plane. But the $220,000 was spent for experimental work, including the development of a high speed engine.

NEW EQUIPMENT LETS PILOT LAND IN ALL WEATHER

Devices to Be Placed in Army Planes.

Ground equipment which will enable air mail flyers to land planes in any weather and without the necessity of pilots seeing the ground is soon to be installed at the Municipal airport, it was announced yesterday at the local headquarters of the army air corps mail operations.

Through the use of this new system of instrument flying and landing, which is to be put into use at all air mail airports, it is believed that hazards of flying caused by the lack of visibility due to fog and storms will be definitly overcome.

The ground equipment consists of two radio ground transmitters, a marker beacon by which a light is flashed on the pilot's instrument board when his plane crosses the boundary of the landing field, and a portable radio mast. The equipment on the plane includes an artificial horizon, directional gyroscope, magnetic compass, airspeed indicator, sensitive altimeter, boundary marker indicator, radio receiving set, and a radio compass.

How Pilot Makes Landing.

When a pilot approaches a strange airdrome under conditions of fog or storm he gets in touch with the airdrome radio station, when still at some distance away, to learn the barometric correction for the landing field, air traffic conditions, direction of the wind, and the location of the two radio stations outside the field.

His radio compass leads him to the more remote of the radio stations by indications on a dial of hhis plane's instrument board. Through various signals from the portable ground stations and the boundary markers he is constantly informed as to his position. He has been gradually losing altitude as he approaches the field and is only about 800 feet up when he crosses the first radio station.

Informed on Altitude.

At all times he is fully aware of the altitude of his plane so that a proper gliding angle is easily maintained. A landing equal to a large percentage of those made in the normal manner with all the usual assistance at hand is made as the pilot, with the aid of the instruments in the cockpit, heads into the wind and glides safely to earth.

Bridgeport, Conn., April 21.—(AP)—Slicing through the clouds at 181 miles an hour with a 16,000 pound load, the giant new four engined clipper ship built for Pan American Airways has completed its first series of test flights in what its builders today called record breaking fashion.

On the basis of its actual performance, Frederick J. Neilson, president of the Sikorsky Aviation corporation, which built the plane from specifications drawn by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and other experts, hailed it as "the fastest long range airplane in the world."

The ship, first of three being built here for Pan-American Airways, was designed with a view to trans-Atlantic service, but until such a venture is undertaken it probably will be used on the already established runs between North and South America.

On its final flight of the first test series, the ship lifted a load virtually equivalent to its own weight from the waters of Long Island sound in 24 seconds.

With Boris Sergievsky, Sikorsky test pilot, at the controls, the huge ship reached a height of 6,000 feet in 7 minutes and 2 seconds and wheeled gracefully over the sound.

NEW ORDER BARS TOUR PARTIES AT STATE PRISONS

The public was virtually barred from visiting either Stateville or the old penitentiary at Joliet by strict instructions received yesterday by Warden Frank D. Whipp from A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare. This action was believed to be directed against the smuggling of contraband into the institutions and as a precaution against attempted escapes.

Among those affected in the order were groups of high school and college students, especially women, who in the past have toured the prisons as part of their studies in sociology. Sightseeing groups are also banned.

The authorities fear, it was indicated, that prisoners might seize feminine visitors as hostages. No women or children visitors who call to see relatives will be permitted in the yards hereafter for the same reason, and they may visit only in the hospital.

Two matrons, one at each penitentiary, will search all women visitors before they enter the interview room. Men visitors, including deputy sherifs, police, federal agents, and all others, will be searched by guards both on entering and leaving. Only employés will be exempt from the new rules.

SUPREME COURT KILLS CHICAGO VAGRANCY LAW

Ruling Upsets Conviction of Nine Defendants.

The Illinois vagrancy law which provided six months' jail sentences for persons with criminal reputations was declared invalid yesterday by the state Supreme court. Specifically, the court set aside the conviction of Louis [Two Gun] Alterie.

The decision also acts to free Maxie Eisen, James Belcastro, known as the "king of bombers"; "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, Vito Lanasa, George Myers, Edward Parker, Michael Messina, and Garfield Sullivan, all of whom were convicted on their alleged criminal reputations and sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Sonsteby Fathers Law.

The law was fathered by Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court who, after its passage, ordered a roundup of hoodlums coming within its scope. Warants were issued for several hundred men and a few women. After a number of trials before Judges Thomas A. Green, Robert Jerome Dunne, and Frank M. Padden, it was decided to await a test of the law by the Supreme court.

Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane made the appeal on the ground that no person could be deprived of liberty merely because of a reputation but only on proof of wrongdoing. The language of the law to which they took exception was as follows:

"All persons who . . . are reputed to be habitual violators of the criminal laws of this state or of the United States . . . shall be deemed to be, and they are declared to be vagabonds."

The law placed the burden on the defendant of proving he was not "reputed to be" an habitual violator, the attorneys argued. The law became known as the "reputation law." The state's attorney's office held that upon a showing that a defendant was in fact an habitual violator of the laws, convictions should stand.

High Court's Decision.

The Supreme court's opinion, after citing the arguments of counsel, said: "However worthy the purpose of this act, and notwithstanding the argument that the general assembly has the power to protect the public against those whose reputation as law violators is alone sufficient to compel innocent persons to accede to their demands, yet it is necessary that before liberty or property may be taken from any one, regardless of his reputation, there must be proof that he is in fact an habitual criminal. This is essential to compliance with the due process requirements of the state and federal constitutions. For the reason indicated the amendment to this act is invalid."

The amendment referred to by the court was passed by the legislature and became effective July 6, 1933. It was designed to strengthen the reputation clause of the vagrancy law already in effect. Whether a new vagrancy law will now be required or whether the terms of the old act will still hold was a matter which lawyers yesterday declined to discuss until they had read the complete text of the high court's opinion.

Court Will Find a Way.

Chief Justice Sonsteby said that if the "reputation law" could not be enforced a way would be found to proceed against men of the stripe designed to be driven from the city by the amendment now declared invalid.

The law had been applied to such characters as Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, who last week was driven out of Los Angeles, Cal., as a vagrant; Gus Winkler, slain last fall in a criminal war; Michael [Bubs] Quinlan, bootlegger; James Adducci, who since has been nominated for membership in the legislature; Joseph Saltis, gang chief; Sam Battaglia, well known thief; Margaret Mary Collins, known as the "Kiss of Death Girl," and others. O'Donnell, Winkler, and Adducci were found not guilty. Cases against the others were pending but will now be dismissed, it was said at the prosecutor's office.

Draftsman Held to Jury on Two Rape Charges

Warren Theron, 33 years old, 7535 Saginaw avenue, an unemployed draftsman, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $30,000 yesterday by Judge Edward S. Scheffler in South Chicago court yesterday on two charges of attempted rape and four charges of crime against children. He confessed, according to police, to mistreating five children.

Strange Mental Quirk May Free Brinks Money Guard

A strange quirk in the mental makeup of Allen R. Hammel, 39 years old, may make it impossible for the state to convict him for the theft of $39,000, which he took, Dec. 16, from a Brink's Express company truck on which he was employed as a guard.

Hammel, who was arrested last week in Philadelphia, has been identified by ten employés of the express company and by his own wife and two of his own children. He has, however, confronted all of them and stoically denied ever seeing any of them before. Without any sign of weakness he has maintained that he is not Hammel, but Burt Armstrong, a real estate rental agent from New York.

His Denials Are Calm.

So earnest has been his insistance, so calm his denials, that Assistant State's Attorney Morris Meyers and Dr. Harry Hoffman of the behavior clinic of the Criminal court, are uncertain whether he is shamming or the victim of an actual loss of his former personality.

"If he is not shamming," said Dr. Hoffman, "he may be suffering from what we know as ambulatory automatism, a form of amnesia. In complete amnesia all memory is blotted out. In this type a part of it only may disappear and the individual become convinced he is an entirely different person."

Dr. Hoffman added that it could not be told offhand whether Hammel was sincere or was making a desperate effort to defeat punishment by pretending to be another man. He recalled that two methods have been successfully used to overcome ambulatory automatism — hypnotism and general anaesthesia. If further tests demonstrate that Hammel is really a victim of this trouble, the doctor added, he may seek permission to try these cures.

State Must Show Intent.

Mr. Meyers said that if Hammel continues to believe he is Burt Armstrong he cannot be prosecuted for larceny. He may, however, be placed in the hospital for the criminal insane at Elgin. If it can be shown his apparent mental state at present existed at the time of his theft, Mr. Meyers admitted, it probably will be difficult for the state to show the intent that is one of the factors of larceny as a crime.

A second visit of his wife and children to the prisoner yesterday failed to weaken his claim to a new identity. Mrs. Hammel sat with him alone in a room, used familiar and endearing terms and even read passages of Scripture with which he had been familiar before he became Burt Armstrong.

"Madam," he said when she had finished reading, "I cannot do anything for you."

Tears in His Eyes.

His daughter, Betty, only a year old, was placed in Hammel's arms. He viewed the infant with interest, but gave no sign of ever having seen her. Later his daughter Alice, 9 years old, climbed into his lap and kissed him, calling him "daddy." At this tears came into his eyes and Prosecutor Meyers felt there was a chance he would break. But the prisoner's comment blasted this hope.

"I feel so sorry for the poor kid," he said. "It's a shame to deceive her by telling her I'm her daddy."

When Mrs. Hammel and the youngsters left the room Hammel turned to Dr. Hoffman and asked in an aggrieved tone:

"Why do you bring that maudlin women and those kids in here to me? What's the idea?"

The wife said that Hammel was once a mechanical engineer with a $10,000 a year job. The depression threw him out of work and it was many months before he obtained a place guarding the money trucks. At the time of the theft she told the police he was subject to fits of mental aberration.

COURT EXPLAINS REOPENING OF GRAND JURY CASE

A statement issued by the State Supreme court after its decision to grant a rehearing in the Lieber case, through which hundreds of Cook county convictions were imperiled, reached State's Attorney Courtney yesterday. Such a statement is a departure from routine procedure by the court. The decision held that Cook county authorities were not strictly following the law relating to the impaneling of grand juries, that the grand jury which indicted Jack Lieber for robbery was illegal, and that his conviction, therefore, was void.

"Our action is not to be taken as any indication that the majority of this court has reached a conclusion against the original opinion filed in this case," said the Supreme court statement. "It has been the rule in this court to grant hearings in any case where its further consideration is deemed advisable. We have always given the consideration to all matters before us which the public welfare and the correctness of our decisions might seem to require.

"From the petition of the attorney general it appears that he desires to present new arguments and that the public interest requires their consideration."

The point involved in the litigation is that the custom in Cook county had been to call sixty men for grand jury service and for the court then to select 23 to serve. The law says only 23 shall be called.

"Now I Know the Meaning of HEARING HAPPINESS"

This statement was made recently by the owner of a new SUPER-SONOTONE. It is only one of hundreds of similar voluntary tributes offered by users of this great gift of science to the deafened.

Since the introduction of the new Bone Conduction SUPER-SONOTONE, with the Lieber Oscillator, thousands of persons have had the happiness of hearing restored to them. SUPER-SONOTONE is a departure from the old "button-in-the-ear" types of hearing aids. Instead a tiny instrument worn back of the ear conveys all sound vibrations through bone directly to the internal hearing organ.

SONOTONE Hearing Aids are available in many models to meet every condition, and at new prices all can afford.

SEND FOR THIS NEW BOOKLET

Regardless of the apparent hopelessness of your hearing; no matter what type of aid you now use, don't fail to investigate this newest super-power SONOTONE. Come in at once for a free test. If you cannot call, write for a free copy of the new booklet, "Science's Newest Hearing Technique"; or phone State 7007.

SEND FOR SONOMETER. It will test your bone conduction. If it causes a gong to ring inside your head then be assured you can hear through your bones. So send 10c now (to cover postage, packing, etc.) for Sonometer and full instructions.

TAXING OFFICIALS DEADLOCKED ON 15% CUT FOR 1932

Jacobs Refuses to Extend Jarecki Reduction.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1932, were $1,831,127, making a total of $159,210,089 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
April 21	$ 7,957	$ 23,532
Uncollected	14,550,053	39,167,614

	1930.	1931.
April 21	$ 30,111	$ 79,657
Uncollected	63,059,308	57,019,948

The day's collection of 1932 real estate taxes totaled $1,689,870 and of 1932 personal property taxes, $403,810.

Assessor J. L. Jacobs and other county taxing officials conferred yesterday on the effect of the 15 per cent reduction ordered by County Judge Jarecki on the 1931 assessments of small properties. George F. Nixon and Fred Brummel, the members of the board of tax appeals, and Daniel S. Wentworth, attorney for the Chicago Real Estate board in the test case decided by Judge Jarecki, urged that the 15 per cent reduction also apply to the 1932 assessments, but no agreement was reached.

Nixon and Brummel said that they would allow the 15 per cent reduction for 1932 in 250,000 specific objections already filed with them. They asked the assessor to consent to a general order for the reduction on the 438,000 homes and small flat buildings in the county. Jacobs said that as he has already ordered a 25 per cent reduction in the assessment of all real estate for 1932, the further reduction was not necessary.

"Since real estate in 1932 is assessed one-quarter below the 1931 assessment," Jacobs declared, "I do not feel that I can conscientiously make further revisions."

Michael J. O'Connor, deputy county controler, supported Jacobs' stand, declaring that the money has already been spent in the county budgets and that in the event of a further reduction, as proposed by the board of appeals, county government would be unable to function.

Attorney Wentworth contended that as the 1931 assessment is the basis of the quadrennial, any reductions in this assessment should apply to the 1932, 1933, and 1934 valuations.

"Judge Jarecki's order does not say that," Jacobs replied.

Urges Appeal of Decision.

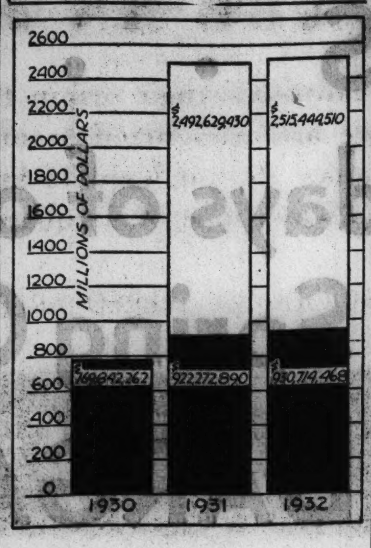
The assessor again urged that Judge Jarecki's decision be appealed to the Illinois Supreme court, asserting that if this is not done the tax situation in the county and state will be "more chaotic than ever." He said that if the County court were allowed to order horizontal slashes in assessments and invite wholesale objections, the credit of local government could never be restored.

Jacobs suggested that the board of appeals forego the application of the 15 per cent cut to the 1932 assessment and allow his office to compensate for this by allowing reductions in 1933 and 1934. Nixon and Brummel would not agree to this and the meeting broke up without anything being accomplished.

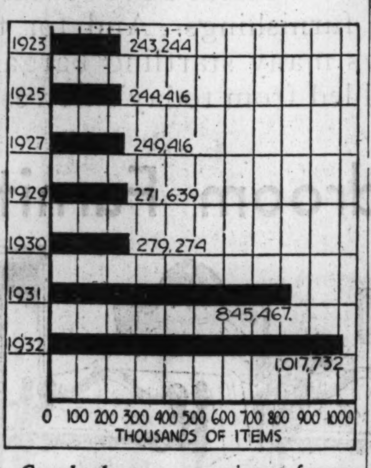
Civil Board Refuses to Reinstate Ousted Workers

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—(AP)—The civil service commission today refused to order the reinstatement of 12 discharged state employés when it found that the law gave no authority to act.

Tax Comparisons



Graph gives comparison of personal property assessment valuation totals in Cook county in the years 1930, 1931, and 1932, showing increases in 1931 and 1932, even though prior to 1931 there was no distinction between assessed value and full value. In 1931 and 1932 the assessed values were 37 per cent of the full values. The 1932 values are being revised. Black areas in blocks indicate assessed values; white areas, full value.



Graph shows comparison of number of personal property assessments made in period of years between 1923 and 1932, emphasizing the increase recorded in the number of assessments in 1931 and 1932 as compared with 1930, the last year in which the board of assessors functioned. Assessor Jacobs yesterday cited the figures as indicative of results of operating assessor's office on business basis, minimizing politics.

CITY DRIVEWAY ORDINANCE HELD INVALID BY COURT

The city's driveway ordinance, which gave the commissioner of public works authority to issue and revoke permits for the construction of driveways across sidewalks, was held yesterday by the state Supreme court to be unconstitutional. The court declared the ordinance invalid because of a grant of unlimited authority in the ordinance to the commissioner of public works without rules to enforce it.

The ruling was handed down in the suit brought by R. G. Lydy, Inc., to restrain the city from interfering with its parking and garage business. An injunction was denied to Lydy in the Superior court, but the Supreme court reversed that decision and remanded the case.

The case had its inception a few months ago when Lydy sought to obtain permits to construct driveways into parking spaces on Rush and Ohio streets in the 42d ward. Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe objected and the issuance of permits was withheld. To prevent the company from using the parking spaces the city erected barriers before the Lydy property which prevented its use.

CANNON MEMORY COMES BACK AS SUBPENA IS SENT

Frelinghuysen Called to Explain $10,000 Gift.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Bishop James Cannon Jr., revealed today that he has a ten thousand dollar memory.

It happened this way.

The bishop, on trial here in the District Supreme court, with his secretary, Ada L. Burroughs, charged with conspiracy for having failed to report certain campaign expenditures in the anti-Smith battle of '28, had a pretty poor memory when cross-examined yesterday by Assistant District Attorney John Wilson, rather, he had a fifty per cent perfect recollection.

He recalled that former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey had given him a check for $10,000 for his work with the anti-Smith Democrats. But he absolutely couldn't recall that Frelinghuysen had also given him ten thousand dollars in cash.

Details Drift Back.

So the prosecution dispatched a subpena, calling the former senator into court this coming Monday.

That was printed in last night's papers.

This morning the bishop brought a refreshed memory to the stand. Confessing to a somewhat "hazy recollection," he remembered that Frelinghuysen had sent $10,000 in cash to the office of E. C. Jameson, the New York Santa Claus who furnished much of the bishop's political activities. And he further recalled that Jameson had given him [the bishop] this cash which he had promptly put in his safety deposit vault in Richmond.

Bishop Cannon admitted he had read of the issuance of the subpena in last night's local newspaper but denied that this information had been a prod to his memory.

Wrath Rises in Court.

After this ten thousand dollar recollection, the bishop's memory slumped off again into dimness during today's testimony. He couldn't remember much of anything about the various bank transactions during the course of which, the government contends, he frequently deposited campaign contributions in one bank, drew a check on them to give to Miss Burroughs, which, the prosecution insists, she never recorded as contributions, but from which she later gave the bishop personal checks which she always remembered to list as "repayment of loans" to the bishop.

Once during the day everybody was jogged out of the placid past to a very pugnacious present.

Attorney Wilson handed Bishop Cannon the third page of a letter, with the request that he identify his signature.

Attorney Robert McNeill, counsel for Cannon, shouted that this was unfair, called out "trickery." This word made Attorney Wilson so wrathy that he shouted back, "I demand a retraction."

Just Talk, Not a Motion.

McNeill stuck his ground; urged Wilson "not to get excited." Wilson yelled back that it was hard not to get excited when accused of trickery, "especially by you."

And Robert Robb, Wilson's assistant, mumbled something to McNeill about, "O, we know you are holy."

McNeill urged Justice Peyton Gordon to dismiss the jury and call the proceedings a mistrial. That sally got the judge mad. He wanted to know if McNeill were really serious; if he were making a motion.

"Oh, no," protested McNeill. "I wouldn't do that without my client's consent."

The bishop shook his head, exclaiming, "No, no, no!"

Everything tapered off into grumbles; the judge admitted the question and the bishop identified his signature.

Dispute Mortgage Facts.

It was over a letter to one L. B. Willis, written in 1927, and explaining that he, Bishop Cannon couldn't pay the legatee of the Mary Moore estate [of which he was executor] because he had just paid off a $1,500 mortgage on the house which was the major part of the estate.

But the bishop's testimony showed that he hadn't paid that mortgage until September, 1928. The government's contention is that he paid it off with some of the Jameson funds.

Asked to explain the Willis letter, Bishop Cannon said suavely: "All I can think of was that I intended to pay the note at the time I wrote the letter; but evidently didn't."

DISCOVER ASSYRIAN INSCRIBED CUBE WITH A DATE OF 858 B. C.

New Haven, Conn., April 21.—(AP)—The discovery of an Assyrian inscribed cube of baked clay—the only one that has survived from the time when lots were cast in the selection of the "eponym official"—was announced today by the Babylonian collection of Yale university.

The cube, entirely different in shape and content from any known Assyrian and Babylonian inscription, was the "Lot of Iahali," a high official of Shalmaneser III., king of Assyria from 858 to 824 B. C., according to the inscription deciphered by Prof. Gerris J. Stephens, acting curator.

"It was believed that the events of the year were predetermined on New Year's day when the new eponym was inaugurated into office," the announcement of the discovery said.

"The inscription upon this piece contained an invocation to the great gods of Assyria, Ashur and Adad, and a prayer that the events determined on the auspicious occasion of the installation of Iahali may constantly remain in the mind of the great gods to insure good crops for the land during the year."

The cube, not quite perfect, measures 27x27x28 millimeters, or little more than an inch.

ASSESSMENTS' GAIN SHOWN IN JACOBS' REPORT

Compares Personalty List with Old Board's.

Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday made public an analysis of personal property assessments under his administration as compared with those of the old board of assessors. The report shows a greater number of assessments, a larger percentage of voluntarily returned taxes scheduled, and increased tax collections under Mr. Jacobs' administration.

In the 1932 assessment of personal property Mr. Jacobs' staf has listed 1,017,732 separate assessments, as against 279,274 in 1930, the last year in which the old board of five members functioned. The board was abolished by the legislature upon the recommendation of a citizens' committee. In the 1931 assessment Jacobs' staf listed 845,467 assessments.

The assessed valuations of personalty in the 1930 levy totaled $769,842,000. Under the old board taxes were levied against the full value of personalty assessed. In the 1931 levy Jacobs applied the 37 per cent equalization factor to the full value of personalty as well as to real estate to determine the assessed value. The 1931 assessed valuations totaled $930,714,000, which represented property of a full value of $2,512,827,800. The 1932 assessment of $930,714,468 represents property of a full value of $2,515,444,510.

More Voluntary Returns.

In 1930 there were 35,000 voluntary returns, or 12.5 per cent of the total number of assessments. For 1931 516,339 schedules, or 61.1 per cent of the total number, were voluntarily returned. The 1932 return analysis is not yet completed.

According to Jacobs' report, more taxes were collected on his 1931 personalty assessment than on those in any previous year since 1927, despite the depression. The collections for 1931 as of Oct. 5, 1933, were $33,122,908, as against $29,489,905 for 1930, $30,631,030 for 1929, and $27,804,907 for 1928.

Credits Better Administration.

"The improvements in the assessment of personal property were obtained by better administration and taxpayer coöperation," said Jacobs. "There were no changes in the revenue act, no amendments to the constitution, and no facilitating judicial decisions. The increase in valuations was obtained in the face of economic conditions creating a declining tax base."

The report also shows the increase in the assessment of personal property in Cook county was in sharp contrast to the tendency in downstate counties. In downstate counties personal property assessments dropped 25 per cent from 1930 to 1932. Downstate personalty was assessed at $609,959,000 in 1930 and $460,504,000 in 1932.

KILLED OVER PARKING CAR.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 21.—[U. P.]—Maurice W. Schloss, 35 years old, taxi driver from Shelbyville, Ind., was shot to death here today arguing parking rights with James L. Livingstone, 21 years old, who contends he shot in self defense.

COURTNEY AIMS NEW DRIVE AT SHADY LAWYERS

Seeks U. S. Aid in War on Rackets.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

State's Attorney Courtney announced a new attack against racketeers and lawyer criminals yesterday as the racket conspiracy trial before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court was entering its last stage. The present trial, which is expected to end next week, was occupied yesterday with a discussion of trade associations by Attorney Aaron Sapiro, who was on the witness stand. Sapiro is one of the 18 defendants in the trial.

The new drive of the prosecutor will be initiated tomorrow morning at a conference between Prosecutor Courtney, United States District Attorney Dwight Green and John E. Cassidy, compliance director of the NRA for the state of Illinois. The government will be asked to use the income tax evasion law to send to the penitentiary hoodlum racketeers and lawyer criminals.

Lawyers Under Fire.

The new campaign, Mr. Courtney says, will be directed against at least eight hoodlums and five or six lawyer criminals who have helped these racketeers to dodge the state laws in their racketeering practices, particularly in the looting of union treasuries.

"During our investigation of racketeering we have gathered considerable evidence of failure to pay proper income taxes," said Prosecutor Courtney. "I will present this evidence to the United States district attorney and ask him to proceed with prosecutions.

"We have found certain lawyer criminals during this investigation who have helped these racketeers and hoodlums to keep within the state laws through technicalities. However, we found evidence to indicate that these men failed to pay income taxes on the large fees obtained from the hoodlums.

"The sick benefit funds of certain unions have been looted by these racketeers and the lawyers, who have received some of this money on fees."

Declines to Name Unions.

The prosecutor refused to specify the unions involved in the new investigation or name the lawyers he designated as criminals. However, it was inferred by Criminal court attaches that the prosecutor was directing his drive against certain outlaw teamster unions, which he has been trying to drive out of business without success so far.

Mr. Courtney announced that after his meeting with Mr. Green he would leave for Washington to lay his information before Attorney General Homer Cummings. The prosecutor, however, refused to say why he had invited Mr. Cassidy, the NRA compliance director, to the conference.

Some officials of the suspected teamster unions have been indicted in the state courts in the T-N-T [Trucking and Transport exchange] conspiracy case.

Complain to U. S. Prosecutor.

That the outlaw teamsters' union is the target of Mr. Courtney's campaign was further indicated yesterday morning when Mike Galvin led a delegation of Chicago teamster union officials to the office of District Attorney Green to complain of the activities of the state prosecutor. The delegation did not see Mr. Green, but conferred with First Assistant Leo J. Hassenaur, to whom they charged that Mr. Courtney was violating section 7 A of the National Recovery act, which gives employés the right to organize as they see fit. They complained that Mr. Courtney was acting as organizer for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

Murray Humphreys, one of the defendants in the present racket conspiracy trial, but who, with other gangster defendants, is a fugitive, is known to have had connections with certain of the teamsters unions.

Four Industries Involved.

The present trial, which has 18 defendants actually on trial, including Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th], involves four industries in which racketeering is charged. These are the laundry, linen suppy, carbonated beverage, and cleaning and dyeing industries.

Attorney Sapiro, nationally known trade and coöperative association organizer, in his testimony yesterday took complete responsibility for the contract between the Laundry Wagon Drivers' union and the Chicago Laundry Owners' association. It is on this contract that the state is basing its prosecution of Ald. Nelson and a group of laundry owners and labor union officials connected with this industry.

Sapiro, a middle aged man with sleek black hair, put his testimony in the form of a lecture to the jurors, who listened intently to his discussion of state and federal trade association laws.

The witness talked for two and one-half hours about his efforts to straighten out the troubled laundry industry. Attorney Walter F. Lynch asked his client a few questions.

Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber and his assistant, Thomas Dodd Healy, both tried once to interrupt the testimony of the lawyer witness, but he silenced them with quick answers.

Tells About His Job.

Attorney Sapiro said the offer of the job as counselor for the laundry industry came to him through Fred Hicks, a laundryman who had interests in both Chicago and New York. At the time—June, 1932—he said, he was working on organizing the industry in New York.

The attorney told of his negotiations with the union officials for a wage reduction, despite the fact that the union members had a salary contract with the employers which had two more years to run. By granting the union concessions, he said, the wage reduction was finally accomplished.

The fact that this contract for a wage reduction applied only to members of the laundry association and not to other laundries is the basis for the conspiracy charge. The association members paid a salary of $30 per week while the nonmembers had to pay $40.

Recalls Olson's Charge.

Attorney Harry Olson, former chief justice of the Municipal court, represented a group of nonassociation members, Sapiro said, and fought against the contract. He told of the meeting and of the speech made by Attorney Olson in which the latter called him [Sapiro] a Mussolini. In his speech the former judge said, according to Sapiro, that certain unions were controled by Al Capone, gang leader now serving a sentence for income tax evasion.

Sapiro related his reply to Attorney Olson's charge that the contract was illegal. He said he told Olson that he might have been a judge of the Municipal court, but had no experience in trade association or group contract work. He also defended the union leaders, George Knott, Joe Bush Iwaniec, and George Bendel, as "a fine group of outstanding labor men, who fought for the rights of their constituents."

These three men are defendants.

"I told the association members that every sheet of this contract is as clean as the Bible," said the witness as he pounded the chair to emphasize his remarks. "I wrote it and I take full responsibility for it."

"Were those gestures part of the speech?" interposed Prosecutor Healy.

"No, I am Jewish," replied the witness with a smile. The prosecutor did not interrupt after that.

Attorney Sapiro told the jury that he believed the union members had a right to discriminate in granting wage concessions because in return they were given certain concessions by the association, such as a fund to organize hand laundries and the pledge that cash and carry stores would be eliminated. He also said that under the law the owners also had a right to fix a minimum price for service.

The prosecution has tried to prove that the fund for organizing hand laundries was only a devise to pay off the Capone gangsters who were trying to "muscle" into the union.

Attorney Sapiro, who may be the last defense witness, will continue direct testimony when the trial is resumed tomorrow morning. Judge Finnegan has announced he will hold night sessions in an effort to wind up the trial this week.

LEADER OF BANDITS WITH PASTOR'S SON AS HOSTAGE CAUGHT

Kansas City, Mo., April 21.—(AP)—Three desperadoes who terrorized west central Missouri—kidnaping a state highway patrolman and two others in an effort to escape the law—were in custody here tonight.

The alleged leader of the trio was captured today near Higginsville, Mo., as he was fleeing in a stolen motor car, with Victor Kreuzenstein of Billingsville, Mo., 19 year old minister's son, as his captive. The prisoner gave his name as Arthur Vought, 23, but officials identified him as Cylde Cornett, alias Coglett.

Two companions, Virgil Marks of Springfield, Mo., and James E. Dixon, Joplin, Mo., were captured Thursday night at Boonville, Mo. Officers said the men confessed they planned to rob banks at Buffalo, Mo., and Raymond, Neb.

PAY OF HIGHWAY POLICE IS IMPERILED BY COURT DECISION

The Illinois Supreme court at Springfield yesterday handed down a decision reversing the action of Circuit Judge George Fred Rush last May in issuing a writ of mandamus compelling the Cook county board to appropriate $90,000 for salaries of the county highway police from July 1, through Dec. 1, 1933. The force of the decision is to prevent the 100 highway policemen from collecting any salaries for the five months period.

Chief William Collins of the highway police said the Supreme court would be petitioned for a rehearing. If this is denied, individual members of the highway force may file suits against the county for their pay, Chief Collins said. The county board appropriated for salaries for the force for the full fiscal year of 1934.

The board failed to appropriate for the highway police salaries after July 1, 1933 because it had been expected Gov. Horner would establish a metropolitan police force. When this was not done the policemen continued to work without pay and Sherif Meyering filed the mandamus suit on their behalf.

"No resolution was adopted fixing any compensation for the last five months of the fiscal year," the high court ruling read, "and the inhibition against the board's expending county funds for any purpose not supported by an antecedent appropriation is an unsurmountable obstacle in the way of the petition."

SLIGHTLY HIGHER UNIFORM TAXICAB RATES INDICATED

A uniform taxicab fare, fixed by city ordinance and slightly higher than rates under the present working agreement, was indicated yesterday when the city vehicle commission took under advisement pleas for an increase in rates. The drivers have petitioned for an increase to provide "living wages."

The commission also warned small cab operators on the near south side to stop "jitney" practices or lose their licenses to operate. Lieut. James J. Killackey of the police vehicle division reported these taxis carry passengers down town for 10 cents apiece and pick up fares on their way.

After the commission heard a dozen representatives of the various companies, Corporation Counsel Sexton said he is "becoming more and more convinced" that the only solution of the cab fare problem is a uniform rate established by city ordinance.

Police Commissioner Allman, chairman of the group, said a report will be issued within 10 days. The commission, whose third member is Controler Upham, may be ready to submit a plan to the city council Wednesday at its next meeting.

Benjamin Samuels, attorney for the Yellow Cab company, said continuance of the present rate of 15 cents per mile is "out of the question," and would result in bankruptcy. He confined his company recommendation to a request for a fare between the current one and its immediate predecessor, which was 25 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter. Pressed for a definit view, Mr. Samuels suggested as his personal view 20 cents for the first quarter and 5 cents for each additional half mile.

Michael Sokoll, president of the Checker company, was hesitant to recommend fares because of the divergent views of his drivers. His suggestion was 15 cents for the first third mile and 15 cents per mile thereafter. He also requested a charge of 5 cents for each extra passenger.

Lee Daniels, attorney for the Public Taxi company, which opened the cut rate war resulting in present low rates, concurred in Mr. Sokoll's suggestions. Mr. Daniels and Mr. Sokoll said they believed the increased volume of business could more largely be maintained at a rate lower than that put forward by Mr. Samuels.

The commission will hold no further hearings before making its report.

in a GRAHAM

FOR your first test of Graham's Supercharged Custom Eight, step on the gas at 20. The quick flash of power is dramatic. But wait! Ease up to 50, 55, 60, where ordinary cars are past the peak of quick pick-up. Now step on the gas again! Ever feel anything like that before?

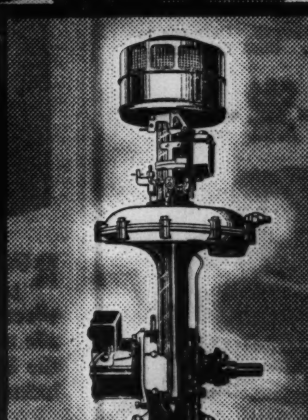
Probably not. Airplane engines are supercharged—but only one other car in America has ever offered a centrifugal Supercharger before, and that is the highest priced car built in this country. Graham has simplified the principle, perfected it, brought it within the reach of motorists everywhere.

It is not surprising that this greatest advance of the decade in popular-priced automobiles should come from Graham. Graham engineers, year by year, have established a reputation for original thinking—just as the Graham car has established a reputation for high quality, sound value, and performance that is altogether unique.

All we ask is that you compare the 1934 Graham, point for point, with other cars in its price class, and many that cost more. Try all the Graham models—the bigger Six and Special Eight as well as the Supercharged Custom Eight. Learn the road-hugging stability of the Banjo Frame, widely spaced Outboard Springs, wider tread and lower center of gravity . . . the comfort of three-passenger front seats and clear-vision ventilation.

One ride will teach you a lot about what to expect of a modern motor car. The price tells you the unusual value the Graham represents as an investment in luxurious personal transportation.

IN CHICAGO: Graham sales are setting a new pace as news of the wonderful Graham values spreads. Biggest sales in years. More new dealers in March than in the entire year 1933. See your neighborhood dealer. Let him give you the thrill of a lifetime with a ride in a Supercharged Graham!



THE GRAHAM SUPERCHARGER

The centrifugal Supercharger in Graham's new Custom Eight—the first in a medium-price car—mixes fuel and air and forces the mixture into the cylinders under high pressure. Result: 42% increase in power (now 135 h.p.) without sacrificing fuel economy. A new standard of acceleration! Easier starting, quicker warming-up of the engine, better performance through the entire driving range.

DILLINGER PLANS TO DIE IN BATTLE POLICE BELIEVE

Trace Desperado to U. S. Border City.

Developments in the last few days have convinced investigating officials that John Dillinger, the most notorious of present day American criminals, has given up his romantic hope of fleeing to South America and has instead prepared himself to die fighting when policemen and federal agents finally run him to earth.

That eventuality, it is believed, will soon come to pass. Wherever the desperado turns, federal men are close behind him. They are confident that he is now somewhere between Chicago and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and that his probable destination is one of his old hangouts here. Special orders to be watchful for his appearance were given to the Chicago police and the federal agents in the city.

Dillinger Visit Revealed.

Five agents, acting on secret information, went to Sault Ste. Marie by airplane on Thursday night and on Friday raided the home of Mrs. Isaac Steve, a sister of John Hamilton, first lieutenant of the fugitive gunman. Mrs. Steve's son, Charles Campbell, 17 years old, yesterday admitted to these investigators that both Dillinger and Hamilton had been at their home on Tuesday night.

The pair, accompanied by a woman companion, departed on Wednesday in an automobile loaded with machine guns and other weapons. They had reached Sault Ste. Marie in two automobiles. One of these, a small, fast roadster bearing one Tennessee license plate, was left behind and was taken by the agents.

"Dillinger had been wounded in the right leg and limped," said young Campbell. "My uncle had a wound in the shoulder. They were not feeling any too good, but you can bet they are ready to shoot it out with anybody. They both had on steel vests and they said they'd keep them on the rest of their lives."

Hamilton's Sister Held.

The youth was released after being questioned, but his mother was held, and it was intimated that a charge of harboring a fugitive might be placed against her. She denied having seen Dillinger or Hamilton.

It was uncertain what course the two hunted men and the woman had taken after they left the Soo. The agents reasoned, however, that they would hardly attempt to get into Canada with their arsenal, as the border examination would disclose their weapons. Also, it was held that they would hardly risk a trip to lower Michigan on the state owned ferry.

Their most logical course, it was held, would be through the forests of the upper Michigan peninsula to the Wisconsin line. Two main highways lead through the sparsely settled country and there are numerous abandoned lumber camps in which they could halt temporarily. Moreover, by following this main line of travel they could reach either Milwaukee or Chicago.

"It is possible that they will seek refuge in some large city," said Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the investigating agents for the department of justice here.

Dillinger, it was pointed out, took to the country at intervals, but only when he was driven from the cities. He was wounded about three weeks ago in St. Paul, Minn., when he fled a trap that had been laid for him. He is believed to have visited Chicago since then.

Visit to Home Town.

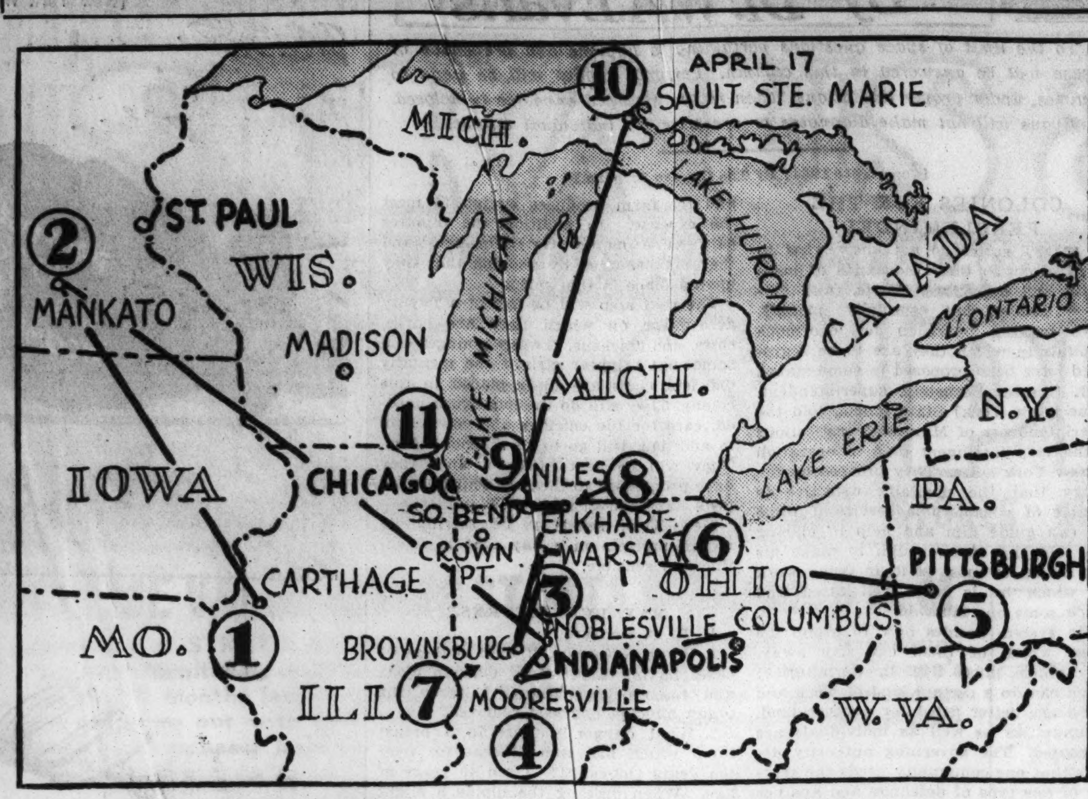
His now much discussed visit to his old home town of Mooresville, Ind., was a sort of pastoral interlude a week before the St. Paul episode. Yesterday it was disclosed that the residents of the village who knew he was calling on his father, John Sr., kept silent about his presence because of fear of reprisals rather than for sympathy. Many of them yesterday said they were not willing to talk about Dillinger at all.

It was said that only two business men of the village, an operator of a shoe shine parlor and a grocer, had signed a petition requesting Gov. McNutt of Indiana to grant Dillinger "amnesty" if he surrenders.

The second visit of the desperado to Mooresville was paid on April 7 or 8, it was reported. On this occasion he boasted to his relatives of having plenty of money and being unafraid of an encounter with law enforcement officials.

The fugitive's sweetheart, Evelyn Frechette, was hea.ily guarded yesterday in the county jail. She is to be taken to St. Paul either tonight or tomorrow, it was stated unofficially, to face trial for harboring Dillinger there.

DILLINGER'S MOVEMENTS TRACED ON MAP



This map of the region of the great lakes shows, in the order of the numbers, points at which John Dillinger, desperado outlaw who escaped from jail at Crown Point, Ind., has been reported seen since April 2. Police believe he now is on his way to Chicago from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., where he was reported Tuesday.

HERE'S DILLINGER'S ITINERARY SINCE BATTLE IN ST. PAUL

Since John Dillinger shot his way out of a police trap and was wounded in St. Paul on March 31, he has been reported seen in dozens of places throughout the country. Most of these reports have since been discredited. But there is corroborative evidence that he was seen at the following places:

APRIL 2. Stopped at Carthage, Ill., for gasoline. He appeared to be suffering from a wound.

APRIL 6. The automobile in which he fled from St. Paul was found at Mankato, Minn. Two days previously it had been erroneously reported found in Chicago.

APRIL 7. In auto crash at Noblesville, Ind. A new automobile was purchased for him at Indianapolis by Ann Martin, the woman who was captured with him in Tucson, Ariz., last January.

APRIL 8. He spent a quiet Sunday with his relatives at his home town of Mooresville, Ind.

APRIL 10. Accompanied by John Hamilton, he was seen in Pittsburgh, Pa., driving the automobile Ann Martin purchased in Indianapolis.

APRIL 12. He and another machine gunner, Homer Van Meter, raided the police station at Warsaw, Ind., at 1 a. m. and took four bullet proof vests and two revolvers after beating Policeman Jud Pittenger.

APRIL 13. He stopped in Brownsburg, Ind., for a haircut.

APRIL 14. Reported seen in Elkhart, Ind.

APRIL 15. Reported seen in South Bend and a short time later in Niles, Mich.

APRIL 17. In Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., with Hamilton.

STABS HIMSELF TO DEATH AS HE SWINGS AT FOE

Dominick Frinino, 24 years old, 4759 Federal street, unintentionally committed suicide last night when he missed an intended victim with his knife and stabbed himself.

Frinino and his brother-in-law, Ludwig Krenneitzer, 28 years old, of 4939 Federal street, were playing cards in a pool room at 4023 Federal street when they became involved in a dispute.

According to police, Frinino drew a knife and made a roundhouse swing with the knife at Krenneitzer. The latter may possibly have deflected the weapon. In any event, before Frinino could stop the sweeping swing he plunged the knife into his own abdomen. He died later in the Provident hospital.

Chicagoan Is Shot in Hand, Father Critically Wounded

Rockford, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—A wedding was turned into a tragedy here tonight when Peter De Stefano, 1040 North Springfield avenue, Chicago, and his father, Samuel, of Rockford, were accidentally shot. The elder De Stefano is in a critical condition with a bullet wound in his abdomen. His son was shot through the hand. Told that gas was being stolen from the cars of guests, Peter started from the house with his gun. Others grappled with him and the gun was accidentally discharged. Peter's sister was married today.

HIT BY A TRUCK, QUITS HOSPITAL, DIES OF INJURIES

William Ruggles, 37 years old, 499 Elm court, Highland Park, died in the General hospital at Waukegan yesterday of a skull fracture incurred Thursday night when he was struck by a truck at Jackson street and Grand avenue in Waukegan. The truck driver, Jack Kline, 918 Glen Flora avenue, Waukegan, said he stumbled into the side of the vehicle.

Ruggles, who is a widower and the father of seven children, left the hospital Friday against the orders of attaches of the institution. Found several hours later wandering in a dazed condition in Highwood, he was returned to the hospital where he died.

Two deaths were reported in Cook county yesterday, increasing the 1934 motor toll to 365. The victims:

Joseph Kolowski, 54 years old, 4751 South Hamlin avenue. Died in the German Deaconess hospital of injuries suffered Friday evening when he was struck at Archer and Hamlin avenues by an automobile driven by Edwin Rozak, 19 years old, 5136 Archer avenue.

Adam Witzak, 50 years old, 8458 Burley avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered April 2, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Olinder, 26 years old, 1916 South Kerner avenue, at Cregier avenue and 95th street.

Mrs. Eliza Switz, 44 years old, and Joseph Klunder, 47, a salesman, both of 543 Cherry street, Hammond, were injured last night when their automobile was struck from behind by a machine driven by Albert Wedmaier, 49 years old, 3819 Highland avenue, Berwyn, and smashed against the rear end of a 69th street surface car which had stopped at Racine avenue.

37 Widows, 14 Old Maids, 12 Bachelors in Town of 385

Bolckow, Mo., April 21.—(AP)—"Widowville," Mrs. Jennie Sargent believes, would be an appropriate name for this town of 385 population. She is one of the 37 widows. An unofficial census also showed 12 widowers, 12 bachelors, and 14 "old maids." "What Bolckow needs is about 50 single earning men," commented the Rev. Charles Reed.

RECOVERY, PAST AND PRESENT.

In the autumn of a certain year the discovery that a highly trusted executive had embezzled a considerable sum of money sent a large concern to the wall. About the same time the market for two important commodities collapsed, precipitating the failure of a great importing firm. The banks which were known to have financed the insolvent firms came under suspicion, and depositors formed queues at banking portals demanding their money. When failures ensued the runs spread and besieged bankers had no alternative but to call the loans of borrowers and to refuse to extend notes as they fell due. Those who had anything negotiable tried to convert it into cash, whatever the sacrifice. Good real estate went for a song. And those who had large fortunes a few months before were wondering where the next meal was coming from. A labor strike added to the confusion.

What has just been narrated happened not last year, the year before or in 1929. It was not even in this century nor on this continent. The time was 33 A. D. and the place was Rome, which was at the time enjoying the highest civilization the world had experienced down to the nineteenth century. The firm whose failure marked the beginning of the debacle was not Hatry nor Insull but Malchus & Co. of Tyre, with branch offices at Antioch and Ephesus. It was not the banks of Detroit nor the Bain chain which had to close but the Roman financial house run by Quintus Maximus and Lucius Vibo. The commodities giving concern were not wheat and cotton but ivory and ostrich feathers.

The panic was brought to an end by the Emperor Tiberius, who proclaimed a brief moratorium and then had the solvent banks reopened with the aid of 100 million sesterces from the imperial treasury. A depression followed the termination of the panic, but at length there was revival. This came when business men again gathered courage enough to take risks involved in new business ventures and when those who had money to lend regained confidence in the ability and intention of people to pay their debts when due.

Panics and depressions are thus nothing new. They have been happening since the beginning of civilization. And down to 1929 there were as many recoveries as there were depressions. For did we not then have the highest prosperity any people ever enjoyed, even though all the pots did not have chickens in them? Putting together the facts about a great number of earlier relapses in business a common thread is found running through them. Contraction of business and liquidation of debts has proceeded until there was perfect safety in new expansion. Revivals have been what a recent author called self-generative. Each time in recent centuries at least some men have concluded that the particular depression was different from any which had ever happened before. These men have urged upon the authorities the use of untried short cuts back to prosperity, but with few exceptions prior to the present there has been the strength of purpose in the authorities to resist the quack methods.

An instance to the contrary was the attempt of the French to escape from deep depression in the 1790s by inflating the currency. They succeeded in securing a temporary revival of business. But the prosperity was short-lived and before the experiment of tinkering with the currency was ended the country was plunged into a depression which made the preceding depression look like a boom by comparison.

By contrast, when revival has been managed along conventional lines the prosperity came more slowly but lasted longer. In every instance after the liquidation of unsound debts and a period of rest and waiting has ensued new employments have opened up and business has resumed. This came when business enterprisers, convinced of the soundness and stability of business, embarked in new enterprises or expanded the scale of old ones. And in that way and in no other way down to the present time has lasting recovery been accomplished.

It cannot be successfully maintained that the difference between this depression and all preceding ones lies in the extent of insolvency. Over-indebtedness is a common feature in commercial crises. If those who think these times are unique with regard to the widespread nature of insolvency will look into their family history they will discover a father or an uncle who was in financial difficulties in 1893 or shortly thereafter. A grandfather, further research will show, was busted in the '70s. A generation before that a great-grandfather or two had very serious money troubles following the panic of 1857. And those whose great-great-grandfathers were over here in time for the panic of 1837 will discover that the old gentlemen were so hopelessly involved that they had to ask their creditors one and all to let them out. That was why the corner of State and Madison, which was valued at $25,000 in 1836, was worth no more than a thousand dollars six years later. But serious as the periods were which confronted our ancestors, they always surmounted them. Looked at in retrospect, the depressions seem to have been brief resting periods in the upward spiral of civilization.

But this depression was different from all the rest, say those who would escape from it by novel methods. Well, every one was different. Carroll D. Wright investigated the depression of the '70s on behalf of congress and he found that it wasn't like anything that had ever happened before. Dr. Wright, a competent statistician and economist, found the cause of the depression in labor saving devices. Machinery could do so much of the work formerly done by hand that labor was certain to be unemployed continuously. The people who were out of work, Dr. Wright said, could expect to be that way right along because such had been the advances in technology that all the goods which could possibly be consumed could be turned out by only a fraction of those formerly employed. Vasco de Gama caused a panic in Venice when he turned up at Portugal with a cargo he obtained after discovering the route to India around Cape of Good Hope. But after a depression the Venetians recovered and adapted themselves to the new technology of transportation. When Martin Luther won millions from Catholicism the leading industry of the time, fishing, received a crushing setback because of the change in eating habits. But the herring catchers found other things to do and there was revival.

The fears of technocracy did not spring up the year before last, but many years previous. But just as the world now fears overproduction a century and a half after Malthus made his dire forecast for the human race, so there have been many periods of labor shortage since Dr. Wright concluded that there would not be enough jobs to go around.

Recovery from depressions is one of the commonest of human experiences, Prof. Heaton of the University of Minnesota recently pointed out. He reckoned that there had been during the last 123 years sixteen and a quarter recoveries, counting what has happened so far as a quarter. In terminating the panic in progress when he took office, President Roosevelt appropriately used the identical technique employed by the Emperor Tiberius under similar circumstances nineteen centuries before. Beyond that something had to be done to supplement the funds of charitable organizations in caring for the impoverished unemployed until they could be absorbed by industry. But it is the sheerest nonsense to conclude from the fact that we were experiencing the recurrent phenomenon known as a depression that the ecnomic system was close to a collapse. But even if it were so, the danger of collapse is no longer at hand. Indeed, an English economist declared that in the fall of 1932 the time was ripe for an upward movement in business, and since that time it has persisted in going up "despite the fat-headedness of the German government, the pig-headedness of the British government, and the feather-headedness of the American government." The time to facilitate recovery by the age-proved remedy is at hand, and this involves on the part of the government little more than the giving of assurance in the soundness of its credit and the medium of exchange, and a respite for business enterprise from confiscatory taxation.

A man afflicted with tuberculosis will be advised of a wide range of remedies which will cure the ailment post-haste. The patent compounds and the secret serums which are assured to restore health are almost without number. But the effective practitioner forbids the use of such remedies and relies largely upon self-curing forces in the human body. What is required is nourishment and rest so that these self-healing agents may work most effectively. So in the body economic there are self-healing agents for bringing about recovery from depression. What is now needed is rest and relief from nostrums so that the self-healing agents may work their cures.

Editorial of the Day

THE FLOODGATES OF WHEAT.

[The Toronto Globe.]

It is proposed that four men chosen by the world's chief wheat exporting and importing nations shall be authorized to sit in London and open and close the floodgates of grain as seems good to them, so that "the supply shall be kept strictly in accord with demand, and thus not interfere with the minimum price system."

It is a great task that is set before the proposed dictators of world wheat prices and supply. It becomes greater every year as surplus stocks of wheat accumulate in the old world and the new. Ten years ago the wheat carryover—the amount of old wheat in the bottom of the bin when the new crop of the northern hemisphere entered the reckoning on Aug. 1—was a little over 200,000,000 bushels. Then came a period of tremendous expansion in Canada and the United States. The 1928 wheat crop of Canada totaled 566,000,000 bushels. This was almost an eighth of all the wheat grown in the world that year. Markets were not to be found for so huge an addition to the normal export surplus, particularly as Italy, France, and Germany were doing everything possible to increase domestic supplies and to make themselves less dependent on imported wheat.

The total exports of wheat from all exporting countries shrank disastrously as business depression spread over the world. The export peak was 846,000,000 bushels in 1928. By 1932 this had shrunk to 691,000,000 bushels, while world production during the same period had decreased only 58,000,000 bushels, from 4,730,000,000 in 1928 to 4,672,000,000 in 1932.

The carryover naturally increased proportionately in the chief exporting countries. On Aug. 1, 1933, there were 960,000,000 bushels of old wheat in stock throughout the world when the new northern hemisphere crop began to flood into the market.

No wonder sluice gates are suggested, and restriction of acreage, and eating of more wheat bread, and feeding wheat to live stock and poultry to a greater extent than heretofore. The carryover on Aug. 1 this year, so far as Canada is concerned, is not likely to be much smaller than it was in August, 1933. Canadian wheat in store on April 6 totaled 222,690,000 bushels. At this time last year it was 225,867,000. We have the greatest wheat production per head of population and the greatest relative carryover in the world. If the proposed system of control can be made effective Canada stands to benefit to a greater extent than any other exporting country. Even 10 cents a bushel would give the owners of stored Canadian wheat $22,000,000 increment on their holdings. That sum could buy a lot of Ontario and Quebec factory products for use in western homes.

TOO SLOW FOR HIM.

The real estate agent, having shown the prospective customer around all day until well into the evening, inquired: "Well, now, what do you think of our little city?"

"I'll tell you, brother," replied the tough westerner. "This is the first cemetery I've ever seen with lights."—Exchange.

RECOVERY AND REFORM

BY RICHARD W. NELSON, Ph. D.

[Professor of Economics, University of Iowa.]

At the time of its inception there doubtless existed well nigh universal sympathy with the broad social objectives of the "New Deal." The most publicized of these were reducing unemployment and destitution, raising the average standard of living, and enhancing the general economic security of both young and old. Yet, on the contrary, there has been anything but universal approval of many important measures taken to date in presumed effort to attain these goals, and an increasing number of persons are viewing current developments with unpleasant feelings of apprehension and uncertainty.

A really definitive appraisal of the situation is today quite impossible in view of the evident confusion of ends and means. Is the primary immediate objective the revival of industry and the return of prosperity, or is it the effecting of substantial, far reaching changes in the institutional framework of our socio-economic system? Until that question is answered there simply is no real basis for an objective judgment as to the "soundness" or consistency or theoretical adequacy of the steps now taken. Furthermore, it may be remarked, a policy of random experimentation and naive opportunism is anything but conducive to the establishment of confidence and the allaying of apprehensions.

If the statements of persons reputed to be in close touch with the administration may be accepted, the present program purposes to combine recovery and reform. It would appear, then, that there exist no official misgivings as to the essential harmony of these ends. It is precisely this evident failure to recognize the existence and significance of gross inconsistencies and conflicts that is responsible for the critical attitude of many economists toward the administration's program. Certainly grave doubts regarding the nation's future are warranted so long as we endeavor to hold the reins on two horses that are running at top speed in opposite directions.

Perhaps the National Recovery act and its administration furnish the most glaring illustration of reliance on means that are in direct conflict with the end in view. As originally conceived and as stated in section I of the act, it sought to "rehabilitate industry," that is, inferentially, to restore prosperity. Yet the measure as a whole provides for the taking of steps that are wholly incompatible with this announced purpose.

In the first place the act appears to have been inspired, at least in part, by uncritical acceptance of an "underconsumption" or "lack of purchasing power" theory of the depression. To state that there is almost unanimous agreement among competent economists that such a theory is the "rawest" kind of fallacy is perhaps sufficient comment thereon.

The very existence of a depression is prima facie evidence that the price system is out of balance. Such disequilibrium is manifested by [1] important cost items so high that business managers foresee losses rather than profits resulting from expansion of output and [2] prices of certain products "stabilized" at such high levels in relation to other prices that consumption of these products is necessarily sharply restricted. It is apparent, therefore, that a realignment of prices, moving toward a new balance of reintegration of the price structure, is a prerequisite for normal industrial rehabilitation. But the NRA serves to delay and block such necessary adjustments, by [1] serving to raise costs in advance of prices, and [2] discouraging the price reductions that might stimulate consumers to absorb a much larger volume of products from plants now operating far below capacity. Although the depression has been both deepened and prolonged by the relative inflexibility of important price items, the NRA would have us lift ourselves out of it by universalizing inflexibility throughout the whole price system. Such a theory cannot readily disclaim relationship to "bootstrap economics."

Patent inconsistencies presented by other phases of the "New Deal" include [1] sponsoring general wage increases at a time when over ten million persons are lacking normal industrial employment, [2] unwillingness to rely on competition to regulate investment and to allocate resources as among alternative fields of production, but willingness to rely on competition to prevent the development of monopolistic price policies on the part of sellers who have been coerced into "getting together" for purposes of "self-government"; and [3] seeking to expand the consumptive power of the nation but at the same time encouraging the acceptance of the idea that the less one purchases the wealthier he will be.

Further evidence of the influence of an "underconsumption" theory of the depression may be detected in connection with CWA and PWA activities. There can be no doubt but that such public works can and have operated to relieve destitution and suffering—that is, have served as relief measures. Men who would otherwise have been idle have been given employment and the total national income has been temporarily enhanced. But to provide relief is one thing and to rehabilitate industry is quite another. Are the CWA and PWA possessed of the curative and restorative virtues of which the stricken industrial system is sorely in need? When such expenditures are completed, will the net effects thereof prove to have been pejorative or therapeutic? Probably no simple, precise answer can now be given to this question, but one important fact that relates directly thereto should not be overlooked. Prior to 1929 only one-fourth of all gainfully employed persons were at work in the "heavy" industries—the producers of capital goods—but slightly over half of the persons unemployed in 1931 were from these industries. This strongly suggests, at least, that the collapse of the production of capital goods is the real villain of the piece, and that decreased production and distribution of consumers' goods are cast only in minor rôles. Therefore, if there must be a choice between alternatives—between spending our way out of the depression and saving our way out—it would seem that the burden of proof rests on the advocates of the former.

As a final observation, it may be in place to remark that the wary attitude which many orthodox economists maintain toward the "New Deal" is attributable in part to their lack of faith in the thoroughgoing competence of certain prominent counselors of the administration. Nearly ten years ago the late Prof. Allyn Young, in referring to a man who, although relatively immature, was already possessed of a well developed Messianic complex, said: "I do not see how one who looks backward through smoked glasses can look forward with open and clear eyes." This same man is today one of the more vociferous members of the inner circle of "planners."

COLONIES FOR THE FEEBLEMINDED.

MOST states do not know what to do with their thousands of mental defectives, idiots, and imbeciles, but especially morons. Laws making provision for enormous hospitals in which they are to be segregated have been proposed in some states.

Dr. Charles Bernstein, superintendent, Rome [New York] State school, told the superintendents of Minnesota institutions of the very intelligent plan in operation in New York state. They proceed on the theory that the mentally defective is capable of considerable service if some one can guide him and help in placing him. He can earn enough to make his own living, or most of it, in doing work for which he is very well fitted and which some one must do.

The system decides how to group the cases, which of them can live away, and which must live in dormitories; which can do a certain kind of work and which are better fitted for another kind. Communities as well as individuals are diagnosed. The governing authority decides that one community needs the services of one type of defective and another of individuals capable of rendering another type of service.

A colony of Negro girls of the moron level was placed under charge of a matron in Hamilton, N. Y. They do household work, in some instances by the hour and in others by the month. The work is done, in the main, in the homes of the members of the faculty of the university there.

In the Rome institution there are 3,400 subjects. Of these, 1,100 are living in colonies and 500 are working outside on parole and under visitation for advice, counsel, and help. The boys spend about three years in the colonies, doing farm work, tending stock, and cutting wood, and then they are paroled and employed by farmers. As a rule, a colony starts with the renting of an equipped farm. A group of boys are colonized there to work the rented farm. They have 16 colonies for girls, in which are 450 inmates. The girls do housework, dairy work, care for animals, make gardens, sew, and make baskets. After a period of training the girls are paroled and then are employed as domestics in homes and work in factories, shops, and stores.

The farm colonies earn from $37,000 to $50,000 a year—enough or more to pay for cost of maintenance. There are no great appropriations for palaces in which inmates are housed. Dr. Bernstein says it costs $4,000 a year to maintain a colony and the farm produces enough to meet the expense. In addition, the inmates earn some money for themselves and they are benefited by knowing that they have a place in the world.

The next step will be to rent a twenty acre place on which there are barns, cows, and chickens. Twenty younger and somewhat brighter girls of the mentally deficient class are to be placed in this colony. They will do the housework needed, care for the chickens and cows, and, in addition, will go to the district school. They will be kept in school until they have progressed to the level which mental tests have shown to be their limit.

New York seems to be solving its moron problem in a way that is scientific and sensible.

MAY BE "RETURNS."

E. R. G. writes:

1. What percentage, if any, is there of cases having a return of ovarian cysts and tumors [nonmalignant] when the organ affected has been removed?

2. What danger is there in a breast lump which has been present for over ten years [movable]? I am 40 years of age. When pressing the nipple a slight amount of white, cheesy substance issues.

3. Are these conditions hereditary?

4. Could they be caused by an over-acid condition?

REPLY.

1. There are a fair number of "returns" in such cases. In operating it is customary to leave as much as possible of the organs. It happens occasionally that cysts develop in the part left behind.

2. There is not much danger. There is evidence that the mass is a retention cyst. It is mobile and it is not increasing in size. All are good signs.

3. Not properly speaking.

4. No.

IT MIGHT BE FORGOTTEN.

S. R. writes: In one of your articles some time ago you mentioned a disease where the face had unhealthy redness, with a bluish color under the eyelids, and pointed nails. What is the name of this disease?

REPLY.

I judge you refer to a condition known as polycythemia rubra. No wonder you do not remember the name.

SECOND COUSINS.

A. B. writes: Does it make any difference with the children when second cousins marry?

REPLY.

Not unless the family stock is exceptionally bad. I know of no state with laws forbidding marriage of second cousins.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—An uncertain but vital element in the critical relations of Japan and the soviet union has to do with the white Russians, more than 100,000 of whom reside in Manchukuo and are intimately connected in one way or another with Russo-Japanese politics.

Ataman Gregori Semenoff, late Cossack military leader, now a resident of Dairen, believes the Russian whites would line up to a man on the side of Japan in event of war with the soviets. He said the whites, or "emigrees," as they prefer to call themselves, are highly pleased with their status under the new régime in Manchukuo. No longer are they oppressed and terrorized by Chinese generals and disorganized Chinese soldiers. He pointed out that several thousand of his former soldiers now receive Japanese protection as settlers and farmers in districts adjacent to the soviet border.

According to Ataman Semenoff [ataman means chieftain] about 70 per cent of the Russian whites who formerly served under his command or under the command of Admiral Koltchak in the defunct Chita government, which was overthrown by the Reds, now live in Harbin or other towns along the Chinese Eastern and South Manchurian railways.

Semenoff denied the charge of the soviet army commander, Gen. Blucher, that some 12,000 of these whites have been enlisted for service with the Japanese and Manchukuo troops along the Siberian border.

Semenoff still regards himself the "heir" of Koltchak, who was executed by the Reds following the overthrow of the Chita government when the American expeditionary forces under Gen. William S. Graves were in Siberia. Gen. Graves charged that Semenoff was in the pay of the Japanese, and in Graves' book Semenoff is frequently referred to as the "Cossack bandit leader." Graves charged that Semenoff's troops once fired on the American forces.

Before Admiral Koltchak was executed by the Reds he made a will which was smuggled out and which allegedly designated Semenoff as the heir of the defunct Chita government. This was more of a liability than an asset, but of more importance, it gave Semenoff a claim on $3,000,000 worth of gold bars formerly belonging to Koltchak which were smuggled across the border and deposited in the Japanese Yokohama Specie bank.

Semenoff immediately started a legal action in the Japanese courts for possession of these bars. Some months ago the Japanese courts handed down a decision in favor of Semenoff, but according to rumor in Harbin he only received about half of the money. The remainder went to his Japanese attorneys. Half of the money which he did receive Semenoff remitted to white Russian military organizations in France and Poland. The remainder he kept.

Semenoff now has an office in Dairen, where he holds mysterious conferences with his former subordinate officers and makes frequent visits to Changchun, where he confers with staf officers attached to the headquarters of Gen. Takashi Hishikari, Japanese commander in chief and ambassador to Manchukuo.

There appears, however, to be some question whether the Russian emigrees would "line up as a man" on the Japanese side in event of war. Prince Alexis Mdivani, husband of Barbara Hutton, the Woolworth heiress, who recently toured the far east in company with "Princess" Barbara, expressed considerable doubt that there would be any general rush to the Japanese or Manchukuo colors in a war against the soviets. Mdivani, who also is a white Russian from the province of Georgia, spent considerable time in Tokio, Peiping, and Shanghai, where he interviewed other white leaders. In his opinion the Russian emigrees are seriously divided on the issue and when war comes at least half will side with the Reds.

That the large Russian emigree communities in the far east constitute a dangerous element in the political turmoil of this section of the world, however, is obvious. Recently when Semenoff established an office in Shanghai more than 100 of his former Cossacks turned up for the inauguration meeting and fiery speeches were delivered against the Reds. The meeting was attended by five retired Japanese army officers, who also delivered addresses hinting that there might be important developments in Manchukuo and Siberia "in the spring." Representatives of white Russian organizations were present at the coronation of Emperor Kang Teh at Hsinking [Changchun] on March 1 and pledged their support to the new régime.

MAKING A WILL.

Chicago, April 14. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In drawing up a will are parents, who wish to leave all their belongings to three of their children, and nothing to a fourth child, doing so in accordance [2] with a new law? 3. Do parents have to leave something to a child or [4] can they just say they thought of him but do not leave him anything? 5. If they must leave him something what is the least required amount? 6. Suppose this will was made with a sound mind, can this child contest the will if it is made in such a way that it does not leave him anything?

J. P. H.

1. There is no legal objection to this course unless the fourth child can prove undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.
2. There is no new law on this point.
3. No.
4. Yes.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGACY.

Chicago, April 14. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—A's wife and her two sisters are beneficiaries in their uncle's will, who died in Washington state. A's wife died before her uncle. 1. Has A any right to his wife's part or [2] has he none at all?

M. A.

1. Not unless the will contains wording to that effect. Ordinarily a legacy lapses when the legatee dies before the testator.
2. See 1.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

STOCK ISSUE.

South Haven, Mich., April 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there any time limit as to the time a going concern can withhold payment of cumulative preferred stock and cumulative preferred stock dividends? 2. What is the difference between cumulative first preferred class A stock and cumulative preferred stock? 3. In the financial setup I am referring to, the class A stock has notes, bonds, and regular cumulative first preferred before the class A stock and which is followed by common stock. 4. The best information I can obtain is that they are earning their dividends but are withholding payment of dividends on both of the preferred issues. 5. Is there any time limit that they can hold these dividends? The cumulative preference stock does not have any bond before it. All it has is a small amount of notes and is followed by common stock. C. E. B.

1. Not unless such a limit is imposed under the arrangements under which the stock was issued.
2. Your question is like asking what is the difference between John Smith and James Jones. Either name would apply to a specific issue of stock and would be almost meaningless standing alone.
3. We can add nothing to the differences suggested here.
4. If the agreement was the common one that they would pay no dividends on the common stock until the specified dividends had been paid on preferred issues, then there would be no basis of complaint if no dividends had been paid on the common stock.
5. Not unless so agreed.

SQUEEZING THE DAIRY FARMER.

North Manchester, Ind., April 14.—I am a farmer from northern Indiana. I ship milk to Chicago. Our trouble has advanced so far that something must be done about it, and your paper could do a great deal to give us justice and possibly save the people of Chicago from another milk strike and higher prices later on.

We dairymen have received a very raw deal from the administration by demoting the Pure Milk association and lowering our prices. All we buy has gone up, and Mr. Wallace and his powerful brain trust have cut our income instead of helping us.

If the present policy continues there will be only a few of the larger distributors left, and then you will have a real trust which you howled so loudly about.

My dealer notified us yesterday we must take a cut voluntarily or he would move the plant or go out of business, and I tell you they [the dealers] have a plan which will nullify the government's plan of a flat price to farmers. Here is one scheme: We must rebate voluntarily for plant operation, which can be raised at the discretion of our dealer.

Well, the government can't tell us what we must do with our money after the dealer has paid us the flat government price. That is the joker.

We have thousands of dollars invested in our farms, cows and improvements. To many of us it is our sole income. When our dealer comes and tells us he can go up in Wisconsin and get some one else who will do as he asks, what would you do? Many communities will give him a nice thing for a little while in order to take our business.

This is one of the many reasons why we farmers need a good organization to protect ourselves against selfish dealers who make it hard on us. You must admit the Pure Milk association has never tried to rob the public. All we ask is a fair price.

Now, if the dealers are allowed to pull this trick, where will we farmers land? I'll tell you: We will sell against one another [in order to hold our business] until some of us go broke.

CHARLES C. ROHRER.

TWO UNKNOWN SOLDIERS.

Dadeville, Ala., April 16.—The Alabama department of archives and history has recently done some excellent work in locating and marking places of historical interest in the state. On a little creek a few miles east of Dadeville two Union soldiers, killed during engagements here between the federals and the confederates in the latter days of the war between the states, lie sleeping in unmarked graves. So far as I can learn from records in the Tallapoosa county courthouse at Dadeville, no record was made of the names of these soldiers. No living person here now can recall their names. I would appreciate hearing from people in the north who might have been relatives or friends of these boys who took part with Gen. Rousseau's division in Tallapoosa county and at Auburn and Loachapoka and other places. We are interested in learning the names of the soldiers so a suitable marker may be placed to mark their graves. There are other Union soldiers, some of them sleeping side by side with confederate soldiers, buried in the county, and the graves are properly marked. Will some one write me and tell me the correct information?

H. CLAY PLESS.

QUALIFIED CANDIDATES.

Evanston, Ill., April 15.—The following is the first paragraph taken from a discussion of election results appearing in last Wednesday's TRIBUNE. To quote:

"Voters in the 43d ward yesterday defeated Titus Haffa's attempt to return to political life as Republican committeeman, after serving 17 months in Leavenworth penitentiary, but reëlected Ald. Mathias Bauler as Democratic committeeman. Bauler will go on trial tomorrow for shooting a policeman in front of his saloon."

What fitting records some of our political candidates have!

E. B. OBERG.

ON MENTAL TESTS.

Chicago, April 16.—I notice with apprehension the plan to give mental tests to all children in the public schools.

Who will give these tests? When will they be given? What will the tests comprise? How will they be given? Under what exact conditions will they be given? The answers to all these questions are vitally important in mental testing.

Tests have been given prison inmates and as a result crime has at times been attributed to mental inferiority, at other times it has been revealed that these same tests, applied to industrial workers, have produced the same results.

Children who have subjected to tests have suffered inferiority complexes unfairly and unjustly. Instances are known of children whose reactions to tests were most unfavorable, and yet these same children have developed into fine, moral, upright, and intelligent citizens.

Because one child has proved immoral and has committed a crime is no reason for supplying jobs for many people for this mental testing, with the possible result of unfair classifications to be carried throughout life by the children of this generation. Remember that a classification of idiocy, feeble-mindedness, or moron tendencies attached to some child by an examiner who may or may not be qualified, under conditions which may or may not be fair, may prove to be a stigma on that child's name for life—a record to be turned up for embarrassing moments at any time in the future—and perhaps a cause of an inferiority complex on the part of that particular child.

Twenty years ago psychologists and psychiatrists were quite thoroughly convinced that the Simon-Binet tests provided accurate formulas for measuring a mind. Ten years later the tests were called antiquated, were revised, and again experts were certain they had found accurate measuring sticks. Today tests are again modernized. How do we know that ten years from now these tests will not be considered as unfair and inaccurate? In the light of these experiences, mental testing should proceed cautiously before tremendous injustice is committed.

CURE FOR THE ALIMONY RACKET.

Chicago, April 18.—Like so many lawyers I spend much time waiting in the so-called divorce courts of Cook county. I believe that I have put in enough time waiting and listening there to offer a brilliant suggestion to curb the alimony racket.

I suggest a law permitting any woman who waives alimony to tell a master in chancery or special commissioner about her husband for one hour, in the presence of her husband, and without regard for rules of evidence. This law should provide also, that the husband may not reply further than to make straight denials at such time as the master in chancery or special commissioner may deem appropriate to sustain the interest.

With such a law, my observations lead me to believe that the ladies, bless them, would in large numbers waive alimony.

THEODORE T. ROBINSON.

A TAX ON FERTILIZERS.

Chicago, April 17.—If the real object of Secretary Wallace's agriculture department is to promote higher prices as well as to make more employment, the following is worthy of consideration.

Tax all fertilizer to the point of extinction. This would shorten all crops and make use of increased acreage, thereby increasing employment. Incidentally the small fellow uses little or no fertilizer.

Through taxation eliminate the use of tractors. Horsepower uses more help as well as taking big acreage to feed the horses. Also the forgotten little farmer uses few tractors.

Instead of limiting cotton production and thereby making unemployment, why not subsidize manufacturers so as cotton can be used in place of burlap, sisal twine, and Manila rope?

FRANCE STRIKES AT REDS TO END STREET FIGHTING

Premier Calls on Nation to Support Rule.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 21.—Premier Gaston Doumergue, in a radio address to the French nation today, called for reinforcement of governmental authority and denounced the attempt of civil servants to sabotage the economy program which has pulled finance off the rocks. Simultaneously police authorities today opened a nationwide drive to suppress communist agitation.

Acting on express orders from the government, State Prosecutor Gomien took action against reds under an almost forgotten law of 1848 which punishes incitement to illegal assemblies or gatherings in the street.

Aimed Against Red Paper.

The proceedings were directed chiefly against the communist newspaper Humanite for articles summoning workers to defy the government. The article resulted in a demonstration at the city hall which led to street fighting yesterday. Humanite's appeals for a revolutionary general strike on May 1 also are considered a violation of the law.

At the same time at Perigueux in the department of Dordogne, the courts sentenced groups of Socialists and communists. The committed radicals had taken a leading part in the demonstrations of civil servants against the economy decrees on the grounds that they were hindering freedom of labor.

As Doumergue emphasized the seriousness of the civil servant's mutiny in his speech, it was evident that the government is carrying out a coördinated offensive against the reds on all fronts.

Seeks to Break Union.

The first objective of the government is to break the power of the outlawed civil servants' unions which the premier termed a "state within a state," and which are literally honeycombed with communism.

"In order to be respected abroad, it is essential that the French state be respected at home, especially by those who serve it," Doumergue said in his address. "It is not admissible that the public should be annoyed by sabotage of public services. Certain incidents in the last few days showed me that in addition to financial restoration, restoration of the government's authority is necessary. My government is resolved to carry out this restoration with dogged firmness."

Further indication that the government means business was furnished by Minister of Communcations Andre Mallarme. He announced he is preparing a new decree which would shake up the telegraph and telephone services and punish severely all employés who are found guilty of sabotage.

Find Sabotage Groups.

This measure was inspired by the discovery of special sabotage groups in telegraph and telephone exchanges. Officials considered these groups a grave potential danger in case a general revolutionary movement broke out. Mallarme, by his reorganization measures, hopes to render impossible any repetition of the strikes and disorders which functionaries staged last week, thus assuring communications for police and military in time of need.

While the government is interested chiefly in stamping out the enemy within its citadel—red civil servants—the decision evidently has been taken to put a damper on political activities which threaten civil strife. Apparently communists are to be allowed to continue preaching class war as long as it remains platonic, but when they provoke specific disorders, they will be muzzled ruthlessly.

While the anti-red campaign has only just gotten under way, there is an indication the Doumergue government intends to strike one of the heaviest blows at the occult power of Moscow ever attempted in time of peace under a nondictatorial régime. That the government also intends to keep the extremist band of the right in check was indicated by Doumergue when he cried to his invisible audience tonight:

"Any Frenchman who fights for anything but national union is a traitor to France."

Fights to Prevent Civil War.

There is no doubt from the premier's talk that he is fully alive to the danger of civil war and is determined at all costs to prevent it.

This was really the message he wished to convey to the country. The rest of the speech, except for a short reference to foreign policy justifying France's new hardboiled stand on armaments by attacking German rearmament, was devoted to financial questions.

On this score Doumergue was optimistic. Because of his economy program, he was able to tell the French nation that in three weeks since his first radio talk the tide has been turned and confidence restored. This is illustrated by figures on gold movements which the premier cited—119,000,000 francs in gold [about $7,500,000] flowing back to the Bank of France in five days.

FRANCE IS WORRIED; DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO GET RID OF TROTZKY

BARBIZON, France, April 21.—(AP)—French officials are becoming uneasy about how to get rid of Leon Trotzky.

The red leader's inability to obtain a visa held up his expulsion tonight and the government's patience is getting shorter. He has been notified he must leave his villa here as soon as possible.

Turkey appeared to be the only country willing to receive him, but it was not definitly decided whether he will return to his former exile home on Prinkipo Island.

Merchants, meanwhile, expected a county fair business tomorrow because of the big influx of sightseers from Paris. At least a score of tourists managed to elude watchmen and clamber over the villa wall into the garden.

MAGGIE CLINE OF "M'CLOSKEY" SONG FAME IS ILL

Fairhaven, N. J., April 21.—(AP)—Maggie Cline, famed to this day for her singing of "Throw Him Down, McCloskey" in the theaters of years ago, is seriously ill at her home here.

She began her stage career in 1880 and sang among other airs of the day "How McNulty Carved the Duck," "Mary Ann Kehoe," and "Nothing Too Good for the Irish."

But it was McCloskey who brought her fame. Seventy-five thousand times, by her own estimate, did Maggie Cline sing the praises of the wild Irishman. J. W. Kelly, its author, offered the song to her for $2. She gave him $5 with an injunction not to forget the boys in the back room.

It was first sung at a Tony Pastor show in Philadelphia.

COUNTESS HAIG'S FINANCES LOW; GUEST OF KING

EDINBURGH, April 21.—(AP)—Countess Haig, widow of the field marshal, announced today she will leave Scotland to reside in Hampton Court palace by the courtesy of the royal family. She explained the diminishing state of the Haig finances prompted the move.

The late field marshal's own rooms at Bemersyde, the home presented by the nation in recognition of his services as commander in chief in the world war, will be opened as a museum.

VIOLENCE GROWS IN SPAIN; STRIKE TIES UP MADRID

Mobs Attack Catholics; Several Slain.

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, April 22 [Sunday].—A day of sporadic violence was climaxed without warning by a general strike in Madrid last midnight. At the call of the Socialist Youth organization, workers suddenly walked out in protest against the great demonstration of the Catholic party to be held at Escorial, the former royal seat, today.

In cafés packed with after theater crowds, waiters laid down their trays and as quickly as the patrons could be sent home, steel shutters clattered down. Taxis pulled into garages, leaving the streets bare of trafic. Subways and street cars stopped running and bakers abandoned their ovens. The capital today will eat what is left of yesterday's supply of bread.

Reds Battle Police.

Another deadly gun battle between police and left extremists flared up in front of Catholic headquarters in Madrid last night. Two policemen were gravely wounded.

A youth was killed by a bomb which he is said to have been carrying near the bull ring.

At Aranjuez a mob stopped three buses containing Catholics bound for the Madrid meeting and made the occupants get out. A torch was being set to the buses when a squad of civil guards ran up and opened fire. Two men in the mob were killed and half a dozen wounded. Near the same town a caravan of cars was stoned on the highway. One driver was wounded.

Many persons were injured at Granada when police repeatedly charged a mob demonstrating against the Catholic meeting. Extremists opened fire on Catholics at Manresa without warning as a group was preparing to set out in buses for Escorial. One Catholic and one extremist were wounded.

Brand Catholics as Fascists.

Branding the Catholic party as Fascist, the Socialists charged the Lerroux government with betraying the workers and pointed to the numerous clashes between police and extremists. The Socialists charged that the government set the police on the workers.

The minister of interior announced that the government will firmly support and protect the Catholic congress. He assailed the strike, declaring that parliament is the place for protest.

With thousands of civil guards mobilized, the Catholics who are able to get to Escorial will hold their demonstration with more protection than ever guarded Philip II. in his famous palace. However, despite the precaution taken by the police in confiscating all tacks and nails in Madrid, considerable tire trouble on the highway already has been reported. At San Martin one entire caravan was obliged to turn back when tacks in the road punctured all tires.

Amnesty Bill "Lost."

Newspapermen tried throughout the hectic day to find out what had become of the amnesty bill passed by parliament yesterday and by midnight it earned the title of "the lost law." The bill, which frees some 9,000 rightist enemies of the republic from prison, was supposed to have been signed by President Niceto Alcala Zamora at once so the prisons could be opened, but nobody will say what has happened to it. It seems the president is taking his time as a protest against it, but none of the ministers interested will specify what is wrong. The minister of justice will not even see the press.

REVOLUTION IN U. S.? NOT A CHANCE, SAYS 'RED EMMA' GOLDMAN

New York, April 21.—(AP)—After an eleven weeks' tour of the country, "Red Emma" Goldman, the anarchist, is convinced there will be no overthrow of the old scheme of things in America.

"Despite all the talk one hears of revolutionary trends in American government," she declared, "America will be the last country in the world to have a revolution."

The reason, she said, is based on this phenomenon of the average American citizens' mind:

"He still believes that his son can some day become President; he still thinks he can become wealthy under the existing order."

An individual—least of all a president—can't start a revolution, said Miss Goldman; it must come from the masses.

She does not regard the "new deal" as revolutionary.

"It merely is intended to bolster or modify the present system," she declared.

FRANCE, POLAND WILL LAY CARDS ON TABLE TODAY

Pilsudski to "Fence" with Paris Foreign Chief.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, April 21.—Marshal Josef Pilsudski is expected to take an active part in negotiations with Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, who is due in Warsaw tomorrow night for a two day visit.

Barthou, who is seeking to improve the French-Polish relations, will be accompanied by a large staf, including 12 French journalists representing the largest Paris newspapers. Their editors have been wondering why the Poles have discontinued their lavish payments for favorable publicity in the French press.

Pilsudski Takes a Hand.

According to the first program prepared for Barthou's visit, tomorrow evening was to have been devoted to a private dinner in the home of Foreign Minister Colonel Josef Beck, where the two statesmen were expected to exchange viewpoints on the many problems which have arisen between the two countries.

A last minute change in the schedule, however, which was not made public, provides that shortly after his arrival Barthou will accompany Col. Beck to Belvedere palace, where he will be received by Marshal Pilsudski. The Polish dictator will personally inform France's representative of the details of Poland's independent foreign policy.

The announcement in Paris that Barthou had received the Italian ambassador and the Lithuanian minister before his departure for Warsaw leads the Poles to believe that Barthou intends to offer France's services as a mediary both in the Czechoslovakian-Polish and Lithuanian-Polish conflicts. The Poles, however, emphasize their intention to settle these disputes directly without the assistance of a third party.

Austrian Problem Involved.

The visit of the Italian ambassador to Barthou was suspected here to be connected with Poland's lukewarm attitude towards the Austrian problem. Poland's improved relations with Berlin preclude a discussion of this problem, and official circles here hint that, should a union of Germany and Austria be achieved, Poland would benefit, since the problem of achieving a port on the Adriatic would become more important to Germany than the Danzig question.

Hints contained in the French official press that Barthou's visit is a measure of penance for France's negligence of Polish interests in the recent four power pact fiasco, and that Barthou might open discussions on the much needed loan for Poland, leave the Poles skeptical. The local press believes that when Marshal Pilsudski and Foreign Minister Barthou lay their cards on the table at Belvedere palace, Pilsudski will have the stronger hand.

The question of the rearmament of Germany, which is one of the most important points to be cleared up by Barthou's visit, is not mentioned either in Polish official circles or in the Polish press. But it is stated that the basic foundation of the French-Polish alliance will not be weakened, no matter how the conversations in Warsaw result.

PRUSSIA OUSTS 1,312 JEWISH LAWYERS IN YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 21.—Nazi newspapers in a gloating report today pointed to "the progressing purification" of the legal profession by the elimination of Jewish members. In Prussia the number of Jewish lawyers has declined by almost 39 per cent, or from 3,378 to 2,066, in the last year.

Jewish notaries have been reduced from 2,046 to 884. Six hundred eighty-four lawyers have been forbidden to practice in Berlin out of 1,934 engaged in their profession a year ago. In Kassel, an anti-Semitic center, 73 per cent of the Jewish notaries have been ousted.

Meanwhile the reichswehr ministry announced that fifty members of the army and navy will be dismissed by May 31 because they are Jewish or married to Jewesses.

When you pay the price of a Knee-Action car, you naturally want genuine Knee-Action and all that goes with it. You want the new gliding ride at its smoothest, safest, and best. You want simple, foolproof, and trouble-proof construction—the huskiest, sturdiest front-end you can buy. And, of course, you want shock-proof steering—it is the natural companion of the gliding ride. You pay for these things, and you want them all—but you can get them, in the low-price field, only from Chevrolet. The reason is simple. Fully-enclosed Knee-Action wheels are costly to build—so costly that only Chevrolet, world's largest builder of cars, can afford to make the necessary huge investment in new machinery—and still keep prices among the lowest of the low. Only Chevrolet has the resources and the assured volume of sales that permit this extra production cost. Chevrolet does it because Chevrolet believes that, to KEEP ON SELLING THE MOST CARS, YOU MUST KEEP ON BUILDING THE BEST. And judging from the popularity of the 1934 car, America agrees with Chevrolet.

NANKING ASSAILS JAPAN'S AMBITION TO RULE ORIENT

Chinese Spurn Suggestion They Agree to Plan.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 21.—The Nanking government's first definite statement pertaining to the Japanese declaration of hegemony over Asia emphatically denied today that the Chinese government had prior knowledge of the contents of the Japanese statement, or had acquiesced in it.

Nankink's statement followed reports from Tokio, and circulated in the United States, alleging that China agreed to and connived in the new Japanese policy.

The Nanking spokesman characterized the Japanese declaration as "the baseless doctrine of Japanese hegemony over Asia, which was a greater shock to China than it was to the other nations.

Calls Suggestion Absurd.

"To suggest that the Chinese government acquiesced in such a doctrine is no less absurd than to believe that a man could acquiesce in his own destruction. Japan's object in trying to make the world believe that China is favorable to designed to lessen the opposition of other powers, but, fortunately or unfortunately, the world has learned to know Japan too well since the Manchurian affair to give credence to such fantastic tales."

Premier Wang Ching-wei, who arrived in Shanghai late tonight, declared that China intended to ignore the Japanese declaration, but admitted that the situation in North China is growing more critical. The Japanese, he said, are increasing their garrisons and hurriedly stringing field telephones along the railway between Shanhaikwan and Tientsin. Japanese aviation activities are increasing along the Great Wall and in eastern Chahar province.

Wang said there is evidence that the Japanese are behind recent bandit activities, including depredations of the notorious Liu Kwei-tang, who has terrorized large sections of Hopei and Shantung provinces.

Provincial Chairman Quits.

Gen. Han Fu-chu, chairman of Shantung province, which is likely to become involved in the event of further Japanese military activities in North China, today tendered his resignation. He was urged to reconsider.

T. V. Soong, former finance minister and now head of the national economic council, declared:

"China's plans for technical collaboration with the league of nations and other occidental nations are none of Japan's business. Japan obviously has no right to interfere with China's international relations or reconstruction activities."

Akira Ariyoshi, Japanese minister to China, returned here from a two days' visit to Nanking, where he confered with Premier Wang. Ariyoshi denied that they had discussed the new Japanese policy. He said Nanking is following a "cautious attitude respecting direct negotiations with Japan."

Japs See Peril to Peace.

The Japanese newspaper, Nippo, in an editorial review of the Japanese policy, which referred to China's recent negotiation with the United States of a $20,000,000 cotton and wheat loan and plans to obtain league of nations help in connection with the reconstruction projects, and also China's recent aviation development, declared:

"Japan is convinced that China's recent activities are prejudicial to the peace of Asia. Hence Japan means to adopt a firm policy, leaving no room for interference from the league of nations or any other powers. Japan will stoutly uphold her position as far eastern leader and will indicate to China the foreign policy which China should adopt hereafter."

Mario de Bernardi, Italian aviator, who is here demonstrating a new Italian long range bomber, performed hair raising stunts over the international settlement yesterday, providing visible evidence of one of the chief causes of Japanese apprehension over China's aviation program.

League Plans Showdown.

GENEVA, April 21.—[U. P.]—Japan's startling "hands off China" declaration may be raised in what will amount to a world conference when the league of nations committee on Manchukuo meets here May 14.

League of nations officials, already chagrined over the complete defeat of the league's efforts to curb activities of Japan in Manchukuo, frankly took a most serious view of the latest Tokio statement.

Confronted with a step forward in Japan's aim to assert full leadership in eastern Asia, league officials seemed inclined to favor a showdown and to welcome a general discussion of the far eastern affairs at the May 14 meeting—the first in nearly a year of the Manchukuo committee.

From the standpoint of the league as a body, there was no doubt that a strong stand against Japan would be welcomed. But as Geneva is but the shell of the organization, and its members have their own problems in the far east, there was some speculation whether a "strong stand" could be adopted.

BRITISH PRINCESS IS 8 YEARS OLD; POURS TEA FOR GRANDPA—KING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 21.—Princess Elizabeth, heir presumptive to the British throne, was eight years old today. There was great excitement at Windsor castle where this important young lady is staying with the royal family.

Long before a nurse came to call her at 8 a. m., she was awake, eager to examine her presents piled high on a table in the oak dining room. Her parents, the duke and duchess of York, were the first to greet her with kisses. Too excited to eat breakfast, the princess began to unwrap the gifts. She was joined by her younger sister, Princess Margaret Rose.

The duchess of York gave Princess Elizabeth a silver pencil. Her father's gift was a light weight tennis racket. Queen Mary sent a jewel case. It was lined with red plush and equipped with a real lock.

In the afternoon the princess entertained the royal grandparents and other members of the royal family at tea. She poured the tea herself and distributed slices of her birthday cake, a two tiered pink and white confection baked especially for her by the king's confectioner. The cake was decorated with eight lighted candles. The princess blew them out with one puff. Later she walked around the castle's quadrangle and waved to the crowds.

JAPS CELEBRATE EIGHTY YEARS OF U. S. FRIENDSHIP

Observes Anniversary of Perry's Treaty.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SHIMODA, Japan, April 22 [Sunday].—The greatest celebration ever held in Japan to commemorate friendship between the United States and Nippon reached a climax at noon today in the presence of Ambassador Joseph Clark Grew and half a hundred Japanese notables in a picturesque setting of lanterns and bunting in this quiet, pine clad town.

Transformed into a scene of rejoicing such as it had never experienced, Shimoda commemorated the 80th anniversary of the conclusion of the first American-Japanese treaty of amity.

Boarding a destroyer at Yokohama at 8 o'clock this morning, Ambassador Grew sailed to Shimoda accompanied by Mrs. Grew, Vice Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Katsuji Debuchi, former ambassador to the United States, and others, including about twenty press correspondents.

Pay Tribute to U. S. Sailors.

The party visited Gyokusenji temple and paid respects to the five sailors of the United States flagship Susquehanna [1854], or "black ship," as the Japanese then called it, who are buried there.

Then the party attended services at the primary school, after which American and Japanese flags were hoisted and the national anthems were played by brass bands. Ambassador Grew, Admiral Nomura, and Debuchi paid glowing tributes in speeches lasting until 2:30 p. m.

Tonight a lantern procession and elaborate fireworks will be held in a celebration continuing until late into the night, with all the townsmen, old and young, participating.

The streets are gayly bedecked with arches erected for the occasion. Small paper lanterns, gorgeously painted, hang from the eves of every house. This contrasted with the scene on the arrival of Commodore Matthew Galbraith Perry so many years ago, when the shogun ordered doors bolted and windows closed and forbade women to leave their homes.

Perry, a brother of Capt. Oliver Hazard Perry of "the battle of Lake Erie," sailed from Norfolk, Va., on Nov. 24, 1852, aboard the Mississippi and reached Hongkong the next April. On July 8, 1853, he dropped anchor off the city of Uraga, on the western shore of the bay of Yedo [now Tokio] with the Susquehanna, the Mississippi and the sloops of war Saratoga and Plymouth.

Present Letters to Emperor.

On July 14, accompanied by about 300 officers and men, he went ashore and presented to commissioners especially appointed by the shogun to receive them, President Fillmore's letters to the emperor, and his own credentials. A few days later the American fleet sailed for Hongkong with the understanding that Perry would return the following spring to receive the emperor's reply.

The next February Perry reappeared in the Bay of Yedo with his fleet, which then was composed of the Susquehanna, Mississippi, Powhatan, and the sailing vessels Vandalia, Lexington, and Southampton. Despite the protests of the Japanese he selected an anchorage about 12 miles farther up the bay, nearly opposite the present site of Yokohama and within about 10 miles of Yedo [Tokio].

Treaty Is Concluded.

Here in 1854 was begun the treaty which was ratified at Shimoda. The more important articles of the treaty provided that the port of Shimoda in the principality of Idzu, and the port of Hakodate, in the principality of Matsmai, were constituted as ports for the reception of American ships, where they could buy such supplies as they needed; that Japanese vessels should assist American vessels driven ashore on the coasts of Japan, and that the crews of such vessels should be properly cared for at one of the two treaty ports; that shipwrecked and other American citizens in Japan should be as free as in other countries, within certain prescribed limits; that ships of the United States should be permitted to trade at the two treaty ports and that privileges granted to other nations thereafter must also be extended to the United States.

An earthquake destroyed Shimoda later in the same year and greatly impaired its harbor. The town was rebuilt, but the opening of trade with the world passed up the town for the great port of Yokohama, up the bay.

Commodore Perry returned to the United States and died in New York on March 4, 1858.

BELGIUM PLANS TO EASE BAR ON LIQUOR SELLING

BRUSSELS, April 21.—(AP)—The cabinet council today planned to meet a budget deficit by issuing licenses to sell alcoholic beverages.

The budget deficit of 200,000,000 francs [about $10,000,000] would be met by provisions in a bill before the house proposing drastic changes in the liquor laws.

Under the bill, the sale of liquor would be unlimited through licensed houses, including hotels and restaurants.

"Has Our Child Rickets?"

Over 50% of city children have rickets. Only your doctor—aided perhaps by an X-ray photograph—can detect rickets in its mild form. Many children show serious signs of advanced rickets; bow legs, knock knees, "pot belly," bulging forehead, enlarged joints, weak and crooked teeth.

Feed your child plenty of Borden's Vitamin D whole milk—at least a quart a day—and you will protect it against rickets.

Borden's

Announces Irradiated Vitamin D Milk

99 Out of 100 "Vitamin D" Babies Free from Rickets

Two or more children out of every four show signs of rickets, according to physicians. Countless tests have proved the value of Vitamin D Milk in such cases. In one test, 100 infants were fed Vitamin D Milk regularly; all but one child—a premature baby—developed quite free from rickets.

For Tooth and Bone Building

Sound teeth depend on adequate nutrition and care. At all ages there is nothing more important than Borden's Vitamin D Milk to aid in developing and maintaining strong, well formed, durable teeth . . . X-rays of fractures show that Vitamin D is also important in bone building. The Vitamin acts as a chemical "cement," helping the body to assimilate lime and phosphorus that mean a quicker, stronger union.

"Mothers and Children First!"

Babies have to build bones and teeth "from the ground up", they must have plenty of Vitamin D. The prospective or nursing mother must have a double supply—to protect her own body and supply her baby. "A tooth for every baby" tells what actually happens if her food lacks lime, phosphorus and Vitamin D. To supply these elements, milk is the best available food. As to the amount, at least a quart a day is indicated for the prospective or nursing mother or the growing child; and for the average adult, at least three glasses of Borden's Irradiated Milk daily.

Beginning April 25th, Borden drivers in Chicago and suburbs will fill orders for Borden's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk.

Mothers will eagerly welcome this news. Physicians and dentists will recognize how vitally it concerns the public health. Irradiation of milk for Vitamin D has been called "the most important nutritional discovery in the dairy field since pasteurizing."

WHO HAS RICKETS? Over 50% of city children—rich and poor, white and colored.

WHAT CAUSES RICKETS? Rickets is due to lack of proper bone nutrition. The bones and teeth must have an ample supply of lime, calcium and phosphorus. Milk is rich in both—but another substance, Vitamin D, is also necessary, as a chemical "cement" to put the other two elements to efficient use. Otherwise the bones and teeth are undernourished.

Ordinary foods lack Vitamin D. Its natural source is the ultra violet rays of sunshine, which develop Vitamin D in the oil of the skin. These rays benefit us only when the clear sunshine contacts the bare skin. Clouds, smoke, dust, clothing and window glass stop these rays—rob us of their benefit much of the time, in summer as well as winter. City people are VITAMIN-D-STARVED.

HOW SERIOUS IS RICKETS? Hundreds of thousands in Chicago, both children and adults, suffer from its ill effects. It causes many pitiful symptoms in BABIES, retards their growth and handicaps them through life with undersized and misshapen limbs, chests, heads, jaws—unsightly and unsound teeth—pelvic conditions in girls that multiply the hazards at childbirth.

IMPORTANT TO YOUR WHOLE FAMILY

This news means that YOUR children—YOUR family—may now have ample Vitamin D three times a day—by the easy, natural, inexpensive way, DRINKING VITAMIN D MILK. It means, according to authorities, that every child who drinks a quart daily is "automatically protected against the serious danger of rickets."

EXPECTANT AND NURSING MOTHERS whose diet lacks Vitamin D must supply the baby's imperative need by robbing their own bones and teeth. To have straight, strong bones, and to have sound, well formed teeth, YOUNG PEOPLE must have a well balanced diet containing ample Vitamin D. EVERY ADULT also should assure himself of the advantages of Vitamin D by including Irradiated Milk in his diet.

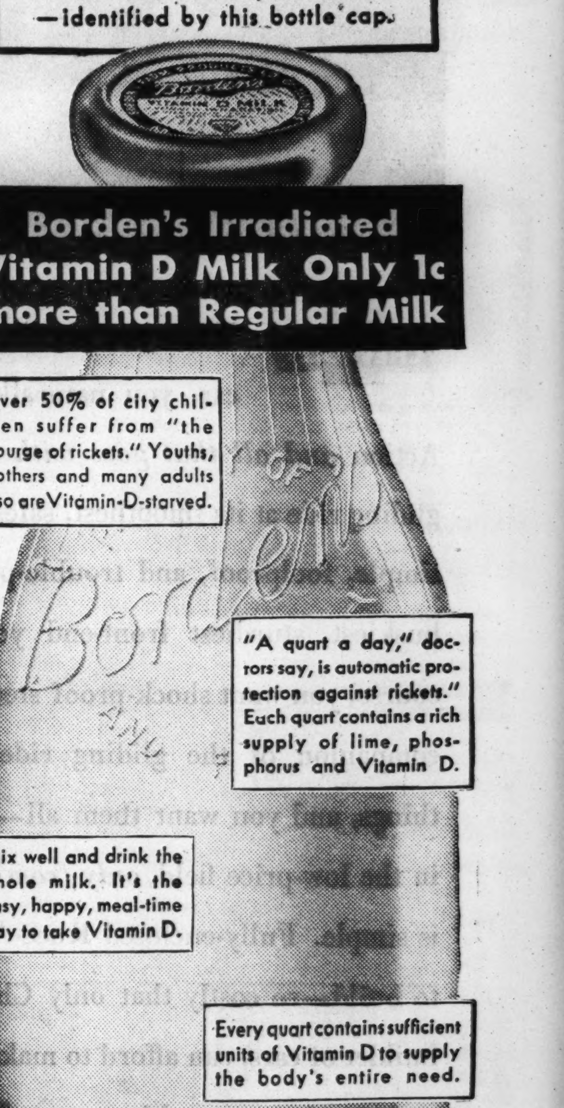
Serve a Quart a Day Per Person—Be Sure It's Borden's

Borden's has often shown the way in the matter of improved milk supply. Again we take pride in meeting this new-found public need. Our method is to irradiate pure, fresh milk with electric ultra violet rays of exact intensity. Nothing is added or taken away. The delicious taste of the milk is unchanged. But its food value is greatly increased.

Borden's Vitamin D Milk offers every family the cheap, happy, meal-time way to secure ample Vitamin D. Make it the REGULAR diet of your entire family. Drink the WHOLE MILK, well mixed; order extra cream for other uses. Mark your order on your Borden milk card NOW—or phone BITtersweet 8600 for early morning delivery.

BORDEN'S FARM PRODUCTS CO. OF ILLINOIS

Borden scientists were among those who pioneered on Vitamin D Irradiated Milk. Insist upon Borden's—identified by this bottle cap.



Borden's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk Only 1c more than Regular Milk

Over 50% of city children suffer from "the scourge of rickets." Youths, mothers and many adults also are Vitamin-D-starved.

"A quart a day," doctors say, is automatic protection against rickets." Each quart contains a rich supply of lime, phosphorus and Vitamin D.

Mix well and drink the whole milk. It's the easy, happy, meal-time way to take Vitamin D.

Every quart contains sufficient units of Vitamin D to supply the body's entire need.

ACCEPTED AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSN. Committee on Foods

This seal denotes that our Irradiated Vitamin D Milk is accepted by the American Medical Association, Committee on Foods.

Borden's Vitamin D Milk is irradiated with ultra violet rays under license by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation under the Steenbock patent (U. S. No. 1680818) and the Supplee process patent (U. S. Patent No. 1817936).

Members of the Profession: A special bulletin on Irradiated Milk will be sent you upon request.

MOTHERS! This simply worded booklet tells about Vitamin D and "the scourge of rickets" in children. Mail the coupon, telephone us, or ask the Borden Milk man for a copy—Free.

INSULL'S LIFE ON 'PRISON SHIP' ONE OF COMFORT

No Indication He Is in the Custody of U. S.

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA, en route to the United States, April 21.—If somebody who had never heard of Samuel Insull had boarded the Exilona at Sicily, he probably would have to spend several days with fellow passengers and the former utilities magnate before he realized that the 74 year old man is a prisoner of the United States government.

The situation has been handled with utmost tact not only by Burton Y. Berry, third secretary of the United States embassy in Turkey, and Capt. Wenzel Habel—the two men jointly responsible for Insull's return "to and into" the United States as President Roosevelt's warant reads—but also by the prisoner himself.

An Agreeable Arrangement.

An agreeable arrangement, more tacit than expressed, has been worked out.

The young and studious Berry is responsible for his prisoner's behavior and safety 12 hours of the 24. Nevertheless the American embassy official might be taken for a companion of the elderly traveler for all their constant associations indicate.

Insull might also be considered as a man whose age, bearing and desire for lively society themselves earned for him a seat at the captain's table. Other passengers in the dining room give no indication that a prisoner, who is wanted in Chicago to stand trial on criminal charges, is at their elbows.

There is little to indicate that the one time financial "genius," is not paying his own way. All the courtesies by which passengers try to make a voyage pleasant are observed. He is allowed to converse with anybody he chooses. If his name crops up in conversations, it is Insull who mentions it.

But the erstwhile fugitive is under the closest observation 24 hours a day. Yet the watch is scarcely noticeable. There is no opportunity for passengers to say, "Let's go see the Insull guard changed." It might be mentioned that there hasn't been a single example of morbid curiosity exhibited by any person aboard the vessel.

Watch Begins Early.

Berry begins the watch in the morning. His prisoner rises early and remains in his cabin where he has his invariable breakfast of orange juice, bacon and eggs, and coffee. Upon emerging from his cabin he is met in the hall by the embassy official. The two exchange a cordial good morning.

Thereafter Insull is under constant observation. If he is on deck chatting, Berry stands nearby. If he goes below in the smoking room to reminisce with newspaper men, Berry might leave the room. In that case, the latter takes a position on deck commanding a view of all exits. When Insull leaves the room, the ever watchful Berry rejoins him with a casualness so easy and polite there is no trace of observation.

They sit on deck together for hours. Insull likes to talk with persons nearer his own age and often uses Berry as a listener. This afternoon Berry moved a steamer chair into the sunshine. The prisoner asked him to come back out of the wind and listen to one of his stories.

Purser Takes Up Duties.

Shortly after dinner Berry's trying day is ended. The job could be made very simple by putting Insull under lock and key, but Capt. Habel and the representative of the American government are anxious of delivering him in New York in good health and spirits, consequently when Berry is relieved his task is taken on by Alfred Canavan, the purser and chief steward.

Purser Canavan throughout the early evening acts as Insull's companion or observer. Later on Canavan surrenders his job to Cadet Officer Buckwalter, who is 20 years old. The Insull cabin is so situated that there are a number of places from which it is possible to keep an eye on his door. Buckwalter might be found at any of these vantage places. Even so, passengers up late at night find nothing in his appearance to indicate he is a guard.

During the period when the ship's officers are on duty, Capt. Habel is personally responsible. His cabin is at the head of the stairway which leads directly to Insull's door. The prisoner frequently visits Capt. Habel's cabin, particularly if newspapermen congregate there during the evening. Then Insull sits smoking his inevitable cigar and swaps yarns.

Claims He's a Pauper.

[Copyright: 1934: By the United Press.]

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA, EN ROUTE TO THE UNITED STATES, April 21.—Samuel Insull, captive public utilities operator, declared today that he is almost a pauper, but that scores of unexpected friends have come to his rescue. The former financier said he was not afraid to face trial on criminal charges in Chicago.

He was cheerful as he told how his adversity had brought tangible help from various sources, but he scoffed at reports that he possessed hidden wealth.

Calls Stories of Riches "Silly."

"Stories that I brought $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 to Europe are nonsense," he said. "If I possessed such sums I would have been able to prevent the collapse of my interests, using a little here and there. During my stay in Europe I spent carefully and wasted very little, but even that little was a heavy drain, as I am virtually a pauper."

Insull expressed gratification because various friends were arranging details of his defense.

"When a man is down, he is generally abandoned," he said, "but I have been amazed by the number of friends who have turned up recently, some of them from absolutely unexpected quarters."

FAMOUS FOR A DAY, BUT SHE'S NOW ONLY A DIRTY TRAMP AGAIN

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 21.—(AP)—Once she sheltered a former czar of finance.

Once governments sent messages to her and to her alone.

Once the eyes of the whole world turned to her.

But today she was only a tramp again.

Shipping note: The S. S. Maiotis, freighter, sailed today for the Black sea; cargo to be determined by shipping agents.

HIJACKERS SEIZE TWO TRUCKS; GET $10,000 IN GOODS

Hijacking of merchandise trucks, a crime which had almost been wiped out on the highways in the Chicago area, reappeared yesterday, and two valuable cargoes of meat and butter were seized by gunmen on loads leading to the city.

A Wilson Packing company truck, carrying meat valued at $5,000, and en route to the company's Chicago plant from Cedar Rapids, Ia., fell prey to the first gang early yesterday. Four gunmen drove alongside the truck ten miles west of Wheaton, in Du Page county, and forced it to stop.

Sahely De Wees, Cedar Rapids, Ia., the driver, and Alvin Hoge, Springville, Ia., his helper, were ordered out of the truck and driven to the bank of the sanitary district canal near Summit where they were forced to lie in a hole, under guard, for several hours.

A truck containing 18,000 pounds of butter, valued at $5,000, was hijacked later in the day by three gunmen at 39th street and Harlem avenue. Barney Taylor, the driver, and L. M. Buckingham, his helper, both of Springfield, Mo., were forced into the bandits' car and driven around for three hours before being released.

HICKSON, CRIME EXPERT, IS BACK; PLANS NEW STUDY

Dr. William J. Hickson, founder of the psychopathic laboratory of the Municipal court, returned to Chicago a few days ago after an absence of over four years during which time he completed studies in Germany and Switzerland of the latest advances in criminal psychology. He announced yesterday he is preparing now to open a private laboratory here.

After founding the Municipal court laboratory, Dr. Hickson was its head for sixteen years until he resigned in September, 1929. In that period some 40,000 cases passed through the laboratory, and were examined by Dr Hickson and Mrs. Hickson, who was his assistant. The material gathered from those cases is to be prepared, he said yesterday, for publication.

Express Company Agent Dies at Wheel of His Car

Julius P. Renner, 31 years old, 6486 Newcastle avenue, a messenger for the Brinks Express company, died suddenly of a heart attack last night while driving his automobile at Montrose and Elston avenues. He managed to swing the car to the curb and stop it before succumbing.

OLD KENTUCKY AGAIN BECKONS TO CHICAGOANS

Tribune Roadster Stops at Historical Spots.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bardstown, Ky., April 21.—[Special.]—A bright sun of early summer is shining on "My Old Kentucky Home" on the outskirts of this village, where Stephen Collins Foster in 1852 composed this American folk song.

Warm weather, ornamenting the hillsides with blossoms of dogwoods, red buds, lilacs, and violets, has arrived from the south and automobile tourists are arriving from the north. There will be many motor visitors here from Chicagoland before and after the Derby is run May 5 in Louisville, 39 miles north of here.

309 Miles from Chicago.

THE TRIBUNE roadster is on a tour suggested for the Derby attendants—and for all motorists impatient for summer who would advance the season from two to four weeks with a two days' drive to the south. Louisville is 309 miles from Chicago, about the right distance for those who enjoy two holidays a week.

In moving south from Chicago, over U. S. 41 and 52 to Indianapolis and thence over U. S. 31 to Louisville, the vegetation of the countryside progressively becomes more mature. Trees with swollen buds on the shore of Lake Michigan have leaves on the banks of the Ohio river. Flowers just breaking through the ground in the north are abloom here.

The approach to this town is through hills known to Kentuckians as "knobs." Catbirds sing from thickets of redbuds with blossoms that splash the green landscape with purple. A cardinal raises its voice from a grove of dogwoods so heavily flowered that they appeared to be bearing a fresh, wet snow.

"My Old Kentucky Home."

There are old southern mansions with tall white pillars, set well back from the road with whitewashed board fences or hedges of age stained rock. There are humble cabins of tenant farmers or Negroes, clapboard shacks with streaks of last year's whitewash.

In Bardstown, population 2,500, there's a stone tavern dated 1797. An arrow points eastward to "My Old Kentucky Home." About a mile from town on a wooded knoll bordered by a rail fence is a three story brick mansion, the home of Foster's uncle, Judge John Rowan. The "little cabin" mentioned in the song was probably the dwelling of a plantation slave seen by the Pittsburgh composer on a visit to his rich relatives. The house, built in 1795 and remodeled in 1818, is now a state park with furnishings as well as architecture authentic relics of southern aristocracy before the civil war.

Cathedral Is Attraction.

Another tourist attraction in this southern town is St. Joseph's cathedral, a Corinthian structure hewed from virgin forest in 1816 as the first Roman Catholic cathedral in the United States west of the Alleghenies. It houses an invaluable art collection, three Van Dycks, two Van Eycks, a Ruben and a Murillo, gifts of Louis Philippe, king of France, and his brother-in-law, Francis I., king of the Sicilys, to the Rt. Rev. Benedict Joseph Flaget, bishop of this see.

Philippe, as the exiled duke of Orleans, his funds exhausted, was befriended by Bishop Flaget, then a young priest, whom he had met in Havana. According to popular accounts, they also met later in this frontier town while the duke still in exile was traveling incognito. The gifts followed Philippe's ascension to the throne.

Twenty-seven miles southwest of here, on U. S. 68 and 31-E, is a crude one room log cabin, more famous than Bardstown's art collections and perhaps more representative of living conditions hereabouts before the civil war than the 12 elegant rooms of "My Old Kentucky Home." It's a national monument, the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, just south of Hodgenville.

Birthplace of Lincoln.

The mud and log room, 11 by 16 feet, with one door and one window, where lived Nancy Hanks and Thomas Lincoln with their children, Abe and Sarah, is now housed in a Grecian granite monument approached by a long tier of stone steps. In the parking lot at this shrine were automobiles from Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin.

The return trip to Chicago from Hogdenville can be made by driving sixty miles to Louisville over Kentucky 61 and U. S. 31-W, or without adding greatly to the mileage, by swinging west through Bowling Green to Hopkinsville, Ky., to pick up U. S. 41 markers. The western swing carries the traveler through Kentucky's famous cave country where underground chambers covering many square miles are lined with onyx stalactites and stalagmites in queer shapes that have taken millions of years to form from the slow drip of seeping water.

DRIVE CUTS THEFT OF AUTOS FROM 103 TO 45 A DAY

Crime Group Reports; Officials Praised.

The Chicago Crime Commission yesterday issued a report concerning State's Attorney Courtney's drive against automobile thieves. "A decided and definite improvement can be announced," the report said and the trend is in the direction of a continuing improvement.

A survey on Aug. 1, 1932 disclosed an average of 103 automobiles were then stolen daily while the average daily rate in the first three months of 1934 was 45, the crime commission found. How this reduction in thefts is to be translated into a cash saving for motorists was explained by the commission.

Survey Insurance Rates.

"An inquiry has been made as to automobile insurance rates," the report prepared by Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director, to Frank J. Loesch, president, declared. "It is found the manual which is used by practically all companies operating in Chicago is prepared on the basis of statistics compiled by the National Automobile Underwriters association. Each make of car is rated on its individual experience in Chicago territory, and rates are revised and brought up to the experience basis once each year.

"It is the contention of the underwriters that to revise rates on experience of less than one year would not properly reflect the cost of covering the hazard assumed. However, in view of the great improvement in the situation in Chicago, consideration is being given to an immediate recognition of improved conditions.

"It appears that in 1929-1930 Cook county had a favorable experience and the rates in effect were measured by that experience. In 1930-1931 the theft loss ratio jumped 118 per cent. Even though this showed a most unsatisfactory condition, rates were raised but slightly.

"For 1931-1932 the theft loss ratio reached 221 per cent and it then became necessary to make some drastic increases. The 1932-1933 figures were compiled during the latter part of 1933 and are now subject to review for a new manual.

"The underwriters are now giving consideration to the entire subject and if the improvement continues there is no doubt but what automobile theft insurance rates in Chicago will be materially reduced."

Praises Officials' Fight.

The report declared all officials charged with the administration of criminal justice have been aroused to a realization of the seriousness of the situation and are now coöperating heartily in an effort to minimize the automobile theft menace.

Before State's Attorney Courtney's drive was started, the report stated, court dispositions indicated the most prevalent form of punishment for car thefts was a sentence of days or months in the House of correction or county jail, with prison sentences few and far between.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court was given credit for having instituted the Automobile court, now presided over by Judge Joseph A. Graber, whose work was commended. The report declares that of 465 defendants before Judge Graber, 242 of whom ranged in ages from 17 to 21 years, 234 were held to the grand jury, while others were given minor punishments or discharged.

64 Sent to Prison.

Of the cases sent by Judge Graber to the grand jury, 149 have been heard and there were 15 "no bills." Of those indicated, 64 have ben sent to the penitentiary for terms ranging from 1 to 10 years to 1 year to life. There were 44 sentences of 1 to 20 years. Awaiting disposition are 80 cases in the Criminal court.

Lieut. George Teeling of the automobile detail announced the record low for automobile thefts was Friday when but 21 cars were stolen. On the same day 45 stolen cars were recovered.

State's Attorney Courtney said that one year ago Friday 96 cars were stolen, and his figures for the first 20 days of April show a reduction of 55 per cent from the figures for the same days in 1933. That his special squads were functioning was indicated, he said, by two arrests made yesterday morning.

"There had been many reports of cars being stripped and abandoned in the neighborhood of 53d street and Kedzie avenue," Mr. Courtney said. "We had a squad going through alleys in the neighborhood and this morning they looked into a garage and found a young man putting a radio into an automobile. Searching the garage, they found two other automobile radios, many tires, headlights, and accessories. They brought in the young man, Joseph Gallas, 26 years old, 3112 West 53d place, and his brother, Mitchell, 21 years old. We are investigating them."

Insurance Salesman Held After Window Smashings

Abraham Benjamin, 27 years old, 3925 Montrose avenue, an insurance salesman, was held to the grand jury by Judge Hayes in Boys' court yesterday on charges of conspiracy to defraud and malicious mischief. Two boys, George Smith and William Rawson, had previously testified that Benjamin hired them to smash windows to further his insurance business.

BALLPLAYER'S DEATH ACCIDENT.

The death of James Russo, 13 years old, 906 South Irving avenue, supposedly due to injuries incurred when a baseball thrown by a companion struck him in the back, was accidental, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

Announcing

a real Pierce Arrow at an unbelievably low price

F. O. B. FACTORY

PIERCE-ARROW now presents the newest of all cars . . . a real Pierce-Arrow Eight, at a price that is hard to believe.

Built as Pierce-Arrows are always built . . . in the same factory . . . with the same methods . . . by the very men who make cars that sell at twice the price. From reinforced box-girder frame, to distinctive fender-lights, it is unmistakably a Pierce-Arrow . . . unmistakably a great automobile.

MORE HOURS: No other car at anywhere near its price represents so many hours of hand-craftsmanship, so many tests and inspections, such strict fidelity to detail. It takes four times as long to build a Pierce-Arrow. For example, 9710 separate precision-gauges are used. Each engine is geared to a dynamometer, and run the equivalent of 400 miles at top speed. Such tests take time.

FULL-POWERED: The designers of this new 135-horsepower Eight are the same men who created the 12-cylinder Pierce-Arrow engine . . . undisputed holder of 14 world records, covering 3000 miles in one day and night at over 117 miles per hour.

READY TO HUM: The new Eight can be driven at 70 from the start. It expects no babying, asks no favors. Every part is precision-built to Pierce-Arrow standards. Each crankshaft undergoes 67 micrometer-tests. Cylinder-walls are honed to exactness of 2/10,000-inch. And during the honing, dry-ice cools the cylinder-block lest it expand and spoil the microscopic precision. On leaving the factory, each car is as well conditioned as if it had gone over 700 miles on the road. Its engine-life is 5 times that of the finest motors of 5 years ago.

CUSTOM BODY: The body is made by Pierce-Arrow's trained custom-builders. Its sound-proof insulation surpasses any competitive car under $3000. The dash is lined with Seapak 1½ inches thick . . . an impenetrable wall against engine-heat. Every modern convenience is offered, such as non-glare safety glass, draftless ventilation . . . even center and side arm-rests. The finish takes 58 separate operations . . . 28 more than most other makers use.

COMPLETE RIDING-EASE: The body is mounted on cork cushions. Springs are permanently lubricated and encased in fabric and metal. They are ¾ as long as the wheelbase. There are 67 anti-friction bearings in the chassis . . . 27 more than any other Eight except higher-priced Pierce-Arrows.

You may never care to speed this new Pierce-Arrow at 90 or over. But running at 70, it seems only 50. And you arrive with nerves refreshed.

FULL-SIZE: Utmost riding-ease comes from length, heft and balance. Here are 5200 pounds of road-gripping weight. Tubular cross-members give the box-girder frame unprecedented strength. The wheelbase is a full 136 inches, yet it turns in less than 24 feet. The interior is roomy . . . 102 cubic feet.

FULL-POWER BRAKES: Regardless of speed, this car stops with a touch of the toe. No muscular exertion is needed . . . the brakes get their power from the drive-shaft itself. They take hold with a smoothness, a firmness, you have never known before. You can stop in your tracks . . . from 40 to zero in 2⅓ seconds. These full-power automatic brakes are found only on Pierce-Arrows. They cost ⅓ more than other brakes . . . but they do their work in ⅓ less time and ⅓ less space.

PRICES: The price of this new Eight is made possible by many facts:—The company is completely independent. It is managed by Pierce-Arrow men right at the plant. The millions recently spent in factory-improvement have made for greater efficiency. Overhead, financial and otherwise, has been reduced to a minimum. Distribution-costs, and margins of factory-profit, have been greatly curtailed.

• • • •

INVITATION: Please see this new car. Please drive it yourself and form your own opinion. Give it any test you wish. Compare it directly with any car at any price. That is the only way to measure the value of this new Pierce-Arrow.

We will gladly arrange to provide one of these newest cars at your convenience, without obligation. Please phone or call as soon as possible.

DISTINCTIONS

COUNTLESS quality-operations on Pierce-Arrows take four times longer than average cars . . . 9710 precision-gauges in constant use . . . Cylinder-walls actually honed while ice-cooled . . . 67 micrometer measurements check each crankshaft . . . Connecting rod-bearings are diamond-bored . . . Each engine conditioned at factory to equivalent of over 700 miles of careful road-operation . . . Engine-life now 5 times greater than finest cars of 5 years ago . . . 14 official world-records established by Pierce-Arrow Twelve. (Over 117 miles-an-hour for 3000 miles in one day and night) . . Body built by Pierce-Arrow and mounted on cork cushions . . . Color finish takes 58 operations, 28 more than average car . . . Insulation like newest airliners, 1½ inches thick in dash . . . Box-girder frame with tubular cross-members . . . 67 anti-friction bearings in chassis, 27 more than any other Eight . . . Ball-bearing spring-shackles . . . French-point springs permanently lubricated and encased in metal covers . . . Spring-length ¾ of wheelbase . . . Full-power brakes, exclusively Pierce-Arrow, stop car in ⅓ less time, ⅓ less distance . . . Brake-balance minimizes skidding . . . Steering-system insures perfect high-speed stability.

FAIR'S ADVANCE SALE OF TICKETS TOPS 2,600,000

Chicago to Invite World on May 14.

The advance sale of souvenir tickets to A Century of Progress Exposition for 1934 yesterday exceeded 2,600,000, Controler M. M. Tveter announced last night. The sale began March 1. The total advance sale for the 1933 Exposition from Nov. 1, 1932, to the day the Fair opened was 3,300,000. Fair officials have announced that when the five million mark is reached no more souvenir tickets will be offered.

The hope that congress will act speedily on the passage of a $400,000 appropriation, which will again make possible the federal government exhibit, was expressed yesterday by Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition. He said the delay by the house of representatives last week has created a difficulty of great importance to the Exposition and to Chicago.

Hopes for Speedy Action.

"Unless very speedy action is taken," he said, "the government's exhibit, if present at all upon the grounds, will necessarily be finished after the Fair is opened."

Chicago's invitation to the world to attend the 1934 Exposition will go out the week beginning May 14, from the offices of the Keep Chicago Ahead Civic committee of which Mayor Kelly is general chairman. This period has been designated Chicago Invitation Week. Every Chicagoan will be asked to participate.

The week's program will be climaxed Friday, May 18, with a mass meeting at the Chicago Stadium. Civic leaders will analyze the charms of the city and the interest and educational value of the Fair. Every resident of Chicago will be asked to write as many out of town friends and acquaintances as possible urging them to spend their vacations this year in Chicago.

Mayor Makes Appeal.

"A personal message from a friend to a friend," said Mayor Kelly, "is one of the strongest forces for publicizing the city and the Fair that we could have. I urge all to participate." In addition to this flood of personal invitations a series of formal invitations will be extended from the fraternal, civic and social groups within the city to corresponding groups in other towns.

Plan Giant Locomotive.

The Milwaukee road yesterday announced completion of arrangements for an enlarged exhibit for the 1934 Fair. Under the dome of the Travel and Transport building a gaint electric locomotive 76 feet long and weighing 521,200 pounds will be installed. In the main section of the building a day coach of entirely new interior and exterior design will be exhibited. Miniature passenger and freight trains will be operated through a miniature reproduction of the territory traversed by the railroad.

WORLD'S FAIR ESSAY CONTEST FOR SCHOOL STUDENTS ANNOUNCED

A World's Fair essay contest for all Chicago school children was announced yesterday by the Keep Chicago Ahead Civic committee. Trophies for winners in twenty-two divisions and $950 in cash prizes to winning schools will be awarded.

The essay subjects are "1934's Greatest Vacation Combination: Chicago and A Century of Progress," for students in seventh and eighth grades and high schools, and "Why I Like Chicago," for pupils in the first to sixth grades. Public and parochial schools are included in the contest.

Associated with the civic committee in sponsoring the competition is the Chicago Association of Commerce and A Century of Progress. The contest is promoted to "emphasize the true story of Chicago and its cultural, educational, and recreational advantages and to advertise the Fair." It is approved by the board of education and the Catholic school board.

Essays must be submitted by May 19 to R. J. Thain, essay chairman, at the civic committee headquarters, 1 North La Salle street. Contest judges are John D. Black, president Chicago Bar association; the Rev. Howard R. Brinker, pastor St. Bartholomew Episcopal church; Henry P. Chandler, attorney; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court; Rabbi Louis L. Mann, Sinai temple, and George W. Young, president Chicago Association of Commerce.

SOVIET'S ENVOY TOURS CITY AND MEETS LEADERS

Alexander Troyanovsky, the soviet ambassador to the United States who is visiting in Chicago, spent yesterday touring the city, including a visit to the stockyards, the Board of Trade and the University of Chicago campus. Last night he and Mrs. Troyanovsky were the guests of honor at an informal reception in the home of Dr. Charles S. Bacon, president of the American-Russian Institute for Cultural relations, which sponsored the ambassador's visit.

The soviet envoy had luncheon yesterday with a number of Chicago business men in the Palmer house and received with enthusiasm a suggestion a branch of the Russian-American Chamber of Commerce be established in Chicago. Among his visitors were Vincent Bendix, Orville J. Taylor, Owen R. Rice, E. Gordon Fox, Duane Swift, and H. W. Koch.

The ambassador and his party will return to Washington today, leaving on the Capitol Limited of the Baltimore and Ohio at 2 p. m.

RAINEY PREDICTS SPEEDY O. K. FOR FAIR LEGISLATION

Promises Special Rule on Resolution, Bill.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Speedy and favorable action on two pieces of legislation needed to continue the government's participation in the Chicago World's Fair this summer was predicted today by Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey.

A special rule will be obtained, the speaker said, to govern consideration of the Keller resolution authorizing an appropriation of $405,000 for federal exhibits at the Exposition. The arbitrary objection by which Representative Thomas L. Blanton [Dem., Tex.], prevented action on the measure several days ago, means only a temporary delay, and adoption of the resolution is expected early next week.

Sees O. K. of Sabath Bill.

At the same time, Representative Sam Hill [Dem., Wash.], of the house ways and means committee, today received from the customs bureau a report endorsing the Sabath bill to permit temporary free entry of foreign articles brought into this country for exhibition at the Fair.

Within the next few days Hill said, the ways and means sub-committee which he heads will report favorably on the Sabath measure.

Approved by Senate.

Adoption of the Keller resolution by the house will complete congressional action on the money legislation needed to carry on the federal government's part of A Century of Progress. An identical measure was pushed skilfully through the senate without difficulty by Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.]. As soon as the lower body gives its approval, the appropriations committee will act to make the funds available. In addition, it is understood, the appropriations committee will recommend the re-appropriation of $75,000 remaining from the million dollars granted last year to defray federal expenses at the Fair.

DEFRAUDS JOBLESS; SENTENCED.

Merrill Cartzdofner, 38 years old, 666 South State street, was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell by Judge Frederick Elliott yesterday for accepting money from unemployed men on the false promises that he would get them jobs as truck drivers.

PURDUE JUNIOR KILLED; SOPHOMORE, 2 GIRLS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Indianapolis, Ind., April 21.—[Special.]—A Purdue university student was killed and three companions were injured seriously today when their automobile crashed into a culvert north of Lebanon as they were returning to Indianapolis after a gala night at the junior prom.

Frederick W. Schlegel, 21 years old, junior in the school of electrical engineering at the university, was killed outright.

Miss Dorothy Vogel, 18 years old, who was Schlegel's partner at the dance, suffered a broken arm and severe lacerations of the head and face.

Robert Helm, 20 years old, sophomore at Purdue, suffered a broken jaw and body bruises.

Miss Dorothy Palmer, 18 years old, whom he escorted to the prom, still was unconscious tonight from a fractured skull and other injuries.

The university function had lasted until the hours before dawn and the four had gone to the Sigma Nu prom breakfast.

VOLIVA TALKS HERE TODAY ON END OF WORLD

Accompanied by a band of sixty pieces, Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Christian Catholic Apostolic church in Zion, will arrive in Chicago this afternoon to elaborate on his prediction that the world may come to an end in September. He will talk in a hall at 32 West Randolph street, starting at 2:30.

The overseer's predictions were first made a week ago, when the people of Zion elected three Independent party candidates to the Zion school board over his own candidates. This made him very sour. However, Voliva said yesterday that he would still control the school board, for he has four of the seven members in his fold.

Meanwhile, the Zion school board will be reorganized Tuesday. The board will complete plans to take over 600 grade pupils from Voliva's own parochial school which he closed last week in retaliation for the election defeat. It was decided yesterday that the 600 youngsters would be absorbed into the two public schools in Zion.

SUES CITY FOR FIRE LOSS.

Deafened Hear Without Ear Drums
New Device Is Demonstrated Here

New hope has come to scores of deafened people who last week received a demonstration of an entirely new type of hearing aid by Acousticon, Suite 700, 180 North Michigan Ave.

For the first time since their hearing was impaired, these people took part in group conversation from all angles and at considerable distance. They heard sounds they had not been able to hear for years. Their new hearing was clear, natural, strong. And general delight was expressed at its inconspicuousness.

Even those whose middle ear mechanism is completely destroyed can hear with this device—the New Amplified Bone Conduction Acousticon, since it uses a new auditory path—bone conduction.

Free demonstration given at Acousticon, Suite 700, 180 North Michigan Ave., Chicago—or in your home or office, by appointment. Booklet "Defeating Deafness" on request. Dept 7-CT.

THE YOUNG GENERATION PASSES ON THE NEWS ABOUT GUM MASSAGE

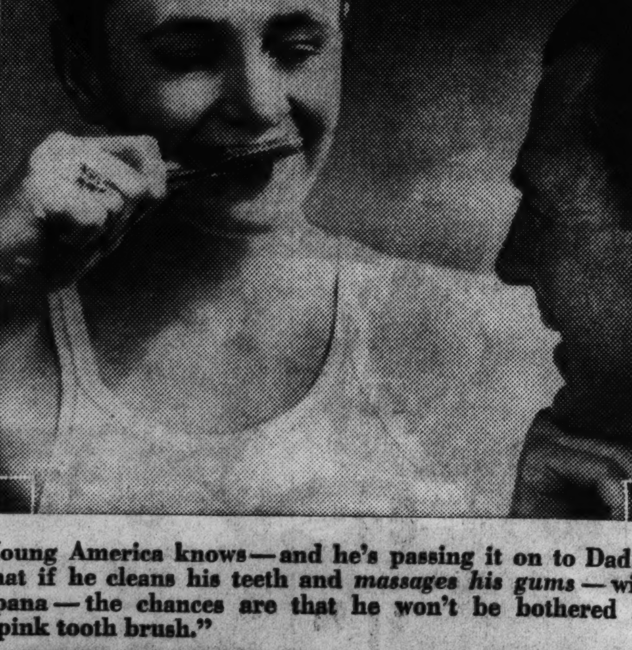
Schools, as well as Dentists, now stress Gum Massage to keep Gums firm against "PINK TOOTH BRUSH"

If your high school son—or your little girl who has just started school—startles you some evening by saying: "Look, dad! I'll show you how to massage your gums"—don't show that you're startled!

Just look up from your paper slowly, and come back with: "You don't need to show me. I know all about it. Gums get sluggish and then tender because they get very little exercise. The foods we eat are too soft. But massage will keep them healthy in spite of soft foods."

You might continue the lecture with: "It's better to have firm gums, and not have 'pink tooth brush.' And it's much, much better to have firm gums than to risk gingivitis or Vincent's disease—or endanger sound teeth. Besides, gum massage, especially if you use Ipana Tooth Paste, helps keep your teeth nice and bright."

And that should hold the young man—or the young lady!—for quite some time!



Young America knows—and he's passing it on to Dad—that if he cleans his teeth and massages his gums—with Ipana—the chances are that he won't be bothered by "pink tooth brush."

This generation usually hears about gum massage in school. You may have heard about it from your dentist. But whether or not you knew about it before—you should know about it now.

Many dentists say: "Clean your teeth with Ipana. Put a little extra Ipana on your brush or fingertip, and massage it directly into your sluggish gums."

With massage, Ipana aids in keeping the gums healthy. Gums that are healthy are not so susceptible to serious gum disorders. Try Ipana—and gum massage—yourself, beginning now!

Bright Teeth, Firm Gums, with IPANA TOOTH PASTE and Massage

A recognized preventative of RICKETS!

—Helps build strong bones and sound teeth!—

For years medical science has been seeking a wider, more economical supply of Vitamin D, found in only a few natural foods. Without it, the body is unable to make efficient use of calcium and phosphorus, the minerals necessary for building bones and teeth.

Lack of Vitamin D is the cause of rickets (delayed bone hardening) in infant children, to the extent that more than 50% are affected in cities of this latitude. You see the consequences in bow-legs, knock-knees, poorly developed chests, faulty teeth and similar conditions.

Nature, in making her plans for mankind, expected us to receive plenty of Vitamin D from the ultra-violet rays of the sun. But apparently she didn't foresee our clothed bodies or our sheltered lives amid city smoke and dust.

Wieland's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk now makes an abundant supply of Vitamin D available to all, rich or poor. Its price is only one cent a quart more than the regular milk.

Wieland's Vitamin D Milk has all the quality, delicious flavor and normal food value of our regular milk, plus the added value of the Vitamin D.

Only 9¢ per quart for the new Irradiated Vitamin D Milk.

Delivered to your home for 1c per quart more than our regular milk.

Inasmuch as milk is the outstanding supply of calcium and phosphorus, the addition of Vitamin D, which makes the use of these minerals more effective, provides in Wieland's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk a recognized preventative of rickets, when supplied to bottle babies and children in the amounts usually recommended for the daily ration.

Also its adequate use by expectant and nursing mothers means protection of their own bones and teeth. A quart a day for growing children is advised, also regular use by adults, since the same nutrients required to build bones and teeth in infancy are those needed to keep them well-nourished throughout life—the well-nourished tooth is less apt to decay.

ACCEPTED AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSN.

The following claims for Wieland's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk have been accepted by the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association.

1. An adequate supply of Vitamin D, when included in a well balanced diet, is a nutritional protection to teeth and bone at all ages.
2. An infant or growing child receiving the prescribed daily ration of Wieland's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk is automatically protected against rickets.
3. The observation of proven standards of radiation technique does not alter the palatability or flavor of milk, the natural food value of the milk and the value of the other vitamins in milk are unimpaired by irradiation.
4. Properly irradiated fresh pasteurized Vitamin D Milk provides a low cost, readily available product, the general use of which will enable entire communities to control the incidence of rickets.

Wieland's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk is produced under license by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation under the Steenbock patent (U. S. Patent No. 1680818) and the Supplee process patent (U. S. Patent No. 1817936).

Members of the Profession: We will send free on request a 40-page booklet quoting 56 authors and 137 references on the research conducted with irradiated milk and other products for the prevention of rickets.

Begin at once enjoying the benefits of Wieland's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk in your home. To order, phone Bittersweet 5000 or speak to the Wieland milk salesman as he passes your door. Further information on this important subject is given in a valuable booklet, "The Story of Wieland's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk." Ask your Wieland milkman or write for a free copy.

ROME 2,687 YRS. OLD; DUCE LEADS NATION-WIDE FETE

Spends Day of High Speed Inaugurations.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 21.—All Fascist Italy knocked off work today to celebrate Rome's 2,687th birthday and its annual labor day festival with an imposing program of public work inaugurations and much band music in the public piazzas.

According to tradition, 2,687 years ago today Romulus plowed a furrow around Capitoline hill and laid the foundations of the early city inside it.

While Rome and all Italy donned its black shirt and promenaded or rested Premier Mussolini spent a busy day. He rushed from one ceremony to another from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Il Duce's "Log."

Here is what he did:

FIRST—He greeted a big crowd of paraders who marched to the Piazza Venezia and called him out to the balcony.

SECOND—He went to Capitoline hill, where he handed out old age pension certificates to 1,000 recipients.

THIRD—He attended a ceremony in the municipal hall and gave out 800,000 lire [about $68,000] in prizes to artists and literary men of the royal academy.

FOURTH—He created 15 Knights of Labor—a new title of honor for meritorious laborers.

FIFTH—He conferred 310 decorations of the "Star of Rural Merit" to farmers.

The Afternoon Program.

Il Duce got through all this during the morning. During the afternoon he dashed about Rome from one inauguration of monuments and public works to another.

FIRST—He unveiled a monument to Simon Bolivar, South American liberator. The monument was the gift of five South American states to the city of Rome.

SECOND—He inaugurated Villa Paganini, a new garden just thrown open to the public.

THIRD—He rushed from there to Hadrian's tomb, now called Castello Sant Angelo, where the public work of isolating the castle from the surroundings and making a park were inaugurated.

FOURTH—He inaugurated four big stone and colored marble maps erected in Empire avenue showing the development and expansion of Rome from its foundation until the height of power under Emperor Trajan.

FIFTH—He inaugurated the Public Health institute, to which the Rockefeller foundation gave $1,000,000 for construction and $100,000 more for equipment. It is one of the finest health institutions in Europe.

Duce Speaks Before Thousands.

ROME, April 21.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, in a speech before thousands of blackshirt workmen, gathered to help celebrate the 2,687th anniversary of the founding of Rome, tonight proclaimed:

"No people in any part of the world present such a spectacle as the Italian people. Disciplined, informed, tenacious in their efforts, they have reached the horizon of their greatness."

The speech was heard by a comparative few since Mussolini impatiently shoved aside a microphone and by his vigorous gesture broke it. He paid no attention to the occurrence, but went on speaking. Groups at some distance from him chanted party songs and gossiped throughout the address.

J. L. SMITH DEAD; SCHOOL HEAD IN HIGHLAND PARK

Jesse Lowe Smith, 64 years old, 334 Vine avenue, Highland Park, for nearly thirty-two years superintendent of schools in District 107, Highland Park, died yesterday in the Presbyterian hospital, Chicago, following an operation.

He was widely known in the state as an educator and naturalist. He was a past president of the Chicago Geographic society and a former director of the Chicago Audubon society. He became superintendent of schools in Highland Park in May, 1902. During his long tenure he enlarged the school system and put it on its present standards. Aside from his school work he devoted much time to study of nature and in particular to the study of bird life. He frequently lectured on these subjects before naturalist groups.

Mr. Smith was unmarried. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Bridget Anna Smith, 92 years old. Funeral services for Mr. Smith will be announced today.

Sleeping Potion Is Fatal to Irving School Teacher

John E. Tate, 52 years old, 1717 West 77th street, teacher at the Irving school, died yesterday in the Little Company of Mary hospital apparently as a result of an overdose of sleeping potion which he took Tuesday.

TEN FORMER MEMBERS OF CONGRESS WILL BE MOURNED ON FRIDAY

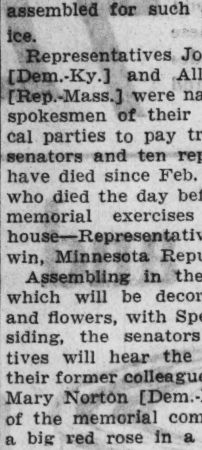
Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Congress will pause next Friday to express its sorrow at the death of ten members for whom the last gavel has fallen since the senate and house last assembled for such a memorial service.

Representatives John Young Brown [Dem.-Ky.] and Allen T. Treadway [Rep.-Mass.] were named today as the spokesmen of their respective political parties to pay tribute to the four senators and ten representatives who have died since Feb. 17, 1933, and the one who died the day before the last joint memorial exercises of senate and house—Representative Godfrey Goodwin, Minnesota Republican.

Assembling in the house chamber, which will be decorated with palms and flowers, with Speaker Rainey presiding, the senators and representatives will hear the roll of honor of their former colleagues. Representative Mary Norton [Dem.-N. J.], a member of the memorial committee, will place a big red rose in a vase on the rostrum as each name is called and a brief biography read.

J. A. SUTHERLAND, ENGINEER, DIES; RITES TOMORROW

John A. Sutherland, 60 years old, chief mechanical engineer for the firm of Holabird & Root, architects, died yesterday afternoon at the Marine hospital following an illness of two weeks. The Sutherland home is at 401 Melrose street.



J. A. SUTHERLAND.

Mr. Sutherland, who was noted for his work on many Chicago buildings, was born in Washington, D. C. Shortly after his graduation from George Washington university there he became a supervising architect in the treasury department.

He enlisted in the quartermaster corps, construction division, at the outbreak of the world war. He came to Chicago in 1919 when he joined the Holabird & Root firm. In the spring of 1931 he visited Russia at the invitation of the soviet government.

Mr. Sutherland is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jean Sutherland, and a daughter, Miss Janet Sutherland. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Graceland cemetery chapel.

ELLA R. ADKINSON, PIONEER CHICAGO RESIDENT, IS DEAD

Mrs. Ella R. Adkinson, 89 years old, widow of Elmer W. Adkinson, pioneer Chicago lawyer, died Friday at her home, 5540 Wentworth avenue.

Mrs. Adkinson was a member of an old Chicago family that came to Chicago from Pennsylvania in 1843. She was born two years later in a dwelling that occupied the present site of the North Western railroad station. Her father, Henry McGee, was one of the first justices of the peace in Chicago and was one of the two aldermen representing the west side at that time.

During her later years she cherished the memories of the Indians coming to the door of the home to ask her mother for food. Mrs. Adkinson had been a member of the Chicago Woman's club since 1890 and a life member of the Art institute.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Hampton. Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Oakwoods cemetery chapel.

FEDERAL JUDGE SHEPPARD DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Jacksonville, Fla., April 21.—(AP)—Slumping to the pavement as he was seized by a heart attack, Federal Judge William B. Sheppard died on a downtown street corner here today.

Long known for his liberal decisions, the 73 year old jurist apparently was in good physical condition as he came here from his Pensacola home Monday to preside in the United States District court during the illness of Judge Louie W. Strum.

In September, 1907, President Theodore Roosevelt appointed him to sit as a judge in the court he had served for four years as district attorney.

Sheppard first attracted national attention for his prosecution of a number of famous west Florida peonage cases. His success in sending many leading offenders to prison led directly to his elevation to the bench.

'GENE BALANCE' NEW GUARANTEE OF A LONG LIFE

Rockefeller Scientist's Discovery Told.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—Science has discovered a new guarantee of long life—"gene balance"—and it was outlined today to the American Philosophical society by Dr. John W. Gowen of Rockefeller institute, New York.

"Gene balance" means the right proportion of healthy and unhealthy "genes" or microscopic heredity carriers which exist in all body cells. With enough of the healthy genes long life is assured, but if the unhealthy ones predominate, disease and death get in their innings early.

Length of life is in almost direct proportion, Dr. Gowen said, to the relative numbers of healthy and unhealthy genes in the body cells. The longest life of all comes when all the genes are healthy, or normal.

Used Fruit Flies.

Dr. Gowen reached his conclusions through experiments with fruit flies known as drosophila, which are convenient for such experiments because a new generation can be bred every twelve days and the effects of heredity through many generations watched carefully. A fruit fly whose genes are all healthy, he found, lived to be 90 days old, corresponding to 90 years for a human being whose genes are all healthy.

The proposed securities exchange act, the "commodity dollar" and government ownership and operation of the railroads were attacked in a symposium on business recovery sponsored by the society.

The urge to speculate among the small wage earning classes would no more be cured by the 60 per cent margin requirement in the proposed national securities exchange act than "could the liquor evil be cured by prohibition legislation," said Prof. S. S. Huebner of the University of Pennsylvania.

The 60 per cent margin rule would drive the small speculator from good high priced shares to inferior low priced shares, he stated.

Raps "Commodity Dollar."

The President's plan for stabilization of the currency and the domestic price level, through the "commodity dollar," would not accomplish its purpose, predicted Prof. Ray B. Westerfield of Yale.

"There are many offsetting disadvantages in stabilization that make its desirability as a prime national policy doubtful," he stated. "The commodity dollar might work in a Utopia where things moved according to desire, but not in this complex stubborn world of ours."

Public ownership and operation of the railroads was opposed by Prof. Emory R. Johnson of the University of Pennsylvania, Wharton School of Finance, who asserted it would not decrease rates.

He said that if the government operated the roads on a self-supporting basis, kept abreast with technical progress, paid taxes equal to those now paid, interest on the funds used to acquire the roads and provided for paying off these funds in 50 years, the rates and fares could not be lower than now.

WILLIAM ROOKER, NOTED ATTORNEY, DIES SUDDENLY

Noblesville, Ind., April 21.—(AP)—William Velpeau Rooker, 74, widely known attorney and co-founder of the Omaha World-Herald, died suddenly at his home near here today. He had not been in good health for several months.

A graduate of De Pauw university, Mr. Rooker took up newspaper work in Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati before forming a partnership with former United States Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska to found the World-Herald in 1885.

Survivors are the widow and a daughter, Dora Ruth Rooker.

HOW FUNDS WERE DISBURSED

The following is the certified balance sheet submitted by Price, Waterhouse & Co., auditors, concerning the transactions in charity funds carried on the books of THE TRIBUNE for the year ending Dec. 31, 1933:

Fund—	Balance Jan. 1, 1933.	Received during year.	Disbursed during year.	Transferred during year.	Dec. 31, 1933.
Hospital Fund	$ 885.66	$ 9,757.75	$10,000.00	$15.82	$ 659.23
Ice Fund	6,064.88	1,975.07	5,251.29	15.82	2,804.48
Goodfellow Fund	3,302.98	....	1,833.78	......	1,469.20
Goodfellow Junior Fund	....	2,569.89	250.00	......	2,319.89
Harriet Sayer Trust Fund	1,000.00	....	....	......	1,000.00
Sally Joy Brown—Unemployment Fund	8.50	36.00	42.00	......	2.50
Hungry School Children Fund	3,661.84	7,007.73	10,015.00	......	654.57
Police Hero Fund	....	4,902.30	4,902.30	......	....
Bank interest	....	31.64	....	31.64	....
Totals	$14,923.86	$26,280.38	$32,294.37	......	$8,909.87

In a letter to THE TRIBUNE the auditors said: "The funds received during the year as shown by the cash book were compared with the deposits reported on the bank statements and found to be in agreement therewith. The funds disbursed during the year were checked in detail with the canceled checks, the endorsements on which were compared with the payees' names. The funds received were deposited and carried in a bank account separate from the funds of the company."

TRIBUNE READERS GIVE $32,294.37 TO POOR IN 1933

Audit Details Gifts, Disbursements.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

THE TRIBUNE Charities disbursed a total of $32,294.37 in donated funds during 1933, the annual audit by Price, Waterhouse & Co., disclosed yesterday. In an adjoining column this report is presented in its entirety showing how the funds were received and distributed.

In terms of human service the thousands of dollars contributed by TRIBUNE readers eased the financial strain in many a troubled home through the provision of free ice, free vacations, lunches for school children, baskets at Christmas time, and gifts to widows of unpaid policemen who had met death as heroes. A personal service bureau conducted by Sally Joy Brown formed the contact between needy families and contributors of furniture, clothing and other items.

Police Hero Fund.

The Police Hero fund was the newest of TRIBUNE Charities and represented $4,902.30 contributed by public spirited citizens in behalf of ten widows and a daughter of the slain police heroes. The money was sent to this newspaper as a protest against the wholesale slaying of police by criminals and as a fund to aid their widows who had been left without sufficient funds. This fund opened in July, 1933, and was closed the next month.

Most TRIBUNE readers are familiar with the Camp Algonquin and Free Ice fund. For years these funds have served the needy, particularly in the congested parts of the city. Last year 2,000 persons were given free vacations of two weeks at Camp Algonquin. The camp is located 45 miles northwest of Chicago near the town of Algonquin. It is maintained by the United Charities, but half of its financial support is given by TRIBUNE readers who send their gifts every summer. A total of $10,000 was disbursed in 1933 by this charity.

Poor Given Ice.

As important a service was the Free Ice fund which sent the ice wagons to impoverished homes where there were babies and small children dependent upon fresh milk for their health's sake. A total of $5,251.29 was spent to give ice to 1,328 families. A balance of $2,804.48 in this fund will be used against the expenditures during the coming season.

The Goodfellow fund, a favorite charity among TRIBUNE readers, distributed baskets of clothing and food at Christmas time. Although most of the Goodfellows bought and paid for their own baskets, obtaining the names of 1,195 families through THE TRIBUNE, an additional 700 families were given Christmas cheer through funds contributed.

Aid to School Children.

During the year a total of $10,015 contributed to the Hungry School Children fund was expended, thus providing free lunches for the neediest children in the public schools. The fund was started three years ago at the peak of the depression when it was discovered children were coming to school hungry.

In a few weeks Camp Algonquin will be alive with activity preparing for the summer visitors. When the first hot weather comes the ice wagons again will make their rounds to needy homes. With the continued support of TRIBUNE readers these charities will again perform their service this summer as they have for many years past. Contributions of both the camp and ice funds beginning today will be accepted. They may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

New Wills Filed in Probate Court

Three wills were admitted to probate and filed yesterday with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The wills are those of:

William Voelker, died Feb. 15. Estate $5,000 to five sons and three daughters. Edwin Voelker, son, executor.

David Barry, died April 2. Estate $5,000 to widow and executrix, Margaret Mary Barry.

Augusta Neuman, died April 7. Estate $5,000 to son and daughter. Frank J. Conroy, executor.

CATHERINE BURKE A CHICAGOAN FOR 58 YEARS IS DEAD

Mrs. Catherine Burke, aged 75 years, died yesterday at her home, 3154 Monroe street, after a short illness. She was the widow of Martin Burke, who was employed by THE TRIBUNE for 38 years, many of which were as night superintendent of the composing room. Her three sons, Charles M., Joseph J. and Thomas A., also were employed by THE TRIBUNE for many years.

Besides the sons, four daughters survive. They are Frances, Cecelia, Mrs. Nellie Burke Wallin, and Sister Angela Marie of the Sisters of Providence at St. Mary's of the Woods, Ind. A deceased sister was the late Mrs. Margaret Haverty.

Mrs. Burke was born in Dixon, Ill., and came to Chicago 58 years ago and had resided at the Monroe street address for 45 years. She was one of the first members of Our Lady of Sorrows church, Jackson boulevard and Albany avenue, where funeral services will be held for her Tuesday morning. The time of the funeral will be announced later.

MRS. MARY KILL, UNDERTAKER 41 YEARS, IS DEAD

Mrs. Mary Kill, 75 years old, believed to be Chicago's oldest woman undertaker, died yesterday in her home at 3932 Wentworth avenue after an illness of four months. She was a native Chicagoan.

She and her husband, Peter Kill, started in the undertaking business at the Wentworth avenue address forty-one years ago. Since his death twenty-five years ago she operated the business. Mrs. Kill was a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters and the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association, and a parishioner of St. George's church for fifty years.

Surviving her are her son, Math J. Kill, and a daughter, Mrs. J. Edward Ward. Funeral services will be held at 10:30 Tuesday in St. George's church. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Prof. Lyman Chalkley of Kentucky U. Dies

Lexington, Ky., April 21.—(AP)—Lyman Chalkley, 72 years old professor emeritus of the University of Kentucky, and for 21 years a member of its college of law, died today of penumonia.

PARADE OF SUN SPOTS TO CAUSE WEATHER UPSETS

Storms, Rain and High Wind Predicted.

San Francisco, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—A parade of spots across the surface of the sun during the next few years may cause radical changes in the earth's weather, two bay district astronomers said today in announcing they had observed clusters of the spots, one of which they estimated to be 16,000 miles in diameter.

Characterizing the phenomenon as a "sun spot tornado," Dr. Earle G. Linsley, assistant astronomer of Mills college and curator of Chabot observatory, declared it was whirling at terrific velocity.

Those Weather Disturbances.

"The present cluster of spots is the first seen after a long period of quiescence," said Dr. Albert J. Newlin, in charge of the Ricard Memorial observatory at Santa Clara university. We are just entering a 12 year period of increasing sun spot activity. Increased sun spots bring increased weather disturbances—storms, rain, high wind, etc. It will require about five days for the present cluster to cross the sun's surface and during that time a weather change may be looked for."

The observers said they hoped the spots will give astronomers opportunity for first definite confirmation of the late Father Jerome S. Ricard's theories concerning sun spots and earthly weather.

The spot theory was the basis of long range weather forecasting originated by Father Ricard, who held that the appearance of these disturbances on the solar orb were followed by widely changing meteorological conditions on the earth. He issued weather forecasts a month in advance and they were followed widely.

Long Rainless California.

Coincidental with the current manifestation, showers were forecast for Washington and Oregon, as well as for a long rainless Northern California. Thunderstorms were predicted for the Sierra Nevada mountain area, while Ohio had a snowstorm near Cleveland.

"This great sun spot marks the first of a series which are to cross the face of the sun during the next nine to 12 years," said Dr. Newlin.

Dr. Linsley said if the big spot increases in size as it approaches the center of the sun it may become visible even through the smallest telescopes.

ZEPHYR IS RAIL ANSWER TO AIR, BUS CHALLENGE

New Streamline Train in Washington.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—A silver arrow which had just streaked over railroad tracks at a speed of 105 miles an hour glided smoothly into the Union station here today.

Hundreds of officials curiously inspected this answer of the railroads to the challenge of both airplane and bus competition. They saw America's first Diesel powered streamlined train which is to be put in service between Kansas City and Lincoln, Neb.

The Zephyr, as the train has been named by Burlington railroad officials, is a light weight, three car train. It weighs altogether only about 100 tons, slightly more than the average Pullman car. In tests, it has averaged 105 miles an hour and with slight adjustments, will achieve 110 miles an hour without difficulty, it was said.

Challenges Speed of Plane.

Thus, if a similar train were put into operation between Washington and Chicago, it could accomplish the trip in a little more than eight hours, allowing time for stops. The running time between New York and Chicago would be reduced to nine or ten hours. That is the railroad's challenge to the speed of the air plane.

The cheapness of bus transportation is also contended with in the new train. Its operating cost, exclusive of depreciation and taxes, is estimated at between 30 and 40 cents a mile, hardly more than one-third that of steam trains.

The center of gravity in the train is about twenty per cent lower than in conventional passenger equipment. Those who have ridden in it say that the train takes sharp curves at more than 100 miles an hour without perceptible swaying.

The radical design of the train is mainly responsible for this low cost of operation, it was explained by representatives of its builders, the E. G. Budd Manufacturing company of Philadelphia.

No Rivets Used.

It is driven by a 600 horse power Diesel electric plant. Its stainless steel, unpainted cars were built without the use of a single rivet. The ends of each car rest on opposite ends of a common truck of four wheels so that the train has sixteen wheels instead of the 36 with which a conventional train of like capacity would be equipped. Each of the four wheel trucks absorb shocks by rubber cushions at 32 points.

The first car contains the engine room and compartments for handling mail. The second is an express car with a buffet grill and smoking compartment and the third is a passenger car with a parlor observation section at the rear. The train is air-conditioned throughout, with temperature thermostatically controled. Its cost is understood to have been about $200,000.

Runs Smoothly at 100 Miles.

Passengers on the run down to Washington said the speed had been checked with stop watches and that the train had sped smoothly over five and ten mile stretches, consistently maintaining a rate of well over 100 miles an hour. Its streamline design helped it to bore through the atmosphere with a minimum of wind resistance. Bits of paper flung from the windows showed that there was no suction at the rear of the train. Persons standing in the ailes were not thrown to one side as the train went around curves at terrific speed.

The ability of the train to accelerate quickly is one of its features. It reaches ninety miles an hour within a few minutes after starting.

22 Burned, 3 Seriously, in a Louisiana Night Club

Shreveport, La., April 22 [Sunday]. — (AP) — Twenty-two persons were burned, three seriously, in a fire which turned an evening of revelry at "Moonlight Gardens," a night club, into a night of hysteria and horror. Those most seriously burned were Ernest Hatley, 38, director of the orchestra; Fred Madden, a waiter, and Ed Winters, 29, a guest.

FORMER 'MISS AMERICA' YELLS LIAR AT SLEUTH

Denies He Made Love to Her Mother.

Pawhuska, Okla., April 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Norma Smallwood Gilcrease, former "Miss America," startled the courtroom with a cry of "liar" today when a private detective, emplo[yed] to gather evidence in the divorce suit of her husb[a]nd, Thomas Gilcrease, wealthy oil man, testified he had "necked" Norma's mother, Mrs. Mahala Smallwood Dickerson.

"That's just a lie, judge!" she screamed as she leaped to her feet.

She was quieted by Judge Jesse Worten and resumed her seat.

The detective, John Crowell, testified also that he had heard Mrs. Gilcrease and her mother conspire in his presence to break up the Gilcrease home and obtain some of the Tulsa oil man's fortune.

Tells of Parties.

Crowell testified that he had become acquainted with Norma, who won the 1926 Atlantic City beauty contest, and her mother in a casual manner, and that they had taken him into their confidence.

"I attended several parties at Mrs. Dickerson's apartment in Tulsa, and they came to my apartment several times," Crowell said.

On one occasion, he testified, Norma and Charlton Genet, member of a prominent Tulsa family with whom she had been linked frequently in a previous testimony, and Norma's 6 year old daughter, Des Cygnes L'Amour Gilcrease, were with Mrs. Dickerson in one of the apartments.

Give Whisky to Child.

"The baby was given sips of whisky, and soon it could not walk straight," he said. "It went to sleep on the floor."

At another time, he said, someone, he could not recall the individual, made a suggestion that the party split up into pairs because "we could have more fun."

Mrs. Dickerson, who has been made a co-defendant in the divorce action, gave Crowell a scarf monogrammed "T. G.," Gilcrease's initials, he testified, and told him of plans for an extensive tour of South America on funds she and Norma expected to get from Gilcrease in this suit.

"Norma and her mother planned to fly to Chile, and have their car sent on to them to tour other South America countries," Crowell said.

Trees in N. Y. Dedicated by Mother of President

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, dedicated two trees in the Shakespeare garden in Central park today in the annual planting under the auspices of the John Evans Brown Memorial foundation. After spading in a magnolia and a flowering cherry with the same spade that had been used on previous occasions by King Albert and the prince of Wales, Mrs. Roosevelt scattered on the trees a candy box full of rose petals from her Hyde Park estate.

HOLD 2 IN PLOT TO EXTORT $1,000 FROM A WOMAN

Omaha, Neb., April 21.—(AP)—Police tonight announced that an extortion plot aimed at Mrs. Sarah Joslyn, one of Omaha's wealthiest citizens, had been frustrated and that two Creighton university students were being held in connection with the investigation.

They are John Edward Flannigan, 19, and Edward Muffitt, 20, both of Omaha.

A third student, taken by police after Flannigan had asked him to "do me a favor" and had nervously handed him a package said to have contained $1,000 on a street car, later was released.

Police said Mrs. Joslyn had received three threatening letters, which were turned over to postal inspectors, and a trap set for the writers. The last letter had stated a messenger would call for the money tonight. Flannigan, police said, called at the Joslyn home and received the package.

Mrs. Joslyn several years ago donated to the city the Joslyn memorial, costing more than $3,000,000. Police said the letters written her threatened damage to the building.

ZOOK INVITED TO BE HEAD OF UNIV. OF IOWA

Davenport, Ia., April 21.—[Special.]—Announcement was made today by George T. Baker of Davenport, president of the state board of education, that Dr. George F. Zook, director of the United States bureau of education, has been invited to become president of the State University of Iowa. In his announcement, Mr. Baker stated that the board was unanimous in its action to invite Dr. Zook to become the successor to President Walter Jessup, whose retirement becomes effective on May 1. Mr. Jessup will become head of the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching.

"The wisdom of the board repeats itself," Mr. Baker stated. "Jessup, Hughes of Iowa State college, and Latham of the State Teachers college, were outstanding appointments. The board is now to be congratulated in calling to the University of Iowa the eminent Dr. Zook of Washington to become the successor to President Jessup."

Dr. Zook is expected to make an early reply, Mr. Baker announced. He refused to make any further comment until the meting of the board at Iowa City, April 24 and 25.

BEGINNING Wednesday, Bowman makes Vitamin D Milk available to your family. Bowman's Milk of Superior Flavor, as fine-tasting as ever, irradiated by the famous Steenbock process. Learn now what that means.

Milk irradiated in this way is rich in the "sunshine vitamin". It prevents rickets, a nutritional disease of the bones that strikes a surprisingly high percentage of all city children.

Bow legs, knock knees are results of advanced rickets discovered too late. Doctors, fortunately, can spot other less noticeable symptoms earlier.

But no parent should take chances.

The wise thing is to prevent rickets. Now you can do it, economically and easily.

One quart every day of Bowman's Vitamin D Sunshine Milk will safeguard your child against this hazard!

It is an easy and most economical way of providing an effective amount of Vitamin D in the diet, for this milk will cost you only one cent a quart more than the regular Bowman's Milk.

An important protection for mothers

Every expectant and nursing mother should have Bowman's Vitamin D Milk to protect her own teeth, and to help safeguard her baby from rickets and dental troubles.

Adolescents should have the new Irradiated Milk to foster growth. Adults should have it, too, because it is so rich in Vitamin D. Few foods supply this vitamin. Most adult diets don't provide enough of it.

Tomorrow morning, tell the Bowman route salesman you want Irradiated Vitamin D Milk for your family. Or call Superior 6800 or your local Bowman Dairy Company office.

ROOT PITCHES CUBS TO FOURTH VICTORY, 2-1

CUNNINGHAM BEATS VENZKE IN KANSAS RELAYS MILE

RIVAL 20 YARDS BACK AT FINISH; 5 RECORDS SET

Delbert White Wins Decathlon.

Lawrence, Kas., April 21.—[Special.]—Five records were broken and another tied today in the 12th annual Kansas relays, first major outdoor meet of the season, as 750 university, college, and junior college athletes took part in a 22 event program.

The world record for the mile, however, which was expected to be broken in a race between Glenn Cunningham of Kansas and Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania, remained intact. Cunningham won the race, breaking the tape a full 20 yards ahead of his eastern rival, but his time was 4:12.7. The world mark is 4:07.6, held by Jack Lovelock of New Zealand.

Cunningham Takes Lead at Half.

Cunningham took the lead at the half mile mark, which was timed in 2 minutes, 7 seconds, and fought off all opposition to the finish line. Venzke was not even a serious threat. Remaining in third place until the last lap, he advanced to second and then tried to catch the Kansan, but lacked the power.

Cunningham's legs carried him to a 3 minute, 8 second three-quarters mile. If he could have run the last quarter under 60 seconds, he would have broken the record. His last 440 yards, however, was clocked in 64.7.

The program opened with Sam Allen, Oklahoma Baptist university hurdler, tying the relays mark in that event in :14.6. This record also is held by Lee Sentman, made in 1930 and 1931, and George Saling, 1932.

Kansas State Sets Record.

Kansas State college, however, started the record breaking parade when its 480 yard shuttle hurdles relay team won the event in 1:01.7. This also betters the recognized world record, established in 1929 by Ohio State university of 1:01.8. The former relays mark was set here in 1933 by the University of Minnesota. It was 1:02.3.

Other records were made by Indiana in the 2 mile relay of 7:46; shot put by B. M. Irwin of Texas Aggies, 50 feet 3½ inches; Texas university in the 880 yard relay, 1:26.3 and Indiana in the mile relay, 3:16.5.

Crooms Wins 100 Yard Dash.

Other highlights included the winning of the 100 yard dash by Duward Crooms, Negro athlete of Emporia, Kas., Teachers, in :09.8, and Raymond Sear's triumph in the 1,500 meters run in 3:57.5.

Ideal weather prevailed for the relays and more than 10,000 track followers were in Memorial stadium for the events.

The Missouri Valley A. A. U. decathlon championship was won by Delbert White, Negro, all around track and field star of Pittsburg, Kas., Teachers, who collected 7,678.8995 points in the gruelling two day test, which called for ten events. He was in the lead last night with 4,084.575 points.

White's victory came as a complete surprise. The decathlon was expected to be a battle between Clyde Coffman of the University of Kansas, a member of the United States Olympic decathlon team in 1932, and Roy Patterson, Iowa Wesleyan college.

Preheim Is Fifth.

Patterson finished second with 7,630.6749 points and Coffman third with 7,594.9930 points. Jay Berwanger, University of Chicago, was fourth with 7,441.6821 points. The heaviest and best built athlete of the seven who competed in the event, Berwanger showed surprising speed in the dashes and hurdles.

Fifth place went to Arnold Preheim, Yankton college, who ran his point total to 6,962.1964 points, while Lorenzo McLain of Wichita and Russell Pearson of Warrensburg Teachers finished sixth and seventh, respectively, with 6,808.756 and 6,246.9475 points.

White came nowhere near tying the Missouri valley record, which is 8,022.4025 points, made by James A.

A-B-C

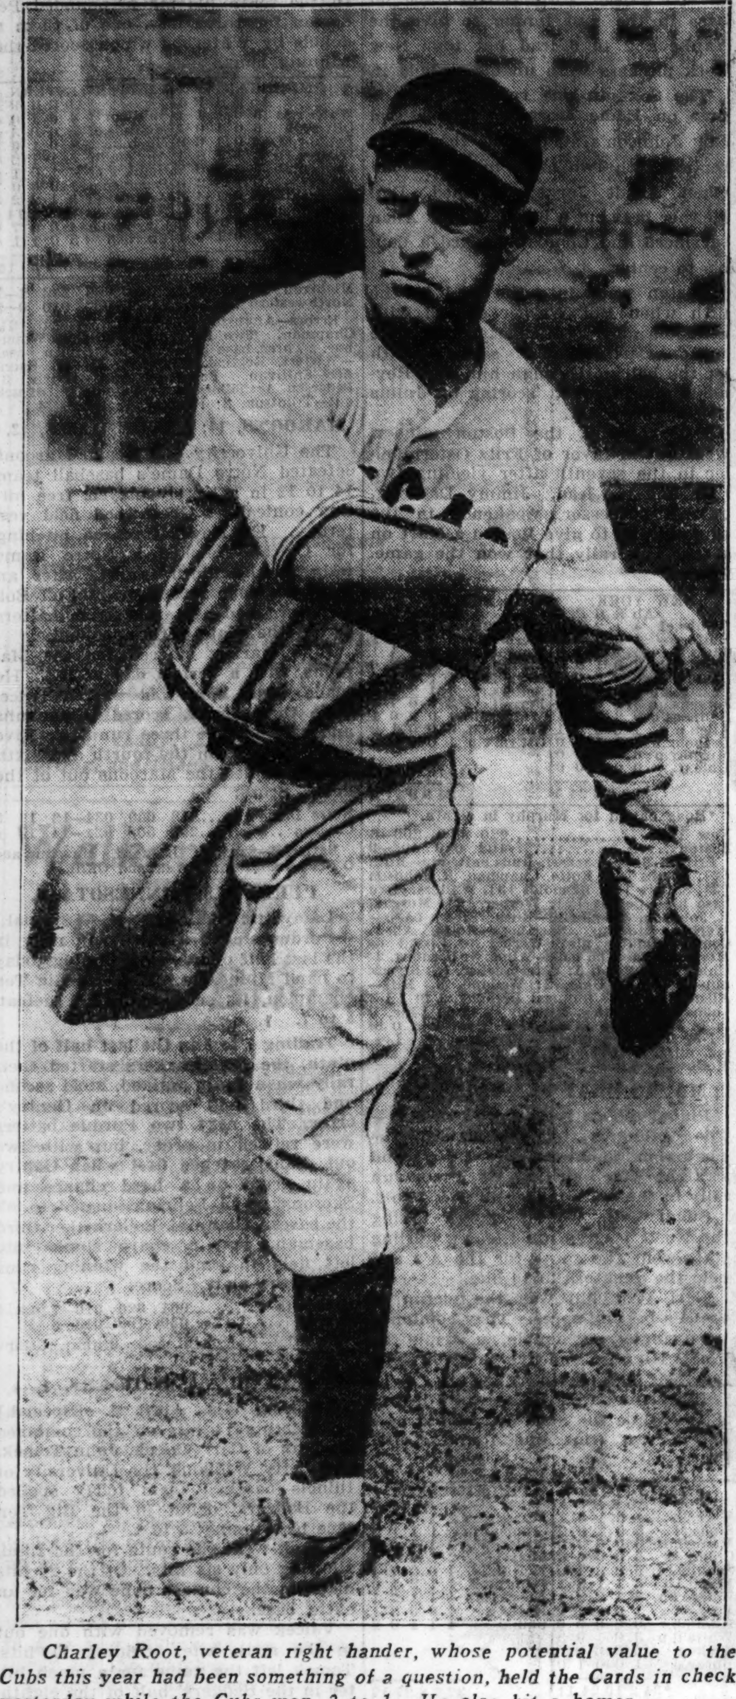
Yes, sir, it's just as simple as that, this business of finding yourself the greatest night's entertainment of the spring sports season. Here's the way it goes:

A—Figure out how many members of your family and how many friends you want to take to the International Golden Gloves bouts at the Chicago Stadium May 23, when the champions of Chicagoland fight the champions of Poland.

B—Mail check or money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Prices are $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and 55 cents. All seats are reserved.

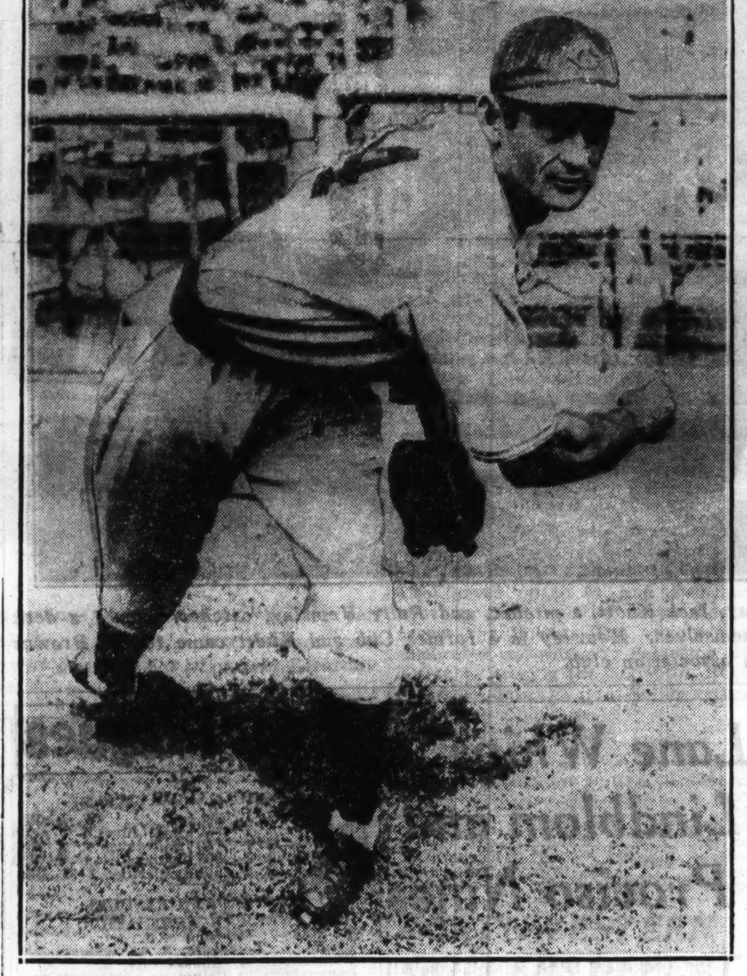
C—Just sit back and think about those bang-up boxing battles you're going to see. Your tickets will reach you in plenty of time for the bouts.

ONE—TWO—THREE—FOUR: JUST AS EASY!



Charley Root, veteran right hander, whose potential value to the Cubs this year had been something of a question, held the Cards in check yesterday while the Cubs won, 2 to 1. He also hit a homer.

Lonnie Warneke got Cub pitching staf off to a good start by holding Cincinnati to one hit. The Cubs play their first game at Wrigley field Tuesday, facing the Reds.



Guy Bush annexed the second game of the Reds series and will be looking for another victory or so during the home stand.

Big Pat Malone's fast ball seems to be better than ever. The Reds who were held to five hits (four of them scratches) by Pat in his first start, are willing to admit he's good.

New York Beats Chicago in Overtime Polo Battle, 9-8

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Buddy Coombs of the New York Athletic club's polo team made a story book hero out of himself last night, as he led his mates to a 9 to 8 victory over the Chicago Riding club in the first of a three game series for the national indoor championship.

Taking possession of the ball just at the close of the game he dribbled the little white sphere between the legs of an opponent's horse, picked it up again on the other side of the animal, and smashed it into the goal to tie the score, 8 to 8. One second after the beginning of the overtime, he captured the ball 40 yards out, gave it one swipe and then another to send it rolling into the goal for the point which ended the game.

10,000 Cheer Teams.

That was the climax of an uproaring evening during which there was scarcely a tranquil moment for the 10,000 spectators who filled the seats and standing room of the 124th Field Artillery armory to capacity.

During the first contest on the program, the fans had acquired a glow of enthusiasm as the spectacular Cleveland Riding club players galloped away with the Boulder Brook team of Westchester, N. Y., 11 to 5, in the first of a three game series for the National junior championship.

That enthusiasm developed into a frenzy as the Chicago Riding club team took a slim advantage over New York Athletic club and protected it through minute after minute of rough and reckless play.

As the game progressed, the deft Bill Nicholls, riding with flawless grace and maneuvering his pony with masterful coolness, came down the field again and again for scoring shots. Six times he sent the ball rolling into the goal.

Lorber Stars on Defense.

Repeatedly Herb Lorber crowded his horse into close quarters in front of his own goal to fish the ball from beneath thrashing hoofs and shoot it into safety territory. Many a time he sent long drives far down the field, which were followed up for scoring shots by Nicholls.

Larry Smith, indifferent to danger, drove his pony at breakneck speed in many a dash for the ball, shoudering aside opponents who happened to get in his way.

Chicago led 3 to 2½ at the quarter, 5 to 3½ at the half, and 6 to 5½ at the third chukker.

As the final period began, Nicholls, riding swiftly across in front of goal, sent the ball true to its mark with a sharply angled shot. Then Larry Smith hammered in a backstroke to make the score 8 to 5½.

Then the New York team launched the onslaught which carried it to victory. Coombs dribbled down the center and scored. A few seconds later Borden coolly dug the ball out of a corner beside the goal and pushed it in. A foul on Borden reduced the New York score to 7 points with a minute or so to go. Then came the bell. The ball, still alive as it had not yet hit the side boards, rolled toward Coombs. He got it and made the dash to tie the score. Then in the overtime he completed his brilliant evening with his winning goal.

Borden Shares Honors.

Coombs was not the only hero on the New York team, for the powerfully built Borden gave a magnificent exhibition of adroit mallet work. It seemed no trick at all for him to flick a ball at any angle with his pony going at top speed. And Reynolds, too, kept pace with his speedy teammates.

A misunderstanding between the scorekeeper and Referee George Bates drew considerable booing from the rooters of both sides, who alternately believed their teams were being gypped as the New York score on the board was juggled back and forth between 7 and 6½ in the closing minutes.

It was explained later that Coombs had given the ball a playful wallop after the whistle had been blown on one occasion. Bates had ridden after him to tell him to quit that. The scorer had misinterpreted Bates' pursuit of Coombs as the signal for a foul, though none had been committed.

The same two teams will meet again Tuesday evening in the second game of the series.

Cleveland Takes Early Lead.

The Cleveland Riding club lost no tim in taking a commanding lead at the outset of its game with Boulder Brook. Baker, following up a long shot by Evinger, flipped the ball into the goal to make the score 3 to 0, a minute or so after the opening whistle.

Equipoise Is Handy Winner in 1934 Debut

Havre de Grace, Md., April 21.—[Special.]—The handicap champion Equipoise returned triumphantly to the races at Havre de Grace today. He won by a length from S. W. Labrot's Springsteel in the mile and a sixteenth Philadelphia handicap and added $5,800 to his total earnings.

A gallant closing rush by the C. V. Whitney colorbearer enabled him to take the lead a furlong from the finish and win with ease. Although Springsteel was going his hardest in the closing drive, the mighty son of Pennant and Swinging was unextended and won well in hand. Four lengths behind Springsteel came the Anall stable's Larranga in third place. The field was completed by the Brookmeade stable entry of Inlander and Caesar's Ghost, both of which were outrun.

Passes Gallant Fox's Mark.

The victory sent Equipoise's total money winnings to $328,770 and placed him ahead of Gallant Fox. Only Phar Lap and Sun Beau earned a greater amount, with the latter's $376,744 standing as the world's record.

Three important scratches lessened the quality of the champion's competition. Gay World, Silent Shot and Monel were withdrawn from the field after having been named overnight, but the Whitney racer's many loyal followers were of the opinion that none of them would have been a menace.

The competent riding of Sonny Workman was an important factor in Equipoise's victory. Although he tried to speed into the lead soon after the start, Workman held him in restraint and Springsteel was forced to set the pace. The Labrot racer stayed in front for nearly a mile and then Workman allowed Equipoise to move up.

Nears Track Record.

Equipoise carried 130 pounds, from 13 to 23 more than any of his competitors were required to shoulder. Despite the impost, however, he raced steadily all the way and finished the distance in the smart time of 1:44 2-5, only two-fifths of a second off the track record set last year by Mr. Khayyam. The track had dried out sufficiently to be considered fast, but it was by no means at its best.

The Whitney horse was heavily backed in the wagering and went to post the favorite, at 1 to 2. He returned $3 straight and $2.50 to place in the mutuels. Because of the small field there was no show betting.

Since it was the known intention of Mr. Whitney to send Equipoise out this season in an attempt to exceed Sun Beau's record money total, the outcome of the race was watched with added interest. Equipoise's performance indicated to seasoned observers that Trainer Thomas J. Healey has him in fine physical condition and that the injured hoof which interfered with his racing late last season has mended satisfactorily.

No Mittens, No Customers; So Sox Call Game

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The weather yesterday continued much too cold for the White Sox to start their series with the St. Louis Browns, so the second game, like Friday's scheduled opener, was postponed. According to Vice President Harry Grabiner, the Sox's thermometer man, one of the postponed games may be played tomorrow if there is promise of nice warm weather. Otherwise the Browns will go home tonight to prepare for their home opener with the Cleveland Indians on Tuesday.

Manager Lew Fonseca, whose hair has grayed noticeably since the training season opened, offered no opposition to the postponements, preferring to wait at least until the Browns are here June 5, 6, and 7, at which time he hopes to have his assorted invalids up and doing.

Jimmy Gets Too Frisky.

"The old gray eagle," as Fonseca now is being called by his friends, almost had one of his best boys out of the sick bay yesterday, but just before practice ended Jimmy Dykes wrenched his ailing leg again and may have to stay out of the lineup several days longer.

Ted Lyons, who has a bruised elbow, has healed to the point where he can pitch every kind of a ball except a curve and may pop into one of the games in Detroit this week. Ted pitched a mighty fine game in the Sox final with the Pirates at Terre Haute, Ind., and probably would have started in the opening series with the Tigers here had he not been caught in the path of a line drive during batting practice.

It's Still Earnshaw.

Manager Fonseca continued to designate George Earnshaw as the man to pitch the opener against the Browns. Manager Hornsby last night was undecided as to his nominee, the two days off giving him some leeway that he had not anticipated. His choice might be Buck Newsom, former Cub, who won 31 games in the Coast league last season and was the No. 1 man in last winter's draft.

HITS HOME RUN IN WINNING DUEL FROM CARLETON

CardinalHurlerFans 11 Chicagoans.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—The Cubs are still in the unbeaten class so far as 1934 National league toil is concerned. They had their troubles today, plenty of them, but eventually scored a run in the ninth to give the somewhat tough Cardinals a 2 to 1 beating in the first argument of the season between the two teams. Hitting by Woody English and the dynamic Tiger Klein turned the trick when it appeared as if extra innings might be necessary.

Charley Root, making his first appearance of the year, played a leading rôle in the Cubs' fourth straight triumph, but for the moment we'll take up the case of the unlucky pitcher who opposed him. Tex Carleton was the man. He fanned eleven men. He allowed three hits in eight innings and the only run against him during this time was a surprising homer knocked into the seats by Root. But Carleton surrendered two hits in the ninth and all his brilliant work was definitly erased.

How Cubs Ruined Carleton.

Here's how the Cubs ruined the tall Texan as compensation for the shrinkage he caused in their batting marks for eight innings: English opened the ninth with a drive off the right field wall. Medwick pounced on the ball with cat-like speed and the Cub captain had to confine himself to a single. Billy Herman executed a perfect sacrifice. Then Klein lined a single to right, and English scooted across the plate without even drawing a throw from the outfield. A double play caused by Klein's failure to complete a steal on Babe Herman's third strike cut short possibilities of further run production.

Root's successful nine inning venture might have been something else if he hadn't enjoyed the hearty cooperation of his mates. The veteran right hander was evidently his old self for four innings. Then he began to bog down and in three of the next four sessions he carried on a flirtation with disaster, but his defense never tottered when anything less than a brilliant play was necessary to keep the Cardinals away from the plate. Root was all right in the ninth, however.

Grimm Escapes Strikeout.

The only Cub to escape striking out was Manager Grimm. The first of the eleven hung up by Carleton went to Klein when he missed a slow ball in the first inning. Babe Herman and Jurges fell on strikes in the second. Then came a whole shower of things the Cubs couldn't fathom. Jurges, Hartnett, and Root fell in succession in the fifth. English and Billy Herman did the same to start the sixth, giving Carleton five strikeouts in a row. In the last three innings he wasn't quite so tough. He fanned Stainback in the seventh, Hartnett again in the eighth and Babe Herman for the second time in the ninth.

Just after Babe Herman had suffered another embarrassing moment the Cubs made their first threat against Carleton. The Babe was annoyed by having a third strike float past. This incident opened the second inning. Then Stainback singled to left and Grimm poked a single into center. The Cubs couldn't cash in on these hits, because Jurges struck out and Hartnett's fly was captured in deep center by Gene Moore. But Root compensated for the waste of these two hits by sending his homer into the left field bleacher to open the third.

Carleton's Double Wasted.

After Root had hit his homer, it probably was fitting that the opposing pitcher should show something at bat. Carleton did this by leading off in the home third with a double down the third base line. This developed into the first serious threat against Root. Moore flied to Stainback, but Frisch hung around until rewarded with a pass. This situation necessitated a little bearing down on the part of the Cubs' veteran right-hander. He escaped with his hide intact when Martin popped to W. Herman and English grabbed Rothrock's line drive.

A great play by Billy Herman almost pulled Root over a rough spot in the fifth, but despite this valiant

HUBBELL BLANKS BRAVES, 2-0, FOR SECOND VICTORY

Vergez's Home Run Helps Giants Win 5th Straight.

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Carl Hubbell, the Giants' ace left hander, turned in his second victory and first shutout of the season today, holding the Braves to six hits while the Giants won their fifth game of the 1934 campaign, 2 to 0.

Hubbell did not allow a walk and the only times the Braves managed to get two runners on base the Giant infield came through with two double plays. Joe Mowry was the only Bostonian to get two hits off Hubbell.

Johnny Vergez accounted for the first Giant run with a homer in the fifth. In the next inning Mel Ott's triple, followed by Travis Jackson's single produced another. Score:

REDS BEAT PIRATES, 8-3.

Cincinnati, O., April 21.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds found their batting eyes today and combining timely hitting with Pittsburgh errors, defeated the Pirates, 8 to 3. It was Cincinnati's first win of the season. The Pirates used three pitchers, while Allyn Stout went into the ninth for the Reds.

Stout went well until the eighth when he got into trouble, but was saved by a one handed leaping catch by Bottomley to double a runner. He weakened again in the ninth and was relieved by Shaute. Score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 21.—(AP)—Van Mungo, outlasted Curtis Davis, the Phillies' recruit right hander, in a pitching duel today and the Dodgers toppled the Phils into their fifth straight defeat, 3 to 1.

In six scoreless innings Mungo allowed only three hits and Davis four, but the Philadelphian weakened toward the finish and yielded to the assaults of Sam Leslie. In the seventh Leslie singled and came home on Len Koenecke's hit. After the Phils had tied the score on Ethan Allen's double and Manager Jimmy Wilson's single, Leslie drove in the winning tally with another single. Score:

WAITING FOR A CHANCE TO GET AT WHITE SOX

assistance the Cardinals scored the tying run. The inning started with Carleton's fly to Klein. Then Moore singled to center. Frisch drove one toward right, but W. Herman dashed back on the grass, made a one handed scoop and threw to Grimm for the putout. Martin bounced a single off English. Rothrock singled to center to score Moore and send Martin to third. Medwick tapped gently to Root to close the inning.

Root Shaky in Seventh.

Root had another shaky session in the seventh and while he dodged serious damage he at least gave signs of wearing down. Carleton led off with a liner which Grimm leaped for and grabbed with his gloved hand. Moore followed with a two bagger to center and Frisch walked. Martin expired on a pop-up which English didn't even take the trouble to catch. The batter was automatically out under the infield fly rule. Rothrock came next and he drove a fly to Babe Herman that ended the inning.

A couple of pieces of strategy were employed by the Cubs in St. Louis' half of the eighth and they worked to perfection, thus aiding Root in escaping from a tight fix caused by Medwick leading off with a single to center. He went to second on Collins' sacrifice. Instead of passing Davis the Cubs elected to pitch to him. He was nailed on a grounder to Billy Herman. Crawford batted for Durocher and he was purposely passed. Then Carleton hit a wicked looking bounder, but Jurges rushed behind second to get it and conclude the inning with a throw to Grimm.

Little Trouble in Ninth.

After being presented with what proved the winning run, Root took extra care to see that the Cardinals didn't give him a last minute blast. In the home final he set down Moore and Frisch on chances handled by Billy Herman. Then Martin came up with a single to left, but a moment later Rothrock hoisted to Stainback and the show broke up.

HARRIDGE SEES GREAT AMERICAN LEAGUE SEASON

Will Harridge, president of the American league, returned from the east yesterday and predicted a big year for his league.

"Boston should have a great year," commented Harridge. "The fans are delighted with the new owner's attempt to build up a winning team. Washington should draw well as the Senators figure to be up in the race again. New York will pack them in as usual. Philadelphia is doing surprisingly well considering the weather conditions. And don't overlook the fact that Connie Mack has a much better ball club than any one predicted."

Harridge hasn't visited any of the western ball parks as yet, but said that Detroit looked forward to a fine season. A sellout is expected for the opener at Detroit with the White Sox Tuesday.

GRIMM, FRISCH AND GUEST WILL TALK OVER W-G-N

Charlie Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs and Frankie Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals will e heard over W-G-N this week. Grimm will be interviewed by John Harrington, the sports reporter at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow evening and Frisch at the same time on Friday. On Wednesday night, Winston Guest, the only ten goal indoor polo player in the game will be a speaker on THE TRIBUNE radio station's sports hour.

There being no game yesterday, Jack Knott, a pitcher, and Rolly Hemsley, catcher, opened a deck of cards and proceeded to amuse themselves. Hemsley is a former Cub and Knott came to the Browns by way of the Milwaukee American association club.

Dizzy Dean Faces Warneke Today in Cubs-Cards Final

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.— The pleasure, if it can be regarded as such, of pitching against the famous Dizzy Dean in the final of the series with the Cards tomorrow will go to Lonnie Warneke. Given a few runs Warneke probably will be able to take care of himself.

Ki Cuyler, who was out of the first three games because of a hangnail infection, told Manager Grimm this morning that he was ready. The manager's reply to this bit of information was, "Well, I think we'll go along with Stainback in center for a few more days at least." In other words, Cuyler, for the time being, is out of a job.

The game canceled yesterday by the Cardinal officials because of cold weather and prospects for poor attendance will be disposed of as a Sunday double header here Aug. 12.

Tex Carleton, who started against the Cubs today, set out to be a cow puncher on a Texas ranch. Then he discovered he was pretty slick throwing a baseball, so lost no time forgetting about horses, steers, lariats and sombreros.

The local radio stations, which are barred from baseball broadcasts here this year, are keeping tab on the daily attendance figures. They are going to compare these with 1933 figures and hope to prove that their broadcasts helped to bring people to the park instead of keeping 'em away.

A lady scribe who smokes cigarets, drinks milk and carries a score book the size of a family Bible, has a place in the local press coop. Her baseball gems are printed by an East St. Louis paper.

Lane Whips Lindblom and Proviso Nines

Lane Technical High school, baseball champion, added two more victories to its string by winning a double header at the new Lane Tech field yesterday. The title holders defeated Proviso of the Suburban league, 4 to 0, in the first game, and later triumphed over Lindblom, 11 to 10, in ten innings.

Gossenauer pitched for Lane Tech against Proviso and yielded three hits, while Lane collected eight off O'Donnell. Lindblom outhit Lane Tech in the nightcap, getting 18 safeties to 12.

Harrison Tech divided a practice double header at McKinley park. It routed Kelvyn Park, 9 to 1, in the first contest, and lost to Harper, 6 to 1, in the second. Three Harrison players, Kurze, Zientek, and Kuchaj, hit home runs against Kelvyn Park.

MILLS TO OPEN FINAL WEEK OF PRACTICE TODAY

The Chicago Mills' semi-pro baseball club today will start the final week of preparation for the opening of the 1934 season against the House of David next Sunday. Today's drill will start at 2 o'clock, with nearly 100 players reporting to Manager Bill Harley. Work on the grandstands is nearing completion. Harley expects to name the regular lineup by the latter part of the week. Former major and minor league players are among the candidates for the team.

BILLY SUNDAY PICKS YANKS TO WIN PENNANT

Sioux City, Ia., April 24.—(AP)—Billy Sunday, himself a major leaguer before assuming the rôle of evangelist, today predicted the New York Yankees would win the American league pennant.

He was not so certain about the National league race, but thought the St. Louis Cardinals had the inside track. Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York also have good chances, Sunday said.

RED SOX DEFEAT YANKEES, 9 TO 6; 24,832 ATTEND

Boston Attendance for 5 Games Passes 100,000.

Boston, Mass., April 21.—(AP)—The Red Sox took the first game of the series from the Yankees, 9 to 6, today. It drew 24,832 paid customers. This throng brought the attendance for five games since the season opened up just past the 100,000 mark.

Babe Ruth got his second home run of the season with Earl Combs on base in the first inning to give the Yanks a 2 to 0 lead but four New York pitchers were unable to hold it.

The Sox got one run back in the first on Eddie Morgan's double and Roy Johnson's single, but the Yanks replied with two more in the second when Arndt Jorgens walked, Don Heffner beat out a bunt, Johnny Allen sacrificed and Combs smacked a double to center.

Boston went into the lead in the fifth when Bill Werber opened with a double and scored after two were out on Carl Reynolds' single. Ruth let the ball go through him and Reynolds took second, scoring on Julius Solters' base hit.

Bob Weiland, the Boston pitcher, went out in favor of Fritz Ostermueiler in the seventh after yielding two runs and the lead. Jimmy Deshong, Allen's successor, weakened in the same inning to give Boston a start on a four run rally that won the game. Score:

MACKS BEAT SENATORS, 7-2.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—The Athletics today humbled the champion Senators for the second straight time, putting on a six run rally in the sixth inning to win, 7 to 2.

Sugar Cain, who is rapidly taking the No. 1 position on the A's hurling staf, went the route for the A's and held the Senators to 10 hits.

Earl Whitehill was the victim of the A's batting spree. They combined two singles, a double, a triple by Pinky Higgins, and five bases on balls for their half dozen tallies.

The victory was the A's third in five starts, while the Senators' record now shows two wins and four defeats. Score:

TWO RABBITS IN BASEBALL NOW, BABE RUTH SAYS

Boston, Mass., April 21.—(AP)—There are at least two rabbits in the American league ball this season, according to Babe Ruth.

"They say it's the same as last year, but I have my doubts," said the Babe after he belted Bob Weiland of the Red Sox for his second homer of the season today.

Ruth's drive came in the first inning with Earl Coombs on base. It cleared the 40 foot wall in left field with plenty to spare.

"The way that ball bounced off my bat leads me to believe that there are at least two rabbits in it this year. Why, I should have had eight homers in Philadelphia but Connie Mack's pitchers refused to pitch to me. And I would have got two today if Weiland gave me something to hit in the seventh when he passed me, Gehrig and Chapman in succession to force in a run.

"I was more than glad to get that homer this afternoon, for they've been telling me that it's harder to hit them in the rebuilt Fenway park. Listen, pal, it's just as easy as ever. No matter how high Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins build their walls, I'm going to knock that apple over them."

John Callahan's Logan Squares will play Billy Niesen's Colored All-Stars in a baseball game at Logan Square park, Kedzie and Elston avenues, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Jim Vaughn and Elmer Olson will be the Logans' battery, while Harney and Bray will work for the All-Stars.

Red Sox Send McLaughlin on Option to Reading

Boston, Mass., April 21.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox management today announced that Justin McLaughlin, young lefthanded pitcher returned by Kansas City, had been sent on option to the Reading club of the New York-Pennsylvania league.

Wolverines Beat Purple in 10th, 7-5

Michigan evened the series with Northwestern by winning yesterday's baseball game at Roycemore field, 7 to 5 in 10 innings. It was the second Big Ten game of the season for both teams, the Wildcats having won the first game 3 to 1 on Friday.

The Wolverines scored two runs in the ninth to tie the score and went ahead by pushing over two more in the tenth while holding the Wildcats scoreless.

Lefty Harris held Michigan to six scattered hits until the ninth when he weakened, allowing three straight singles. He was replaced by Al Pederson, who yielded two runs before getting the side out.

Patchin who replaced Tillotson on the mound for the Wolverines set the Wildcats down in order in the ninth. In the tenth his mates pounded Pedersen for three hits, one of them a double by Waterbor which scored the winning runs.

MAROONS, 14; NOTRE DAME, 12.

The University of Chicago Maroons defeated Notre Dame's baseball team 14 to 12 in a loosely played, free hitting contest at Greenwood field yesterday. Ed Novak's rescue pitching for Chicago choked a Notre Dame rally in the ninth inning, after an error and four successive hits off Bob Langford had sent four Irish batters across the plate with none out.

Bill Haarlow starred for the Maroons, with a perfect day at bat. He made three hits, was walked twice, stole three bases, scored three runs and batted home three runners. Five run outbreaks in the fourth and sixth innings pulled the Maroons out of the hole. Score:

Notre Dame	212	000	034—12	12	5
Chicago	200	505	02x—14	13	4

Batteries—Sagartz, Leonard, Mazelin and O'Neil; Langford, Novak and Offill.

PURDUE, 8; MINNESOTA, 7.

Lafayette, Ind., April 21.—[Special.]—Purdue staged a three run rally in the last half of the ninth inning today to nand Minnesota, defending Big Ten champion, its second straight defeat, 8 to 7.

Trailing 7 to 5 in the last half of the ninth, the Boilermakers started their rally when Craig walked, stole second and third and scored on Gentry's error. The next two Purdue batters were retired in order, but with two out, Lang reached first when Gentry again erred on a hard chance and Skoronski and Fehring singled to fill the bases. Giannini, Boilermaker third baseman, sent a sharp single into left field to send the winning runs across the plate. Score:

Minnesota	001	320	010—7	11	5
Purdue	030	100	013—8	12	4

Batteries—Grossman and Bruhn; Griffin, Ernst and Fehring.

ILLINOIS, 5; BADGERS, 1.

Madison, Wis., April 21.—[Special.]—Collecting 14 hits off the combined pitching of Carl Vaicek, John Tomek, and Lefty Williams, the University of Illinois baseball team today spoiled the Badgers' debut in the Big Ten race by winning, 5 to 1.

Masek went the route for the Illini, allowing only six hits. Of the 20 hits made in the contest none was for an extra base.

Vaicek was removed with one out in the sixth after yielding 11 hits. Tomek left the game for a pinch hitter in the Badgers' half of the eighth. Williams yielded two hits in the last inning.

Illinois	100	002	101—5	14	2
Wisconsin	010	000	000—1	6	3

Batteries—Masek and Toncoff; Vaicek, Tomek, Williams and Ross.

OHIO STATE, 6; INDIANA, 4.

Bloomington, Ind., April 21.—(AP)—Ohio State evened its baseball series with Indiana by taking the second game today, 6 to 4. Five unearned runs in the second inning gave the Buckeyes a lead which the Hoosiers were unable to overcome. Six hits, including triples by Ulrich and Clowson, scored the runs after two were out and sent Bud McGill, Hoosier sophomore hurler, from the mound.

Ulrich, Ohio State pitcher, was helped by two double plays after he had walked five of the first seven men to face him. Score:

Ohio State	051	000	000—6	11	1
Indiana	002	000	200—4	6	4

Batteries—Ulrich and Moser; McGill, Roberts and McLaughlin.

IOWA, 5; IOWA STATE, 2.

Ames, Ia., April 21.—(AP)—The University of Iowa baseball team took its fourth straight victory from Iowa State college, 5 to 2, today. The Hawkeyes scored in the second, fourth and fifth innings, capitalizing on an Iowa State error and a homer and a triple by Murphy, left fielder. Score:

Iowa	010	220	000—5	10	2
Iowa State	001	010	000—2	6	5

Batteries—Ford, Bazant and Schmidt; Holmes and Roberts.

LET'S GET GALS HOME FROM BALL GAMES EARLIER!

Here's Remedy for Those Late Suppers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

LOU COMISKEY.

All of the exhibition games of the Sox and the Cubs this spring, with two exceptions, were started at 2:30 o'clock. For the first time in recent years exhibition games played in Chicago were started at that time. And it was a swell idea.

There never has been much experimenting with game time in Chicago. Three o'clock long has been the regular time for starting major league games in Chicago. This is a matter controled by the home club and 3 o'clock is not the starting time in all major league cities.

Washington, which does not have daylight saving time, starts at 3:30 o'clock. New York clubs start at 3:20 and 3:15 is the starting time in Boston. There are differences in the starting time for Sunday double headers, due to semi-blue laws. In New York and Brooklyn, for instance, games cannot be started until "after 2 o'clock." So they start 'em at 2:05, though one second after 2 o'clock would be just as legal.

We'll Skip Washington.

The reason for the 3:30 o'clock start in Washington is said to be based on the desire to give federal office workers a chance to close their desks in due course and still have a chance to get to the game without shorting Uncle Sam. This is a matter that might afford a lot of smart aleck comment, but let's skip it. Let Washington start at 3:30 o'clock.

Vote 2:30 for Chicago.

But why not 2:30 o'clock in Chicago every day except on double header days? And if not every day, why not on ladies' days and Sundays?

It is doubtful if there are many employed persons in Chicago who can and want to get to a ball game at 3 o'clock who couldn't make it at 2:30 o'clock.

Of course, the fact that the games would start a half hour earlier isn't so important. The advantages would be on the other end.

There are about 60,000 ardent fans among Chicago women. There isn't a town that has anywhere near the number of lady baseball bugs that Chicago has, ladies' days or otherwise. And most of them insist on staying until the last player is put out.

Pity the Working Gent.

There have been many cracks about the old gent going without his supper because of extra inning or other long games and the persistence of the joke has result from the truth it carries. For these poor toilers who go home hungry and find the little woman hasn't come back from the ball yard, an especial appeal is made. Move up the game a half hour and these hungry fellows not only will be fed but they will not be raising hell about the little woman going to subsequent games.

Then there is the matter of those cloudy, smoky days that sometimes beset the beautiful, sunshiny city of Chicago. Many games are played into darkness, which would be fairer tests if they were to end a half hour earlier.

Aid to Newspapers.

Then there is the matter of newspaper coverage. Baseball magnates never have questioned the fact that interest in the game is stimulated by concise reports of a game.

In the old days morning papers did not go to press with their first editions until almost midnight and baseball reporters had ample time to go to supper and leisurely stroll to their desks to compile their stories. Now most morning papers go to press within an hour after the game is over and there have been times when early editions had to go without the final score. Other times they have flash scores, but no box scores, etc.

Afternoon papers frequently have to drop off their wires before the games is concluded and an incomplete score, if the game is close, is an absolute waste of white paper and a disappointment to the interested fan.

Certainly the proposition is worthy of the consideration of those two able executives, J. Lou Comiskey of the White Sox and William Walker of the Cubs.

GOLF TEACHERS TO ATTEND OWN CLASSES FIRST

Tribune Instructors to Get Together April 30.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The teachers themselves are going to school this year in THE TRIBUNE'S free golf school, according to plans now being formed by officials of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, which last season sponsored the initial course of the greatest group instruction curriculum ever undertaken. The master school which all of the professionals will attend will begin on Monday, April 30. The opening date of THE TRIBUNE'S second golf school will be announced within a few weeks.

The purpose of the master school will be to adopt uniform instruction methods which it is expected will be of greater advantage to their pupils. These numbered more than 17,000 last year.

To Speed Up Progress.

Their progress will be greatly speeded up, in fact, by their being taught the same principles in the same manner on whatever course they may select for their classes.

"In taking this action," said Tom Walsh, vice president of the Daily Fee association, "we are turning a hope of the professionals themselves into a reality. There is no fundamental difference in the stance, nor in any of the strokes, no matter who teaches them, but there is a difference in professional methods and in the way knowledge is imparted to the pupil. It is for the sake of uniformity in these particulars that the master school is being established."

Chicago Takes the Lead.

The advisability of this uniformity has been discussed at meetings of the Professional Golfers' association during the last two years, but Chicago is taking the first actual step in this direction, and it is hoped by members of the association that the innovation will be followed in other large golf centers.

Timber Trails Golf club, located at Plainfield and Wolf roads, three and one-half miles southwest of La Grange, is now in the best condition it has attained since it was established in 1930, reports the professional, Alan Baker, who recently returned from a winter in Los Angeles. Fifty-seven players turned out for the official opening last Wednesday. Seven new grass tees have been installed.

The big time tournament schedule for the 1934 season is practically complete, with all of the American national shows arranged as to sites and dates. Here is the calendar:

MAY 11-12—International Walker cup matches at the Royal and Ancient Golf club of St. Andrews, Scotland.
MAY 11-17—British Women's championship at Porthcawl, Wales.
MAY 14—Sectional qualifying rounds for United States open in 22 centers.
MAY 21-25—British amateur championship at Prestwick, Scotland.
JUNE 7-9—United States open at Merion Cricket club, Ardmore, Pa.
JUNE 15-17—Western open at Peoria Country club, Peoria, Ill.
JUNE 25-29—British open at the Royal St. George's Golf club, Sandwich, England.
JULY 10-15—Western amateur championship at Twin Hills Golf club, Oklahoma City, Okla.
JULY 24-29—Professional Golfers' association championship at the Park club, Buffalo, N. Y.
JULY 30-AUG. 4—United States public links championship at the South Park Allegheny county links, Pittsburgh, Pa.
AUG. 21—Section qualifying rounds for the United States amateur at courses to be announced later.
SEPT. 10-15—United States amateur championship at the Country club of Brookline, Mass.
SEPT. 27-28—Women's international Curtis cup matches at the Chevy Chase Country club, Washington, D. C.
OCT. 1-6—United States women's championship at the Whitemarsh Valley Country club, Philadelphia, Pa.

Twin Orchards Golf club, located at Bryn Mawr avenue and Wolf road, will hold its official opening next Saturday. Stanley Pelchar is the new professional at the club, which is now a member of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association.

JUNE GRABINER REFUSES OFFER OF MOVIE JOB

Hollywood, Cal., April 21.—[Special.]—June Grabiner, daughter of Harry Grabiner, vice president of the Chicago White Sox, did the unbelievable and unprecedented today. She turned down a film contract.

Paramount studio, after a successful screen test, offered her a contract calling for featured parts. She refused.

"I'm afraid," was her explanation.

Last winter Albert Kaufman, studio executive, met Miss Grabiner in Florida. Impressed by her personality and looks, he suggested she take a screen test if she ever visited Hollywood.

She trained with Phyllis Laughton, the studio's diction coach, and then went before the cameras, only to decide against a professional career. Miss Grabiner will return to her Chicago home within a week or two after she and her mother complete a visit to Palm Springs.

HAGEN MAY GO TO BRITISH OPEN; LIKES BOAT RIDE

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Whether or not he will play in the British open tournament this year is a question that Walter Hagen, several times winner of the cup, has not been able to decide. Interviewed at the Walker cup team departure today, Hagen said that he didn't know whether he would go across this year or not. The United States open will be played at the Merion Cricket club on June 7-9; the British open at Royal St. George's, Sandwich, England, on June 25-29.

"It means a hurried trip," said Hagen, "but I may so yet. I like the boat ride."

Gene Sarazen Defeats Argentine Champ, 1 Up

HEAR CALL OF GOLF AT JACKSON PARK

South side golfers wasted no time starting golf yesterday as the Jackson park nine hole course opened. This was one of the first foursomes to tee off at the popular park course. Left to right: Raphael Kinney, caddy; Viola Bjork, Gussie Feldmann, Mary Ellen Daniel, George Kinney, caddy; Lorraine Grattan, putting, and Diana Baron.

Lorraine Grattan, 8023 Vernon avenue, has heard the starter yell "Fore!" and tees off for a nine hole trip around the first Jackson park course to open. The 18 hole layout will be ready for play next Saturday.

Walker Cup Team Off to Meet British

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—The U. S. Walker cup team, nine strong, sailed today on the Caledonia for Glasgow and the international matches at St. Andrews.

The group includes Francis Ouimet, captain of the team; H. Chandler Egan, Max R. Marston, Johnny Goodman, national open champion; George T. Dunlap Jr., national amateur champion; Johnny Fischer, Jack Westland, W. Lawson Little Jr., and Gus Moreland.

Mrs. Dunlap, Mrs. Westland, and Harold W. Pierce, treasurer of the U. S. G. A., accompanied the team. Another passenger was Johnny Dawson, who is going over on business. Walter Hagen was at the pier to bid the team good cheer.

Ouimet Is Reticent.

Ouimet, as spokesman of the party, expressed his pleasure at being chosen to lead the team against the British on May 11 and 12.

"We have a fine team," he said, but he would not venture a prediction on the outcome. He refused even to give any inkling as the probable lineup for the matches.

It frequently has been stated that Egan, 50 year old veteran who defeated Johnny Goodman in the first round of the last amateur tourney, would be paired against the Hon. Michael F. Scott, conqueror of Dunlap in the British amateur last year and winner of the championship at the age of 55.

"I can't tell how we will pair the players," said Ouimet, "and I won't be able to tell until I see how we are hitting the ball."

Some of the players were perturbed over the statement by the U. S. G. A. that the American side would use the American ball, 1.68 inches in diameter and 1.62 ounces in weight, claiming it would prove a handicap in case of heavy winds at St. Andrews. The official British ball is 1.62-1:62, the same weight as ours but smaller in diameter, and hence less apt to be affected by the wind.

Rules Are Flexible.

"I can't say anything on that subject now," said Ouimet, who let it be known, however, that he did not consider the team at all bound by the U. S. G. A. statement. There is nothing in the rules that will prevent the Americans from using the British ball if they find it better adapted to the conditions they meet on the other side.

The British have yet to win the cup, which has now been played for seven times, the first competition being held in America in 1922. The last few matches have been walkovers for the Americans, the British gaining only 4 points out of a possible 36 during the last three contests.

Ouimet was not so certain of his team's ability to beat the British on any such basis. "If you'll look through the records," he said, "you'll find we played two of the matches on St. Andrews. The first was in 1923 and the next in 1926. Both times we just managed to win, the score being 6 to 5."

Bradley Tennis Team Beats Elmhurst, 6 to 0

Peoria, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Bradley's tennis team defeated Elmhurst, 6 to 0 today. Davis beat Geifen, 6-0, 6-2; Black beat Hoecker, 6-2, 6-3; Clayburg beat Stang, 8-6, 6-2, and Meigs beat Drawert, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5 in the singles. Davis and Black beat Geifen and Hoecker, 6-1, 6-1, and Sipert and Coker beat Strand and Drawert, 6-4, 6-3, in the doubles.

U. C. L. A. Quarter Miler Sets Record of :47.5

Los Angeles, Cal., April 21.—[Special.]—Jimmy Luvalle of the University of California at Los Angeles, set a record of 47 5-10 seconds in the 440 yard dash today in a dual meet against Southern California, which the Trojans won, 87 to 44.

Englewood, Roosevelt Win Swim Titles

The Englewood High school swimming team won the fourth annual 25 yard pool senior swimming championship of the Chicago Public High School league at Roosevelt yesterday, scoring 30 points. The victors came from behind in the last two events to defeat Austin, which scored 23 points to take second place. Roosevelt won the junior title.

Roosevelt was led by Kiefer, who broke two records which he set last week in the preliminaries. He swam the 50 yard back stroke in :28, and the 100 yard free style in :57.3. Roosevelt scored 22 points to Amundsen's 17, and Englewood's 14, second and third teams, respectively.

Two other records were established. In the junior 50 yard breast stroke, Bloomdahl [Amundsen] won in :34.3. The Amundsen junior medley relay team also broke a record, finishing in 1:37. Summaries:

Guilford Will Compete in British Amateur Golf

Boston, Mass., April 21.—(AP)—Jesse Guilford, former U. S. amateur golf champion, announced today he would compete in the British amateur tourney at Prestwick, Scotland, next month. Guilford has not been abroad since 1926, when he was a member of the Walker cup team.

PERILOUS SKI RIDE ON MOUNT RAINIER TODAY

Seattle, Wash., April 21.—(AP)—A four hour climb up the steep slopes of Mount Rainier and then a whirl back down the treacherous five mile course in less than 10 minutes await some 60 ski experts when they race tomorrow for a silver trophy from Camp Muir to Paradise, high up on the mountain, in a meet which is an American parallel of the famous St. Moritz Kandahar in Switzerland.

The skiers will climb to an altitude of 10,000 feet and descend at a speed that at times will be 80 miles an hour to the 5,590 foot level at Paradise.

The course will be staggered because a straightaway shoot would send the skiers down the slope so fast they would probably go hurtling 200 feet in the air when they hit the edge of the panorama. By zigzagging the racing lane it was estimated the contestants would have to take the 40 degree panorama, halfway down the course, at "only" 80 miles an hour.

In a spin over the lower half this season, Ben Thompson, Seattle rider, hit a hidden rock with his skiis and was thrown 100 feet in the air. He suffered only a few bruises.

Although the entry list reached 60 today, officials said they would be surprised if more than 30 were able to attempt the race after making the gruelling four hour climb. They will be permitted two hours of rest at the top. Once they get under way, they face disqualification if they use their ski poles for brakes.

Princeton's Varsity Crew Defeats Navy

Annapolis, Md., April 21.—(AP)—Princeton's varsity crew today broke all records for the mile and three-quarter Severn river course to defeat Navy's eight by half a boat length. The Princeton junior varsity also beat the junior Midshipmen a length and a half over the same course.

Princeton's time was 8 minutes 54 1-10 seconds, 9-10 of a second better than the former record made by Navy in 1932. The time for the junior varsity winner was 9 minutes 4-5 of a second.

Tailwind Aids Victor.

Choppy after effects of a 15 mile wind left the Severn rather rough for the junior boats, but it had calmed by the time the varsity shells slid into the course. A five mile tailwind helped the orange and black to set its new river record.

Subchasers and a variety of small craft, crowded with spectators, dotted each side of the stream as the two varsity shells got off to an even start. Aikman Armstrong Jr., who stroked the Princeton crew from the starboard side, dropped his stroke to 34 to the minute as the shells headed into the course. The Navy opened with a 35 stroke, which Archie Stone, Middie stroke, raised to 37. But the visitors, still holding 34, forged ahead.

After three-quarters of a mile the Princeton shell was half a length ahead. Navy dropped back to a 34 stroke. Midway of the course water showed between Navy's bow and Princeton's stern.

Gap Begins to Close.

During the last eighth of a mile Stone stepped up his stroke to 39 and the gap began to close. Armstrong also moved up to 39 and Princeton kept its lead as the crews flashed across the finish. The victors then celebrated, according to Princeton tradition, by tossing the coxswain, Roger Firestone, into the river before returning to the clubhouse.

The varsity boatings:

GRANT DEFEATS STOEFEN; MEETS SHIELDS TODAY

Atlanta Atom Rallies to Eliminate Cup Hope.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 21.—(AP)—Bryan M. Grant Jr., tiny Atlantan, perpetrated another tennis upset today when he eliminated Lester Stoefen, new Davis cup hope from California, 2-6, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4, 6-1, to gain the final round of the 14th annual Mason and Dixon invitation tournament with Frank Shields of New York.

The match was resumed where it had been halted yesterday by rain with Stoefen leading, 6-2, 2-3. Grant was in full command throughout. Using a slow, baffling spin on the ball that Stoefen never could fathom consistently, Grant raced through three games in a row to take the second set and then reasserted his supremacy, for the day at least, in the last two sets after Stoefen had rallied to overcome a four-game deficit in the third set.

Shields Wins Easily.

Only in flashes did Stoefen hit the spectacular form which made him the sensation of the indoor and early spring campaign.

Shields, No. 1 ranking player of the nation, defeated Marcel Rainville, Canadian Davis cup star from Montreal, 6-3, 6-8, 6-1, 6-1 in the other semi-final match. This match likewise was resumed at the point where it had been halted by rain yesterday with play even at one set apiece. Shields, whose erratic play had enabled Rainville to win the second set, raced through the third and fourth sets easily.

Grant and Shields, the defending champion, will meet in the finals tomorrow.

Jane Sharp Wins.

Jane Sharp, Pasadena, Cal., favorite, who had won the north and south title at Pinehurst last week, defeated Katherine Winthrop of Boston, former national girls' champion, 6-3, 8-6, in the women's final today. Miss Sharp won through superior control.

Shields and Stoefen reached the final round of men's doubles by eliminating Grant and J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., 6-3, 6-4, 9-7. Their opponents in the finals will be George M. Lott and Wilmer Allison, who eliminated the Canadians, Rainville and Walter Martin of Toronto, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Fenwick Swim Team Retains Catholic Title

Fenwick High school retained its Catholic High School league swimming championship last night at Fenwick by gathering 40½ points. Loyola was second with 35½ points. St. George scored 11 points, and the only other entry, St. Leo, had 5 points.

One league record was broken when the Fenwick medley relay trio of Carroll, Spehn, and Monaco, negotiated the 150 yard relay in 1:30.4. The old mark, made by Loyola in 1931, was 1:31.4.

All firsts were divided between Fenwick and Loyola, the latter taking three and Loyola four. Fenwick finished one, two, three in the 50 yard breast stroke. Summaries:

200 YARD RELAY—Won by Loyola [Blish, Ryant, Oelerich, Dowdle]; Fenwick, second; St. George, third; Leo, fourth. Time—1:48.2.

50 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Spehn [Fenwick]; McHugh [Fenwick], second; Burke [Fenwick], third; Saulheber [Leo], fourth. Time—:33.2.

50 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Oelerich [Loyola]; Dowdle [Loyola], second; Monaco [Fenwick], third; Collins [Fenwick], fourth. Time—:26.8.

50 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Carroll [Fenwick]; McCauley [Fenwick], second; Monaco [Fenwick], third; Kaye [St. George], fourth. Time—:31.2.

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Dowdle [Loyola]; Oelerich [Loyola], second; Moran [Fenwick], third; Bryant [Loyola], fourth. Time—1:01.

150 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Fenwick [Carroll, Spehn, Monaco]; Loyola, second; St. George, third; Leo, fourth. Time—1:30.4. [New record. Old mark 1:31.1 by Loyola, 1931.]

FANCY DIVING—Won by Lynch [Loyola], 68.8; Fahrner [Fenwick], second, 58.55; O'Reilly [St. George], third, 57.5; O'Connor [Fenwick], fourth, 53.8.

ENGLEWOOD WINS IN PREP TRACK AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—(AP)—Englewood High of Chicago won the second annual Springfield high school invitational track and field meet today as seven records in the major division were replaced.

Along with the seven marks officially improved, four other records were not allowed when it was discovered that the track had not been properly measured. Ruiz of Englewood was timed at 49 seconds for the 440 yard dash; Currie of La Salle-Peru, the half mile in 2:01.9, and Hendrick of Table Grove, the mile in 3:30.1, while Englewood's time for the half mile relay was 1:31.4. None of the marks, however, was recognized when the error in measurement was revealed.

Hall, University High of Normal, won the high hurdles in :16.4, two-tenths of a second better than the old mark. Chish of Englewood leaped 6 feet 1 inch to win the high jump and set a new record, and two athletes, Kanosky of Onarga and Brant of Pittsfield, shared a new broad jump record of 21 feet 1½ inches. Rafferty of Greenfield did 12 feet in the pole vault, replacing the former mark, and Herrmann of Feitshans [Springfield] threw the javelin 174 feet 4 inches for a new record.

Hahnfeldt of Palatine defeated Jack Freeston, Atlanta, in the discus with a toss of 132 feet 1 inch, setting another record. Freeston, however, came back to win the shot with a record making toss of 54 feet 9 inches, more than 8 feet better than the old mark.

Englewood scored 29 points, La Salle-Peru was second with 12, Hillsboro had 10, and Atlanta and Pontiac tied with 8 each. Pekin dominated the novice class with 43 points.

RILEY BEATS GOSHEN.

South Bend, Ind., April 21.—[Special.]—Riley won its third dual track meet of the season today, defeating Goshen, 60 2-3 to 40 1-3. Riley won seven events. James Lahey was high point man in winning the 440 and 220 yard events.

North Central Denies Appeal by U. of Detroit

The expulsion of the University of Detroit from the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools became final yesterday when the executive committee of that organization rejected an appeal by representatives of the ousted institution. Xavier university of Cincinnati, which also was expelled, did not make an appeal.

Action was instituted Friday when Dr. George A. Works of the University of Chicago, secretary of the North Central board of review, read a report to the association's commission on institutions of higher learning, recommending the expulsion of Detroit, Xavier and five other colleges. The commission approved the recommendation. The action was taken in the course of the annual convention of the association at the Stevens hotel.

With the rejection of its appeal, Detroit has no recourse except an application for reinstatement next year.

New York Polo Team Defeats Chicago, 9-8

Cleveland had received 2 points by handicap. A foul by Evinger brought the count down to 2½.

Then the Cleveland team executed a perfect play. From midfield Evinger delivered a powerful wallop that sent the ball rolling just to the left of the goal. Beating the easterners in a furious race, Baker caught up with the ball just short of the boards and slapped a short backward pass to Fergus, who came riding down the center. Taking the ball directly in front of the goal, Fergus scored.

Baker Scores Again.

An instant later, Baker made another goal, giving Cleveland 4½ points. A foul by Ford brought Boulder Brook to minus ½ as the quarter ended.

That fast first period gave the Cleveland players the confidence to carry on throughout the game. Hitting with steady accuracy and riding aggressively they increased their advantage to 7 to 0 at the half.

The Boulder Brook riders rallied in the last half and showed strength that indicated they are not yet ready to concede the championship to Cleveland. But at no stage were they able to threaten the advantage which Cleveland had taken at the outset.

SOCIETY GATHERS AT ARMORY FOR POLO TITLE PLAY

Army Notables View Game from Official Box.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Fashionables of the sporting world formed a colorful border to the tanbark ring of the 124th Field Artillery armory last night when the East met the West in the opening matches of the national polo tournament.

Before play started in the first game, in which the Cleveland Riding club defeated the Boulder Brook club, every box was filled with gay parties. It was an informal crowd with the exception of the two dozen guests of Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Haffner in the official box overlooking the north end of the armory.

Army Heads Look On.

Army guests of the Haffners included Gen. and Mrs. Charles Gates Dawes, Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Hammond, Gen. and Mrs. Roy D. Keehn, Col. and Mrs. G. C. Marshall, and Lieut. and Mrs. John L. Hines Jr. Miss Virginia Dawes, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Charles Dawes, escorted by Thomas Hammond Jr., was the youngest member of this party.

Others in the group were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, the Philip Clarkes, the Rawleigh Warners, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, Col. and Mrs. George Voevodsky, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Douglas, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, and Mr. and Mrs. James S. Kemper.

Red Coats Were There.

Mrs. Kemper was handsomely gowned in a dinner suit of silver brocade, attractively marked with a circle pattern. Color was provided by the red jackets worn by Mrs. Bissell and Mrs. Voevodsky. Mrs. Douglas wore a black dress under her sable wrap.

George Bates played the double rôle of box host and referee. Near his party sat the Stephen Robeys and John Lockett. At the other end of the ring were Mr. and Mrs. Newton King [the former Doris Bokum]. Mrs. King's plaid turban and matching scarf were a center of attraction.

They Want to See Guest.

Miss Louise Neff, in a red woolen outfit, came to the game with her fiancé, William M. Collins Jr., who plays polo for the Chicago Riding club. Miss Anne Smith and Morrison Waud were with Miss Neff and Mr. Collins. Commander and Mrs. George Brashears, the Charles Brashears, and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Clement occupied a box near by. Directly across the ring sat Mrs. Louis Manierre and Miss Lillian Fraser in the box of Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening.

An even more im:…rtant crowd socially is expected Tuesday evening, when Winston Guest will be here from the east to play in the open class.

ROBERTS LEADS MAROON TRACK TEAM TO VICTORY

Knox Finishes Second in Quadrangular Meet.

Table of Points

Chicago	69½	Monmouth	27
Knox	44	Bradley	24½

Monmouth, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Chicago university scored 69 points today to win a quadrangular track meet here. Knox was second with 44 points. Monmouth came from behind in the relay to take third place with 27 points. Bradley trailed with 24½.

The relay race was the most interesting event of the day with Chicago and Bradley fighting for the lead in the first lap with Monmouth trailing. Bradley's man tired noticeably at the finish and was last to deliver the baton. Hugh Matchett, running second for Monmouth, closed the gap and passed the Knox and Chicago runners to give Cactus McConnell a lead which he held and passed on to Irwin.

Roberts of Chicago was high point man with firsts in high jump, pole vault and broad jump and a fourth in the high hurdles. Lewis of Knox had a first and second.

FORREST TRACK MEET.

Forrest, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Forrest High school will conduct the annual Vermillion Valley track and field meet May 4. Herscher, Cullom, Chatsworth, Saunemin, and Forrest comprise the conference.

Shea Blocks Rodak's Path to Ring Title

A 10 round junior lightweight bout between Leo Rodak, south side youngster, and the veteran Eddie Shea at White City roller rink tomorrow night will top this week's Chicago boxing program.

Rodak will be seeking his 17th victory in as many professional appearances. He will be making his second start at 10 rounds, having whipped Paul Dazzo in the first at White City March 12. Leo has been developed into a windup performer within a short space of time. He turned pro shortly after he won his third straight Golden Gloves title last year.

Beats Jackie Sharkey.

He beat Art Mitchell in six rounds in his first main event on Dec. 13. It was his 13th triumph in a row. In his next appearance on Jan. 15 Rodak defeated Jackie Sharkey of Minneapolis., Minn., at Midway arena in eight rounds. He continued to show improvement and a month later he tackled the featherweight champion of Indiana, Wintrid [Moon] Mullins, at the Stadium, with dire results to the latter, whom he trimmed in eight rounds. Then came the Dazzo conquest.

Shea is leaving nothing undone to get into proper condition for the contest with Rodak, who was going to grammar school 10 years ago when Eddie was meeting the topnotchers. It is for this reason more than any other that the 29-year-old Shea hopes to hand the first defeat to his young opponent.

Last Chicago Fight in 1932.

Shea has not fought in Chicago since he lost a hard fight to Kid Chocolate for the junior lightweight title at the Stadium Aug. 4, 1932. He engaged in 16 battles since then in various parts of the country. He lost five, fought a draw, engaged in a no decision scrap and won nine, seven by knockouts. His most prominent accomplishment was a 10-round victory over Bobby Pacho, a lightweight, at Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 26, 1933.

An idea of how good or how bad Shea may be can be obtained from two of his most recent encounters. He was held to a 10-round draw by Johnny Fitzpatrick at Miami, Fla., two months ago. Inasmuch as Rodak had beaten Fitzpatrick in a supporting match on the King Levinsky-Jack Sharkey program at White Sox park Sept. 18, Shea's followers contemplated that the veteran was nearing the end of his career. But he showed that this was a mistake by knocking out Fitzpatrick in three rounds at Miami Feb. 27. Johnny suffered a fractured jaw.

A featherweight tournament to find a successor to Kid Chocolate as champion in New York will get underway Tuesday at New York with three bouts at 10 rounds each. The veteran Andy Martin will meet Charley von Reedon and Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh, Pa., Negro, clashes with Carmine Andrillo. Another outstanding 126 pound boxer in the tournament is Vernon Cormier of Worcester, Mass. He faces Johnny Hinds.

Bouts on the national schedule this week include the following:

MONDAY: At White City—Leo Rodak vs. Eddie Shea [10], junior lightweights; George Trapp vs. Angelo Garlow, welterweights, and Jack Kranz vs. Gene Klopack, heavyweights, each four rounds. At Marigold Gardens—George Engel vs. Davey Day [8], lightweights; Bob La Monte vs. Midge Bennett, welterweights; Bob Crowley vs. Sammy Richman, junior welterweights, each four rounds, and Mickey O'Shea vs. Chuck Reed [5], welterweights. At New York—Johnny Farr vs. Petey Hayes [10], junior lightweights.

Tuesday: At New York—Jackie Wilson vs. Carmine Andrillo, Vernon Cormier vs. Johnny Hinds, and Andy Martin vs. Charley von Reedon, all featherweights, each 10 rounds. At Fargo, N. D.—Sherald Kennard vs. Eddie Ran [10], welterweights; Joey Kaufman vs. Johnny Stanton [6], junior welterweights.

Wednesday: At Milwaukee, Wis.—Karl Ogren vs. Tony Bruno [8], middleweights; Mickey O'Shea vs. George Black [6], welterweights; Frank Misko vs. Billy Miller, middleweights.

Friday: At Cicero stadium—Frank Sigilio vs. Tommy Corbett [6], lightweights; Einar Hedquist vs. Eddie Allen [4], middleweights; Carl Scalise vs. Harry Booker [6]; Joe Esposito vs. Jim Richards [4], both lightweights; Harry Robarts vs. Frank Ketter [4], heavyweights. At Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Henry Rothier vs. Iowa Joe Rivers [10], welterweights.

Davey Day, lightweight stablemate of Champion Barney Ross, is paired with George Engel of Plymouth, Ind., for eight rounds tomorrow at Marigold Gardens. Day was awarded a close six round verdict in a previous match and Engel is confident that the additional two rounds will be enough for him to reverse it. F. M.

6,000 COMPETE IN RELAY MEETS AT DRAKE, PENN

First Events in Big Track Carnivals Friday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Drake university will celebrate the silver anniversary of its track and field games Friday and Saturday at Des Moines, Ia. In appreciation of the quarter of a century since the event was founded by Maj. John L. Griffith, now commissioner of athletics for the Western conference, an entry list, which threatens to pass the all time record of 3,000 contestants in 1926, is now in the making.

On the same days the annual Pennsylvania relays, with another entry list of more than 3,000 athletes, will be held at Franklin field, Philadelphia. In this meet Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, who this winter set a world's record of 4:08.4 for a mile indoors, will meet Gene Venzke of Penn and three others in a special race. Cunningham's object will be a new outdoor record. The mark now stands at 4:07.6, and is held by Jack Lovelock of New England.

Griffith Referees at Drake.

Maj. Griffith, who has seen every Drake relay carnival with the exception of 1919, when he served in the United States army, will act as honorary referee at Des Moines. He and Amos Alonzo Stagg, who recently finished 41 years of service at the University of Chicago, are the only men ever to be honored twice in this capacity. Others in this list include practically all of the central states athletic luminaries.

Maj. Griffith was chief of the games in 1920, while Coach Stagg served in that capacity in 1914 and 1921.

While two events—the hammer throw and the hop, step, and jump—have been eliminated this spring, other distances and events are the same as when the relays were established. The events which have been dropped may be resumed in the years in which the Olympic games are held, since both are still included in the Olympic program.

Pick Beauty Queen.

Additional features for this year's twenty-fifth celebration will be the selection of a beauty queen and a concert by a massed band of 2,500 pieces. The beauty queen will be chosen from photographs entered in the competition by the universities and colleges. The bandsmen will come from all of Iowa and will include the 800 piece Southern Iowa band, which played at the World's Fair in Chicago on Iowa day last summer.

Outstanding athletes in the individual events and the mainstays on many of the relay teams are Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette university; Willis Ward, Michigan, who was the principal factor in Michigan's winning the 1933 Big Ten outdoor track championship and the 1934 indoor championship; Ivan Fuqua and Charles Hornbostel of Indiana; Howard Hall of Kansas, and Ray Sears of Butler.

Metcalfe World's Fastest.

Metcalf needs no introduction. He undoubtedly is the fastest human in the world, a title disputed in 1932 when Eddie Tolan, former Michigan star, won both sprints in the Olympics, although his 100 meter race was practically a tie with Metcalfe, but which cannot now be disputed since Tolan's retirement. Metcalfe shares the 100 yard record for the Drake relays with Roland Locke of Nebraska at 9 5-10 seconds.

Willis Ward scored 18 points in Big Ten competition last spring. Originally a high jumper, he has also developed as a high hurdler and dash man, and he will be a threat to Metcalfe in the 100 yard race.

Ray Sears of Butler has traveled two miles faster than any other. He set an American record of 9 minutes 7.8 seconds for two miles in the Knights of Columbus games in New York this winter. He hopes to better the Drake record of 9:13.6 now held by Henry Brocksmith of Indiana.

Iowa Relay Team Strong.

Ivan Fuqua, an Olympic star two years ago, and Charles Hornbostel, another great Indiana middle distance runner in a list of famous athletes, are also capable of establishing two meet marks.

Among the entries is a strong University of Iowa mile relay team which has served notice that it is out for a record in the Drake relays this year. Led by Sidney Dean, the ninth mile relay team member in 12 years to be elected captain of the Iowa track team, the Hawkeyes will enter the mile relay with an excellent chance of winning.

Dean has traveled the quarter in :48.2, placed fourth in the National collegiate 440, where he was beaten by three American Olympic team members, was runner-up for the National A. A. U. junior title last summer, and holds the Big Ten indoor crown of 1934.

Win Six of 11 Races.

Hawkeye mile relay teams have won the event at six of the past 11 Drake carnivals, including the 1923 meet, when Harry Morrow, Gerhard Noll, Charles Brookins, and Eric Wilson set the meet record of 3:16.9. This also was the American intercollegiate record until 1930. Experienced men are available for each place on the mile quartet, with Bernie Page, Robert Cook, and Russell Henry in addition to Capt. Dean.

The Iowa team will find plenty of competition in such teams as Illinois, Michigan, Notre Dame, and Minnesota.

If it were possible for all the athletes who have helped to establish Drake records to return to Des Moines as the honored guests of the silver anniversary relays, a host of 31,396 men would visit Des Moines, representing almost every state in the union and a dozen foreign countries.

The list of teams includes entries from Pomona college of Claremont, Cal., and Washington State, Pullman, Wash., in addition to universities from the Missouri Valley, Big Six, Western conference, and southern universities.

Drake Records Beat Penn.

A study of records established over a 13 year period beginning in 1921 between the Drake relays and the University of Pennsylvania relays shows that contestants at Drake are 33 per cent stronger than those in the east. Western athletes have excelled in 105 events.

Baby Ruths Near Title in Classic Bowling League

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

With the Classic Bowling league having only three more sessions including tonight, it appears that the team and the individual who topped the first half race will repeat when the second half chase ends next Sunday evening.

The Baby Ruths, first half team winners, apparently are safely in first place with a six game margin after stumbling about in the early portion of the second half campaign. Nine games remain and all the Baby Ruths have to accomplish are four victories to nose out the Old Manhattans, even if the latter sweep their three series.

The duel for the individual leadership in the second half finds Dick Winsberg and Ad Carlson virtually tied with averages of 220. Winsberg, who has been setting the pace throughout the second half, now is only 11 pins ahead of the first half leader. If either puts in a 700 series during the next three sessions that probably will settle the issue, but many believe that Carlson will be the one to do it.

Neither could reach the 700 figure during the week, those getting into that circle being: E. Landman, 728; E. Zajac, 714; W. Goldammer, 708, and R. Johnson, 703. Tonight's schedule:

Baby Ruths vs. Edelweiss at Harding, 2701 Milwaukee avenue; Lorens Knitting vs. Olive Can at Madison-Kedzie, 3127 Madison street; Moulding-Brownell vs. Arlington Bowlers Aid at L. P. Petersen's, 2055 West 35th street; A. J. Cermaks vs. Budweiser at Cinderella, 5612 Madison street; Stevenson Heating vs. Old Manhattan at Kaad's, 2112 Lawrence avenue.

Randolph League.

More good bowling by the Mineralites, who banged out games of 1,152, 1,019, and 1,076 for two victories over the Sunkist Pies, closed the Randolph league season. At no time was there any doubt about the Mineralites winning the title, which they took in a walk with 75 won and 15 lost. High scorers for the windup were: Farwick of Bowlers Journal, 698; Fliger of Mineralites, 688; Kartheiser of Mineralites, 675; Pagel of Curtiss Buy-Jiminy, 681; Lippe of Bowlers Journal, 667, and Blazina of Anheuser-Busch, 662.

Tournaments.

The first sixteen teams of the 200 which have entered the Polish-American national tournament started firing last night in the 30 day meet at the Lewis alleys, 1170 Milwaukee avenue. Prominent Polish-Americans attended the inaugural ceremonies. Milwaukee, South Bend, St. Louis, New York, Jersey City, Buffalo, and Detroit are among the cities represented. . . . A mixed doubles event is carded for this afternoon at the Peace alleys, 4309 South Mozart street. Committee members are Clara Kirby, Mildred Mecklenburg, Florence Mahn, Elsie Splittstoesser, Robert Metzger, and William Hasner. . . . Highland Recreation's annual sweepstakes will wind up today. First prize is an estimated $35.

Snyder Keeps Lead.

Frank Snyder of Erie, Pa., last night retained the lead in the semi-finals of the national bowling elimination championships by shooting 1672 for a 3174 total at the Windy City alleys. W. G. Levitz of Jackson, Mich., crashed through with 1701 and his total of 3082 hoisted him from seventh to second place. The two men with the highest total after the concluding round this afternoon will be picked to roll in the grand finals at Detroit next week-end. Other scores last night, together with grand totals, are:

Windy City League.

Bud Wright is the individual champion of the Windy City Major league with an average of 211, five more than Bill Lenzen. The team title went to the Mineralites, who scored 65 victories, as against 25 losses, for a margin of three games over the second place Corina Cigars. Prizes were awarded last night at the Windy City grill.

About the Women.

Mrs. Annabel Timmins, room 621, 31 East Congress street, is taking entries for the second annual Catholic women's tournament which is scheduled May 4, 5, and 6 at the C. Y. O. alleys. . . . C. Grob with a 177 average is now second to Marie Warmbier in the Women's Classic league. High game no longer is in possession of Miss Warmbier, for B. Kemph blasted out a 263. Eight games are the margin by which the Windy City team leads the league.

Laura Reinking, who is nearing 60 years of age, won the all-events with 1,841 in the Samuelson second annual Century of Progress tournament. The leading prize winners in each class:

Teams—White City, 2,956; Lorraine Arcade, 2,952; Alberti Jewelers, 2,918; Kornitz Oils, Milwaukee, 2,915; National Billiard Supply, 2,898. Doubles—G. Anderson-E. Wohlers, 1,222; L. Reinking-A. Rice, 1,221; K. Nolan-L. Anderson, 1,208; O. Herman-L. Baldy, Milwaukee, 1,203; M. Harder-M. Ray, Morris, Ill., 1,199. Singles—R. Gruenes, 709; C. Plato, 658; L. Reinking, 655; M. Clesse, 646; L. Kohres, 643. All-events—L. Reinking, 1,841; I. Johnson, 1,819; C. Braun, 1,814; G. Jenkins, 1,809; F. Trettin, 1,809.

The women's handicap tournament at the Mount Prospect, Ill., Recreation will be concluded with tonight's competition. . . . Many high scores were shot in the Monte Cristo Women's leagues, as follows: Ritchie, 586; Berlinger, 546; Wohlers, 544; Wiemman, 540; Regelin, 536; Shaw, 530; Schnieder, 523; Deedic, 519; Griffon, 519; Consier, 517; Behns, 514; Gruenes, 511; Matt, 506; Jacobs, 501, and Sullivan, 501.

North End League.

Leaders fared badly in the North End Traveling league. The Fox's De Luxe lost the odd game to the Westers, the Birk Bros. dropped two to the Michelobs, who turned in a 3,200 series, and Edelweiss lost the verdict to the Superbs. In the other matches the Kaads surprised the Luxors by taking two games and the Nationals did the same to the Tavern Pales. George Miller of the Michelobs had games of 235, 278, and 220 for a 733 total. Tomorrow night's schedule:

Westers vs. Edelweiss at Bryn Mawr, 7 p. m.; Luxors vs. Birk Bros. at Samuelson's, 7 p. m.; Fox's vs. Kaads at Harry Kaad's, 7 p. m.; Nationals vs. Michelobs at North Town, 7 p. m.; Superbs vs. Tavern Pales at Idle Hour, 9 p. m.

Here and There.

Erwin Wuerffel of the Firemen's Insurance company shot a 300 game that helped him get a 714 series in the Gold Coast Junior league. Not to be outdone, Waterson of the Gold Coast Major later clicked with a perfect game and along with counts of 224 and 201 totaled 725. Wally Freitag was high in the Major league with 757 on 239, 267, and 251, while Daglow exceeded 700 by one pin. Next Thursday will wind up the league, the Curtiss Butterfingers already having clinched the title. . . . P. Butler collected a 697 series that included a 279 game in the Garden Major league. Other high individuals were: A. Butler, 696; Reidy, 649, and Bishop, 643. Rome Motors rolled a 1,092 game and Butler Brothers registered a 1,078. Bishop leads the averages with 208, followed by Fuller, Freitag, and P. Petersen with 205.

For the fourth straight year the American Royal team has won the championship of the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy league in which three teams finished in a tie for second, one game behind the winners. Officers for the 1934-'35 season will be: O. W. Hamilton, president; R. C. Smith, vice president, and H. C. Bucek, secretary-treasurer. . . . With two weeks remaining only two games separate the first five teams in The Tribune Afternoon league. The Cards are on top with 42 victories and 36 losses.

Bowlers of the Butler Brothers league and their friends held their spring frolic last night at the Steuben club and thus ended their pin season. . . . Wiesner remains in front with a 207 average in the Bruck Major league. The John Conroys have clinched the team title.

5 Face Contempt Charges Over Krone Injunction

Five officials and employes of the Uptown Amusement corporation were ordered to appear in Superior court on contempt charges in a ruling handed down yesterday by Judge John P. McGoorty in Doc Krone's injunction suit against the corporation.

Those called to appear within seven days to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court are Al Hart, superintendent of Arcadia Gardens in which Krone had a wrestling show scheduled March 27; Michael Agazim, secretary of the Uptown Amusement corporation, which subleases the arena; Louis W. Mack, an attorney for the corporation; Lew Barnes, and Charles Conway.

Specific charges brought in Krone's new affidavit cite alleged violation of an injunction issued for Krone's last wrestling show. Krone contends through violation of this injunction he was unable to hold a show on April 12 and that he is powerless to resume promoting wrestling, in which he has been engaged for 25 years, until his suit against the corporation is definitely settled.

GLASGOW ELEVEN BEATS ST. MIRREN; WINS SCOTCH CUP

GLASGOW, Scotland, April 21.—(AP)—The Glasgow Rangers today won the Scottish football association cup by beating St. Mirren, 5 to 0, in the final game of the competition which began last fall. It was the eighth time the Rangers had won the cup since 1894.

A crowd of 113,400 saw the Rangers outplay their cup rivals, ramming through two goals in the first half with the wind at their backs and then scored three more goals against an increasingly brisk breeze in the second period.

Bears Sign Hannegan, 143 Pound Half Back

Dayton, O., April 21.—(AP)—Tommy Hannegan, 143 pounds half back, signed to play with the Chicago Bears after the University of Dayton varsity team defeated the alumni, 16 to 6. The contest concluded spring training for the varsity. Hannegan was recommended by Carl Brumbaugh, star quarter back of the Bears.

AURORA TEAMS TOP BOWLING IN STATE MEET

Aurora, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Aurora teams rolled into the lead today in the five man event of the thirty-ninth annual Illinois state bowling tournament. The Mitchler, Barren and Day five took first place with 2,709 and the Sylvandells second place with 2,663.

Sixty teams, most of them booster fives from Chicago, were on the alleys tonight. The first strong teams of the state will shoot tomorrow. Leading scores today:

REGULAR GAME WILL END DRILL FOR NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., April 21.—[Special.]—Spring football practice at Notre Dame will end April 29 with the annual game between the graduating monogram men and the 1934 varsity, Coach Elmer Layden announced today.

Since most the 1933 line is being graduated, next year's regulars will be put to a test in the contest, which will be played under the latest rule changes.

The old timers' line will be: Norb Rascher and Hugh Devore, ends; Ed Krause and Tom Roach, tackles; Harry Wunsch and Joe Pivarnik, guards, and Tom [Kitty] Gorman, center.

The back field still lacks a quarter back. Frank Laborne and Steve Banas will play half back, with Jim Leonard at full back. It is possible that Laurie Vejar, 1932 quarter back, who will be graduated in June, will play.

Coach Layden has not named a team to represent the varsity.

TROUT FISHERS AWAIT SEASON'S OPENING MAY 1

Michigan Streams Well Stocked.

BY BOB BECKER.

Only a few days until May 1, the opening of the 1934 trout season in Wisconsin and Michigan. This is the thought uppermost in the minds of thousands of anglers who await the day when they can pull on their waders and stalk the wary brooks, rainbows and browns.

Here are a few suggestions on streams which offer a fair to good chance to connect with some species of trout. Southwestern Michigan has a number of streams which are heavily stocked each year. Spring brook, one of them, is located three miles north of Kalamazoo, on the River road. It is about ten miles long and its entire length is considered good fishing. It is primarily a brook trout stream, although there are rainbows in it.

8 Miles of Fishing.

Lawton creek. This trout stream, two miles east of Lawton, Mich., in Van Buren county, is about 8 miles long and can be fished the entire length. Both browns and rainbows here.

Seven Mile Creek. Some eight miles west of Battle Creek, Mich., on M-96 to what is known as the "billboard," then north about a mile. Ten miles of good fishing. Stocked with brook trout.

Augusta creek. Runs through Augusta in Kalamazoo county. This stream is fifteen miles long, starting in Barry county. Best fishing is up about two miles from Augusta and from there on up the stream. Has browns and rainbows.

Manistee river. For big rainbows the deep water at Mesick is a good bet. Each year large fish are netted up there. Mesick is northwest of Cadillac, well up state. There also is good fishing in the Manistee river above Mesick.

Snow Still in Woods.

Another good stretch of water for rainbows is above Newaygo, Mich. They catch big ones in that area because during the spawning run of the rainbows the fish are netted at the dam and lifted over it to stock the waters above. The result is an annual planting of good-sized fish which may run up to ten pounds in weight.

For a rather short trip into Wisconsin fisherman may find it worth while to visit the streams around Wild Rose, a town above Princeton and northwest of Lake Winnebago. According to the latest report from Blaney, one of our favorite trout fishing sections in the upper peninsula of Michigan, there is much snow still in the woods.

500,000 FISHERMEN

Lansing, Mich., April 21.—[Special.]—Ten million trout planted last autumn in Michigan streams await the fishermen who already are beginning to arrive from nearby states to take advantage of the new bargain licenses offered to non-residents. The season opens May 1. Michigan non-resident fishing licenses, good for the entire season and for any type of game fish, now cost only $2, while a 10 day "special" is offered at $1. Wives of fishermen pay $1.

Fred Westerman, chief of the fish division of the conservation department, expects that the new license rates—approximately one-half of the former non-resident fee—will increase the number of out of state fishermen from the estimated 300,000 who came during the season of 1933 to a new record of about 500,000.

They're Big and Hungry.

"Nine of the 14 state fish hatcheries in Michigan propagate brook, brown and rainbow trout," said Westerman. "These are in addition to about 14 trout feeding stations located throughout the state. Many of the 10,000,000 trout which we planted after the close of the trout fishing season last year were of legal size when liberated. Since then many more have attained legal size.

"Equally important was the coöperation offered by the Civilian Conservation corps in stream improvement. As some of these men expressed it, they were building 'happy homes for trout.' By placing brush baffles in streams at some points and clearing out undesirable growth at others, they made better trout streams out of several already famous waters."

Westerman was asked for a word of advice to the beginner in trout fishing.

"Use worms," he said, "nice, fat, wriggling worms on about a number eight or ten hook with only two or three split BB shot for a sinker. At this season of the year the worm is king in the Michigan trout country. Later, when the hatches come out on the streams, the deft art of fly fishermen will bring to their creels the daily limit of 15 seven inch trout and many of twice that size."

ORANGE SWIM TEAM CAPTURES Y. M. C. A. TITLE

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—(AP)—Orange, N. J., swimmers successfully defended their international Y. M. C. A. title tonight for the third consecutive year, scoring 37 points in the 12th annual meet.

Running even in the point score with Orange, the San Francisco team lost the meet in the last two events. They were tied when Walter Spence of Orange won the 220 yard free style in 2:14.5, two seconds faster than the old meet record. The Orange team then won the 300 yard medley relay to cinch the title.

The point totals: Orange, 37; San Francisco, 27; Chicago, 17; Toronto, 13; Fort Wayne, Ind., 9; St. Louis, downtown, 9; Tulso, 5; St. Louis, North Side, 3; Huntingdon, 1.

De Pauw Track Team Beats Ball State, 92-34

Greencastle, Ind., April 21.—[Special.]—De Pauw university defeated Ball State Teachers college, Muncie, 92 to 34, in a dual track meet today. De Pauw made clean sweeps in the 100 yard dash and high hurdles, and won 12 of 14 event. Fribley, De Pauw, was high point man, winning the 220 yard dash, quarter mile run, and javelin throw.

ILLINOIS OWNERS HAVE A LAUGH AT HORSE CLOCKERS

Train Charges at Home for Aurora Meeting.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The back to their own farm movement, which is so prevalent among the horse owners of today, has completely baffled one important department of the nearby race tracks.

This distracted group is made up of the early rising clockers who, with watch in hand, formerly practically slept on their feet in order to be sure of peering out across the track when some mysterious owner "hung" one of his steeds on the rail for a final speed test before winning a race.

It is easy to sense the clockers' present predicament. In other years most owners had no farm training tracks on which to try their horses and were compelled either to use the tracks around which the clockers were clustered or send their horses into a race without that final speed test.

Throw Away the Watches!

Picture the harassed clocker today. How can he spread himself over the ground now occupied by some 30 thoroughbred farms, most of which have a training track of their own? These final speed and endurance tests are now going on at farm tracks recently built, and what is the poor old clocker doing?

He is frantically tearing his hair looking at the idle timepiece in his hand and gradually coming to the conclusion that to pick the winners during the early days of the Chicago season at the Aurora track he will be compelled either to resort to the good old "Eenie, meenie, minie, mo" system or to that ever faithful "hatpin" method which calls for the closing of one's eyes, the stabbing of a hatpin or dagger through the program, and then wagering on the horse whose name is nearest the punch.

They're Fit and Fast.

Had a clocker been at the Stuyvesant Peabody farm near Lemont yesterday morning he would have worked his split-second watch overtime. He would have watched Trainer Bob McGarvey send a dozen horses through their paces. They all looked fit.

There were speed tests and distance trials, and McGarvey can tell you the ones that will be ready to race at Aurora on opening day even though none of them has ever run to the watch this spring. Few American trainers employ this system, but horses are never timed in their trials on English courses.

One of the Peabody colts that will be pretty close to his best race when he lands at Aurora is Technocracy, which is being pointed for the Illinois Derby. This fellow showed signs of distance running ability last year and looks even more like a router this spring. McGarvey doesn't know whether he is good enough to win the Derby, but does know he will be a fit horse when he goes in the race.

Old Martie's Ready.

The older horses, Alpers and Martie Flynn, have been galloped into racing condition with no clock around to be telling tales out of school. The Peabody 2-year-olds have done the same thing and among those the clockers right now should be squinting at are Night Ray, Can Be Made, Arthur Metz and Hal Wiley. The last two were named after friends of Owner Peabody. Arthur Metz is a son of Light Brigade and a full brother to the good race horse Tangara of a few seasons back. Hal Wiley is a son of Spic and Span-Judea.

A couple of horses owned by A. A. Baroni—Clear and Bamboula—are also nearing racing condition over the training track on the Peabody farm. Bamboula is the filly which Col. E. R. Bradley gave away and then saw her developed into the winner of the Illinois Oaks by Baroni last season.

Plenty of Activity.

There has been similar training activity on Valentine Crane's Wild Rose farm near St. Charles, on the Evergreen Stock farm and the William A. Michel places near Bloomington, on the old trotting course at Fairbury, on Harry Gorham's place near Morris, on the William O'Toole farm near Manteno, and on about 20 other farms on which owners and trainers decided to get their horses ready this year. The horses will reach the Aurora track in shipments of from a single horse to strings of twenty a day or so before the season opens May 1.

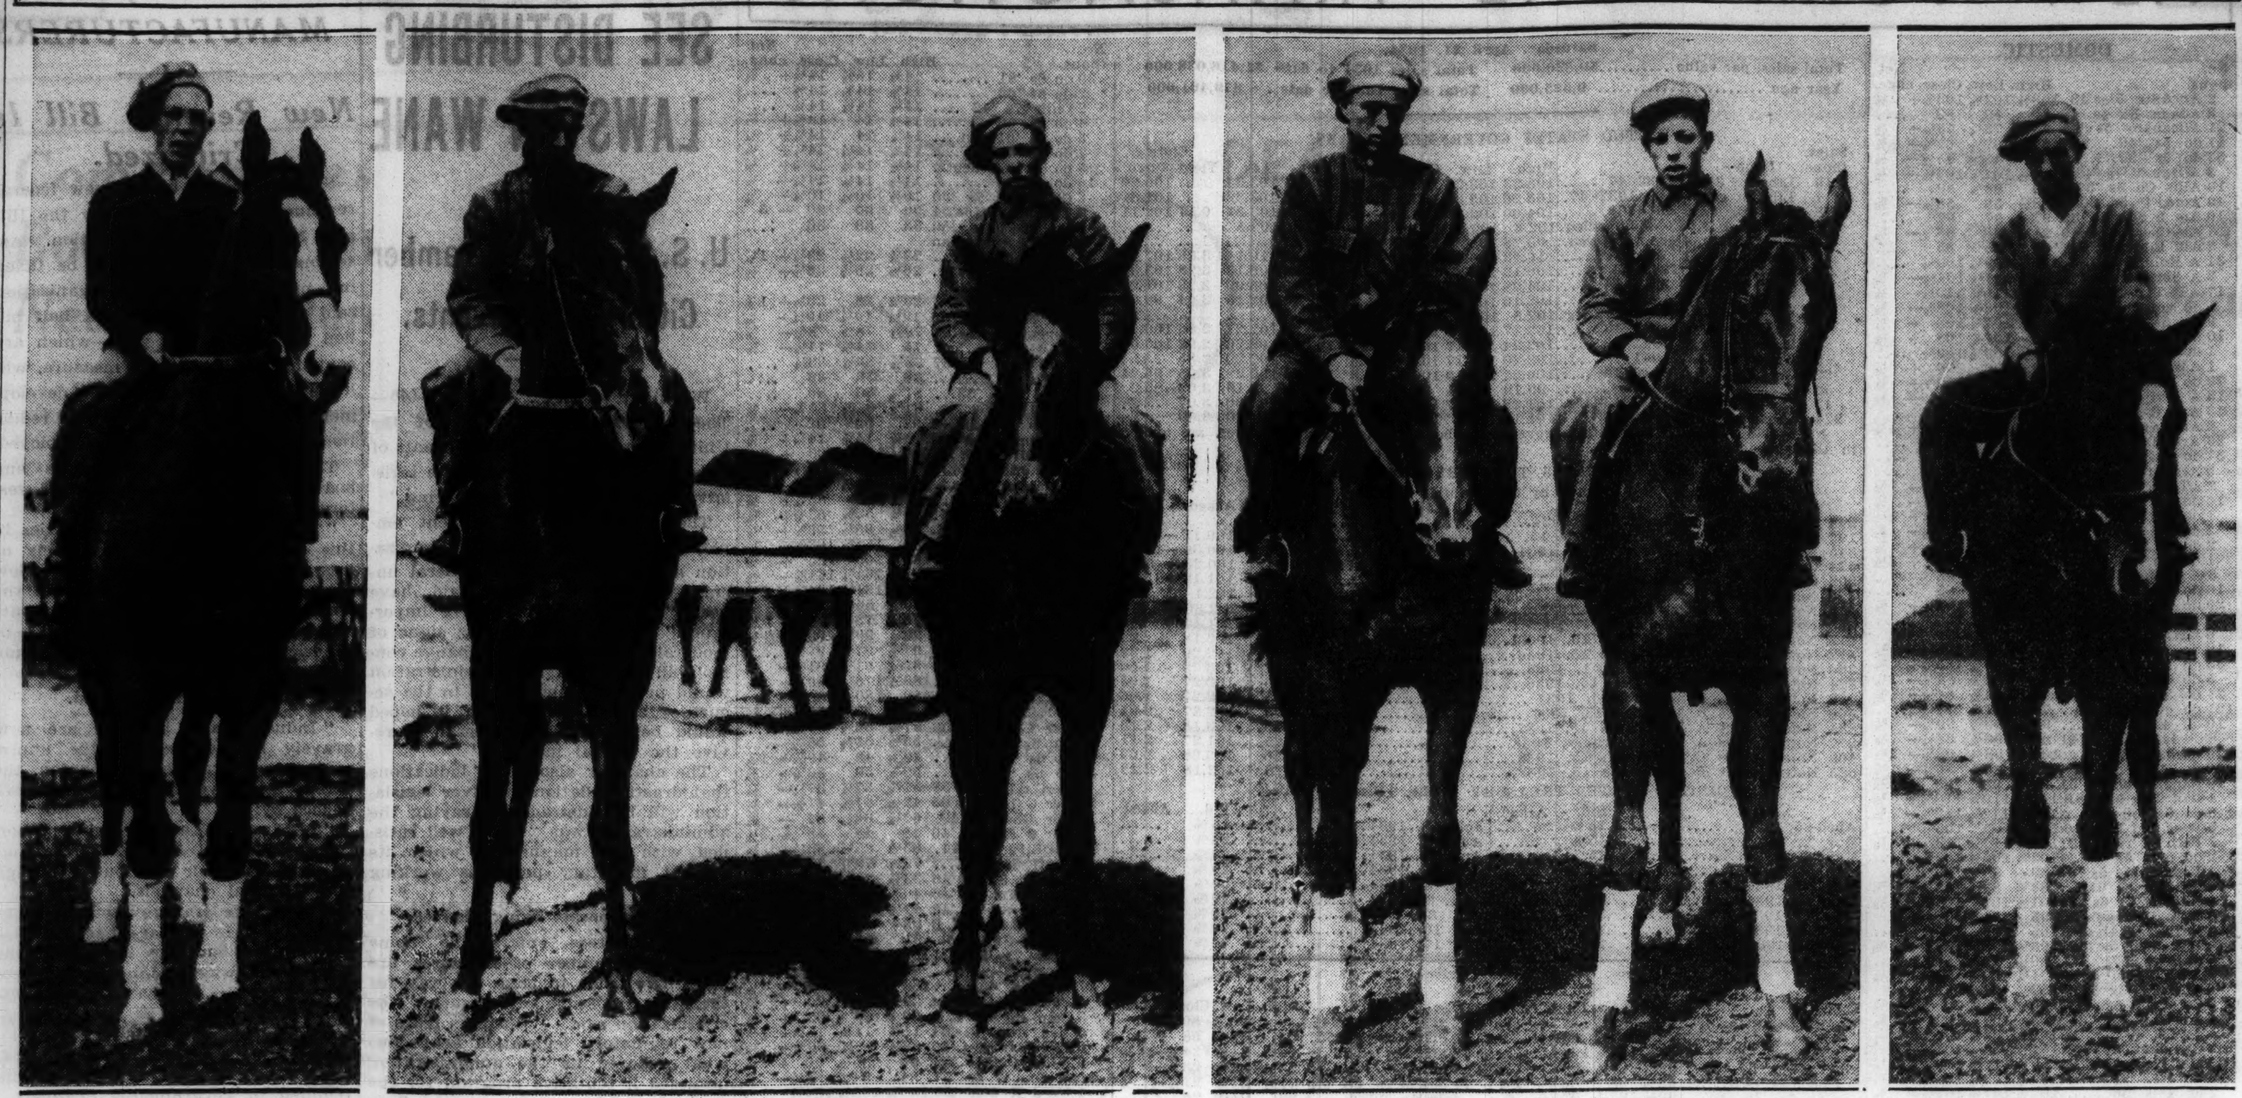
The exercise lads and stable boys on the farms located to the south of Chicago are all buzzing about a 3-year-old that has been trained at the Gorham farm and which has displayed more dazzling speed than any other horse trained in Illinois. The strange part about this unknown flyer is that even the Gorham farm help does not know his name.

A Winner Given Away.

The colt was formerly owned by B. S. Michel, who trained Reigh Count for his Kentucky Derby and who is preparing Dan Sabath for the Derby this spring. In training early last season the colt became so lame Michel decided he would be worthless as a racer, so gave him away to Harry Gorham, who sent him to his farm.

The lameness disappeared after a long rest and the horse appears to be sound this spring. The gossip is out that he has been able to run away and almost hide from the other Gorham horses which worked with him. Now everybody in the Gorham stable is anxiously awaiting the name and registration papers which Trainer Michel will forward from Churchill Downs.

'WAY DOWN ON THE FARM WHERE ONLY RAILBIRDS ARE THE KIND THAT CAN FLY



All lined up and ready to take the shortest route to the finish line are these horses which are training on Stuyvesant Peabody's farm near Lemont for the Illinois racing season which opens at Aurora May 1. Left to right are Alpers, Night Ray, Can Be Made, Arthur Metz, Hal Wiley, and Clear. They are 2 year olds, except Alpers and Clear, and all belong to Mr. Peabody except Clear, which is the property of A. A. Baroni.

RULES AGAINST DOPING DRAFTED BY RACE BOARD

Track Stewards Can Order Saliva Tests.

The newly organized Illinois Racing commission yesterday took a step toward strengthening the public's confidence in the integrity of the race business. The commission's book of rules, issued yesterday, provides for critical observation of the conduct of horses and horsemen, and lays down drastic penalties for those who are convicted of crookedness.

Since the federal government last season forced the tracks to take official cognizance of doping, there has been continuous discussion about the best means of preventing this practice.

May Order Horses Examined.

In addition to prohibiting the possession of drugs within the track premises, without written authorization, the Illinois commission's new rules provide that:

1. Everybody connected with a stable, from valets and grooms to trainers and veterinarians, must be licensed by the commission.

2. The stewards at any time may arbitrarily order the examination of a horse which they suspect to be doped. There will be facilities at the track for performing the saliva test and making other scientific observations.

3. At every race meeting a steward representing the commission will be included among the officials. There will be a paddock judge and a veterinarian attached to the paddock. All of these officials are expected to be on the alert for horses which show signs of doping.

4. A person convicted by the stewards of doping a horse shall be ruled off the turf for life.

No Receiving Barn.

It had been suggested that a receiving barn be established where the horses would be guarded for a certain length of time before each race as insurance against tampering. There also had been talk of a mandatory saliva test in connection with each race.

In omitting provision for these measures from the rules, members of the commission explained that the saliva test in itself does not furnish complete evidence nor definitly fix the guilty party. Moreover, the rules give the stewards full authority to order a saliva test whenever their suspicions are aroused.

It was pointed out that saliva tests made during the winter racing season in Florida had indicated that horses had been doped. The owners of these horses, however, denied knowledge of the facts and attributed the deeds to disgruntled stable employés. As a result no drastic measures were taken, though several persons involved were given short suspensions.

The provision in the new rules for licensing everybody connected with every stable is designed to fix the responsibility more definitly by eliminating the nondescript hangers-on, quack veterinarians, and other undesirables who in the past have frequented the race track premises.

Tracks Must Coöperate.

In recent months there had been a certain amount of complaint that some tracks, fearful of undesirable publicity, had shown little inclination to coöperate with federal agents in the detecting and prosecuting of doping. The new rules make coöperation obligatory.

Another provision is designed to prevent the sudden drop in betting odds which sometimes occurs at the last minute when a large allotment of "come back" money is bet by phone or telegraph. Under the new system, no come back money is to be received by telephone or telegraph within five minutes of post time.

Some trainers in the past have been accused of sending their horses out just for the run, while the public bets on them with the understanding that they are fit to win. The trainers have explained this practice to the stewards by saying that their horses need a couple of races to bring them up to condition. To prevent this practice in the future, the commission authorizes "morning races," which are to be run with all the formalities of the public events. These are designed to give the horse actual racing experience without putting the expense for that experience on the betting public.

Mata Hari in Fast Test Over Derby Route

Louisville, Ky., April 21.—(AP)—Derby candidates underwent good workouts at Churchill Downs today, with Mata Hari's mile and a quarter in 2:09 4-5 keeping that filly in the front as favorite. It was the first time the C. T. Fisher hope has been asked to go the full Derby route, and the time was the fastest by any locally trained candidate to date.

Particularly impressive was the :24 4-5 time in which Mata Hari did the final quarter mile, removing any doubts as to her staying qualities. Her fractional times were :25, :51 2-5, 1:17 3-5, and mile in 1:45 under tight rein. She was given her head on the final quarter.

Sir Thomas Does Well.

Sir Thomas, another favorite, under wraps did a quarter in :24 2-5, half in :48 3-5, three-quarters in 1:15, and mile in 1:42 3-5.

Naval Cadet reassured his followers when he circled the track in 1:41 4-5 and pulled up an extra eighth in 1:55 4-5. The Shandon stable candidate will have an examination of his ankles tomorrow.

Others Show Speed.

W. E. Smith's Likewise did a mile in 1:41 4-5, and Angon Bridge, another Smith candidate, ran the distance in 1:42 4-5. A. L. Gerguson's Vitamin B showed a good mile effort with a 1:41 3-5 time, while Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Dark Devil showed early speed with a quarter in :23 4-5, half in :48 3-5, and six furlongs in 1:15, being hard pressed in the last quarter. Mrs. E. F. Simms' Quasimodo did a mile and an eighth in 1:57 1-5 to draw favorable comment, and H. P. Headley's Thataway went six furlongs in 1:17 1-5.

DISCOVERY WORKS WELL.

Havre De Grace, Md., April 21.—(AP)—Discovery, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's candidate for the Kentucky Derby, worked out superbly over one mile at Havre de Grace today, indicating he is rounding into shape for the Derby.

The son of Display, which arrived from winter quarters at Worthington Valley, Md., this morning, stepped the eight furlongs in 1:37 4-5, one of the fastest trials yet turned in by a Derby eligible. Accompanied by a stablemate Discovery turned the first half mile in 47 3-5 seconds and was at the six furlong pole in 1:12 3-5. The big colt was well in hand all the way.

SOON OVER IS READY.

New York, April 21.—[U. P.]—The Greentree stable's Soon Over, a Kentucky Derby candidate, worked six furlongs in 1:13 3-5 at Jamaica today. Although put to a drive, the Buchan colt performed smoothly and appears ready for a route test.

J. H. Louchheim's Speedmore exercised at three-quarters of a mile, turning in the indifferent time of 1:16 3-5, over a fast track at Aqueduct.

15,000 Jam Jamaica for Opening Card

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—The racing season opened at the Jamaica course of the Metropolitan Jocky club today. It was estimated that 15,000 jammed the old track to see how the New Deal in racing worked.

Under the recently enacted Crawford-Breitenbach law the afternoon saw the first open betting on a cash basis in a generation. The facilities all but broke down today under the pressure of the unprecedented numbers which went racing by train, motor and afoot. But no one seemed to mind the inconvenience.

Edward P. Kilroe, president of the Metropolitan Jocky club, said that it was the biggest crowd in the history of the course.

The big feature of the day was the Paumonok handicap, first run in 1906. John Simonetti's Sergt. Byrne, one of the short-priced eligibles in the future book for the Kentucky Derby, was the winner in a driving finish. He scored by half a length over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Curacao which led Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch by four lengths. The time for the six furlongs was 1:11 3-5.

PLIGHT WINS DERBY

Arlington, Tex., April 21.—(AP)—Plight, a William Sachsenmaier entry, came down the stretch today with an amazing burst of speed to win the $10,000 added Texas Derby.

Coming up from fourth position, Plight gave 40,000 a thrill as he beat off the challenge of Hickory Lad and easily outdistanced Riskulus, the favorite, which finished third.

Plight, coupled with Indian Salute as an entry, raced the mile and furlong in 1:51 2-5. He enriched his owner by $8,425.

Plight was taken back repeatedly by Jockey Lester Balaski and had to overcome interference at the far turn. Hickory Lad, recent winner of the Louisiana Derby, started improving his position after five-eighths and gradually wore down Riskulus.

Riskulus, closing as the 8 to 5 favorite, was forced wide at the first turn and continued to lose ground. Coming down the stretch, the hope of Norman Church's stable had to shake off Money Getter, which weakened in the last 50 yards.

Plight rewarded his backers with $6.90, $2.80, and $2.60.

VAUDEVILLE WINS GRAND NATIONAL JUMPING RACE

Baltimore, Md., April 21.—(AP)—Vaudeville, owned by Alexander Cassatt, Philadelphia, and ridden by Redmond C. Stewart Jr., today won the Grand National point to point race over Mrs. Isaac E. Emerson's estate in Green Spring valley.

Gray Cock, owned by Charles H. Cheston, Philadelphia, ran second over the three mile course, and Sea Chart, owned by Mrs. Frances P. Garvan, New York, was third.

Ten thousand people watched the 35th annual running of the race. The course had seven post and rail fences, seven board fences, and a combination post and rail and brook jump.

JAPANESE SWIM STAR SETS NEW WORLD RECORD

OSAKA, Japan, April 21.—(AP)—One world record and one national swimming mark were established today by Japanese Olympians. Masoji Kiyokawa, Olympic 100 meter backstroke champion, set a new standard for the distance with a mark of 1:07.6, six-tenths of a second under the accredited universal mark set by George Kojac in 1928.

Reizo Koike, who was second in the Olympic 200 meter breaststroke final, set new Japanese mark for the distance of 2:39.1. J. Cartonnet, France, holds the world record for the event of 2:25.6. The meet was conducted in a 25 meter pool.

Third Round of Volleyball in C. Y. O. Today

Swimming and girls' volleyball will occupy the attention of Catholic Youth Organization athletes this week with the third round of the girls' volleyball tournament today and the annual C. Y. O. swimming meet scheduled for Tuesday night at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Preliminary swimming meets were held in the north, south, and west sections of the city last week to determine the qualifiers for the championship events. C. Y. O. championships will be decided in Boy Scout, junior, intermediate, and senior divisions. St. Francis Xavier, last year's champion, appear to be in a favorable position to repeat their triumph, with ten men qualified.

The third round of the volleyball tournament opens today in two gymnasiums with 16 aggregations still in the running for the title. The matches will reduce the field to eight teams which will meet on successive Sundays until the eventual winner is determined.

The schedule:

At Blackhawk park [Fullerton and Lavergne avenues]: 2 p. m., Maternity B. V. M. vs. St. Henry No. 2; 2:45, Lady of Mercy vs. St. Genevieve No. 1; 3:30, Presentation No. 1 vs. St. Mel No. 2; 4:15, Resurrection No. 1 vs. St. Agatha.

At St. Brendan's gymnasium [67th and Elizabeth streets]: 2 p. m., St. Rose of Lima vs. St. Nicholas of Tolentine; 2:45, Sacred Heart No. 1 vs. St. Brendan No. 1; 3:30, Holy Rosary vs. St. Philip Neri No. 1; 4:15, St. Laurence vs. St. Salomea No. 5.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—The listed bond market manifested a fair degree of steadiness today in rather active trading for a Saturday.

United States government bonds and leading foreign loans, notably the so-called gold payment issues, moved irregularly higher, and domestic corporation bonds irregularly lower. Trading approximated $10,000,000.

Dollar Weakness Is Factor.

The weakness of the dollar in the foreign exchange market aided the market for foreign loans, but at the same time did not unsettle United States government issues which closed generally higher. French government and Dutch East Indies loans which are in the gold payment class rose fractionally to nearly 3 points. United Kingdom bonds receded fractionally as sterling dipped. German loans were irregular in quiet trading. Chilian bonds again showed the best strength in the South American group.

Utilities Strongest.

Utility bonds in the domestic corporation list showed better strength than did railroad and industrial issues. About the most active and strongest of the utility group were the obligations of Utilities Power and Light, New Orleans Public Service and certain issues of Western Union, I. T. & T., International Paper and Power, and Portland General Electric.

Irregularly higher prices ruled in the domestic list on the curb exchange with the utility issues faring generally better than the industrials.

Cotton Spinning Industry More Active During March

Washington, D. C., April 21.—The cotton spinning industry was reported by the census bureau to have operated during March at 102.9 per cent of capacity on a single shift basis, compared with 101.5 per cent in February and 93.9 per cent in March last year.

Straddling Currency Fluctuations.

Common stocks, real estate, and commodities are the media that occur to the small investor when "hedge against inflation" is mentioned. Commitments in them, however, must be viewed with caution because the investment policy of the small investor should be one that avoids those risks inherent in equity investments.

He can escape the risks of internal currency fluctuations by purchasing foreign obligations. That, however, involves leaning on the credit of a foreign government, perhaps thousands of miles away, whose future monetary policy might not be altogether clear.

Investors' Guide, in response to many requests, presents a list of several bonds payable in either foreign or domestic currency. These provide a measure of diversification in media of payment. In considering them two factors should be kept in mind. In the first place, they are of varying grade. The second factor is that the promise to pay interest in foreign currency at the option of the bondholder is not always enforceable. Information on any individual issue may be had by forwarding a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Investors' Guide.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw sugar was steadier today and spot prices advanced 2 points to the basis of 2.72 cents. Shipment sugars were 1 to 2 points higher. A better inquiry was reported, with confirmed sales of 20,000 bags of Porto Rican for early May arrival at 2.72c, 31,500 bags of Philippines for May arrival at 2.75c, and 73,800 bags of Philippines for June arrival at from 2.78c to 2.80c. Futures were steadier in response to the better inquiry in the spot market, but trading again consisted principally of exchanging May to later deliveries. The market closed unchanged to 1 point higher. Sales were 20,700 tons, including 10,600 in exchanges. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
May	1.39	1.40	1.39	1.40	1.39
July	1.47	1.47	1.46	1.47	1.46

December	1.58	1.59	1.58	1.58	1.57
March	1.64	1.65	1.64	1.64	1.64

In refined only a moderate inquiry was reported and prices were unchanged at 4.30 for fine granulated.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(AP)—Coffee was dull but steady today, trading being influenced by a holiday in Brazil and continued quietness of the actual. Santos opened nominal and closed 1 to 2 points higher. Sales, 1,000 bags. No. 7 opened nominal and closed 1 to 2 points higher. Sales, 1,000 bags. Closing quotations: Santos, May, 10.79c; July, 10.94c; Sept., 11.29c; December, 11.40c; March, 11.47c. Rio prices:

May	8.29	8.39	8.29	8.29	8.28
September	8.57	8.57	8.57	8.57	8.55

Spot coffee quiet. Santos 4s, 11¼c; Rio 7s, 10¼c. Cost and freight offers included Bourbon 3s and 5s at 10.90@11.50c.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was steadier today on covering and scattered local and commission house buying, promoted by the steadiness of cotton and lard and the firmness of grain. Final prices were 3 to 5 points net higher. Sales were 49 contracts, including 30 in exchanges from May to September at 43 points and May to October at 50 points. Bleachable spot nominal; May closed 5.25c; July, 5.45c; Sept., 5.65c; Oct., 5.75c.

METALS.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(AP)—TIN—Firmer; spot and nearby, 56.15c; future, 56.20c. Other metals nominally unchanged.

TRADE LEADERS SEE DISTURBING LAWS ON WANE

U. S. Commerce Chamber Cites Recent Events.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today reported events of the last fortnight had made the legislative situation more "reassuring."

The Wagner bill to prevent employer domination of labor organization and the proposal for federal unemployment insurance, it said, have been "declining in legislative importance." In addition, it saw signs of moderation in the stock exchange control bill and that the administration would propose amendments to the securities act of 1933 which it hoped would be "sufficiently liberal to revive the capital markets."

The chamber also saw "indications that drastic inflationary silver legislation will be sidetracked," saying the administration was "fairly well satisfied with the manner in which its present monetary policy is working out."

Sees Proposals Being Shelved.

"As congress enters the home stretch, a number of measures are being laid aside to pave the way for the earliest possible adjournment," the organization said. "Business fears of new regulatory legislation are somewhat relieved as the administration disclosed it tentative program for the remaining weeks of the session. This program, in the main, as thus far indicated is moderate in tone. Its major items include taxes, reciprocal tarif, stock exchange regulation and modification of the securities act. Labor and silver legislation remain uncertain.

"The impression prevails that the President's desire for further reform legislation to round out the general recovery program seems not to have abated, but the administration is showing an inclination to move carefully. The stand against additional inflationary legislation is in striking contrast to inflationary sentiment in congress.

Urge Amending Securities Act.

"From the business viewpoint, it is interpreted as an encouraging sign that the administration will propose amendments to the securities act. Business has insisted that the stringent liability provisions of the act should be relaxed as an aid to recovery. It is earnestly hoped that amendments will be sufficiently liberal to revive the capital markets.

"Despite the feeling in business circles that the legislative situation generally looks better, there still exists apprehension over the revenue bill. Business men feel that fresh impetus would be given to recovery if the house and senate conferees, now considering the measure would agree to the restoration of consolidated returns for corporations; the elimination of the 10 per cent increase in all income taxes, and the removal of the publicity clause. These provisions, they feel, would slow up recovery."

TAXES DELAYING RECOVERY, SAY MANUFACTURERS

New Revenue Bill Is Criticized.

Sharp criticism of the new federal revenue bill is expressed by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. Asserting the country cannot be taxed into prosperity, the trade organization said that excessive taxes—a half billion more than last year—which are contemplated under the measure, will leave little or no funds for development of business enterprise and reduction of the vast army of unemployed.

The association's stand was embodied in a resolution dispatched yesterday to Illinois congressmen.

"The vast majority of industries in this country are either operating at loss or on a basis materially below that which would make possible the distribution of such reasonable profits as constitute the principal source of American prosperity," the resolution said.

Industry Handicapped.

"Industry and business are now gravely handicapped by the unprecedented government tax burden, the extent and severity of which is evidenced by:

"1—Since 1930 an increasing proportion of national income and savings has been spent or distributed through governmental channels.

"2—The federal government alone in the last four years has absorbed through an increase in outstanding debt about twice as much of the new private savings and bank credit available for investment as have been absorbed by all private industry.

"3—In 1933 a third of the total national income was taken and distributed in governmental channels.

"4—In 1934 it is estimated 40 per cent of the total national income will be used in this way."

Blocks Financing.

The resolution says that under these handicaps it is impossible to create confidence which will enable the financing of industrial enterprise which is the first essential to reviving production of durable goods, in which industries there are now more than 8,000,000 unemployed. Higher taxes, it continues are borne by the consumer with the result that cost of living is increased and purchasing capacity is materially reduced.

The Illinois group urges an inauguration of genuine economy in administrating public affairs and the cessation of government competition with privately owned business.

NRA COAL PARLEY ADJOURNS; CAN'T REACH DECISION

Washington, April 21.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, announced tonight no decision had been reached during prolonged conferences on appeals for modification of NRA's mandate increasing wages and shortening hours for bituminous coal miners. The conferences will continue tomorrow.

Unconfirmed reports were current that a compromise agreement had been effected with coal producers in the Fairmont region of northern West Virginia, who had protested elimination of their 24 cent wage differential over the Pittsburgh area.

Negotiations with Alabama operators, who had threatened "civil war" in the industry rather than to comply with the order increasing the basic daily wage of their miners to $4.60 from $3.40, were still in progress when Johnson announced no decision would be forthcoming tonight. There was no indication what had prevented conclusion of the negotiations before the deadline Johnson had set yesterday.

Roosevelt Signs Code for Linseed Oil Industry

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed the code for the linseed oil manufacturing industry, effective April 30. Unfair methods of competition listed include selling of substandard oil, cake or meal; misbranding or making special concessions.

WALGREEN PROFIT FOR SIX MONTHS DOUBLE YEAR AGO

Earnings of the Walgreen company in the six months ended March 31, the first half of the fiscal year, were more than double profits in the corresponding period of the preceding year. The semi-annual statement released yesterday by Charles R. Walgreen, president, disclosed net earnings of $1,085,196 for the period after all charges. This was equivalent to approximately $1.25 a share on the common stock.

Sales Increase 23 Per Cent.

The company earned $522,152, or 51 cents a share in the first half of the previous fiscal year. Net sales, after deducting sales tax, were $26,583,664 an increase of 23 per cent over the $21,563,193 in the first six months last year. On March 31 the company was operating 470 stores against 485 on the same day last year.

President Walgreen said the rate of gross profit on sales was slightly larger than a year ago while the rate of fixed charges was appreciably lower. Aggregate wage payments by the company were considerably higher during the period, he said.

"We believe that predictions are merely a waste of time, but speaking as of today, we feel justified in saying that our company is in a favorable position," Mr. Walgreen added.

Current Position Better.

At the close of the period the company showed current assets of $9,567,520 against current liabilities of $2,783,834. A year ago current assets were $7,490,757 and current liabilities were $2,094,692.

After payment of two dividends of 25 cents a share on the common stock the balance of earnings was transferred to surplus account bringing that item to $4,596,285 against $4,024,656 at the beginning of the period. Preferred dividends paid amounted to $132,848 and common dividends aggregated $379,546.

DOLLAR AGAIN DROPS SHARPLY; HITS NEW LOW

Action Attributed to Inflation Fears.

Another abrupt decline yesterday in the dollar in domestic and foreign exchange markets gave birth to new crop of guesses as to the probable significance of latest weakness in American currency.

Speculation ran high over the possibility that President Roosevelt would exercise his inflationary powers to devaluate the dollar to 50 cents of its old parity in order to stem the tide of liquidation in domestic commodity markets.

Dollar Closes at 58.60.

The dollar closed in New York at 58.60 in terms of the French franc, the lowest quotation it has touched since the President proclaimed his devaluation last January. With the decline in the dollar continued the franc advanced to 6.69 cents, a price which makes it profitable for the export of gold. In Washington it was reiterated that gold exports would be allowed when the dollar reached the gold export point. No applications for gold exports, however, were received. That no export applications were received was attributed to the fact that trading sessions in all the exchange markets were abbreviated.

In the international gold market in London gold was valued at $35.10 an ounce, indicating a value for the dollar of 99.72 per cent of the new parity. This is the first time that the dollar has sold below the new par in the London gold market. The pound sterling, however, was slightly lower in terms of United States money closing at $5.165 against $5.175 yesterday.

Value Equals 99.23 Cents.

Using the French franc as a yardstick the closing quotation on the dollar was equivalent to 99.23 cents of its new parity as compared with 99.49 cents Friday. While Scandinavian and Canadian currencies lost slightly against the dollar along with the pound, the Italian, Swiss and Dutch monies moved against United States funds.

Exchange dealers were convinced that European speculators have inside information on plans of the Roosevelt administration or that they believe further devalution here inevitable because of the domestic price declines. Meanwhile the agitation of the silver group in congress gave rise to the belief that some compromise of the sliver question by the administration is at hand.

W. A. PATTERSON NAMED HEAD OF UNITED AIR LINES

W. A. Patterson has been named president of the United Air Lines, Inc. to succeed P. G. Johnson in order to qualify the company in bidding for the new air mail contracts, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Johnson who was also president of United Aircraft and Transport corporation, the parent concern, was one of those attending the conferences at which the contracts were distributed under the last administration. Under the order of Post Master General Farley those that attended the conferences must resign from concerns which wish to qualify for the new contracts.

Mr. Patterson has been assistant to the president of United Air Lines since 1929. Prior to that he was engaged in the banking business on the west coast. He lieves in Wilmette and will remain in Chicago where the general offices of the company are located.

Mr. Johnson has also retired as a director of the company along with Paul H. Henderson. Paul Godehn and Cyril C. Thompson were elected to the board to fill their places. Other officers and directors remain.

UNITED CIGAR BUSINESS GAINS; DROP SALE PLAN

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Rising real estate prices and business improvement caused the reorganization committee of the United Cigar Stores security holders to withdraw today its motion for the sale of company assets.

N. Carl Levine, speaking for the creditors before Bankruptcy Referee Irwin Kurtz, said that United sales had increased nine per cent during March and sales of Whelan Drug Stores, controlled by United, increased seven per cent.

Levine stated that he had received reports a "man ie going around offering to buy up landlords' claims against the United." He said representations were made that the claims are of no value "and those in tight circumstances fall for the bait."

"It seems right that these landlords be advised that 50 per cent of the bond issue has been bought in by United Stores corporation," he said, adding that it appeared that in a year or so the landlords will get all that is due them.

Commodities Bootlegged in New Deal Plan

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Commodity bootlegging begins just about the time repeal puts an end to the bootlegging of liquor. From Iowa come reports that many farmers are trying to chisel advantage out of the new planned agriculture.

Under Secretary Wallace's corn-hog program each county was allotted a specified number of hogs as its total permissible production and each farmer was apportioned his share of the county allotment. These allotments were determined on the basis of previous year's figures, the farmers furnishing the information concerning their own production.

It now develops that many of the boys exaggerated their figures in the hope of getting larger allotments. R. K. Bliss, director of the Iowa State college extension service at Ames, has received a report from Leslie M. Carl, federal statistician at Des Moines, disclosing "serious overstatement" of 1932 hog numbers by farmers. The report is based on a preliminary analysis of corn-hog data from 15 Iowa counties.

Farmers in one Iowa township, Mr. Carl said, reported average yields for 1933 of nearly 30 bushels an acre. This is higher than the average for the last ten years. And 1933 was an exceptionally poor corn year.

Also from the corn belt comes the news that the spring pig crop may be no smaller than normal this year. Reports from some sections indicate that the farmers have gone ahead to farrow the usual number of hogs, figuring that if the spring crop measures up to expectations the reduction can be taken care of in the fall crop.

"It is pretty hard to figure out anything with any feeling of certainty," says the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal, "because the results of the important artificial influences at work cannot be foretold. There is no record to serve as a guide since the experiments never before have been tried."

The sudden scurry in political circles to pour additional government funds into closed banks as time draws near for the congressional elections has stirred up much interest in the financial community.

Those who have been in close touch with the closed bank situation say that the Reconstruction Finance corporation has probably already lent against frozen assets more money than they will ever pay out. Further distributions, most of the experts agree, would mean simply the donation of public funds to depositors, whether the payment is made as proposed in the McLeod bill or the administration's proposed compromise.

That brings up the nice question of where the gifts of federal funds should stop. Many banks caused greater losses to the customers who bought their sour real estate "gold" bonds than the losses they cost their depositors; but the depositor keeps getting political aid while the bondholder is left out in the cold.

It has been estimated that in the case of the Bain bank chain the losses on bonds sold by the banks were triple the losses of the banks' depositors.

"The man in charge of compiling statistical tables for the bureau of labor statistics of the department of labor brings a refreshing flexibility into the former brittle organization," says one of the Wall Street commentators. "He frequently changes the base for computing the various indices used in the bureau. Since the monthly wholesale commodity price index was shifted from a 1913 to a 1926 base and given much heavier weighting of commodity prices, everything has not been entirely serene. In the early depression the index dropped quickly and was made to show, as doubtless it was designed to do, the calamity that overtook the farmers. More recently the index has failed at times to give as good a picture of prices in general as it might otherwise have done. Anyhow, the 1926 base was that of an abnormal year and means little. The 1913 base was far more useful."

The United States treasury saved a day's interest on a billion dollars of bonds this week. The billion of outstanding called fourth Liberty 4¼s came due on the 15th, but that happened to be Sunday. Under the law, therefore, the new 3¼ per cent bonds offered in exchange for the called bonds could be dated Monday, the 16th.

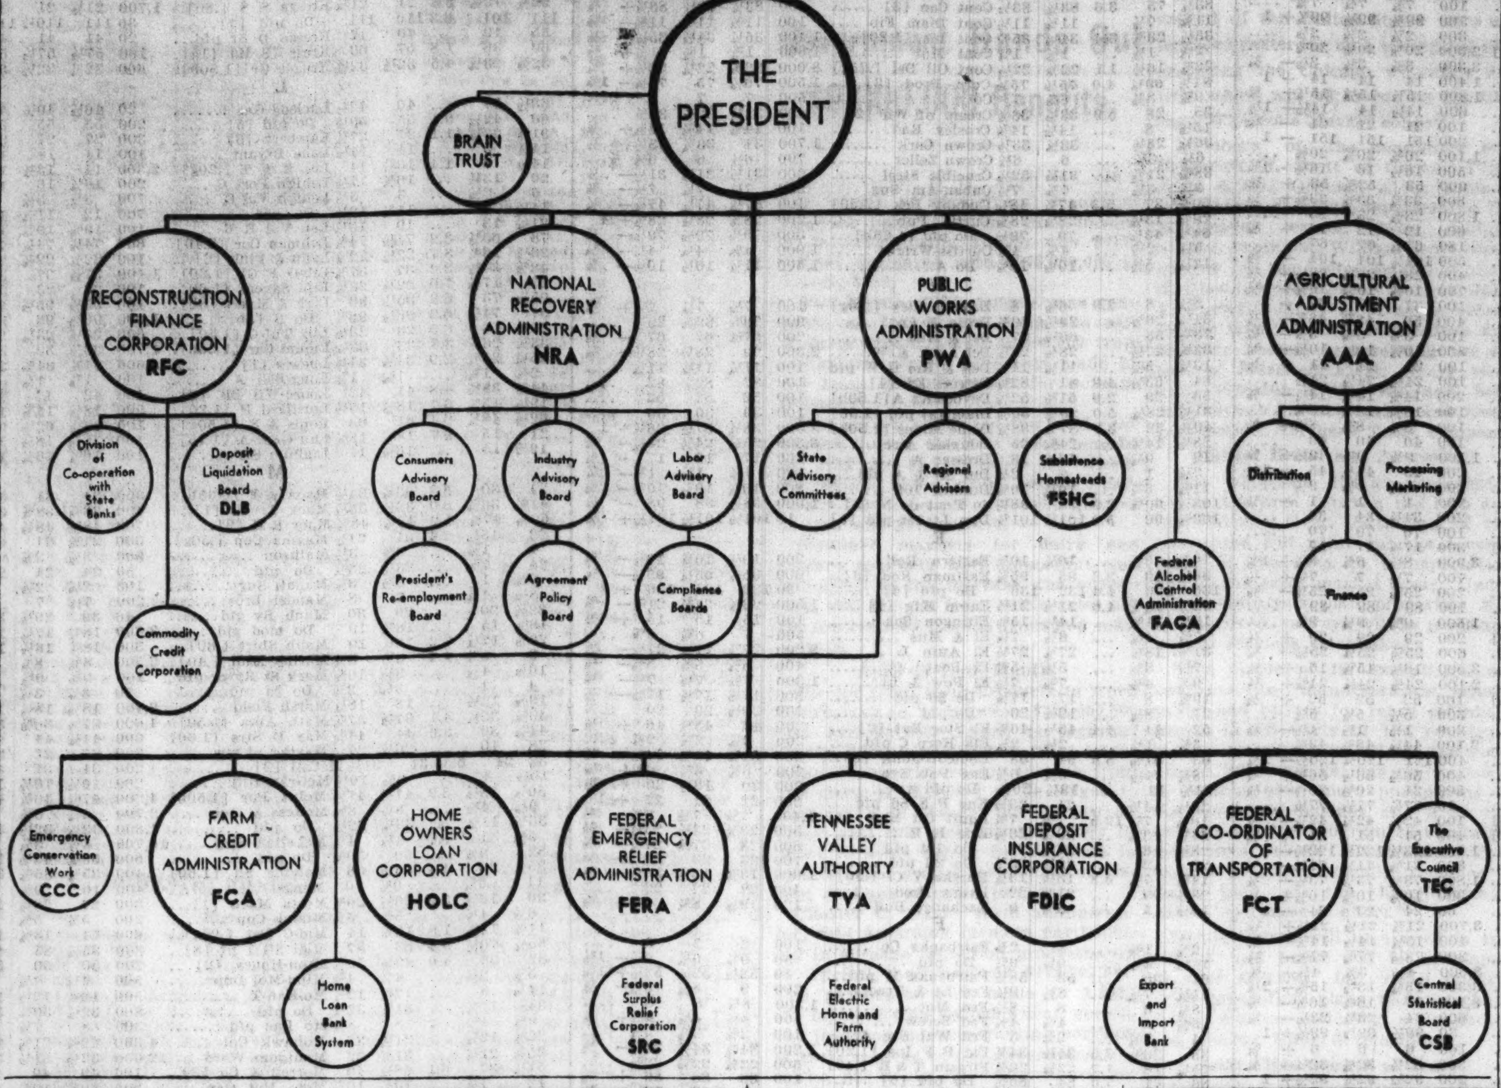
THE NEW DEAL



This Tenant Doesn't Need Any Home Aid

BY MAGPIE.

Being a landlord, isn't all the honey the average tenant likes to imagine. Hugh Potter, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at a recent banquet given by the Oak Park Real Estate board and the Suburban Council of Real Estate Boards, told an incident which happened in his home town, Houston, Tex.

"A friend of mine had a residence which he rented for $85 a month and got his rent promptly until about a year ago, when the tenant told such a hard luck story that he cut it to fifty," said Mr. Potter.

"That was satisfactory for a couple of months and then the tenant pulled a new distress story which nearly brought tears to the eyes of my friend, the landlord. He cut the rent to $25.

"Three months later the tenant came in and said: 'Mr. Whoompus, you've been mighty good to me and I appreciate it, but I just can't raise $25 a month. Of course you know it isn't good to have a house vacant, and if you'll just let me stay on I'll cut the grass and keep the place looking swell.'

"Well, my friend wiped a tear out of his eye, hesitated a moment, and then said: 'All right. Forget the rent.'

"But a couple of months later back came the tenant, who jauntily turned in the keys of the house, saying, 'I'm going to move.'

"'Great Scott! What's wrong now?'

"'Well, things are all right, but I've been offered a larger place.'"

William E. Webster of Minard lane, Libertyville, has discovered that trains may show speed but railroad companies seldom do. Several years ago he narrowly missed being killed by a Milwaukee road train, which failed to whistle at St. Mary's road crossing at Libertyville, one of the most dangerous highway intersections in that locality.

After a long and strenuous battle with the road officials, extending well over a year, to convince them that trains should whistle at that crossing, they agreed with him. Mr. Webster was considerably elated.

Several months later he built an attractive residence close to the Milwaukee road right of way and only a short distance from the St. Mary's road crossing. Now he's wondering what he can do to stop the nightly wailing screech of whistles as trains pass his house, waking up his family.

"I'm afraid life's too short to go through all that battle again," he said. "It probably would take as long to get it stopped as it did to get it started. I'm going to let 'em blow."

In measuring off the land rented to the government under the agricultural adjustment act one community in Illinois was said to have used a white flag as a marker. Whether or not the group supervising the work had selected this symbol of surrender in irony was not explained.

ARMOUR DIRECTORS ADJOURN; OFFICIALS SCOUT DISAGREEMENT

Directors of Armour & Co. adjourned their meeting again yesterday without taking final action on the proposed plan of recapitalization which is under consideration.

"The meeting has been adjourned to permit further consideration of details," T. George Lee, president, said in a formal statement. "It is hoped that these details will be completed for submission to the board at an early date."

Officials scouted reports that the delay was the result of disagreement among directors over the broad features of the plan, which is the handiwork of Frederick H. Prince, Boston capitalist and chairman of the company's finance committee. Mr. Prince is now in Europe and expressed confidence before leaving recently that the new plan would go through without a hitch.

Officials said yesterday the delay is the result of legal complications produced by the necessity of complying with the federal securities act of 1933. Confidence was expressed that directors may be able to give final ratification to the plan some time this week.

BANK INSURANCE HAS FIRST CASE TO CONSIDER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—For the first time since the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation has been in operation one of the banks whose deposits are insured by its funds has run into difficulties, according to an announcement by Chairman Leo T. Crowley today.

"The Bank of America Trust company, Pittsburgh, Pa., was placed on a restricted withdrawal basis yesterday by Pennsylvania banking authorities so that a complete examination might be made," he said.

The Pittsburgh bank is not a member of the federal reserve system. It had deposits of $1,100,000, which were insured up to $2,500 per account under the provisions of the temporary insurance fund.

"If the bank is closed," Mr. Crowley said, "the federal deposit insurance corporation will immediately assume its liability to repay depositors in full who have $2,500 or less on deposit."

Settle Toy Firm Strike; 1,000 Return to Work

Toledo, O., April 21.—[U.P.]—A thousand men and women will go back to work in the American-National company Monday, following settlement of a strike which has lasted three weeks. The Juvenile Wheel Workers' union, which called the strike, voted today to accept terms of a settlement proposed by the sub-regional labor board. Approximately 1,000 of the strikers are members of this union. Machinists and truck drivers, belonging to other unions, are expected to follow the wheel workers in accepting the settlement.

House to Act First on Stock Control Bill

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Administration leaders have decided to let the house act first on the Fletcher-Rayburn stock market regulation bill. Plans are to bring it up probably Wednesday in the house with a view to passage by the end of the week. The senate will consider it the following week.

The senate bill, already reported by the banking committee, makes no statutory margin requirement, which has been asked by President Roosevelt. It also provides for the creation of a separate commission of five to handle both the stock market regulation and the securities act of 1933.

Margin Regulations Approved.

As thus far approved by the commerce committee, the house bill fixes a minimum margin of 45 per cent for buyers of securities. It allows brokers, bankers, and dealers to lend up to 55 per cent of the value of securities. It also places the regulatory power over exchanges under the federal trade commission and gives credit regulation to the federal reserve board.

Chairman Rayburn [Dem., Tex.] said, that with the controversial statutory margin requirement and segregation sections approved today by the commerce committee, he expected favorable committee action on the bill probably Monday. Special legislative procedure will have to be obtained for consideration of the bill, which will delay the opening of debate in the house until Wednesday.

Power Over Floor Trading.

With only minor changes, the commerce committee has approved the first ten sections of the bill. Action came late today on the segregation provisions, which give the commission power "as it deems necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors to regulate, limit, or prevent floor trading."

The commission also is empowered to exempt small exchanges to permit their members to continue in both the brokerage and trading business. Odd lot dealers and specialists also will carry on transactions under rules and regulations promulgated by the commission. Prohibition against manipulation of securities prices and regulation of the use of manipulative devices were approved earlier.

Sanitary District to Pay $660,000 on Interest

Interest coupons amounting to nearly $660,000 will be redeemed by the sanitary district April 26, Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, said yesterday. The interest became due during November and December of 1933.

TRADE IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN CHICAGO BY CHECK VOLUME

Business measured by checks cashed last week in the Seventh federal reserve district was not only substantially in excess of the preceding week, but showed an unusually large margin over the corresponding week of 1933.

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago for the week ended April 18, 1934, by 150 banks in 40 leading clearing house cities amounted to $963,240,000, surpassing by 17.3 per cent the total of $821,404,000 the week before.

Banks in 37 cities reported an aggregate of $959,675,000, which was 67.7 per cent above the total of $572,389,000 in the parallel period of last year.

Debits to individual deposit account in Chicago for the week amounted to $615,078,000 against $375,061,000 in the week ended April 19, 1933; Detroit reported $146,871,000 against $55,618,000; Milwaukee $50,597,000 against $36,668,000, and Indianapolis $30,745,000 against $23,628,000.

A new reporting clearing house center has been added, Clinton, Ia., which announced debits of $1,405,000.

NEW NAPERVILLE NATIONAL BANK STARTS BUSINESS

Formation of the Naperville National bank was approved yesterday with the granting of a charter by the controler of currency and the bank was formally opened in quarters formerly occupied by the First National bank of Naperville.

The new institution, headed by Judge Win G. Knock as president, is an outgrowth of the Reuss State and the First National banks, both of which were closed at the time of the national banking moratorium in March, 1933, and failed to reopen.

The bank will have capital of $50,000, surplus of $10,000 and reserves of $5,000. Assets of the old institutions have been pledged for a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of approximately $300,000 with which to make a 35 per cent dividend to depositors. State Auditor Barrett yetterday approved the disbursement for the Reuss State, which amounts to $126,000. The balance will be paid to depositors of the old national institution.

In the new organization the government will have no stock interest. Stockholders, who number 377, all of whom reside in Naperville, have provided $33,000 in new money.

'King Cotton' Now Subject of New Deal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—"King Cotton" became the humble subject of the New Deal's agricultural dictatorship today as President Roosevelt appended his signature to the Bankhead cotton control bill.

The ceremony of signing put on the statute books the most drastic piece of legislation which the administration had yet attempted in its scheme to limit and prorate the country's most important farm commodities.

Dissatisfied with the result from 112 million dollars spent in rental and benefit payments to cotton farmers under the AAA and with the 10 cents a pound to a program of last year, the government is now to use its taxing power to limit the country's cotton production to 10 million bales. Cotton produced in excess of the allotted quota is to be subject when ginned to a prohibitive tax of 50 per cent of its value.

Allotments to be Made.

The secretary of agriculture and his experts are to decide the proportions of the total production to be alloted to various states; counties in the states will then receive their quotas; and farmers within the counties will finally be told how much cotton they can raise.

In signing the bill, the President declared the necessity for it lay at the door of the comparatively few recalcitrant farmers who refused to coöperate with earlier attempts at production control.

"I am advised that the overwhelming majority of the south's cotton producers desire the enactment of legislation now embodied in the Bankhead bill," the President said.

"It aims to prevent that very small minority which has refused to cooperate with their neighbors and the government from impairing the effectiveness of the current cotton program which now includes ninety-two per cent of the cotton acreage.

Recalls Other Movements.

"There is nothing new in the sentiment which has resulted in the passage of the Bankhead bill. During the days of the confederacy methods to adjust cotton production were advocated. Again in 1905, 1915, 1921, and 1927 widespread sentiment was developed for some plan that would prevent the recurring accumulation of cotton surpluses from dragging prices to starvation levels.

"The cotton states have found it impossible to act independently or in unison to achieve this end. They have asked for the use of federal powers. A democratic government has consented. The sponsors of the Bankhead bill say it will not supplant but will supplement and make even more effective the present adjustment program. It is the purpose to make certain that the splendid progress already made is consolidated into enduring benefits. The objective of the bill is to place the cotton growing industry on a sound financial and economic basis."

NRA IMPOSES STRONG CODE ON COPPER TRADE

Limits Sales, Ties Up Stocks, Fixes Price.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—The copper industry of the United States today was placed by NRA under a code which in effect will limit all domestic sales to newly mined metal and freeze the vast stocks already accumulated.

This was accomplished by imposition on the industry of a stringent sales, production and price control plan drafted by NRA after the copper men failed to work out a definite solution of the surplus problem. They are at liberty to submit a different plan if they can frame one later.

The aim was to insure, despite stocks large enough to carry the country for 18 months, continued employment in mining. In reporting his action to President Roosevelt, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, said "the industry has indicated a willingness to coöperate in making this effective."

Worked Out by Division Chief.

The plan was worked out by H. O. King, now an NRA division administrator, who has been trying to get the code drafted since last August.

The code will go into effect April 26. It will establish sales allocation of 20,500 tons a month, divided among the producing companies in relation to their productive capacity. It will allow an additional 9,500 tons of sales to secondary producers who use scrap.

To keep their assigned sales quotas, producers must turn out substantially the quota total every three months so the domestic market will not be allowed to absorb metal drawn from old stocks. There is no restriction on exports.

The order designates newly mined copper as "blue eagle copper." It is to be branded with the eagle insignia and it alone may go into any government job. That puts it up to every business seeking to sell copper using equipment to the United States, to demand nothing but blue eagle copper for fabricating.

Purchasing Agreement.

The administrative order also calls upon all copper users to enter into agreement with the code authority for regular, sustained purchase of the metal needed for current use. Fabricating companies owned by copper companies already have agreed to buy 75 to 100 per cent of their current needs from new production instead of drawing upon stocks. These fabricators own a huge portion of the existing surplus.

Copper prices will be stabilized by

STOCKS UNEVEN, BUT TRADE IS MUCH HEAVIER

Silver Situation Proves Important Factor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—Today's short stock market was decidedly mixed, but the volume ran almost double that of last Saturday. Traders were unable to make up their minds about a number of overnight developments bearing on the all important question of money, and while one-half of the fraternity was buying on a guess that the silver crowd might carry the day on their inflation scheme despite the administration's opposition, the other half was taking its profits on the theory that the President would be able to maintain his reiterated stand against inflation at this time.

Silver Shares Weaken.

The further weakening of the dollar and the renewed importance of gold movements added to the confusion. Orders to buy and sell flew thick and fast at intervals, but most groups were unable to develop a definite trend.

Silver shares were an exception, United States Smelting, American Smelting, and others moving lower. American firmed up in the late trading, however, to close unchanged from last night.

Gold shares looked up, Homestake adding a little color to the early dealings by running ahead some 15 points, part of which it gave up on later selling orders. Dome finished a point higher, McIntyre was up a half and Alaska Juneau unchanged.

Aviation issues were mixed. Aviation Corporation, which did not fare so well in the mail contract competition, dropped a point. United Aircraft, higher in the earlier dealings, eased fractionally at the close and Wright gave up three points.

Renewed selling of Auburn Auto was a feature of the session. The once popular trading medium was driven to a new low for the year.

Selling in Power Issues.

Passage of the utility investigation resolution by the New York state legislature brought some selling into the power and light shares at first but the group firmed up after the first hour and Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey both finished on the plus side of the ledger.

Stimulated by the rubber restriction plan, the rubber shares were given another little whirl, U. S. Rubber going to a new high for the year on a fractional gain.

Chemical stocks bobbed up and down. Allied Chemical finished a point lower, as did Du Pont. Columbian and United Carbon, however, were both strong and active, particularly toward the last.

GRAIN TRADERS

Our bulletin of April 23 tells why we switched to the long side of Chicago and Winnipeg wheat immediately after taking 7⅛c profit on the short side of the market.

It also explains the cause of the market collapse in the early part of the past week. In this same bulletin we give all the more important factors influencing corn prices. There is also an article entitled, "My Method of Trading in Grain Futures."

Our bulletin of April 30 will give a long article on "The American Farm Policy and Its Relationship to Grain Prices."

The bulletin of April 23 will be sent by return mail and the bulletin of April 30 when issued on receipt of $1.00 in stamps, currency or personal check.

GRAINS PUSH UP ON PROSPECT OF FEDERAL ACTION

Inflation and U. S. Buying Plans Rumored.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Inflation talk rumors that the government might resume buying wheat for relief purposes and a more friendly feeling in general toward the buying side all played important parts in sending grain prices higher yesterday. There was a noticeable lack of pressure at times and at no time were prices more than a fraction below the finish on Friday, while the close was well toward the top.

Wheat finished with net gains of 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents. The May option closed at 77 to 77⅛ cents, going to ⅛ cent premium over the July delivery, after selling at ⅛ cent discount early. Corn gained ⅞ to 1¼ cents, with May 45½ to 45⅝ cents. Oats were ¼ to ⅜ cents higher, May being 28⅛ cents. Rye advanced ⅞ to 1⅛ cents and barley ¾ to 1 cent.

Minneapolis Wheat Strong.

The Minneapolis wheat market developed independent strength and closed about 1¾ cents higher. While removal of hedges by mills against flour sales had some influence there was buying of the July and September deliveries by commission houses, which was regarded as reflecting uneasiness over the critical crop and moisture situation developing in the northwest.

The basis for reports that the government might resume operations in the wheat market was based on THE TRIBUNE's story from Washington commenting on the administration's dissatisfaction over the failure of inflation to boost grain prices. It was recalled that on Oct. 17, 1933, when the wheat market dropped until the May option was 71½ cents, buying by the government lifted the price 7⅜ cents from the low point of that day. In all, around 15,000,000 bushels were taken before the buying movement ceased, which covered a period of some weeks.

Inflation Market Factor.

Two well defined inflation boom periods are disclosed by the action of the grain markets during the last year. The first movement actually started about a year ago with July wheat advancing from a low of 59⅜ cents on April 13, 1933, to a high of 72 cents before the end of the month. The movement continued irregularly upward to $1.17¼ on July 19, with a drop to 89¼ cents before the end of that month. July corn during the same period was slow in getting started, but moved up from 33 cents in April to 67 cents in July only to drop to 45¾ cents on July 31.

The second inflation boom started late in October, 1933, when the current delivery of May wheat touched 71½ cents. The price jumped to 96⅞ cents before the end of November and dropped to 72⅞ cents, the low point, last week.

May corn jumped from a low of 43¾ cents in October to a high of 56⅝ cents in November. The price gradually sagged until last week, when drastic liquidation carried the market down to 40 cents, a new low for the season.

COMMODITY PRICES MOVE LOWER; RUBBER STRONG EXCEPTION

Commodity markets were extremely unsettled during the last week and closed generally lower. All deliveries of corn, oats, rye and barley sold at new lows for the season with heavy liquidation under way. Substantial net losses were shown on all grains. Rubber was a strong exception, closing about ¼ cent a pound higher as the result of proposed restriction of the world's production.

FARMERS' MARCH INCOME SHOWS LARGE INCREASE

Government Hands Out $9,000,000 Benefits.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—The bureau of agricultural economics reported today that the cash income of farmers during March was $417,000,000 compared with $275,000,000 in March, 1933.

The March, 1934, income was composed of $408,000,000 from the sale of farm products and $9,000,000 from rental and benefit payments made by the farm administration for acreage reduction.

The bureau estimated the total cash income during the first three months of 1934 at $1,312,000,000 of which $97,000,000 came from benefit payments. Income for the first quarter of 1933 was $873,000,000.

Stronger markets for dairy and poultry products were important contributions to the increase, the bureau said, and income from cattle sales offset the reduced income from hog marketings.

April is Low Month.

Income from farm products in April is expected to be between $375,000,000 and $425,000,000. April is regarded by the bureau as the low point in income during the year. Income from live stock is expected to be larger in April than in March, but bureau officials said this increase will likely be offset to some extent by a decline in income from grains resulting from recent declines in grain prices.

Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, said American farmers participating in acreage reduction programs up to April 1, had received $179,702,687. The payments were made to 1,862,532 farmers who signed wheat, cotton, and tobacco contracts, renting portions of their acreage to the government.

The payments were distributed by commodities as follows: $112,472,670 to 1,032,154 cotton growers; $65,632,728 to 789,614 wheat farmers, and $1,597,288 to 31,764 tobacco producers.

The administration also spent $52,346,622 for surplus removal operations involving wheat, hogs, and dairy products, and $11,696,150 for administrative expenses.

Estimates Tobacco Income.

The farm administration estimated that the income of American tobacco farmers would reach approximately $214,000,000 during the 1933-'34 marketing year, an increase of more than 100 per cent over the preceding year.

Included in the estimate were benefit payments totaling $28,000,000 made to producers operating under acreage reduction contracts. Market receipts for the season were expected to total $186,000,000, compared with $105,000,000 for the 1932-'33 season.

Prices for all types of tobacco averaged about 25 per cent higher this season despite the fact that this year's crop was about 200,000,000 pounds—16 per cent—above world consumption.

Higher refunds to producers were made possible, officials said, because of the prompt action of a large percentage of tobacco growers in contracting to reduce this year's production and through marketing agreements made with domestic tobacco manufacturers. The manufacturers agreed to pay higher prices to producers.

BANKING SHARE PRICES ADVANCE IN LAST WEEK

Advances were registered by Chicago bank shares in the unlisted market last week. Continental Illinois National showed the largest gain, rising 9 points to close at 49½ bid to 50 asked. First National added 2 points and closed 117 to 119.

Northern Trust also gained moderately to close the week at 402 to 408. Bids for Harris Trust held around 235, without offerings. Stock of American National was bid up 5 points to 95.

Gen. W. I. Westervelt, technical advisor of Sears Roebuck & Co., has been put in charge of the company's wholly owned factories in addition to his present duties. Col. G. E. Humphrey formerly in charge of the factories is now president of the Sears owned Hercules Life Insurance and All State Insurance companies.

BOOST CHICAGO AS WHOLESALE TRADE CAPITAL

Group Will Emphasize City's Advantages.

Plans for a campaign designed to "sell" Chicago as the wholesale capital of the United States were announced yesterday by a committee representing the Chicago wholesale district which will be known as the Chicago Wholesale Market council.

Market Broad and Accessible.

The wholesale district represented lies in the area between the loop and the Chicago river. Members of the committee will point out the accessibility of the area to transportation and to the great market areas. Under the committee's plan properties will be improved, surveys will be made and buyers services established.

"By virtue of its exceptional advantages to manufacturers, wholesalers and buyers for retail establishments in all parts of the country," says a statement issued by the committee, "this market has every reason to become even more preëminent in the wholesale busines and it is the purpose of this program to capitalize fully upon these advantages. This expansion plan logically becomes a major part of the 'Keep Chicago Ahead' permanent effort."

Headquarters will be opened in the district and plans will be developed to offer services for retail buyers, sales promotion plans and merchandising events, including style shows and similar trade developments.

Scott Cites Growth of Trade.

Discussing the campaign, Mr. Scott, who is chairman of the council, said: "Chicago today as the distribution capital of the nation has a wholesale trade volume of approximately 5 billion dollars annually. This wholesale trade is distributed through more than 6,000 outlets representing 61 different trade classifications.

"When we made out first survey of the Chicago wholesale market 30 years ago—in 1904—we had 370 establishments doing about $330,000,000 worth of business annually. At that time our operations were confined to ten classifications of trade and did not include such major items as women's clothing to an appreciable extent, electrical supplies, jewelry, oils, and gasoline, novelties, toys, and many other lines of merchandise."

DEVALUATION RECOVERY CAUSE, SAYS GEN. WOOD

Kansas City, Mo., April 21.—(AP)—Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., here today on a combined business and pleasure trip, said that "recovery began with the devaluation of the gold dollar."

"The NRA didn't cause recovery," he declared. "There has been a lot of confused thinking on that subject. Unless we had gone off the gold standard there would have been no NRA. You can date recovery from the time we went off the gold standard last April.

"Producers' prices were abnormally low. This city's prosperity depends on the price farmers receive for grain and live stock. And all the NRA's in the world wouldn't have put prices up to where they are."

Gen. Wood defined the NRA as a social measure. He expressed the opinion that its provisions pertaining to wages, hours, and the abolition of child labor will be premanent benefits.

NEW BOND FINANCING FALLS TO $12,726,000; ISSUES QUICKLY SOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—New offerings of bonds dropped to $12,726,000 this week from $81,462,500 last week, and the five new issues placed on the market were quickly sold to investors. A year ago new bonds in the amount of $26,720,000 were marketed.

The principal offerings this week consisted of $6,500,000 state of Louisiana highway bonds, $2,500,000 Port of New York Authority Mid-town Tunnel bonds, and $2,706,000 Southern railway equipment trust certificates. The volume of new municipal financing was limited for the reason that only a few new issues came up for award this week.

Offerings of bonds for this and the last week follow:

	This week.	Last week.
State and municipal	$10,020,000	$23,533,500
Railroad	2,706,000	12,929,000

Totals	$12,726,000	$81,462,500

New state and municipal financing scheduled for next week totals $8,295,760, the Daily Bond Buyer reports.

SOUTH AFRICAN TRADE STATUS SHOWS UPTURN

Conditions Elsewhere Somewhat Mixed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—Improved conditions in South Africa were reported by the commerce department today in its weekly survey of foreign business activity based on advices from commercial attachés abroad. The report by countries follows in part:

Union of South Africa—Allowing for seasonal factors, general trading conditions have been encouraging and much better than the early part of 1933. Better trade conditions are spreading from more important commercial centers to smaller towns and agricultural areas. Orders for goods have generally been larger and more frequent, with noticeable improvement in agricultural implement and equipment business. The automobile trade reports encouragement over the general state of the market. Reports from the principal centers indicate that industrial activity is substantially greater.

Canadian Status Favorable.

Canada—No great change is noted in agricultural income; overseas shipments of wheat are small but steady. Stocks are decreasing slowly, the visible supply on March 29 amounting to 224 million bushels. Mining activity continues unabated, and in several areas the development of new properties is creating a favorable market for machinery and supplies. Pulp and paper companies are expanding operations. The large advance in automobile manufacture has affected favorably a wide range of Ontario supply plants, manufacturing parts, accessories, trimmings, electrical equipment and tires.

France—The political situation, rather than any economic factor, has continued the dominant influence in French business and while in the material sense no marked change took place during March, business sentiment, if anything, underwent further deterioration, all new initiative has been suspended pending concrete developments on which to base a future policy.

Italy Lacks Spring Spurt.

Italy—Productive activity is being well sustained in Italy but there are no indications of any particular seasonal stimulation. The level of business at this time, however, is considerably higher than at the corresponding period of last year. Shipbuilding activity remains at a low ebb. Building operations have improved slightly, but mainly in the public works field. The prospects for agricultural crops are as yet uncertain.

AM. RADIATOR STRIKE ENDED; COMPANY WINS

Bayonne, N. J., April 21.—(AP)—Striking employés of the American Radiator company's plant here voted 418 to 18 at a meeting today to accept the company's offer of a 10 per cent increase in wages and a forty hour week. They will return to work April 30, ending a strike that started last September, when 1,100 ment walked out, demanding a 25 per cent increase.

Under the company's offer there will be one shift instead of two and employment for only 500 men. Speakers at the meeting today pointed out that the number of employés now living in Bayonne has dwindled to approximately that number.

BANKING CODE ON INVESTMENT IN FORCE TOMORROW

Document Is Expected to Eliminate Abuses.

The "code of fair competition" for the investment banking business incorporating the principal reforms which have been sought by leaders in the business in recent years will become effective tomorrow. Rules drawn up by the code committee and approved by Recovery Administrator Johnson and President Roosevelt take on the full force of law.

Stringent regulation governing the origination of security issues, retail distribution, commissions, information for investors and miscellaneous rules are contained in the code.

A booklet detailing the code's full text together with statements by various officials of the Investment Bankers association and a descriptive analysis of the rules was released yesterday by the association.

Document Not a Panacea.

"We do not pretend to know any formula which will guarantee that all new securities are good securities, or that all which are good when new will continue good," Robert E. Christie Jr., president of the IBA, said in a statement outlining purposes of the new rules.

"If we knew such a formula we should embody it as the alpha and omega of the code. Not knowing it, we have had to try to be practical and place such safeguards at the disposal of the investing public as our experience shows should be constructive and protective. All of us want to see confidence reëstablished and to make our utmost contribution to its reëstablishment. For this fact can never be overlooked, that all negative regulations conceivable do not create a single new issue of securities, they do not finance a single new industry, they do not themselves create any new capital whatsover."

Mr. Christie emphasized regulations designed to correct abuses in security salesmanship and requirements for supplying adequate information to purchasers of securities.

Assures Full Publicity.

The code is designed to "assure the continuous disclosures of indispensable data, such as many corporations have supplied in the past," Mr. Christie said.

"Certainly not less important in security dealing than the disclosure of facts is correction of abuses in salesmanship," he added. "Under the stress of unregulated competition and persuasive influence of selling methods successful in other fields of American business, securities dealers in this country have allowed selling practices to grow up which have no proper place in the machinery of a capital market. The purchase of securities should not result from the mere selling ability of salesmen, but from a meeting of minds of the investor and his investment banker, in which the investor assumes a due sense of his own responsibility."

COTTON LOWER; TRADERS WATCH SILVER PROSPECTS.

The cotton market was not affected yesterday by the signing of the Bankhead production control bill by the President. Prices held within a range of less than 10 points in all of the leading markets. Selling by the south and scattered liquidation by commission houses offset trade, Japanese, and Liverpool buying. The general disposition was to await further developments at Washington, especially in regard to proposed silver legislation.

Closing trades were around the lowest level of the day. Chicago was unchanged to 4 cents lower and other markets off 1 to 4 cents per bale. Spot cotton declined 5 points in New York and New Orleans to 11.75 cents per pound. Galveston and Houston had a holiday. Prices:

CATTLE PRICES 70% ABOVE TAX BURDENED HOGS

Producers Fight Federal Processing Levy.

With cattle prices averaging 70 per cent over hogs and lambs selling 146 per cent above the tax burdened swine, the beef industry is awaiting with interest the reaction of producer sentiment on the proposed processing tax for cattle to be considered at the meeting of representatives of the industry in Chicago April 26. A year ago cattle averaged only 30 per cent above hogs and lambs then were outselling swine by 43 per cent.

Cattle feeders in many sections of the corn belt are planning to be well represented, and in view of what the tax has done to hogs many organizations of farmers are wiring and writing officials of the Agricultural Adjustment administration their protests against a similar handicap for beef.

Hogs Average 15 Cents Lower.

Hogs during the week averaged 15 cents lower, this making the seventh consecutive week that the average has declined. In fact the trend of the market has been consistently downward since March 1, when the processing tax was increased by order of Secretary Wallace to $2.25. Top hogs during the week were halted at $4.10, while top steers sold up to $8.15 and the top lambs reached $10.

The advance in the cattle market the first half of the week was the sharpest in many months, and elevated the bulk of quotations to the highest levels since November, 1932. The average for the week at $6.55 stood $1.70 above a year ago, an advance of 35 per cent, and it was above the 1932 level for the first time this year. A reactionary turn of the market after midweek carried plainer classes of light weights down 25 to 50 cents from the high spots but farmers held top classes of weighty steers back when the market showed signs of faltering. Consequently this class weakened only slightly and still is 25 to 40 cents above a week ago.

Cattle Supply is Large.

The rise in cattle came in face of heavy receipts and the competition of relatively cheap pork. Receipts of cattle at Chicago for the week at 46,500 were largest since the week ended Feb. 17.

Hog receipts also were heavier, but the gain in numbers was partly offset by lighter weights. Hogs are weighing 20 pounds lighter than in 1933.

Most live stock receipts on the weekend session were forwarded to packers from other points. Only 500 of the 11,500 hogs received were offered on the market. These sold slowly at steady to 10 cent lower prices, with Armour, Swift, and Wilson practically the only buyers. Some 250 pound butchers topped at $3.80, but no strictly choice lights were offered. The bulk of 270 to 310 pound averages cashed at $3.75 and most of the 450 to 500 pound sows sold around $3.05.

As usual there was no federal buying on the Saturday session. Four packers during the first five days obtained 11,500 head for the relief corporation. The contract on which they are now working does not terminate until May 2.

Lamb prices closed the week on a rise, the general average at $9.45 showing 30 cents advance. A year ago lambs averaged $5.30.

U. S. NEEDS PACT WITH SPAIN TO RECOVER TRADE

Reciprocal Exchange Is Suggested.

BY HOWARD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MADRID, Spain, April 21.—American trade with Spain, which during the years after the war grew to profitable proportions, has dropped off badly. Investigation reveals that this is due only in part to the depression and that two obstacles stand in the way of a wide market being opened here for American manufactures.

First, Spain is following the other countries of Europe in initiating a system of bargaining and is buying only from countries which agree to buy more from her. The Franco-Spanish commercial treaty signed early in March is the latest result of this bargaining and hits a number of American exports. Second, the United States at the demand of domestic producers has raised tarifs on Spanish products, and Spain has retaliated.

New Trade Treaty Sought.

But this does not mean that Spanish markets must be closed to us defintly in favor of some other country. This once sleepy nation of 23,000,000 people is rapidly becoming an important market for machinery and scores of manufacturers. With the United States and Spain on excellent diplomatic terms, Spanish authorities admit that America can keep its share of this market by making a deal profitable to both sides.

The moment is right for a new trade treaty to replace the present loose working agreement. While Spain has complained for years that the United States maintained a trade balance two to one in its favor, we are now buying quantities of Spanish wines and can expect better treatment as a result. Furthermore, in quoting trade figures Spain has overlooked her invisible exports to America in the past, the chief of which has been the money spent here by American tourists.

Spain Needs Machinery.

A preliminary survey by THE TRIBUNE showed that industrial equipment and electrical machinery, including radios, offer the best prospects for future sales in Spain. But before thinking of an increase something must be done quickly to protect the present sales of American producers in these lines. Sales declined from $4,800,000 in 1928 to $2,340,000 in 1932, and there are indications that tarifs in favor of European manufacturers are being considered.

By far the most important American export to Spain has been raw cotton for the mills of Catalonia. This export declined drastically in the last few years but still amounted to $13,000,000 in 1932. Here again the United States must be on its toes, however, for other nations, who seem willing to grant concessions to Spain, have their eyes on this market.

If we are to regain our market here Spain wants us to buy more onions, olives and olive oil, cork, skins, almonds, paprika, iron pyrites, copper ore and mercury. For some of these products, such as cork and mercury, the United States, in the opinion of Spanish authorities, must grant concessions if it is to bargain.

REVEAL BRITISH EXCHANGE FUND EARNS PROFIT

Budget Omits Provision for Debt Payment.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 21. — Chancellor Chamberlain's budget announcement was quickly eclipsed this week; eclipsed by two developments growing out of the budget.

One was his remark that the exchange equalization fund thus far has shown a profit. This might be explained by the fact that the huge fund of about $1,875,000,000 had so much invested in gold bullion bought at lower levels that it showed a net profit. Or it might mean that it was so skilfully operated that it also showed a profit on its purchases and sales of currency—a fairly difficult feat.

The house of commons, feeling that this was a huge sum to intrust to the Bank of England, has tried hard at various times to force some publicity regarding the state of the fund, but Chamberlain has refused on the ground that such publicity would be invaluable to speculators.

Fund Operation Secret.

J. M. Keynes, economist, pointed out that the secrecy surrounding operations of the fund is 'unfair to other central banks which publish weekly how much gold and foreign exchange they have, but Chamberlain was unmoved.

The fund is audited periodically in behalf of the government by the controler and auditor general, but, apart from Chamberlain's occasional assurances, the foreign exchange market gets no inkling as to whether the fund is going into the red or coming out. The new American fund, of course, is wrapped in similar secrecy.

The other point which speedily eclipsed the actual budget was omission of any provision for the American debt. This has revived in financial circles discussion as to what lump sum in full and final settlement of the war debt will be tendered by the British government to the United States in June. For that, it is believed, is now the only course left open to the government since the Johnson bill presumably closed the door to token payments.

May Be Resented.

The difficulty is that the lump sum tendered will be so small—if the budget is not to be upset—as to excite considerable feeling in certain sections of American opinion. On the other hand, if the sum offered is so large it can only be met by a patriotic loan in Great Britain, the loan itself will not improve Anglo-American relations.

In that sort of atmosphere, reasons the City, some attempt must be made to reach important subsequent agreements on tarifs, trade and currencies.

The steel industry now is operating at 80 per cent of capacity. That brings up the curious fact that although the British steel industry is overcapitalized, it is not actually overbuilt. It has a capacity of around 12,000,000 tons yearly, which is not excessive in the sense that America's 31,000,000 tons appear to be.

During the time that American steel companies were most actively expanding, British companies marked time. Today, with plants only moderately expanded, they can operate around 80 per cent of capacity. But their fixed charges are high and costs are high and it is the new domestic markets rather than old foreign markets which are keeping them going.

NRA SETS FIRM CODE RULES ON COPPER INDUSTRY

Limits Sales, Ties Up Vast Stocks.

each firm reporting its price to the sales agent appointed under the code authority. He will notify all competitors of each filing and will issue daily a composite, weighted figure designated the code authority price.

The labor provisions, voluntarily proffered by the industry, establish a 40 hour maximum work week, averaged over three months, and minimum wages ranging from 32½ to 47½ cents. The lowest wages obtain in the great lakes district for surface labor, with 37½ cents the minimum underground.

Wage Schedules.

In other districts wages are: Northeastern, surface labor, 37½ cents; southeastern, surface labor, 35 cents; southwestern, surface labor, 30 cents, and underground labor 45 cents; northwestern, surface, 40 cents, and underground, 47½ cents.

An exception is established in that wherever existing schedules are higher they may not be reduced, and the underground rate in the Ray district of Arizona shall not be less than 38 cents an hour.

Officials of the Anaconda Copper Mining company, giant of the industry, opposed the sales and production control plan of the administration at earlier public hearings. They remained unwilling to subscribe to the plan on their own motion because, they pointed out, a wholly owned fabricating subsidiary consuming far more than Anaconda's quota would have to buy from other miners despite uneconomic transportation.

No other company filed objection to the administration plan, with the exception of the Arizona independent group, which is opposed to the entire code.

Sales Allocations.

The sales quota allocations are figured on a sliding scale of percentages, related to potential annual production. Little companies get a higher percentage than the big ones. The table follows:

	Potential annual tonnage.	Monthly percentage sales quota.
Kennecott Copper	366,500	1.67
Anaconda Copper Mining	225,000	1.67
Phelps Dodge	168,000	1.67

Magma Copper	25,000	2.50

Olds Motor Employment Reaches an All-Time High

Lansing, Mich., April 21.—[Special.]—Officials of the Olds Motor works revealed today that employment in the Oldsmobile and Fisher Body company plants here has reached an all time high well in excess of 7,000 persons. A night assembly line was started this week and production is now at a point which will assure an April output triple that of April, 1933. Orders on hand for the low priced six cylinder line warant a continued increase in the production pace during May and June, it was indicated.

LARD UP; FREIGHT RATE CUT TO SPUR EXPORTS

Purchases of American lard by the British Coöperative society during the last week are estimated in trade gossip to have exceeded 5,000,000 pounds. Lower ocean freight rates are scheduled to go into effect on May 1 and large clearances are expected to be made from the seaboard after that date.

It is understood that two boats are now en route from Europe to Chicago. So far charters for exports of packing house products are said to be light.

Trade in provision futures yesterday was light. Lard closing 5 cents higher on all deliveries, while cash was up 5 cents at $6, and loose and leaf advanced 12½ cents to $6. Bellies were unchanged to 5 cents lower with cash lots steady at $7.87½. Prices:

EGGS WEAK; STATISTICAL NEWS RESTRICTS BUYING

Butter futures dropped ¼c on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, while eggs were unchanged.

October eggs opened ⅛c higher in fair demand, but statistical news did not encourage buying and pressure increased near the close. Chicago receipts were heavy and the movement into storage was only 480 cases less than a year ago.

November butter came in for more selling attention at the ¼c lower price. There was somewhat more interest displayed in the market, which probably can be expected from now on with the storage season near at hand. Sales: Butter, 10 cars; eggs, 27 cars. Prices:

SEE IMPROVED TRAFIC IN PARK CONSOLIDATION

Will Speed Completion of Outer Bridge.

The consolidation of Chicago's park districts should expedite completion of the outer link bridge, facilitate the operation of a progressive light system in Michigan avenue, and bring about a general improvement in trafic control on the city's boulevard system.

As for the bridge, James M. Slattery, attorney for the Lincoln park board, has given an opinion that the unified park board can now qualify for a $6,678,000 federal loan. The span at the mouth of the river will link the water front boulevards of the north and the south sides and will relief congestion on Michigan avenue.

There is still fifteen months' work to be done on the outer link bridge, but Michigan avenue is to receive an appreciable improvement within the next few weeks with the installation of a modern trafic light system

Controversial Bickering

Because this boulevard from Oak street to Roosevelt road was under the jurisdiction of three muncipalities—south parks, city of Chicago, and Lincoln park—controversial bickering delayed the installation for two years

Last winter, the three municipalities finally signed contracts for the progressive light equipment. It will permit a driver to travel Michigan avenue at a designated speed for the length of the control system without being stopped by a red light. The speed wil be varied to meet changing conditions of weather and trafic volumes, and in these variations of timing it is essential that there is no conflict betwen the control north and the control south of the bridge.

Policing should improve with the consolidation of the parks. Under Capt. James U. Sammis Jr., the Lincoln park police have developed a reputation for being "fix" proof. The department also maintains its own indexed records of trafic violators so judges can be asked to penalize repeaters. But these records do not include violations in south park, west park or other parts of the city. Capt. Sammis' methods could be extended over the unified parks.

South Park Trafic System

In trafic control, the south parks have done the outstanding job in the city, having jurisdiction over the World's Fair system. Otto K. Jelinek, south parks trafic engineer, is generally credited with having developed the plan for a Century of Progress that moved larger volumes of vehicles with less delays and less accidents than at any similar big event in the United States. He could give valuable advice to other park districts.

Standardization of signs and signals throughout the park districts would be of benefit to Chicago drivers as well as to visitors. There are now variations in arrangements of the lights, in turning regulations and in design of the signs, all confusing to a motorist away from familiar pavement.

The north shore park district, with its extravagance of lights north from Devon avenue in Sheridan road to Evanston, permits turns off the boulevard on either the red or the green and permits right turns onto the boulevard on the red.

Variations in Signals

The Lincoln park board in Sheridan road south of Devon avenue has substituted a red lens in its control lights where an amber ordinarily appears. Strangers sometimes make stops too sudden for safety when this intermediate red catches them on an intersection. On the outer drive, just north of the Montrose grade seperation, a flashing red, similar to a signal for an approaching train at a railroad grade separation, has recently been installed to mark a center esplanade between one-way drives.

On the west park boulevards, the amber lenses have been entirely removed from those standards viewed by motorists on the left curbs. A driver ufamiliar with this local practice may be watching the lights to his left rather than those to the right and find a green change to red without warning as he is about to enter an intersection too close to stop.

Few Stop Signs Alike.

All of the park districts are guilty of having a variety of stop signs, few of them conforming in shape or color to the standard practices on rural highways. Most of their stop signs are shields rather than octagonals and with black rather than red backgrounds.

"With the parks consolidated," said George Barton, trafic engineer for the Chicago Motor club, "automobile owners can hope for a general improvement directed by a strong centralized authority strong enough to eliminate all speed traps and ticket fixing and big enough to carry out the recommendations of its trafic engineers."

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, April 21.—Trade in the Boston wool market remained unusually dull with most houses during the past week. Late in the week an occasional member of the trade noticed a little better feeling, but this had not, in most cases, developed into an active demand. Quotations were weak on medium fleeces and fairly firm on western grown wools. Indicative of the firmness of prices on western grown wools was the sale late this week of a sizeable quantity of choice twelve months Texas wool at 84@85c, scoured basis, the nominal quotation range that has prevailed for the last two weeks.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Checks totaling $73,650 are being mailed this week to nearly 982 Chevrolet salesmen all over the United States who qualified for membership in the Chevrolet 100 Car club by their automobile sales performance in 1933. The announcement was made today by William E. Holler, general sales manager of Chevrolet.

Mr. Holler also announced the national officers of the club, selection of whom is made each year on the basis of new car sales. The officers are: President, G. L. Carlat, Chicago, 391 new cars; vice president, Wesley Perry, Pittston, Pa., 285 new cars; secretary, A. H. Cooper, Chicago, 281 new cars, and treasurer, S. M. Strott, Chicago, 243 new cars. All three Chicago men are connected with the same dealership, Nelson Chevrolet sales.

For the third successive week retail deliveries of Plymouth cars have established a new all-time peak for the company, H. G. Moock, general sales manager, announced recently. For the week ending April 7 9,007 Plymouth cars were delivered at retail, an increase of 7.5 per cent over the previous peak week and more than three times greater than the same week of last year, Mr. Moock reported.

Total Plymouth orders received this year to date have passed the 200,000 mark, as compared with 42,473 on the same date in 1933. These orders include domestic, export, and Canadian.

E. J. Poag, director of merchandising and advertising for Dodge, today announced the appointment of a staf of regional merchandising managers to work with dealers in the twelve Dodge sales regions covering the country and out of the home office in effecting a closer liaison between the factory merchandising department and the dealer organization to the end of establishing a continuously effective application of the Dodge and Plymouth sales procedure to the dealers' retail operations.

Assignments are as follows: Atlanta region, W. B. Lowe; Boston, Walter Scholl; Chicago, C. R. Vance; Cincinnati, G. C. Murray; Dallas, D. C. Barnett; Detroit, W. S. Madigan; Kansas City, L. S. Redford; New York, R. B. McIlhany and M. Casteel; Philadelphia, P. N. Minnich; Pittsburgh, Arhe E. Campbell; St. Louis, E. P. O'Shields; San Francisco, C. M. Aldrich.

Frank Bauer, for many years associated with Community Motors, in charge of their wholesale department, is now the Pontiac dealer for the near north side under the firm name of Bauer Motors, Inc., and is located at 1111 North Clark street. In addition to a complete line of Pontiacs on his salesroom floor, Mr. Bauer has modern, up to date facilities for rendering complete service.

A new Graham car was conspicuous at the national indoor polo championship tournament which opened last night at the 124th field artillery armory.

Through arrangements between the polo committee and the Bird-Sykes company, Chicago distributors, the Graham sedan will perform the function of pulling the "drag," which is an attachment for leveling off the playing field before each game and between halves.

America has outdistanced the world in motor car design and Europe is showing unusual enthusiasm for the newest American models, according to Byron C. Foy, president of the De Soto Motor corporation and secretary of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who has just returned from a month's European tour.

"Everywhere I went tribute was paid to the Airflow De Soto cars," Mr. Foy said. "These new models were received with great interest by European car manufacturers and stylists. Designers of European cars told me they expected many of the costly foreign cars to adopt a number of the important features of the Airflow De Soto."

Announcement was made today by Lloyd Johnson, general manager of the Auburn Chicago company, of the appointment of Richard J. Stenger as retail sales manager for the company. Stenger has been wholesale manager of the Auburn Chicago company for the last three years and will continue to hold that position as well as be in charge of the retail end. E. A. Pelnar will be his assistant in the retail division. Robert L. Marston, whom Stenger succeeds as retail sales manager, has been appointed manager of the Auburn Chicago west side branch, located at 4701 West Washington boulevard.

General Motors foreign sales of car and truck units for the first quarter of 1934 totaled 39,616 units, an increase of 79 per cent over the total for the corresponding period of 1933 and an increase of 83 per cent over the total for the first quarter of 1932.

The March results, reflecting a continuation of the vigorous upward trend which has been in evidence since the spring of 1933, were at the highest level of any month since May, 1930. The total of 18,106 units was 88 per cent greater than the total in March, 1933, and 123 per cent greater than the total in March, 1932.

Chrysler's complete departure from conventional practices in the design and construction of the new Airflow car is strikingly illustrated in the newly created department for the manufacture of complete seat units. In effect Chrysler has gone into the metal furniture business on a large scale, with new machinery designed especially for the purpose and a new crew of mechanics trained in its own factory.

The seats in the cars are cradled in chromium plated steel tubing, the completed unit resembling modernistic chairs or davenports. By the use of this construction it is claimed it is possible to leave a considerable air space under the front seat, an obvious advantage in that it permits the free circulation of cool air in summer and of air warmed by the car heater in winter.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

NEEDED GRADE SEPARATION.

Chicago, April 18.—There is no doubt that the public would receive more benefit from a few grade separations located where there is considerable traffic density than from a number of grade separations on new roads with light travel. On the other hand, it is easy to see why these installations have been made first on new roads, because it is easier to put them in at the same time a new road is being built.

With these considerations in mind, I wish to point to the junction of Randolph street and Leif Ericson drive, where construction has not yet been started, as a place where a grade separation should by all means be installed. This could be laid out so as to place the grade separation entirely in Grant park, avoiding any difficulty about obtaining consents of private owners, and as the roadways will be elevated in any event there should be a minimum of additional expense.

As far as I can make out the plan commission is opposed to a grade separation in the northeast corner of Grant park for esthetic reasons and explains that this junction has been laid out with a widening of the roadways so that there will be "adequate storage space" for waiting cars. If there is anything a motorist does not want, it seems to me, it is a plan contemplating delays which necessitate "adequate storage space."

But it is not necessary to argue this matter on a theoretical basis alone, as the junction of Oakwood boulevard with the drive along the lake on the south side and grade separations in the new extension of Lincoln park between Irving Park boulevard and Foster avenue on the north side show the advantages of a grade separation, while the tangle and delay at the junction of Addison street and Sheridan road show the bad results of not having a grade separation.

In other words, a "T" junction such as the proposed junction of Randolph street and Leif Ericson drive in the northeast corner of Grant park needs a grade separation almost as much as a four corner intersection.

CECIL BARNES.

ON FRIDAY, THE 13TH.

Chicago, April 14.—Heaven preserve the handsome lad whose sporting car nearly ran me down at Huron street and Michigan avenue, Friday the 13th. He evidently doesn't believe in red lights, for he drove straight through this one. I was close to playing a harp.

HELEN KING.

CAR WATCHERS.

Chicago, April 17.—Of all the rackets I have ever encountered in Chicago, recently I found the prize winner. When attempting to attend fights at the 124th Field artillery, 52d and Cottage Grove avenue, a soldier, whom we pay taxes to maintain, in a public park, which we pay taxes to maintain, asked 25 cents to park my car.

It's bad enough to pull up to a theater or popular café and have some boy ask to watch your car, which they know and every one else knows is impossible. Just a racket. Why can't it be stopped?

J. M. S.

ILLEGAL PARKING.

Chicago, April 17.—I would like to call your attention to a condition which exists at Belmont and Central avenues, the end of the Belmont avenue street car line. On both sides of Belmont avenue there are "No parking at any time" signs. These, however, are repeatedly disregarded and automobiles park along both curbs for the entire length of the block, while the street cars stand here at the end of the run.

Automobiles wishing to continue west on Belmont have no alternative but to use the left traffic lane at the risk of arrest or collision with cars coming in the opposite direction or parked along the curb. Police vigilance in this vicinity would eliminate the trafic hazard.

LEGISLATION TO CUT AUTO CRASH TOLL PLANNED

Financial Responsibility Is Demanded.

BY HAL FOUST.

A state-wide campaign for drivers' license and financial responsibility legislation will be launched at a mass meeting on Friday at Springfield, Ill. Three thousand civic organizations and public officials have been invited to attend.

The movement is inspired by this year's increasing trafic toll, downstate even more than in Chicago. The Illinois department of public health recently made public its statistics for January showing that automobile fatilities were up 55.6 per cent for downstate and up 30.7 per cent for Chicago as compared with the same month of last year.

"The annual economic loss from automobile accidents in Illinois is estimated at $140,000,000," said Lyle T. McArthur, chairman of the safety council of the Peoria Association of Commerce. "The suffering from deaths and personal injuries can not be evaluated. It is imperative that the public should be protected from the motor hazard by all possible legislative safeguards."

Will Curb Recklessness.

"This drivers' license law and financial responsibility law," said Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, "will curb recklessness on the streets and highways and will provide compensation for victims of accidents.

"At present only about 30 per cent of the drivers of this state carry any liability insurance. A large portion of the other 70 per cent is judgment proof.

"There are drivers with junk automobiles who care little whether their own valueless cars are wrecked and care less when they wreck other machines because they are aware that no judgment against them can be collected. There are also men of substantial means who carry no insurance and who dodge responsibility by listing all of their assets in the names of their wives.

"A survey by Columbia and Yale universities showed that noninsured drivers paid no damages to the victims in 17 per cent of their fatal accidents, 21 per cent of the permanently disabled cases, and 27 per cent of the other personal injury cases."

Not Compulsory Insurance.

The safety responsibility act is not compulsory insurance. The measure, now enforced in twenty-nine states provides that after a driver has been proved guilty of recklessness and assessed damages, the motorist must pay the judgment and establish his financial responsibility for any future accidents before he is permitted again to operate a vehicle. An insurance policy is accepted as evidence of means to pay damages for any future accidents.

"The car owner without means to carry insurance is not deprived of his automobile," said Mr. Braun. "He is not deprived of his driving privilege unless a court finds him guilty of recklessness. This is true even if he is involved in an accident, as long as the accident was not his fault.

"Experience under the financial responsibility act in other states has shown that this law makes very careful drivers of the motorists without insurance. They operate their cars aware that any recklessness might bring upon them a judgment for damages that would deprive them of their driving privileges should they be unable to pay.

Drivers' License Act.

"Compulsory insurance is operative in but one state in the union, Massachusetts. There the careful driver who uses his car but once or twice a week is burdened with the expense of a policy. And there is no influence against recklessness because the financial aspects of an accident are handled entirely by the surety companies."

The drivers' license act, as proposed, is designed mainly as an enforcement measure for the financial responsibility bill. However, it would also provide for suspension or revocation after conviction for serious infraction of the trafic code, such as driving while intoxicated or fleeing from the scene of an accident. Unlike drivers' license bills that have been defeated in previous general assemblies, it would not provide for an army of state examiners to be supported by new taxes.

SILVER FUTURES

Silver futures broke sharply yesterday. The close was at net losses of .50@60c, the finish being well toward the bottom. Trade was only moderately active, with considerable uncertainty in evidence as to the outcome of the conference between senate silver bloc leaders and President Roosevelt. Foreign bar silver was ⅛c lower at 45c per oz. Sales of futures aggregated 139 lots or 3,475,000 oz. May closed at 45.10@45.15c; July, 45.55c; September, 45.90c; December, 46.45@55c and January at 46.55c.

RENT RATES CLIMB ON SOUTH SIDE

DR. CLINTON COX TODAY TO MARK AN ANNIVERSARY

Completes 16 Years in Pastorate.

Dr. Clinton C. Cox, pastor of the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue, will round out his 16th year with the congregation today.

DR. CLINTON C. COX.

Various phases of the church's growth from a handful of members to the third largest membership in the city will be discussed by various speakers this morning and tonight.

The senior choir will furnish special music for both morning and evening services. As the evening program opens all leaders of the church's organization will march into the auditorium en masse.

42 Members to 2,700.

When Dr. Cox took charge of things at the church there were only forty-two members. They worshiped in a small building that was worth only a few hundred dollars. Today more than 2,700 members hear him each Sunday in a $250,000 edifice. The Sunday school has more than 450 members.

Dr. Cox is a native of Missouri and was educated at the Missouri Valley college, Marshall, Mo., the University of Chicago, and the Chicago Presbyterian seminary. He was pastor six years in Missouri before coming here.

His rise from a poor, motherless boy who slept untold nights in a blacksmith shop with nothing under him but burlap, pieces of canvas for blankets, and a blue work jacket under his head for a pillow sounds like an Alger yarn.

Apprentice to Blacksmith.

He, according to the Missouri Valley college which bestowed the doctor of divinity degree on him a few years ago, "arose from the dust of that blacksmith shop where he worked as an apprentice to prove to the world that he who has a will will find a way."

But Dr. Cox, known then as Clint, didn't find the way smooth and easy, the report from the institution explained. He had to study by day, work by night, and sleep whenever he could find a slight pause in his heavy twenty-four hour schedule.

Dr. John De Lacy, pastor of the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church, recently praised Dr. Cox, saying:

"It has been a great pleasure to have worked in the same community with Clint Cox for a quarter of a century. He is a fine minister of the gospel and a great neighbor."

VOTERS' LEAGUE OF HYDE PARK TO MEET TOMORROW

Members of the Hyde Park League of Women Voters are focusing their attentions upon the biennial convention which is scheduled to take place this week in Boston from April 23 to 28. Members of the Hyde Park organization who will attend include: Mrs. George G. Bogert, president; Mrs. Quincy Wright, secretary of the national league; Mrs. Archer Taylor, chairman of the child welfare department of the Illinois league, and Miss Julia Stebbins, representative of the Cook County league.

Tomorrow, the members of the Hyde Park group will meet at 2:30 o'clock in the First Unitarian church house, 57th street and Woodlawn avenue. "Delinquent Girls" will be the subject on which Miss Florence Monahan, managing officer of the training school for girls in Geneva, Ill., will speak. The program is in charge of the social hygiene department of which Mrs. E. H. Sutherland is chairman.

In connection with this meeting, a field trip is being planned for members of the league to visit the training school at Geneva next Monday. Miss Julia Tolman is in charge of arrangements.

FELLOWSHIP CLUB OF SOUTH SHORE TO DINE APRIL 29

The annual dinner of the Bowling league of the South Shore Fellowship club will be held Sunday evening at the Windermere hotel.

One of the main features of the affair will be an entertainment by all men of the organization for their wives who will be guests.

Officers of the club are S. J. Graff, 1937 Essex avenue, president; A. E. Greenspahn, 6834 Oglesby avenue, vice president; J. A. Rosenthal, 7717 Essex avenue, secretary and R. N. Lesch, 6810 Paxton avenue, treasurer.

Sorority to Celebrate Its 29th Anniversary

Mrs. Louis B. Elliott, 6837 Union avenue, will be hostess to the Delta Alpha sorority at the Blackstone hotel Thursday evening when the organization will celebrate its 29th anniversary. Delta Alpha is interested in giving financial assistance to high school girls. The group meets regularly at the Blackstone hotel. Miss Frances Thexton, 7109 Champlain avenue, is grand president.

They Are Arranging U. of Chicago Military Ball

OUR TOWN

OF course, whooping cough is highly contagious. If you don't believe so, ask the Rev. and Mrs. Ray Wassel and their baby daughter, Nancy . . . especially Nancy. The three were attending a meeting recently when a child started to whoop. They departed in haste, but all too late, for now there is a whooping cough sign on the Wassels' door.

Samuel J. Cohen has been elected president of Congregation Rodfei Zedek. Herman H. Newberger is vice president.

MANNY COHEN, executive secretary of the Englewood Business Men's association, is, in his own words, running his legs off for the sake of the district vanities to be staged May 21 and 22 in the Stratford theater by Paul Ash, under auspices of Manny's business group.

Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold A. Becker will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary tonight at their home at 3619 South Honore street. More than fifty relatives will be their guests.

BUD SINGMAN, commander of Grand Crossing post, No. 439, American Legion, is busy hearing all kinds of tunes—sweet and sour—at auditions for a membership night program tomorrow night. He is responsible for the post's music. Grand Crossing now has 55 new members. They will be initiated by a ritual team from the Beverly Hills Post, No. 407.

Harry Wellman of the American Foresters is sporting a new wool sweater with fancy silk designs. It is a prize for an essay he submitted nearly a year ago in a contest conducted by the American Wool Producing association. He had forgotten about his contribution until recently when he received a request for his size.

The children and friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Dahlbom, 3503 South Mozart street, gave a surprise celebration for them on their 55th wedding anniversary Sunday. Mr. Dahlbom is 81 years old and Mrs. Dahlbom is 75. Both were born in Sweden and have lived in their present home for 30 years. They have seven sons and daughters, nineteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

"Everybody, everybody out!" This is the way William V. Lane, publicity chairman of the Kiwanis club of Englewood, is telling his fellow Kiwanians that they better not miss Tuesday's ladies' day meeting in the Englewood Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Richard Washington last week was called from his vacation at Colonial Beach, Va., by the death of his uncle, Lloyd Washington, of the Weidermere West hotel. The Washingtons are descendants of the family of George Washington.

It won't be long now before John Hansen will be tramping through the woodlands of Maine. He is leaving on a month's vacation Friday.

Dr. Harold L. Bowman, pastor of the First Presbyterian churcsh, 64th street and Kimbark avenue, will review current books tonight. During a spring and summer series he plans to discuss several recent and significant writings. Last Sunday night he gave a sermon-review of Eugene O'Neill's "Days Without End."

William Davis, president of the Roseland Young American club, is having a swell time with the mumps. Bill is peeved because he was ready to return to work after an attack in the left jaw when his right one puffed up.

ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Specht, 11147 Esmond street, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jewel Specht, above, to Beverley G. Fonda, 9726 Prospect avenue, at a dinner party in the Specht home Friday evening. The wedding will take place next fall. [Gibson Studio.]

Players to Interpret Hymns in Hyde Pk. Church Pageant

BY JOHN ASTLEY-COCK.

"How did our Hymnal come into existence?" was a question put so frequently to the ministers by members of the Hyde Park Baptist church, 5600 Woodlawn avenue, that the Rev. Rolland W. Schloerb resolved to enlighten his congregation on the great Protestant collections of religious poetry.

THE REV. R. W. SCHLOERB.

The climax of his instruction, which began months ago with short biographical detail in the weekly leaflet on the hymns selected for that particular Sunday will be reached tonight with the presentation of "The Great Anthology" produced under the direction of Miss May Gilby.

Each Age Contributes.

"For three hundred years," said Dr. Schloerb, "English hymns have been written for use in public worship. Each age has made its contribution to our religious heritage through its song of praise. Consequently, in our services we sing those hymns which represent the development of religious experience and thus enter into a new appreciation of hymnology as one phase in the history of man's eternal quest."

"The Great Anthology," written by Dr. Schloerb primarily to arouse the interest of the young people, is a dramatic service in which the congregation participates by singing that hymn composed by the character represented on the stage.

Rev. Bowman to Launch Series.

The Rev. Harold L. Bowman, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, 6400 Kimbark avenue, is delivering a series of sermons this month on Sunday mornings under the general title "What is Right and Why is it Right."

"In these days of transition," said Dr. Bowman, "thoughtful people should face the fundamentals underlying character and understand the relation of religion to morality."

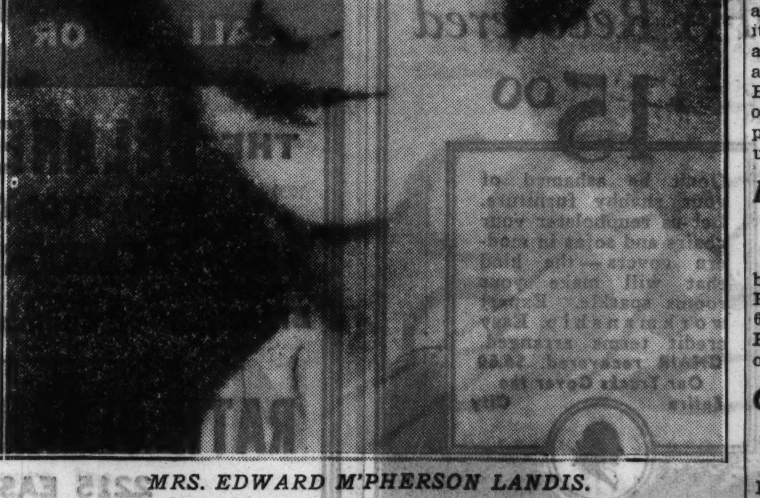
These addresses are intended to aid people to grasp the evolution which is occurring today from authoritarian morality to a valid ethic, and the subject this morning is "Is Religion Necessary for the Good Life?"

The Rev. W. S. Long, pastor of the Church of Christ, 7157 Cornell avenue, will preach this morning on "Paul's Prayer for the Church," and at 8 o'clock tonight the speaker will be Dr. Lloyd Cline Sears, dean of Harding college, Morrilton, Ark.

Bethany Reformed Church.

Dr. Harry J. Hager, pastor of the Bethany Reformed church of Roseland, at 10 o'clock this morning will preach on "The Resurrection and the Church's Message."

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED



MRS. EDWARD M'PHERSON LANDIS.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rudolph Byland of 7639 Cornell avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Martha, to Edward McPherson Landis, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Bryant Landis, at 4:30 last Friday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Dr. Landis read the ceremony. Young Mr. Landis and his bride will be at home at 401 Wilcox street in Joliet.

Kill Pigeons, Plea of 79th St. Exchange

Branding pigeons as "filthy pests that build fire hazards, and damage wearing apparel," the 79th Street Commercial Exchange last night declared it would seek the necessary municipal legislation to rid Chicago of the birds.

J. E. Hansen, president, asserted that all the city must go "anti-pigeon minded" if any section is to benefit, inasmuch as it would do one district very little good to destroy the birds when hundreds more could fly in as fast as nests were burned and buildings recleaned.

"Speaking of improvements, the city minded folks can have something really worthwhile if they will go about stirring up sentiment against the so called pets that have become more obnoxious each year," Mr. Hansen pointed out.

Damage of $100,000.

"Conservative estimators report," Mr. Hansen continued, "that pigeons shall damage the city at least $100,000 from 1932 to 1935. This is the cash cost alone, saying nothing about physical and mental discomfort.

"A humane method of pigeon disposal could be devised that would help the poor. Our organization believes drives should be made on the birds when they are not hatching or rearing their young. The fowls could be dressed by charity workers and placed in cold storage for weekly distribution among those needing free meat.

About eight years ago the West Pullman Improvement association suggested a plan similar to the one above, and at one time it was believed that a petition for a pigeon ballot would be circulated, but due to other business deemed more urgent, the idea was abandoned.

Fires Start in Nests.

Among the arguments used by the West Pullman group was fire prevention.

The improvers revealed that several large fires in buildings near railroad tracks had started under the eves in nests.

It is estimated that the pigeon population within the city increases more than 7,000 a year.

SUMMER CAMP ANNOUNCED FOR HARVEY GIRLS

Girls of Harvey and surrounding territory can enjoy camp life during June on the Black Hawk Boy Scout reservation near Buchanan, Mich.

All arrangements and activities will be under the direction of Miss Martha G. Carr, head of the department of physical education for girls of Thornton Township High school and Junior college. She will be assisted by Miss Martha Lou Gray, instructor in the physical education department.

The camp will be open to college, high school, and grade school girls. Among activities to be offered are swimming, canoeing, dancing, archery, volley ball, baseball, and handcraft. There will also be tutoring in piano, glee club and dramatics.

CRERAR CHURCH MEN TO PRESENT MINSTREL SHOW

Members of the Men's club of the Crerar Memorial Presbyterian church, 81st street and Calumet avenue, will present a minstrel show Thursday and Friday night. Homer O. Ball, 8143 Vernon avenue, is president of the organization and organizer of the players. George De Ment, 8142 Michigan avenue, will be in charge of the music. Each performance will last two hours. Proceeds will be donated to the general church fund.

GENERAL GAINS POINT WAY TO BETTER TIMES

Increase Gives Work to 800 Painters.

Rents are advancing on the south side, telling a story of more work, more wages and the subsequent greater competition among tenants.

Rate increases of about 7 per cent have permitted building agents to employ approximately 800 additional decorators who will help the regular forces keep apartments in predepression condition. When rentals were reduced beyond the point where returns could be made on real estate investments, a large number of persons employed to maintain the structures were laid off.

Robert E. Miller, renting manager for McKey & Poague, last week reported that the company manages 10,000 south side apartments and that the majority of the rentals have been increased from $2.50 to $5 per month.

The Market Is Bullish.

"The market for first class apartment and home leases have once more become bullish," Mr. Miller commented. "All through 1930, '31, '32, and the major part of '33, the bears had their way and many of the apartments leasing for $60 per month were reduced to half. One of the best aspects of this rise is the willingness of the tenants to meet the advances.

"Real estate is a barometer of business, and when rentals start increasing, business has already improved and will continue to improve, because tenants do not agree to a boost unless they have received a raise and are sure of their jobs."

Finds Conditions Better.

There is no doubt about improved conditions, Gerald P. Hanlon, renting manager for the Charles E. Fox Real Estate company, commented.

"Competition for grade A apartments is so strong that we have been able to eliminate concessions this spring for the first time since 1929," he detailed. "Many of our apartments have been renting during the slump below points of profit. Nearly every one of these leases, however, are being converted into profitable ones this spring.

"There is a demand for more as well as better properties. For instance, we have a certain eighteen apartment building that we could not fill at low rents during the slump. Now we have it full and are receiving more rent per month, too."

First Class Units Gain.

A brief resumé from the John McClun company, agents for several hundred properties between Englewood and Woodlawn, stated that rents on semi-modern flats would not be increased, but that more money is being realized from first class units.

Approximately 1,600 newly reconnected telephones on the south side also verify reports of more work and higher wages for wage earners who make their home south of Madison street and east of Cicero, the Illinois Bell Telephone company states.

Improvements are also reflected in reports from the Peoples Gas, Light, and Coke company, and the Commonwealth Edison, which reveal that thousands of families are tired of doubling up, and are asking for service once more.

DE LA SALLE BOYS TO PLAY GIRLS IN PLAY FRIDAY

Members of the De La Salle Dramatic club will present their annual three act comedy drama Friday evening at 8:15 in the auditorium at 35th street and Michigan avenue. This year's play is entitled "Heart Trouble," a story of "puppy" love.

As has been the custom in the past, feminine rôles will be taken by boys of the school. The plot is concerned with the typical family affairs of a modern group in an average town, and as indicated by the title, is replete with interest and fun for persons of all ages.

Proceeds will be used to swell the school's scholarship fund.

'SMILIN' THROUGH' TO BE PRESENTED BY SINGLE GIRL

Whatever the rest of the world may have done with the dramatic production, "Smilin' Through," the Senior Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue, plans to present it at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening in a unique manner. The entire three acts will be given by Miss Virginia Belle Smith, who will asume the rôles of four men and three women. The public is invited. Proceeds will be used for charity.

Rebecca Lodge to Give Hard Time Party, Dance

A hard time party and dance will be given Wednesday evening by the Rebecca lodge, No. 478, at 426 West 63rd street. The public is invited. Profits will be used for charity work of the organization.

G. E. Q. Johnson to Discuss Racketeering in Chicago

George E. Q. Johnson will speak Friday evening before the Essex Community church forum on the subject of "Racketeering in Chicago." The program will start at 8:15 o'clock. The public is invited. There will be no charge.

GRAND CROSSING MERCHANTS WILL VISIT WOODLAWN

To Give Program at Tuesday Meeting.

The Woodlawn Business Men's association will observe guest day Tuesday noon in the Hayes hotel. Members of the Grand Crossing Chamber of Commerce will give the program.

Included on the slate of entertainment will be community singing, solos, duets, instrumental numbers, speeches and exhibitions. Visitors are expected from the Englewood Business Men's association, the 55th Street Business Men's association, the Brighton Park Commercial club, the Hyde Park Kiwanis club, the South Central Improvement association, and other south side groups.

"At one time business organizations felt a little cool toward communing with each other," Joseph H. Grayson, president of the Woodlawn Business Men's association, stated in commenting on the forthcoming rally. "However, the old idea of one group hating the other is poor business and poorer sense.

Fair to Be Better.

"The presence of visitors inspires us. We are anxious to swap experiences with our neighbors and are planning to invite other groups to give programs."

David Palmer Livingston, member of A Century of Progress executive committee, spoke before the association last Tuesday, declaring the Fair will be at least a third larger this year, and that every possible space has been leased.

"If there were enough free exhibits last year to keep the average person busy for a week, there will be enough in 1934 to keep him on the go from morning to late at night for at least 10 days," Mr. Livingston asserted.

Food Will Be Cheaper.

"Food will be cheaper and rest rooms free," he continued. "Improved interfair ground transportation facilities will be another feature that will attract guests. The buses will issue transfers and stop-overs, giving each passenger an opportunity to ride to several parts of the grounds on one fare."

Organized 26 years ago, the Woodlawn Business Men's association has more than 2,000 members, including many business and professional women. Current officers, in addition to Mr. Grayson, are George W. Webster Jr., vice president; Edward Alberti, treasurer, and Mrs. Netta B. Goss, secretary.

South Shore Kentuckians Meet Tomorrow Evening

The South Shore Kentuckians society will meet tomorrow evening in the Hanson club rooms. There will be old time "singin', banjo pickin', and whoopin' up in general," an announcement from Robert Pierson stated. The theme song of the group is "My Old Kentucky Home." Prizes are awarded at each gathering for best stories of "back thar." Any person 16 years or more may join. Only persons with a southern drawl are permitted to hold office.

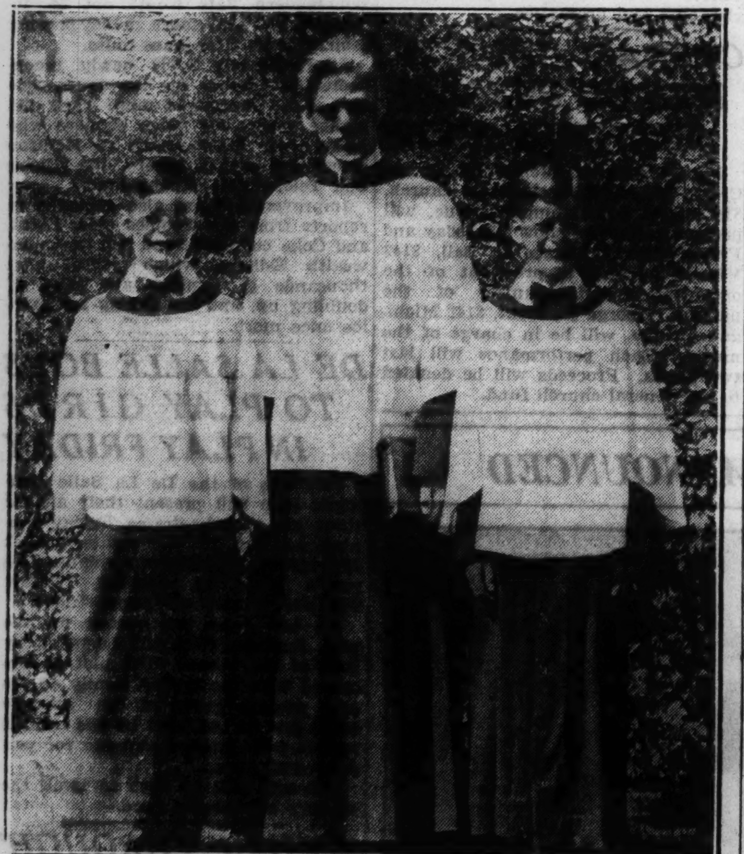
SPRING FROLIC CHAIRMAN

Miss Helen Eves, 656 East 81st street, chairman of the social committee of the Hyde Park Junior college, which will hold its first annual spring frolic at 9 o'clock Saturday evening on the roof garden of the Beachview club, 1525 East 52d street.

FATHER HUBBARD, PRIEST EXPLORER, TALKS ON ALASKA

"Our Alaskan Wonderland" will be presented this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Longwood auditorium by the Rev. Bernard J. Hubbard. Father Hubbard is well known as an adventurer-clergyman. At one time he was chaplain to the former Empress Zita of Austria. He has studied volcanic craters of Alaskan wastes, and during one of these expeditions he and his pilot were nearly killed by the eruption of gas, smoke, cinders, and fire.

BROTHER CHORISTERS



These three brothers—Robert, Hoyt Jr., and Rolland Hill—will be among the choristers who will sing at the annual festival service of Episcopal church choirs at Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Robert and Rolland are twins. Roger Tuttle, director of the St. Bartholomew's choir, will direct the singing.

South Side Seeks Talent for First Annual Vanities

Under direction of Paul Ash, orchestra leader and discoverer of stage tallent, the first annual South Side Vanities will be staged May 21 and 22 by the Englewood Business Men's association in the Stratford theater.

More than 350 young men and women from various districts will reherse tomorrow night in Carpenter hall, 6414 South Halsted street. Tryouts also will be held Monday, Wednesday, and Friday night hereafter up to the time of the show, which is expected to draw thousands of persons anxious to see what a great coach can make out of their home boys and girls.

The Englewood association has mailed invitations to all south side high schools, junior colleges, parochial schools, dancing and dramatic academies and other institutions to have their talent trained free of charge. Persons not connected with any institution are also invited to appear at the rehersals.

Show Completely South Side.

"This is going to be a big show—and a novel one," Mandel Cohen, executive secretary of the association assured. "There will be special scenery, composed music, and a strictly home talent cast enacting the rôles in a story written about the south side. The entire seating capacity of the theater has been assigned to the business men's association for both evenings, and there will be two performances each night.

"Mr. Ash informs us that the talent required puts no restriction on age. He will need babies as well as folk nearing the century mark.

The orchestra leader is confident that he will discover some talent that can be developed for stage contracts immediately. "During my years of experience I have found much good stage material in home talent affairs such as this one will be," he said.

Prizes for Ticket Sellers.

As a special inducement for ticket sellers, merchants are offering prizes each week for the person selling the most. Proceeds from the shows will be used to pay the expense of the affair and if there is a profit, it may be used to furnish additional free tutoring for participants displaying exceptional talent.

Brides of Past Century to Parade Friday Night

When "A Century of Brides" is staged at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church Friday evening, brides of every decade from 1830 to 1930 will pass in review. The setting will be as for a real wedding with floral decorations and appropriate music. Mrs. H. W. Olson, is in charge of the gowns; Mrs. F. L. Waggoner, publicity; Mrs. H. L. Johnson and Mrs. E. P. Cole, decorations.

4,000 RAILROAD FOLK TO STAGE GALA JAMBOREE

Starts on April 30 in Englewood.

More than 4,000 railroaders, relatives, and friends are expected to attend the second annual minstrel, revue, and jamboree of the South Side Railroaders' brotherhood April 30 and May 1 in the South Side Masonic temple, 6400 South Green street.

Included among the districts represented by the 125 railroader-performers are Calumet, South Central Manufacturing, Hyde Park, Brainerd, South Chicago, Bryn Mawr, Englewood, West Lawn, Beverly Hills, West Pullman, Washington Heights, Wildwood, South Holland, and Kensington.

Proceeds will be contributed to a widow and orphan fund. The affair this year is in charge of special committees from the Belt and Chicago and Western Indiana railroads.

Ballads of the Singing Rails.

"The temple will be decorated in keeping with the spirit of railroads and railroaders," Henry Barnes, member of the arrangements committee revealed. "Authentic ballads will be sung by the boys who love the blistering, whining butt of the boiler, high flung smoke, and singing rails. They will give the old songs their right interpretation."

Mr. Barnes made his last run on the old C. H. & D. more than 20 years ago from Indianapolis, Ind., to Decatur, Ill. When he started "heaving coal" there were no stokers, and the eight hour day was "just a wild and woolly prediction made by day dreamers."

"After being out from 12 to 15 hours each day, we were required to repair our own engines, and all the brass had to be shining," he reflected. "Railroad officials of those early days wanted their locomotive polished like a 1934 automobile.

"Speaking about speed, we went faster in one of those old brassies at 35 miles an hour than the modern engineer rides at 70, because while we were going 35 miles forward, we were also getting an additional speed of nigh on 40 miles sidewise.

Much More Dangerous.

"Railroading was far more dangerous when I was a young man than it is today. Good, heavy rails, double track, and tested locomotives and cars have reduced fatal accidents at least 98 per cent.

"Single tracks used to cause lots of head-on collisions. One day, I remember, a train dispatcher sent a special order for a freight train to clear on a switch at a station called Bailville. The operator read Ballville, the usual place for the freight to run into the clear. The result was two train crews and fourteen passengers lost their lives.

"Old time railroading had its humorous sides, too. One time I couldn't get my engine started at a little crossroad town where we took on water. I didn't have much of a load, but the wheels spun. The community's practical joker had used up three pounds of his ma's homemade lye soap to grease the rails."

JOB'S DAUGHTERS TO BE GUESTS AT DREXEL CHURCH

Members of Bethel No. 15, Order of Jobs' Daughters, with Mrs. Laura Lewis, guardian, will be special guests at 8 o'clock tonight at the Drexel Presbyterian church, 6359 South Marshfield avenue. Miss Mary Helen Wareham, honored queen, will read the scripture, and Miss Lorraine Nelson, chaplain, will lead in prayer. An invitation is extended to the public to attend this service, according to the Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor of the congregation.

Special Music Program.

Music in keeping with the Pentecostal season will be given next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the Englewood Baptist church.

IN "TULIP TIME"

MISS GERTRUDE BERGER.

MISS MARGARET KANE.
[De Haven Photo.]

The glee club of the St. Thomas the Apostle High school will present "Tulip Time," a musical play, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 1 and 2, in Tighe hall, 5467 Woodlawn avenue. Miss Gertrude Berger and Miss Margaret Kane will be featured in leading rôles.

KIWANIS CLUB OF ENGLEWOOD TO STAGE FROLIC

Three hundred Kiwanis minded folks—members of the Englewood Kiwanis club and their wives—will stage a jamboree Tuesday noon at the Englewood Y. M. C. A. 65th street and Union avenue.

The affair, known as Ladies' day, is held annually, and "great times are had in good old-time speech making and jolly singing," William V. V. Lain, publicity chairman, announced.

C. Wayland Brooks will speak on the subject of "Americanism."

Each guest will have a chance . . . in fact, she will be expected . . . to lambast or praise the Englewood group in a one minute speech.

Among the visitors expected to be at the jamboree is Don Tobin, who became so much more interested in Kiwanis work than he was in suspenders, garters, hats and sox that he sold his men's furnishing store on 63d street about a year ago and connected with Kiwanis International.

Sacred Heart Council Announces Spring Party

The annual spring dance and card party given for the benefit of Sacred Heart council's philanthropic fund will be held Friday evening at Ogden Park Masonic hall, 64th street and Loomis boulevard. Mrs. William Bindrin is the chairman in charge. She will be assisted by Mrs. Irene Sheridan, Mrs. Albert Bee, Mrs. Joseph Walker, Mrs. Thomas Gafney, Mrs. Henry Hewitt, Miss Lottie Agustine, Miss Eileen Wickers, Miss Emily Zaroadske, and Miss Ruth Forster.

St. Rita Church Society Gives Corned Beef Dinner Today

A corned beef and cabbage dinner is being given today at 2 o'colck by the Holy Name society of St. Rita church in the school hall at 62d street and Fairfield avenue. A floor show will be given during the dinner. Thomas Doyle is in charge of the program. Assisting him are Eugene Conroy, John Dorner, Fred Amend, Andrew Wheeler, Frank Healy, John Monahan, Matt Schiveis, Paul Bernowsky, and John Moroney.

MUSICIANS HOLD PARADE TODAY ON SOUTH SIDE

The first annual grand parade of South Chicago's nonprofessional musicians will start at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the South Chicago Y. M. C. A., 91st street and Huston avenue.

More than 10,000 persons are expected to line the streets to watch the musicians, bedecked in their gayest, sweep through south side avenues to the quickening of spirited marches. It is reported the participating drum corps, bands and orchestras will have a total membership in excess of 700.

Some of the groups registering for the drills are South Chicago Drum and Bugle corps, Boys' and Girls' Alliance clubs, Bowen High school band, three American Legion and two Spanish American war bands.

James Tomczak is grand marshal of the affair. Honorary escorts will include widely known business and industrial men, and the management of the South Chicago Y. M. C. A.

"Gondoliers" Premiere at Hirsch Center on Sunday

The first performance of "Gondoliers" will be presented at Hirsch center next Sunday evening. Other performances will be given May 2 and May 6. The same company will give the production at the Jewish People's institute May 13 and 14.

ST. MEL'S YOUNG PEOPLE TO HOLD GAY SPRING FETE

Spring with all its festivity and gayety will be carried out in decorations and music at the dance of the Young Ladies' society and the Young Men's club of St. Mel's parish to be held Friday evening in the Knights of Columbus clubhouse, 4711 West Madison street.

Since both the organizations desired to sponsor a post-lenten dance, it was decided that the two groups would merge temporarily under the name of the St. Mel's Young People's clubs, and work together. Jack Russell and his orchestra will furnish the dance music. Miss Mary Connor is president of the young ladies' group, and Jerry Crowley, of the men's club. Tickets may be purchased at the St. Mel rectory, 22 North Kildare avenue.

AGNES O'CONNELL HEADS BUSINESS WOMEN'S CLUB

300 SOUTH SIDE GIRLS TO LECTURE ON INFANT CARE

Hospital Aids Plan State Street Store Booths.

Mothers who visit the infant departments in State street stores during national baby week—April 30 to May 5 inclusive—will be greeted by representatives of the junior auxiliary of mothers' aid of the Chicago Lying-In hospital.

These young women, about 300 in number, are laying aside their social obligations these days and are devoting their time to learning how they can best further the educational aims of the week set aside to aid infants.

When April 30 arrives and the junior aiders take their posts in the State street stores, they will be well equipped to meet customers and to disseminate information in regard to raising babies. They will present to all visitors a reprint from "Our Baby's First Seven Years," the modern baby book, compiled and edited by the Mothers' Aid.

Copies of this progressive baby book will be displayed on the counters and mothers will be at liberty to browse through them at their leisure.

$4,000 for Starter.

Five years ago Dr. Joseph DeLee suggested that the Mothers' Aid publish a baby record, because up to that time the baby books available were entirely sentimental. This was a new field for the organization. The information was compiled by Mrs. Hermien Nusbaum, who was assisted by Dr. DeLee.

So confident was the auxiliary that the book was greatly needed by mothers "stumbling in the darkness of maternal ignorance" that $4,000 was raised to initiate the publication.

The original $4,000 has been repaid the society and a substantial profit above the expenses each year has helped the charity workers carry on at the hospital in spite of the depression.

Officers of the Lying-In Hospital board are Mrs. Ernest Freund, president; Mrs. James Weber Linn, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Marcus A. Hirschel, treasurer.

Mrs. Kircheimer Editor.

Editorial staff of the Mothers' Aid is composed of Mrs. Louise Kircheimer, editor; Mrs. Norman Freeling, Mrs. Maurice P. Weil and Mrs. Monroe Pfaelzer, co-editors; Mrs. Raymond Marks, Mrs. Meyer Kestnbaum, and Miss Alma Ostermann, assistant editors and Mrs. Theodore Zolla, junior editor.

Members of the business staf include Mrs. Robert Lederer, business manager, and Mrs. Harold L. Aronson, advertising manager.

The Mothers' Aid society has more than 1,100 active members.

BROTHERHOOD OF ELIM CHURCH TO GIVE BANQUET

After passing up the affair two years in succession, the Lutheran Brotherhood of the Elim church, 113th street and Forest avenue, will hold its annual banquet Friday evening.

Dr. Victor Pearson, pastor of the Gethsemane Lutheran church, will be the principal speaker.

Dinner will be served promptly at 7 o'clock in the church parlors. Music will be furnished by George Goranson Jr. and his musicians. E. H. Hohnson is in charge of arrangements.

Melrose Park C. of C. to Hear Stratosphere Flyer

Maj. Chester Fordney of stratosphere flight fame will be the guest speaker at the Thursday noon luncheon of the Melrose Park Chamber of Commerce. Maj. Fordney's appearance was arranged through Joseph Arowesty, of the chamber's business relations committee.

TROTH ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic V. Tydd, 8155 East End avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Tydd, above, to George W. Kerr Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kerr, 8022 South Racine avenue.

LA GRANGE FINDS NEW POSTOFFICE PLANS SNAGGED

Having had the understanding that a $120,000 federal building project had been approved by the government and that there was little left to do but have a location selected by investigators, La Grange now finds its prospect for the building dimmed.

John Page, secretary of the La Grange Chamber of Commerce, who wrote to Washington for a definite statement on the matter, has received word from F. J. C. Dresser of the Federal Emergency administration as follows:

"In the official submission made by the treasury department the present facilities at La Grange are described as being adequate as to space and in a good location, and that the present quarters are in a specially constructed building, with no apparent disadvantages.

"The postoffice department does not specifically request that facilities of this character be replaced."

Mr. Page also wrote to Congressman Thomas J. O'Brien, who cited figures showing the present carrying charges are $4,410, and that in the event a new building was erected they would be increased to $7,990.

Congressman O'Brien added that he would continue his efforts toward procuring the building for La Grange with the hope that more favorable action might be obtained.

Spring Party to Benefit U. of Chicago Settlement

The University of Chicago Settlement Woman's club will give its annual spring benefit party Friday afternoon and evening at 4630 South Gross avenue.

Cards and bunco will be played. There will be a display of aprons, fancy goods, and novelties made by the workers.

Mrs. T. H. Blackman, club president, and Mrs. H. S. Quinn and Mrs. B. H. Farr are in charge of the arrangements. Miss Mary E. McDowell, head resident, founded the settlement forty years ago.

Wed Half Century

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Keel.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Keel of Gurnee, Ill., celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage April 13 at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Roy O. Young, 4331 Oakenwald avenue, Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Keel were married in South Marston, England, and migrated to Canada in 1887. The following year they came to Chicago where they resided on the south side until 1913. Since then they have lived at Gurnee. In addition to Mrs. Young, they have a daughter, Mrs. Orin E. Chittenden, and two granddaughters, Frances Louise Young and Ruth Ellen Chittenden.

SPRING SESSION OF NEW SCHOOL WELCOMES 500

Modern and Old Methods Are Used.

More than 500 men and women, eager for education, have registered in the newly opened spring term of the free leisure time institute at the 111th Street Y. M. C. A., according to F. Don Crabb, registrar and acting director.

The school is an educational service tailored to meet the individual need for earning a living and enjoying life. The instructors are now paid by the civil works educational service.

Two years ago the institute was originated and organized by Lloyd E. Dyer, and this year Mr. Dyer and Mr. Crabb have made it a new school by perfecting a practical institute to meet the anticipated demand for a flexible educational system that equips a person for everyday activities.

Classes Are Progressive.

Classes in the newly enlarged experimental section of the school are conducted much like the progressive classes at the University of Chicago. Students may advance and complete their courses as rapidly as they are capable of covering the required amount of work. In this manner, 30 pupils taking French may have 30 separate days for graduation.

"Our project method," Mr. Crabb said, "is designed to help folk discover their latent abilities, to help them develop them, and then to put them to practical and profitable use. For example, the advertising class does not stop at the study of publicity fundamentals and mechanics, for the theories are actually carried out in planning specific advertising campaign for various lines of retailing.

Receives Selling Instruction.

"When the student has perfected his campaign, he is instructed in the art of selling himself and his work. Practical use of knowledge obtained is considered as important as the knowledge itself."

Uninfluenced by precedent, the institute is unique in its versatility. There is no tuition charge, even the pencils and paper are furnished by the government.

Prof. Fred A. Moore, executive director of the Chicago Adult council, recently commented:

"Because elementary and high schools have been confined to the three R's and have neglected practical education, we have the impotent half-living now existent in this country and the rotten politics to which we are accustomed. Most modern education is not vital. It lacks realness and vigor. It is too much bound to the old conventional standards."

Courses Are Elastic.

Mr. Crabb was careful to explain that a "perfect fit" in educational courses is possible through the institute's personalized plan. The classes, he commented, are so elastic that they will afford each student, no matter how little or how much education he has had, the correct starting place.

Persons interested in the school may enroll at the Y. M. C. A.

EXPECT 1,500 AT OLD TIMERS' DANCE ON MAY 4

"Swing your ma and swing your pa, but don't forget old Arkansas!" That is what callers will sing until they are hoarse at the annual old timers' party May 4 in St. Kevin hall.

More than 1,500 persons are expected to attend, paying tribute to approximately 400 of the district's men and women ranging in age from 60 to 95.

Old time dances will be featured. They will include the quadrille, Virginia Reel, Chicago Glide, waltzes, and two steps. Tentative plans suggested that the old dances be omitted this year in favor of a theater party, but the old timers would have none of it. They declared that they would not enjoy a make believe old time party in a modern setting.

ZONTA LEADER

Mrs. Virginia Kendall, 5026 Greenwood avenue, newly elected president of the South Side Zonta club, returned home from a vacation in Florida last week in time to direct the annual card party of the organization held Wednesday at the Del Prado hotel.

THEY WILL POUR

The Elite Croquette club of Hyde Park will hold an informal tea party this afternoon in the Hotel Windermere. The four young women above will be in charge. They are, left to right, Miss Marjorie Daly, Miss Betty Boschen, Miss Nancy Palmer, and Miss Jane McLaughlin. Miss Palmer and Miss Boschen reside at the hotel.

TILDEN R. O. T. C. TO BE REVIEWED BY LEGIONNAIRES

Stockyards Post Scouts to Have Party.

Tilden High School unit of the R. O. T. C., sponsored by Chicago Stockyards post of the American Legion, on Tuesday afternoon will pass in review for general inspection in the amphitheater at 42d and Halsted streets. After inspection, officers of the unit will go before a board in the Stockyards Inn for examination for ratings.

Boy Scout troop No. 488, sponsored by the post, will hold its second annual party Friday evening at 5351 South Carpenter street. Proceeds will be used to buy uniforms for the recently organized Sea Scout troop.

New members of Woodlawn unit No. 175 will be initiated tomorrow night at the club rooms, 1165 East 63rd street. Mrs. Joseph D. Salato is membership chairman. Mrs. William E. Barnes is president of the unit.

A spring dance will be given by Three Links post and unit No. 361 Saturday night at the South Side Viking Temple auditorium, 69th street and Emerald avenue. Music will be furnished by Del Hamelen's orchestra.

Members of Square post No. 232 will be guests tomorrow night of Ogden Park Masonic lodge No. 897. The invitation was extended by Henry Lott, master of the lodge. Other Masonic bodies which have accepted invitations are West Englewood, Compass and Paramount Blue lodges, John J. Pierson chapter and Ogden Park chapter, Boy Builders.

Square post will have charge of the entertainment, and Commander Russell C. Smith extends an invitation to all ex-service men of South Town to be present and take part in the services. The meeting will be held at the West Englewood Temple, 64th and Loomis streets.

Square post will hold its annual dance for the benefit of its service fund Friday night in the Midway Masonic temple ball room. Roy L. Anderson is in charge of ticket sales.

The Cook County council of the American Legion auxiliary is sponsoring a spring dance on May 5 at the Grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman. Proceeds will be used for community service work. The music will be furnished by the Board of Trade post American Legion orchestra. Mrs. Ida Cassidy is general chairman.

Chicago Board of Trade post No. 304 will hold a spring time dance at the Steuben club Saturday night at 181 West Randolph street. A floor show of radio, screen, and stage stars will be a feature.

Annual spring dance of Medill Tribune post No. 348, American Legion, will be held Tuesday evening, in the Oriental room of the Hotel Knickerbocker. Frank Nessinger, senior vice commander and entertainment chairman in charge, advises that Phil Magee's orchestra has been engaged and there will be other headline entertainment.

GIVE MOTHERS' PARTY

Sinai Temple Sisterhood to Meet Next Tuesday

The annual meeting of the Sinai Temple Sisterhood will be held at noon Tuesday in the Emil G. Hirsch center. Music will be furnished by Miss Edith Greenfield, violinist, Israel Greenfield, cellist, and Ida Krehm, pianist.

Special Choir Program.

More than 50 members of the choir of the Bethel Evangelical church, 114th and State streets, will give special music next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Wanda Neuman is the choir director.

FIFTH WARD ALL DRESSED UP FOR 1934 FAIR GUESTS

Cleaned, Greened, Painted for Visitors.

Streets, alleys and lights in the Fifth ward, which includes Hyde Park and Woodlawn, are in better condition than they have been heretofore in the history of the communities.

The above is the substance of a report made last week by the Men's club of Hyde Park, Hotel Men's association, 55th Street Business Men's association, Hyde Park Lions and the Woodlawn Business Men's association following a survey made to determine what would be needed to put the Fifth ward in tip top condition for the World's Fair. The reports were compiled at the suggestion of Ald. James J. Cusack Jr. [5th].

Paragraphs from the findings stated:

Street signs have been repaired and installed wherever necessary, enabling strangers to recognize thoroughfares by their proper names.

New Lighting Equipment.

New light poles, cables and globes have been, and are being, installed to make every street and alley in the neighborhoods brightly illuminated.

The University of Chicago is cooperating in the campaign to make Woodlawn and Hyde Park more attractive by planting additional flower beds, setting out shrubs and sodding bare spots on private properties as well as on the school's grounds.

Through the aid of the civil works administration rough streets have been resurfaced during the last six months. The Board of Local Improvements is advertising for bids for the widening and paving of 56th street from Everett avenue to the Outer drive.

Sidewalks Are Clear.

Strict enforcement of the ordinance banning sidewalk displays of fruit, vegetables and other merchandise in making the communities a more attractive place in which to live, the report continued.

"We are going to make the final touches on our beautification plans with the aid of school children during the forthcoming clean-up campaign," commented Horace G. Lindheimer, chairman of the communities' clean-up, green-up and paint-up drive.

ATKINS-FREUND STORE TO REOPEN AT 4805 ASHLAND

Identified with Chicago's retail trade for 38 years, the Atkins and Freund department store will reopen, under its original name, on Thursday at 4805 South Ashland avenue. Heading the independent group now backing the store is Jasper N. Atkins, son of the founder of the Atkins and Freund company.

Mr. Atkins will act as store manager and as secretary-treasurer of the store corporation. H. D. Wall, formerly general manager and organizer of the Montgomery Ward retail stores, and known as the "W" of the H. P. W. stores, is president and merchandising counsellor.

All advertising will be in charge of Leo Silberman, vice president. Mr. Silberman has been active in Chicago advertising and sales promotion work for twenty years, with Siegel-Cooper company, the Leiter Building stores, and his own organization, the Leo Silberman Sales company.

St. Cecilia Sodality Gives Annual Party Friday

AUXILIARY GIVES BENEFIT TONIGHT AT THE MORRISON

A benefit sponsored by the south side auxiliary of the Chicago Consumptive Aid society will be given tonight in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel. Mrs. Samuel Cutts, 7009 Sangamon street, is chairman in charge of the benefit.

She is assisted by Mrs. Sophie Jacobs, 656 West 61st street, chairman of the entertainment committee. A program has been arranged featuring Alma Clausen, soloist; Pranno and Carmine, dance team, and Betty Hope Heller with Bobby Lasky.

Proceeds will go to the Fox River sanatorium on the outskirts of Batavia.

FRATERNAL BALL TO BE GIVEN BY DREXEL COLLEGE

The interfraternal ball of the George Williams college, 5315 Drexel avenue, will be given Saturday evening in the Southmoor hotel.

Included among organizations sponsoring this affair are Alpha Beta Mu, Alpha Omicron Alpha, Chi Delta Phi, Phi Zeta Tau, and Sigma Delta Alpha.

Fred Sprowles, president of Phi Zeta Tau, is chairman of arrangements. He is to be assisted by presidents of the other fraternities. Chaperons for the evening will be Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edgren, Dr. and Mrs. Vernon DeYoung, Mr. and Mrs. Melvil Clevett and Dr. and Mrs. Frank Ward.

Boy Scout Meeting.

Troop 710, Boy Scouts of America, will meet Friday evening in the Stewart Ridge Community church, 120th street and Eggleston avenue.

CHARLES KOENIG, BROOKFIELD P. O. CHIEF, TO RETIRE

Charles Koenig, postmaster at Brookfield for 17 years, has notified the department at Washington of his decision to retire at the end of his term on May 1. Michael Colgrass has been appointed acting postmaster until decision on a successor is made under civil service rules.

When Mr. Koenig was appointed to the office in 1917 it was in the third class, and he and his daughter were the only employés. The annual income was about $3,000, which increased to a peak of $23,000. In 1926 free delivery service was obtained for a portion of the village, and under Mr. Koenig's recommendation delivery service for the entire village is now contemplated.

Mr. Koenig has been a resident of Brookfield for 32 years and first became a property owner in the village in 1889 when the section was subdivided.

A site for Brookfield's new postoffice has been purchased, and as the lease on the present building expires in September, 1935, it is expected that work on the structure will begin shortly. The appropriation was for $62,000, the sum of $9,000 having been spent on the site.

Kenwood Service Club.

SEE FEW SIGNS OF USUAL SLUMP FOR THIS SUMMER

New Commercial Shows Added Each Week.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

There's little indication of any summer doldrums for radio this season. Here it is almost May and big new sponsored shows are added to the air fare every week. Sets have been so improved that Old Man Static is nothing much to be feared in the summertime. Moreover, auto receivers are becoming popular and small sets that can be carried and set up almost anywhere are in greater favor than ever. You don't have to stay home to listen to your air favorites any more. By and large it looks like the best summer yet for the radio listener.

When a half dozen comedians got together in New York last week all but one favored studio audiences. Jack Benny, Jack Pearl, and the Marx brothers like to play to an audience, the Marx brothers pointing out that it makes the sponsor feel that his stars are really funny. Jimmy Durante alone would rather do his stuff without onlookers. Of course all of these chaps were recruited from vaudeville and are accustomed to playing to audiences. We can tell you what would happen if Amos 'n' Andy, Ray Knight, Ray Perkins, Stoopnagle and Budd, the Sisters of the Skillet, would say if they talked this matter of audiences over privately. Just what Amos 'n' Andy have always said, "No, thank you."

Listeners are applauding the Musical Dessert program presented every afternoon by the W-G-N Rondoliers, Len Salvo at the organ, and Dick Hayes, Louise Brabant, and Bob Forsans. The Rondoliers—Leon Lichtenfeld, Leon Benditzky, and Armand Buisseret—have been on W-G-N for ten years now and played together three or four years before that.

Cole Shows Versatility.

Richard Cole, who rounds out a solid year at the Palmer house in about a week, is displaying a lot of versatility in his programs lately—soft flowing rhythms, tangos, comedy numbers, and novelties follow in rapid succession. Cole starts a theater tour early next month and Ted Weems takes his place. . . . Guy Lombardo and his crew will move into the Waldorf Astoria June 7 after a leisurely tour across the continent. . . . That friendly, cordial manner of Seymour Simons is exciting a lot of favorable comment locally. He's at his best at 7:30 Saturday evenings, at 8:10 Sundays, and at midnight Mondays on W-G-N. . . . Buddy Rogers has assembled a new band for his appearance at the College Inn this summer. . . . Jan Garber's commercial moves to Monday evening beginning April 30. . . . During July and August the show will go on the air from Catalina Island.

"Program of the Week."

The new show modestly titled "Program of the Week" came near being "The Program of the Weak." The "joke of the week" fell flat; the "song of the week" had been heard all over the dials; the "news of the week" represented only an opportunity for the sound effects department to go to town; "the play of the week" was new on Broadway a season ago. But the music of Henry Busse was a delight. The program is packed too tight. The idea has possibilities, but requires much better material.

Ruggles and Boland.

"The Hall of Fame" has struck a gusher in Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland. They're naturals for radio and if provided with good material ought to go big in a hurry. . . . Phil Baker brings his show back to Chicago next Friday and he opens at the Palace theater the same day. . . . Alice Joy appears at the State-Lake theater for a week beginning next Friday. . . . And George Olsen and Ethel Shutta are billed at the Chicago next week. . . . Schumann Heink opens her new radio series next Sunday evening from local NBC studios.

Bushman at Theater.

Francis X. Bushman, star of the "Movie Personalities" program, is appearing at the Oriental theater in person. Also there is Frances Arms, known to radio listeners as "Mrs. Rubinoff." . . . George Givot, the "grik ambassador of radio," is going to visit Greece for the first time this summer. . . . Ray Perkins, the prince of Palmer house, who commutes to Chicago from New York every week, is turning to gardening these spring days. . . . NBC will broadcast from the stratosphere this summer, according to the present plans. . . . Plans are under way for making the "Show of the Month," broadcast from the Civic Opera house last Sunday, a regular feature.

Alexander McQueen, radio's "Nothing but the Truth Man," is doing a unique job. He's writing his unusual items for publication in an Italian journal. But since McQueen doesn't know Italian and the editor knows no English, the copy is written in French, a language both understand, and then translated.

W-G-N STAF OF HOUSEHOLD EXPERTS

BAGGIORE TO SING TWO WELL KNOWN SONGS THURSDAY

Two well known songs will be included in Attilio Baggiore's program with the W-G-N orchestra at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening. The great W-G-N tenor has selected "Coleen O'Mine" by Strickland and "For You Alone" by Geehl, as the two middle offerings on his program which also includes "Love's Festival" and "Lolita." The orchestra will offer the overture to "Rosamunde" by Schubert, "Rustle of Spring" by Sinding, "Scherzo Fandango" by Marquerre and "Dance of the Cammorrists" from the opera "The Jewels of the Madonna" by Wolf-Ferrari.

Back Seat Driver

Dear Lorry: The back seat driver's favorite indoor sport is leaning over your shoulder to turn the radio dial to another station. . . . What this country needs is a shorter wave length for grapefruit. Hard Luck Radio Fan! Thought he had Sweden on his short wave set but it was only the janitor arguing in the hall. . . . "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company writes Home Relief association for money to get Uncle Tom's home to the next town. . . A man doesn't have to like whippet racing to go to the dogs. . . . Portland thinks opening of the baseball season should pep things up for the Junior leaguers.

Cordially,
FRED ALLEN.

"WHAT IS AHEAD" TO BE DISCUSSED BY H. L. MENCKEN

H. L. Mencken, the iconoclastic editor and journalist, will be heard over a National Broadcasting company network at 6:15 p. m. next Friday. The former editor of the American Mercury will discuss "What Is Ahead?" for America.

Mencken made his debut as a radio speaker over an NBC network last year when he was interviewed by William Lundell on the subject of "Beer!" At the same time he created a sensation by gratifying a long standing ambition to lead a brass band.

"What Is Ahead?" will be an exposition of the Mencken slant on the New Deal.

MIDNIGHT FLYERS MARK BIRTHDAY TOMORROW NIGHT

Round Out a Full Year of Fun and Frolic.

A full year of fun, frolic, and musical "sym-fun-ee" will be celebrated by the W-G-N "Midnight Flyers" program gang with Seymour Simons and orchestra in the Blackhawk café tomorrow night when the show will be just one year old. The Midnight Flyers program starts at midnight and runs for more than two hours on W-G-N.

Pierre Andre, pilot of the musical and entertainment "plane" with Simons, will present a group of stars of the radio, stage, and screen now appearing in Chicago. Among these will be Zelda Santley, impersonator. Seymour and his entertainers will take a hand and help things along.

Pierre has been master of ceremonies since the inception of the show as the "Sky Riders" party. But a year ago the program was given the present name, "Midnight Flyers."

The "Midnight Flyers" program is the only guest artist show that is broadcast in its entirety and is on the air from midnight until 2 o'clock.

Every state in the country has been represented in the fan mail the program has drawn in the year it has been in existence. Letters have also been received at W-G-N from practically all provinces of Canada as well as England, Australia, Mexico, Cuba, and other foreign lands.

PAULIST CHOIR TO REPEAT TWO FAMILIAR SONGS

In response to hundreds of requests the Paulist choristers, directed by Father Eugene O'Malley, are repeating two old familiar tunes on their concert with the W-G-N orchestra at 8:45 o'clock tonight. They are "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Home, Sweet Home," two songs which have been mentioned in nearly every letter received this season by the choirmaster.

The choir also will offer "Kyrie Eleison," "Sanctus," by Gounod; "Cherubic Hymn," "Florian's Song," "Killarney," "Journey's End," and "Now Is the Month of Maying." The orchestra numbers on the program are to be "Alla Polocca de la Serenade," Schubert's "Ballet Suite," and Tschaikowski's great ballet number, "Waltz," from the "Sleeping Beauty" suite.

SOX AND BROWNS' GAME ON W-G-N THIS AFTERNOON

The game between the White Sox and St. Louis Browns at Comiskey park will be broadcast by W-G-N, starting at 2:45 this afternoon. Bob Elson will be at the microphone.

Tuesday the Cubs open their home season with the Cincinnati Reds at Wrigley field, and W-G-N will present the Cubs to Chicago fans, starting fifteen minutes before the game is called with interviews with the new players and a description of the pregame festivities attendant to opening day.

W-G-N will present all of the home games of the Cubs and White Sox this season, as in former years, and those out of town games played by the two Chicago teams which are of importance.

ORCHESTRA TO PLAY 'PEER GYNT SUITE' TONIGHT

The popular overture to the opera "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and the "Peer Gynt Suite" will be the principal offerings of the W-G-N orchestra in the regular concert from 7:15 to 8 o'clock tonight. Joseph Vito, harpist, will be the instrumental soloist.

The "Peer Gynt Suite" will be offered in three parts, "Morning," "Anitra's Dance," and "In the Hall of the Mountain King." The numbers to be played by Mr. Vito are: "To Spring," by Grieg, and "Trees," by Rosback. Other orchestra numbers: "Minuet Waltz," "Polichinelle," "La Traviata," and "Bacchanale" from the opera "Samson and Delilah."

Al Rice Turns Songsmith.

"When It's Prayer Meeting Time in the Hollow," a song by Al Rice of the Maple City Four, will be a featured number on the Musical Tintypes program, with Patricia Ann Manners and the Four Norsemen, at 5:30 today over WENR.

W-G-N SHOW HAS ANNIVERSARY

At the Blackhawk cafe last Monday night when the "Midnight Flyers" put on the 52d successive weekly show. Left to right in the group are: Seymour Simons, orchestra leader and host; Earl Rickard, M. C. at the Blackhawk; Martha Raye, guest singer; Frank Hazzard, popular radio and stage tenor; Dorothy Page, Simons' singing lady; Pierre Andre, the Flyers' pilot and announcer, and Jan Garber, Trianon dance band.

Tony D'Orazi Heard at New Hour Next Saturday

Tony D'Orazi, W-G-N's cartoonist of the air, will be heard at a new time beginning next Saturday. Tony is starting a new series of cartooning instructions under a commercial sponsorship and in the feature his programs will be heard at 5:30 p. m. Saturdays. This week Tony strikes a popular chord by visiting the circus and sketching some of the popular characters under the big top—the Pin Head in the side show and one of the clowns from the fun making troupe.

THIRD WARD FIRE IN MILWAUKEE ON "HEADLINES"

The famous Third ward fire which destroyed several blocks of business and residential property in Milwaukee in 1892 and the thrilling story of a special train run which carried Chicago firemen to Milwaukee to battle the flames will be told by Quin Ryan on his "Headlines of Other Days" program over W-G-N at 9:35 tomorrow evening. The fire destroyed property valued at more than $5,000,000.

CHIEF C. N. HEANEY.

As his guest on this program Mr. Ryan will present Chief Charles N. Heaney of the Chicago fire department, fire marshal of the Sixth division. Chief Heaney was a young pipeman at the time of the famous fire and a member of a band of 40 Chicago fire fighters who made the trip to Milwaukee.

BUSHMAN WILL PRESENT SKETCH AT LOOP THEATER

Francis X. Bushman, conductor with Elizabeth Hines of the "Movie Personalities" program on W-G-N at 10 o'clock each morning, is in for a busy week. Mr. Bushman will continue his radio series and in addition will appear in a dramatic sketch on the stage at the Oriental theater.

With Mr. Bushman in his sketch will be Frances Woodbury of stage and radio fame and Tom Post, also a widely known artist in the days of the silent films. Tomorrow Mr. Bushman will interview Miss Woodbury on his radio show, while on Wednesday he will present Mr. Post. The stage sketch at the theater is to be called "A Man's Game." Before the show a trailer film made up of parts of Mr. Bushman's three great pictures—"Graustark of 1812," "Romeo and Juliet," which was presented in 1916, and "Ben Hur," which was shown in 1926—will be presented.

MOTHER MOYNIHAN IS HELD AS 'GUN MOLL'; IT'S ALL A MISTAKE

EXTRA! EXTRA! Mother Moynihan arrested as gun moll. . . . Found driving on west side streets with pistol on front seat of her car. . . . Talks way out of serious situation. Those might have been the headlines of last week in Chicago newspapers and here's the story:

Bess Flynn, dramatic star of W-G-N and the "Mother Moynihan" of the air, is coaching a group of players of St. Patrick's academy for a play, "Stop Thief," to be given soon. Bess' son, Charles, also widely known on the air lanes, is one of the boys in the cast of the show, which is based on police department activities.

Last week Mrs. Flynn started out for a rehearsal to be held in the Kedzie theater. Among the props was a pistol.

At Washington boulevard and Halsted street, despite warning signs, Bess made a left turn.

"So you carry a gun, too," the policeman who halted her said. "Lady, we're going right to the station."

He climbed into the car and ordered Bess to drive to the police station.

Suddenly he spotted an envelope with the W-G-N insignia in the corner and inquired where she got that.

"When I explained that I was 'Mother Moynihan' of 'Painted Dreams,'" Mrs. Flynn said, "the policeman called a halt to the proceedings and asked me to tell my whole story of why I was riding in a car with the gun at my side. Of course when I explained the story of my coaching the boys in the play and that the gun, although real, was only to be used as a stage 'prop' he turned me loose."

"Say," the policeman said, "if I went home and told my wife that I had arrested Mother Moynihan, she would kill me. You know that my wife and my mother get me up out of bed on my day off to hear the 'Painted Dreams' sketch on the air."

The New Absorene (Absorbs Dirt) Is Superior

More than a WALLPAPER CLEANER

Window Shades Like New

Cleans All Rough Walls

After constant research and experiments, we have produced in ABSORENE the most nearly perfect wall cleaning compound ever discovered. It is now in the highest degree

NON-CRUMBLY and NON-STICKY

This means that it doesn't crumble off (except where dust is extremely thick) and doesn't stick to the fingers. There is great satisfaction in using ABSORENE, as it is so easy to apply and makes no dirt or trouble whatever.

Beware of cheap cleaners and strange devices. Insist on getting ABSORENE—for 40 years the Leader.

Retail Price only 10c a can

MANY OTHER PRACTICAL USES

Our recent "Greater Use" contest revealed over 100 different articles that were successfully cleaned and renewed with ABSORENE. Among them are:

Upholstery, Lamp Shades, Leather Goods, White Enamel, Tapestry, Oil Paintings, Ivory, Water Colors, Rugs, Picture Frames, Wicker Furniture, Flat Paints

Children delight in using ABSORENE as a SANITARY MODELING CLAY. Give them a can to play with. It keeps them quiet for hours.

Do as your dentist does—when he cleans your teeth

USE POWDER

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can
Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

● Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

● No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

● Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Many apartments equipped with modern gas ranges display this emblem, or mention the "Tested and Approved" seal in classified advertising.

NEW TYPE MODERN GAS RANGES — TESTED AND APPROVED — BY GAS APPLIANCE SOCIETY LAB. FOR GREATER EFFICIENCY, ECONOMY AND CONVENIENCE

The Society has tested and approved the following makes of modern gas ranges:

A-B · ALCAZAR · DETROIT JEWEL
GARLAND · LAUREL · MAGIC CHEF
MOORE VANITY · ROPER · UNIVERSAL

Only authorized dealers – members of the Gas Appliance Society are permitted to carry "Tested and Approved" ranges. Only gas ranges which have been laboratory-tested for quality, efficiency, economy and convenience are marked with the Gas Appliance seal. Look for this emblem! It is your assurance of highest quality – your protection against inferior merchandise. On display by better dealers in all parts of Chicago and suburbs.

The gas range is probably the most frequently and most extensively used domestic appliance in the average household.

So, when you are looking for an apartment or house, don't stop with the plumbing and refrigeration . . . pay special attention to the gas range. Make sure that it is modern.

If it carries the "Tested and Approved" seal of the Gas Appliance Society of Metropolitan Chicago, you may be certain, not only that it is thoroughly modern, but also that it is of highest quality.

Gas ranges which have been approved by the Society offer a number of wonderful advantages which make cooking easier, give better results and save time and steps.

They have oven heat control, an invaluable aid in baking. They are self lighting, without even a button to press. The ovens are fully insulated on all sides, top and door, to keep your kitchen cool.

A modern gas range will make the place you rent a more livable, enjoyable home. Take the precaution of insisting on a modern range, "Tested and Approved" by the Gas Appliance Society, before you sign a lease.

A STRAIN on the FAMILY TIE
BY - GAAR WILLIAMS -
NOW LET US SEE WHAT YOU HAVE LEARNED FROM TH' GREAT OUTDOORS AND WHILE YOU'VE BEEN OUT OF SCHOOL.
WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT TH' TIDES OF THE OCEAN AND FOR WHAT ARE THEY USED - MAINLY ?
IT MAKES MORE WATER T' SWIM IN CLOSER T' TH' SHORE.
WHERE IS THIS BEAUTIFUL LAND OF FLOWERS AND SUNSHINE; THE STATE OF FLORIDA ?
MOSTLY IN TH' WATER, UNCLE MORT.
NOW BE CAREFUL - BY WHOM WAS IT DISCOVERED AND BY WHOM SETTLED?
DISCOVERED BY INDIANA AND IOWA FARMERS. AND TH' REAL ESTATE OPERATORS SETTLED IT
NO, NO, NO! TH' IDEA! DIDN'T YOU EVER HEAR OF A GUY BY TH' NAME OF PONCE DE LEON?
OH SURE.
WHAT WAS HE DOIN' HERE? DO YOU KNOW THAT ?
SURE - HE WAS LOOKIN' FOR A DRINK OF WATER
WELL I DON'T KNOW WHETHER YOU'VE LEARNED MUCH OR NOT - IT'S HARD TO TELL.
OH, I'VE LEARNED LOTS
I KNOW BUT WHETHER IT'LL EVER GET YOU INTO COLLEGE IS SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT.
HECK, I'M NOT GOIN' TO COLLEGE
WHERE DO YOU GET THAT STUFF ? DO YOU WANT TO BE A DUMB BELL ALL YOUR LIFE ?
OH THAT DON'T MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE. YOU GOT ALONG WITHOUT GOIN' T' COLLEGE DIDN'TCHA ?
YEAH - BUT - YOU GOTTA PLAN AHEAD -
WELL, I'M GONNA DO JUST LIKE YOU DID
I'M GONNA GROW UP AND MARRY A SMART WOMAN LIKE YOU DID. - SHE'LL TELL ME WHAT T' DO AND WHEN T' DO IT - - ANYWAY.

SWEENEY & SON by POSEN
OH - THE VAN PESTS ARE COMING TO PAY US A VISIT!
SHUCKS! THEY'LL TAKE UP OUR WHOLE AFTER-NOON
WELL, WE'LL HAVE TO PUT UP WITH THEM - - THERE'S THE BELL NOW THOUGHT WE'D DROP IN ON YOU FOLKS FOR A NEIGHBORLY CALL COME RIGHT IN NOW YOU TWO CHILDREN PLAY TOGETHER IN THE NEXT ROOM
FINE DAY, SWEENEY SWELL
YOW
HERE! HERE! WHAT'S ALL THIS ?
BAW!
DID NAUGHTY BOY HIT MOTHER'S DARLING?
BUT MRS. VAN PEST - - HE GIMME A BLACK EYE
THE LITTLE RUFFIAN
THE IDEA OF YOUR CHILD STRIKING MY HAROLD!
WE WILL LEAVE THIS HOUSE AT ONCE!
SLAM
HE'S AN AWFUL MEAN KID - HE HIT ME FIRST - - HONEST HE DID
I BELIEVE YOU, SONNY - BUT I'M GOING TO ASK YOUR FATHER TO TAKE YOU IN HAND AND GET A FULL EXPLANATION OF THE WHOLE AFFAIR
OKAY, MA - I'LL GET TO THE BOTTOM OF IT
- SO HE STRUCK THE FIRST BLOW, EH?
YES - SO I HIT HIM BACK - -
- AND BESIDES IF IT HADN'T HAPPENED, US TWO WOULDN'T BE GOING FISHING THIS AFTERNOON

CAGE NUMBER ONE - MY WILD AFRICAN LION - AND WAIT TILL YOU SEE ME PUT HIM THROUGH HIS TRICKS -
LEO THE KING OF THE JUNGLE BAA!
AND HERE WE HAVE MR. POLAR BEAR - HOW DO YOU LIKE HIM?
OH, I THINK HE'S CUTE -
ROYAL BENGAL TIGER - DON'T GET TOO CLOSE TO THAT CAGE - SIS - THAT TIGER IS A BAD ACTOR - MEOW!
AND OVER HERE WE HAVE THE BIGGEST BIRD IN CAPTIVITY - THE OSTRICH -
NOW RIGHT THIS WAY, SIS - AND I'LL SHOW YOU THE REST OF MY MENAGERIE -
NO CIRCUS IS COMPLETE WITHOUT AN ELEPHANT, YOU KNOW - SO LITTLE OSWALD HERE IS PICKED TO TAKE THE PART -
HAW! HAW! THAT'S FUNNY - WHY HE DOESN'T LOOK LIKE AN ELEPHANT - AN ELEPHANT HAS A LONG TRUNK -
SO HE HASN'T ANY TRUNK, EH? WELL - I'LL FIX THAT - YOU WAIT AND SEE -
THERE YOU ARE, DOTTY - A SOCK ON THE NOSE - AND LITTLE OSWALD IS CHANGED INTO AN ELEPHANT - GRUNT! GRUNT!

PARDON ME, BUT ARE YOU LOOKING FOR SOME ONE?
WHY YES, WE'VE BEEN HUNTING ALL NIGHT FOR A TEENIE WEENIE BABY, WHO GOT LOST, BUT WE ARE AFRAID A WEASEL HAS CAUGHT HIM.
WELL, IF YOU WILL GO ALONG WITH ME FOR A LITTLE WAY, I THINK I CAN BE OF SOME HELP TO YOU.
OUCHIE!
WE'RE PRETTY NEARLY THERE - MY NEST IS IN THAT BUSH AHEAD
PLEASE WAIT A MINUTE UNTIL I GET SOMETHING OUT OF MY NEST.
GET OUT OF THERE YOU HAVEN'T BEEN INVITED INTO THAT BIRDS NEST.
HERE'S YOUR BABY.
SNIP
I HEARD HIM CRYING LAST NIGHT, SO I LOOKED AROUND UNTIL I FOUND HIM. I HAPPENED TO SEE A WEASEL NEAR BY, SO I FLEW DOWN AND PICKED THE BABY UP AND CARRIED HIM TO MY NEST WHERE I KEPT HIM ALL NIGHT.
WE ARE MIGHTY GRATEFUL TO YOU FOR SAVING OUR BABY. WHERE DID YOU FIND HIM?

GLAD TO PAY THE BET THAT PROVED HER HUSBAND RIGHT

(AN ACTUAL EXPERIENCE FROM REAL LIFE)

"Blue Mondays" Ended for Kansas Woman

No Washing Machine, Yet No More Back-Breaking Rubbing, Either!

MRS. HERMAN HERBORD
Protection, Kansas

"I do not have any blue Mondays since I began using Oxydol. It seems to soak right down into the clothes and get every trace of dirt, and sometimes grease, out of my husband's clothes. I do not have a washing machine, but with Oxydol it doesn't take any more back-breaking rubbing. My clothes come out so white and smell so fresh and clean . . . ."

IF you, too, want the far faster, far whiter way in washing that Mrs. Herbord has found—then you are urged to try this latest discovery of the Procter & Gamble experts, makers of famous Ivory—the New and Improved OXYDOL!

It does 3 things no other soap can do or has ever done:

Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine. Hence, gives you your afternoon free!

Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades WHITER, by the scientific whiteness-measuring Tintometer test. Whiter EVEN than other granulated soaps (heretofore considered "whitest washing") can do in TWO washings!

Yet, due to its utterly new and improved formula, colors won't fade; fabric won't wear out! Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. Yet, despite its amazing cleaning power, it leaves hands soft, finger nails lustrous and uncracked.

It works without back-breaking rubbing. For it works by dissolving dirt. OXYDOL SOAKS dirt out in 15 minutes. So you never have to scrub and boil clothes clean.

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water

OXYDOL is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold. The OXYDOL you get here already contains just the right amount of water-softener to fit the water you use. You can see the results in the suds. OXYDOL multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Makes rich 3-inch suds in any water, hard or soft!

And OXYDOL is economical. Many ordinary granulated or flake soaps cost 8% to 30% more for the same amount of soap!

Make This Test

Get OXYDOL from your grocer and make this two-way test: (1) With a ruler, measure OXYDOL's thick suds and compare with the suds made by your usual soap—note how long they last; (2) watch the clock to prove to yourself that OXYDOL does soak out the dirt in 15 minutes!

How to Judge a Perfect Figure

Bryant Baker, sculptor, who has won fame for his perfect feminine figures, is shown in his New York studio measuring a perfect figure which meets the ancient Greek ideal. The first requirement, he says, is that the shoulders and back of thighs must be in the same plane. Next come the measurements of arms, legs and chest.

FIRST AGAIN
(As Always)
DeLEE Offers New Hollywood MAKE-UP COURSE
Direct from Hollywood's leading movie studios DeLEE has imported Monsieur Henri Gorden, famous make-up artist, to act as registrar and to supervise instruction in the fine points of artistic make-up. Only at DeLEE can you receive this type of instruction.
Monsieur Gorden's ability at make-up has helped to success such well known stars as Joan Crawford, Jean Harlow, Ginger Rogers, Sally Rand, Joan Blondell, etc., etc. Just think of it—you can enroll at DeLEE and learn the Hollywood technique of make-up.
More for Your Money at DeLEE
DeLEE has consistently maintained the policy of giving its students more for their money. Nothing is "too good" for DeLEE students. DeLEE offers the finest instructors, the finest equipment, and the most beautiful quarters.
Just stop and think how much these exclusive DeLEE "superiority features" mean to you: [1] Personal instruction under Madame Louise, internationally famous beauty expert and hair stylist; [2] unlimited instruction in all lines of beauty culture and hair-dressing—you can stay as long as you wish without paying additional tuition; [3] instruction in what is recognized as "America's most modern, most complete, most beautiful beauty school"—all light, colorful classrooms, furnished with new, shining equipment of the latest type.
AND—for all these "extra features" DeLEE charges a tuition fee which is actually lower than many other schools. True—DeLEE gives you more for your money.
Every DeLEE Graduate Has a Good Position
High class shops really want girls who have been trained the DeLEE way. Proof—each girl who was graduated in the DeLEE winter class has been placed in a good paying position in a good shop. Why train yourself for a mediocre job in a cheap shop when it costs you no more to train the DeLEE way for a GOOD PAYING POSITION IN A HIGH CLASS SHOP?
Visit DeLEE Tomorrow
Decide today to learn this fascinating profession and then come to DeLEE tomorrow and talk with the Dean, Miss Ruby Lorrain Stevens. Let her tell you more about beauty work and more about the DeLEE "university type" of training. She'll gladly show you through the school and show you just how DeLEE students are trained. She'll explain DeLEE'S easy payment plan. The visit won't obligate you in any way. Come in tomorrow [or if you can't possibly come in person, write or phone for the interesting DeLEE book].

NORTH SHORE SUBURBAN MEN!

Although I have never been at this address before, I represent a sound company which can place in profitable positions, several good men who reside in northern suburbs, and who are of independent character, not dependent on relief, preferably men who head families, not under 25 or over 47, and who have a few good character references.

This business requires a car for best results, and its earnings will increase in proportion to the effort you put forth. My own last week's comm. check was $106.00, but when I joined the company in June, 1932, after years in a professional line, I assure you that it did not start at that figure. I do not want men to come who will not work, or who expect big pay without big effort, or who expect part-time employment. If I recommend you to my company, which leads in its division of the electric unit field, it means that a good deal of money will be invested in training and guiding you, and yet not a dollar or a dime is expected of you as an investment or a deposit.

If we do get together, you will be financed in an independent business in your home vicinity, and with assurance of continuous employment. I am after high-type men, not plodders or wishers. You will meet me in Room 305 in the Old Glencoe State Bank Bldg., 333 Park-av., Glencoe, at 2 p. m., no other time, Monday, April 23.

AMBITIOUS MEN.

Who are seeking a position with future; must have good record as workers and be able to follow instructions. FULLER BRUSH COMPANY can use 3 clean cut men, living Northwest. Commission rate is good, and most men earn bonuses. Guaranteed earnings to new men. Apply Monday-Wednesday, 1-5 p. m. ROOM 507, 3959 LINCOLN-AV.

MEN.

If you live on the South Side or South Side Suburbs, let me set you up in a profitable business of your own, backed up by our prosperous company.

I have been in this territory exactly seven months, and have already set one hundred and forty-six men up in business for themselves, between Cadillac, Mich., and Mattoon, Ill., and still have thirty-four opportunities left.

I am in control of this territory of a business unique in character, merchandising an electrical unit that has no competition for which there is an ever increasing demand.

If on a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy, and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates earning as much as $50 on percentage basis in a single day, and after they become experienced handling our business receive a sizeable monthly income, not regulated by seasons, as ours is a year around business.

Selling experience not necessary, as if you are selected you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us.

We stand all the expense of your business, such as rent, light, heat, telephone, help, etc., and in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all of your time payment paper.

You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything.

Our business is depression-proof, as same has increased every month of the last four years, with 1933 our busiest year. We have thousands of satisfied customers in this territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with the offer, and if you can meet the above requirements you will be granted a personal, confidential interview, which will quickly determine our mutual interests. Apply Monday between 11:30 and 2:00, Suite 430, Hyde Park National bank bldg., 1525 E. 53d-st. Ask for E. T. Lovell.

"WHAT A LOCATION"
Perhaps you've said it yourself about this building. It's in that natural exclamation when one passes 999 LAKE SHORE-DR.—right at the turn of the drive and commanding a magnificent view of lake and shore line. The apartments, too, are in keeping with the location. Library and living room in a wood paneling authentically reminiscent of old English country seats, a solarium, balcony opening off of two bedrooms, modern kitchen—servants' quarters in rear. Elev. Gentiles. Immediate or May 1 possession. Yet an outstanding bargain for those whose need is invites inspection of delightfully furnished kitchenette apartments of one, two and three rooms—complete service.

NORTH.

CANTERBURY . . . COURT

A modern seventeen-story building in the center of Chicago's social life and within walking distance of the loop.

Radios, beamed ceilings, French phones and colored tile baths and many other exclusive features seldom found in apartments at $60.

1220 N. State Parkway

Live in the Park
It virtually surrounds you here. Lincoln park, with its scenic wonders and myriad attractions, is the very spirit of spring. And these 1-2-3 room apts. are the spirit of perfection. Every detail measured for your ultra convenience; smart furnishings, modern kitchenettes, innerspring mattresses, bath, shower, daily maid service, trans., and garage service.

Hoddy, General Development Agent, Dept. B-92, Louisville and Nashville Railroad, Louisville, Ky.

Arizona.

BETTER OPPORTUNITIES AWAIT YOU IN the Salt River Valley, Arizona, where the winter days are days of sunshine. Fertile soil, irrigated by gravity from storage dams. Land specially adapted and proven for the growing of grapefruit, oranges, and lemons, dates, olives, figs; can be had moderately priced and on reasonable terms, in tracts of from five acres up. Ideal climate, good roads, schools and churches, with city comforts in country homes. Write for free Arizona folder. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Railway, 981 Railway Exchange Bldg., Chicago.

California.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GARDEN SPOT.

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Steinke writes:

"We have lived in Texas, Indiana, Montana and Florida. Twenty-four years ago we came to California, and four years ago to FONTANA, and I hope we stay here the rest of our lives because we like it here better than any other place we have been.

We have five acres all in eight year old walnuts. We grow all kinds of garden and alfalfa for green feed for our chickens between the trees.

"My husband has had some work on the outside, and together with 600 or 700 hens we have made a good living right through the depression. We like the climate here better than in Pasadena, where we last lived."

Raise poultry, vegetables, oranges, walnuts, berries. MAKE YOUR LIVING and A SURPLUS on 2½-5-10 acres in a proven, successful community of 6,000 folks—under ideal home conditions.

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA SMALL farm homes near established communities yield good income; ideal climate for fruit and poultry; moderate price lands; easy terms; paved roads and good schools. Only ten years ago life on the farm meant an almost primitive existence. Today wide spread distribution of modern conveniences make pleasant and profitable the hours that used to be tedious and difficult. The Santa Fe railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. C. L. SEAGRAVES, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Railway, 900A Railway Exchange, Chicago.

Personal, Property, and Salary.

Each Month Thousands TAKE ADVANTAGE OF LOCAL'S SERVICE

It Will Satisfy You

Phone Your Request and immediately thereafter call at the office and obtain the money.

Service

Local was organized to make loans—in small or large amounts—to serve the needs of wage earners and salaried men and women. It is our aim to render this service quickly to every one who requests a loan. At all of our branches, transactions are conducted in private offices by courteous employés.

Methods

We make loans on salary, ON YOUR SIGNATURE ONLY, without endorsers. Also on FURNITURE, AUTOS, or other PERSONAL PROPERTY. All transactions are confidential. Loans granted without notice to employer, friends or relatives.

Rates

Local's rates on large furniture loans are less than the legal rate. All small loans at the regular legal rate. Charges are computed monthly on the unpaid balance.

Amounts—Terms

You can borrow any amount from $25 to $300; small loans receive the same courteous attention as larger loans. You make your own terms, 10 to 20 months, more or less. Regardless of the agreement you have the privilege to repay any day, week or month to reduce the cost.

BEFORE BORROWING Get the Facts About HOUSEHOLD'S REDUCED RATE ON $300 LOANS

LOANS OF $30 TO $300 MADE.

On amounts above $100 Household's charge is below the maximum rate permitted by the State Small Loan Law.

We believe we do the largest business in the Chicago area because:

1. We offer good service at reasonable cost.
2. We only make loans that are helpful to the customer.
3. We give free, authentic information on managing people's incomes.
4. If desired we give free, authentic information on buying economically.

HOW LOANS ARE MADE.

Household makes loans of $30 to $300 only to families, that is to husband and wife on their signatures. They can be repaid in monthly installments over 20 months or sooner. Loans are made on the basis of the information furnished by husband and wife. We do not question your employer, your neighbors, your relatives, or the people with whom you do business. All of our offices are equipped so that your business can be handled in a private room.

WHY
do the classified columns offer so few Franklins for sale by others? THE REASON IS OBVIOUS—BECAUSE owners of FRANKLIN MOTOR CARS know the supremacy of Franklin's exclusive engineering features by experience. They know, too, the inherent built-in quality.

It is for these reasons that Franklin owners remain Franklin owners—trading in their used Franklins for newer ones.

Other good cars are also taken in trade for new and rebuilt Franklins. The buyer seeking unusual value will do well to see our Select Stock of Cars, now.

Prices range from $85 to $1,850—open today.

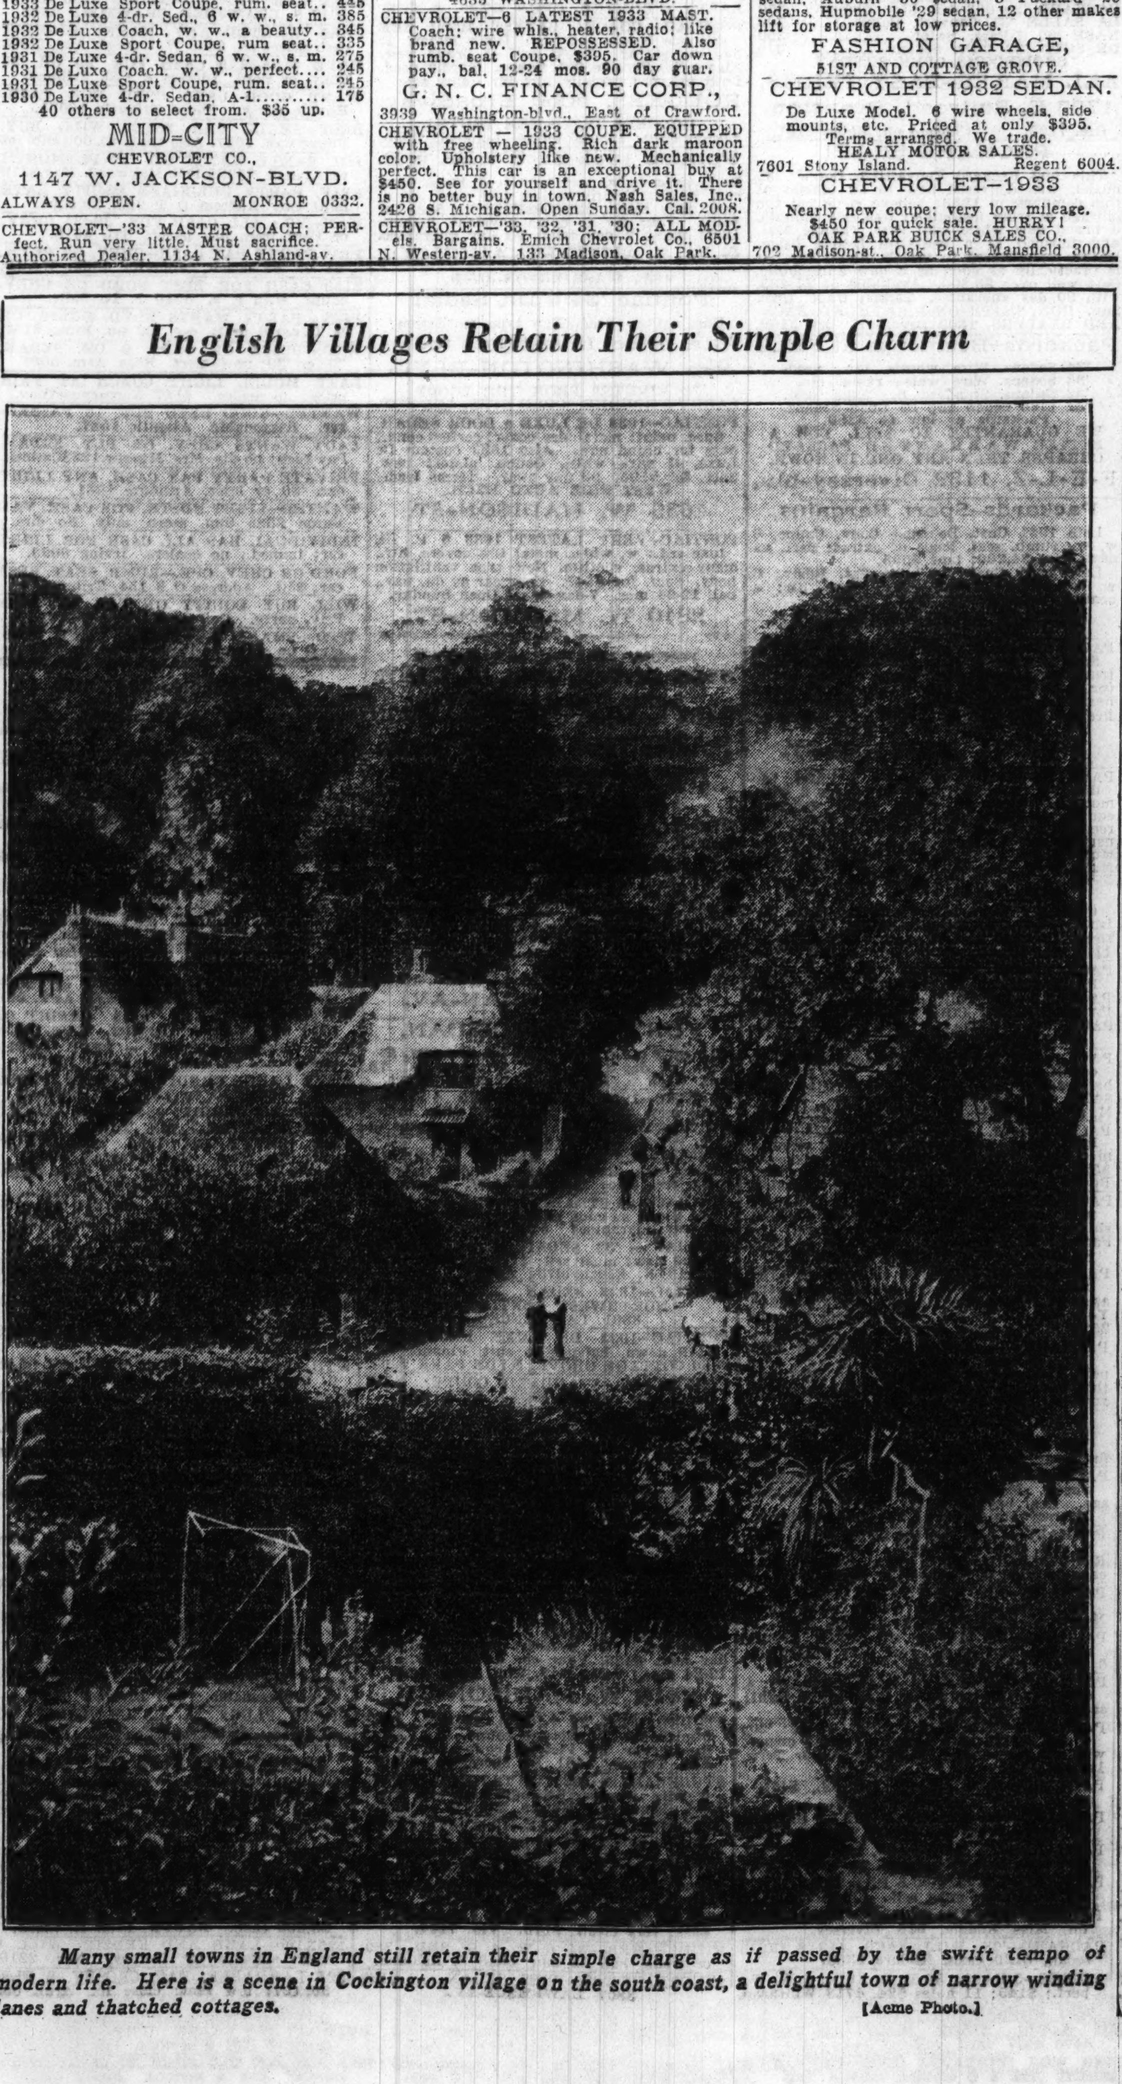
English Villages Retain Their Simple Charm



Many small towns in England still retain their simple charge as if passed by the swift tempo of modern life. Here is a scene in Cockington village on the south coast, a delightful town of narrow winding lanes and thatched cottages. [Acme Photo.]

American Building Getting Back Into Its Stride, Survey Shows

ALL BIG CITIES REPORT PICKUP IN FIRST QUARTER

Optimistic Forecast Made for Chicago.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

America's building industry is getting back into its stride after limping along for 5 years, according to E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades' Employers and a member of the National Construction Code authority. He made public yesterday the 1934 first quarter summary gathered from 75 cities. This discloses nationwide building activities that approximated $500,000,000 in the first three months of this year, against a total of $200,000,000 for the first quarter of 1933.

E. M. CRAIG.
[Loubell Photo.]

The survey, compiled by Robert D. Steele, statistician of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, paints an optimistic picture of Chicago's future. The indications, it states, are that the first half of 1934 will exceed the 1933 yearly total of $3,600,000. The first quarter of 1932 was $1,558,600. For the same period in 1933 the building total slid down to $340,800. The first quarter of 1934 was $1,674,675. In addition there was $4,000,000 World's Fair construction work not included.

Sounds Gloomy Note.

One gloomy note sounded in the local situation is that practically all building trades agreements consummated in 1929 expire on May 31, 1934, and building trades are demanding a six hour day, the survey states. It also carries the suggestion from several cities that labor costs must be reduced before a permanent improvement can be attained.

"Practically everything has been attempted to end this depression," said Mr. Craig. "We've had repeal of the 18th amendment, dollar depreciation, CWA, PWA, CCC, and other planned methods of business stimulation. They've reduced unemployment distress, but substantial improvement still is lacking.

"Public opinion is practically agreed that the ace in the hole is building construction, which in normal times directly and indirectly employs millions of men. The contemplated building program under federal sponsorship is patiently awaited by the American people. It should get the wheels of the capital goods industries in motion and simultaneously send millions of our unemployed back to work."

Detroit Is Cheerful.

Following are reports from some of the large American cities: Detroit, March, 1934, permits were $484,000, compared with $157,000 in the same month last year. Increased rentals are imminent with increasing activity in automotive factories. Apartment vacancies decreased 50 per cent during the last six months.

In Kansas City the building figures for the first quarter of 1934 were $350,000, compared with $154,000 in the 1933 period. A shortage of well conditioned homes and apartments of three and four rooms is reported. Public work amounting to $6,000,000 is under way.

New York, which reports a $200,000,000 building program of heavy construction—tunnels, bridges, sewers, etc.—of which $25,000,000 is now under way, declares that a downward building wage adjustment is essential before sustained building recovery will be attained. March, 1934, building permits were 90.4 per cent greater than in February and 41 per cent more than in March, 1933.

Philadelphia Building Gains.

Philadelphia, which reports a building outlook far more promising than in 1932 or 1933, also declares it will be necessary to stabilize building wages at reasonable levels. Building permits for the first quarter of this year were $2,373,000, compared with $1,582,000 in the first three months of last year.

In Minneapolis permits for the first quarter of 1934 were $707,000. In the same period last year they were $240,000. A home shortage is reported and apartment rents are firming.

Cleveland reports a home shortage, with flat rents advancing. Permits for the first quarter of 1934 were $973,000, compared with $762,000 in the first three months of 1933.

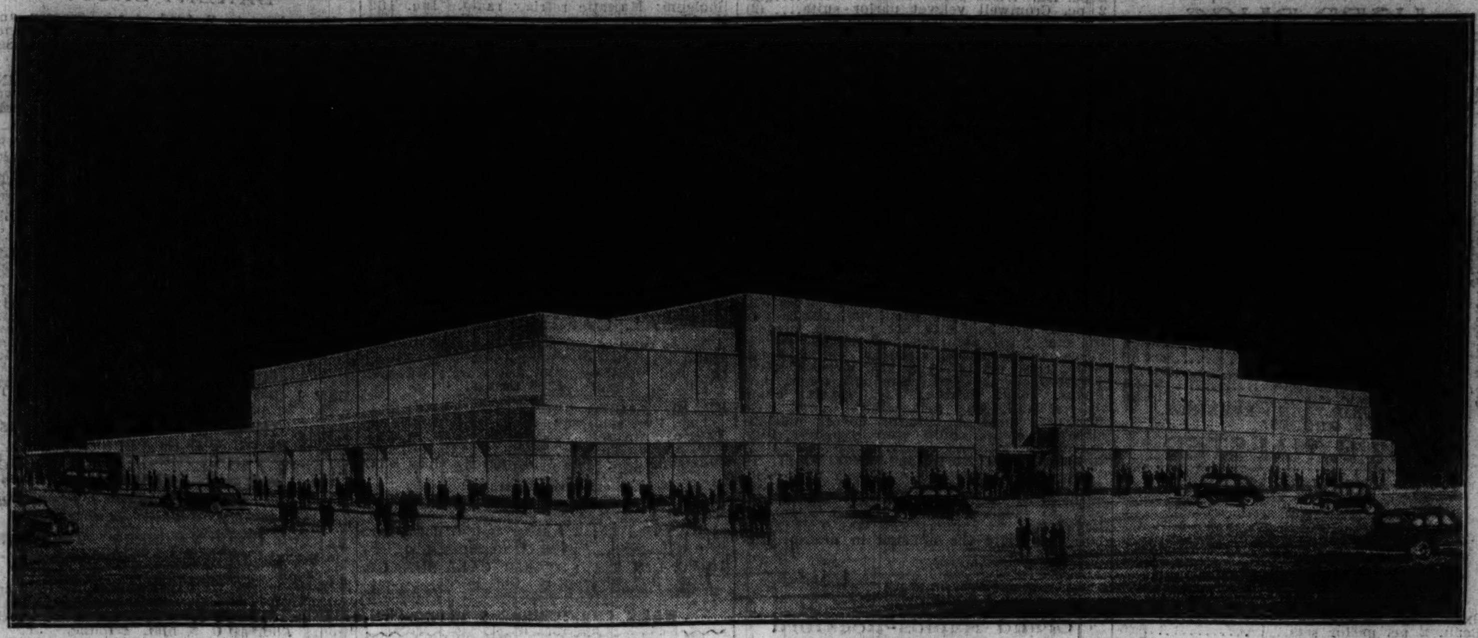
Shortage in Smaller Cities.

No apartment buildings have been erected in Portland, Ore., for the last four years and as a result the flat rental situation is greatly improved. The first quarter of 1934 showed a marked improvement over the same three months of 1932 and 1933. Public works amounting to $21,000,000 are under way.

Among the smaller cities, Houston and El Paso, Tex., both report an acute shortage of apartments and dwellings of all types due to a widespread of unscrambling of families.

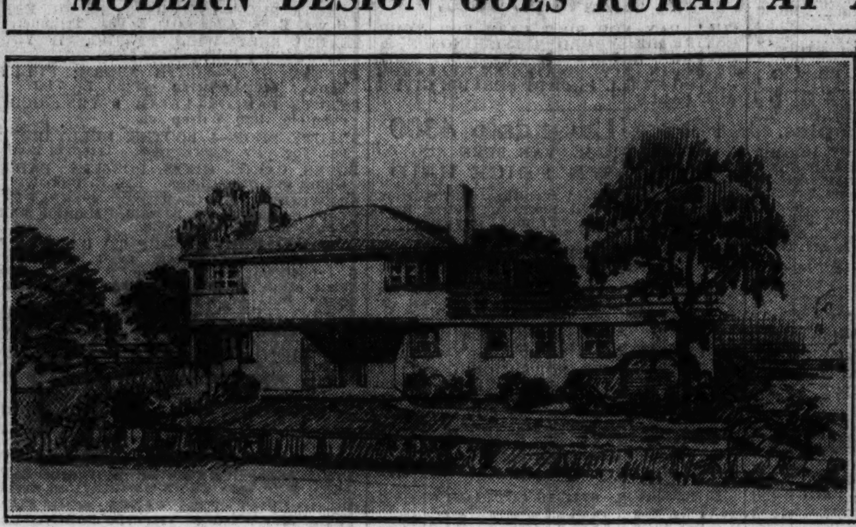
"The low level of business activity, other than building, was reached in July, 1932," said Mr. Craig. "Since that time stocks, bonds and numerous industries have enjoyed some recovery. Building and real estate are proverbially the last to stage a comeback and their upswing should be close at hand."

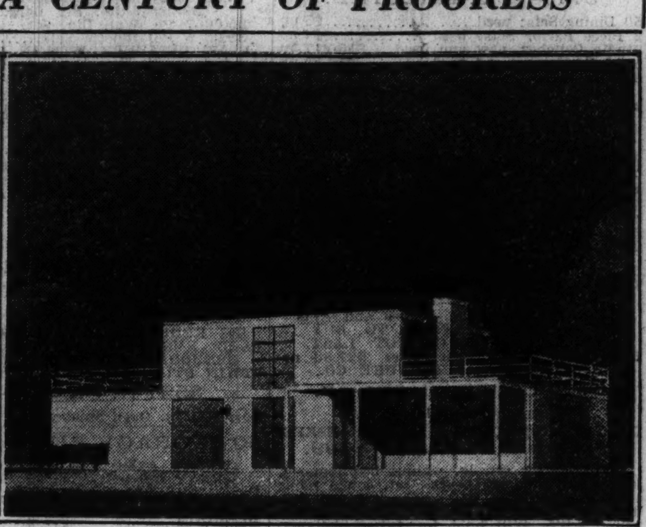
REJUVENATING A PAIR OF LOOP ANTIQUES



Holabird & Root are the architects of the above $300,000 two story "taxpayer" to be erected by the Brooks interests at the southeast corner of Monroe and Dearborn. The seven story Guardian Bank building and the eleven story Adams Express Company building are both to be wrecked. The new structure will be flood lighted, air conditioned, and acoustically treated. R. C. Wilkins of Aldis & Co. will be renting manager of the new building. A. R. Clas made this prospective.

MODERN DESIGN GOES RURAL AT A CENTURY OF PROGRESS





Modern design is going rural. On the left is a model farm house planned by Holsman & Holsman of Chicago, to be erected by the Crowell Publishing company at one end of the poultry exhibit. It is planned for the practical dirt farmer and will be fireproof and of brick, steel, and concrete construction. Brick will be reinforced with steel and precast in slabs and panels, delivered to the site. The house will have a spacious L shaped living room, dining room, and covered porch, opening into the garden and connected with a modern kitchen. There will be four second story bedrooms, a bathroom, and a large open deck porch or outdoors living room.

At the other end of the poultry exhibit will be the above 1934 country home for the city man who likes to live in the country or for the so-called gentleman farmer. It was designed by George Fred Keck. It will be erected by Federal Service, Inc., an Indiana corporation, organized recently at East Chicago for the purpose of manufacturing pre-fabricated metal frames for dwellings and other buildings. It is claimed that two men can bolt the laminated steel frame together in eight to twelve hours and after that any of the usual methods of finishing the outside and inside can be used. Mr. Keck says the building will be substantially fireproof.

WOMAN RENTAL AGENT CLOSES 18 LEASES IN ELEVEN MONTHS

Miss Anne Davis, probably the only woman agent for a big commercial property in this part of the country, reported yesterday that she had made eighteen leases in eleven months, totaling nearly a quarter of a million square feet of floor space, in the fifteen story One Eleven building, at 111 North Canal and 427 West Randolph streets, owned by Butler Bros. Of these, two recent leases were to the Wilkens-Anderson Company, Inc., and the O'Sullivan Rubber Company, Inc.

The Wilkens-Anderson company, now at 4223 West Lake street, has leased 15,000 square feet on the fifth floor of the One Eleven building. It will use the space for offices, salesrooms, and warehouse for scientific and industrial laboratory supplies. It will take possession May 1. H. B. Wilkens is president and W. C. Burfischer is secretary.

The O'Sullivan Rubber company, formerly in the Conway building and warehousing at 1319 South Clinton street, has leased the northwest section of the ninth floor and already is occupying it. The company has combined its Chicago district sales offices and warehouse in the space leased. R. J. Funkhouser is president and P. M. Hoffman is secretary of the company, which has its home offices in Winchester, Va. S. J. Reynolds is Chicago branch manager.

Miss Davis has been in the real estate business in Chicago for twelve years. Half of this time was spent doing residential work in the offices of Harold Bradley, spectacular Gold Coast realty operator during the boom period. She has been connected with the One Eleven building for the last six years and is now renting agent.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of April 13 to 19, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 46, with a combined cost of $898,560. For the corresponding week last year there were 49 contracts, totaling $527,600. From Jan. 1 to April 19, 1934, the total was $8,727,110, or $1,985,496 ahead of the corresponding period last year, which totaled $6,741,614.

Old Time Loop Structures to Be Replaced by 'Taxpayer'

Two more old time loop structures, the seven story Guardian Bank building at the southeast corner of Dearborn and Monroe, and the eleven story Adams Express building, adjoining on the south, are to be supplanted by a modern two story store and office building. High taxes and low rentals were factors which decided the owners, the Shepherd trustees, to call in the wreckers.

Holabird & Root have drawn plans for a $300,000 two story "taxpayer" of modern design, with flood lighted exterior and air conditioned interior. It will front 190 feet on Dearborn and 131 feet on Monroe.

Lehmann Estate May Join.

In addition the Lehmann estate probably will extend the first story east ninety feet across the front of its property now being used for parking. If that is done the rear will continue to be used as an open air garage. The building will then have a frontage on Monroe of 221 feet and will extend east to the alley between State and Dearborn.

The second story will be set back, allowing the second story to be flood lighted. An air conditioning plant will be installed so that all shop and office tenants, if they care for it, may have their quarters cooled in summer, as well as have fresh warm air in winter.

There will be no exposed columns on the second floor, which will have two entrances, one from Dearborn and one from Monroe. The first floor will have space for a possible nineteen stores, which can be arranged in almost any size, the flexibility suggesting to Graham Aldis the name "tailor made shops." Cove lighting probably will be a feature in many of these stores.

Ready By Holiday.

Wreckers soon will start clearing the site with the expectation of having the new building completed for the Christmas holidays. It has not yet been decided what materials to use for the exterior walls. It is possible that instead of the customary gray, some bright color may be used. Walls of deep blue or bright yellow have been suggested.

Both of the buildings to be wrecked have interesting histories. The corner structure was erected in 1880 by the Commercial National bank, which moved in 1907 to what is now the Commonwealth Edison building. The National City bank occupied this building from 1907 to 1925. The Guardian National bank was a tenant until 1930.

Aldis & Co. are agents for the Shepherd trustees, owners of the buildings to be wrecked. R. C. Wilkins, of that firm, will be renting manager of the new building.

HOMES CONTEST ANNOUNCED BY M'INTOSH & CO.

As a result of the big success of last year's "Attractive Homes Contest," Arthur T. McIntosh & Co. announced yesterday that they will hold a second annual competition this year. This neighborly race to win a prize for the best kept up place will be open to the several hundred customers who are purchasing homes.

The company furnishes free flower and vegetable seeds to each entrant. At the end of the contest in the fall, prizes of $250 in cash and nursery stock of like value will be awarded to the owners of the twenty homes which the judges decide are most attractive.

The prizes are awarded, irrespective of type or size of home, simply on the attractiveness of the exterior of the buildings, lawn and garden. Well known horticulturists will be judges.

"This is one contest you win even if you lose, because the extra effort and labor the home owner puts on his place during the contest add materially to the value of the property," said Mr. McIntosh. "If every man makes his place as attractive as possible, his neighbor does the same, and the other owners on the street and in the community likewise. It goes a long way to make a happy, contented community and actually increases real estate values."

WOMAN CLOSES $200,000 IN HOUSE SALES

Mrs. R. C. Davis, of 403 South boulevard, Oak Park, who reports having negotiated $200,000 residential sales in River Forest and Oak Park since the first of the year, yesterday sold the residence of William Schultz, at 7550 Chicago avenue, River Forest, which originally cost a reported $87,000, to Wilbur R. Poungen, vice president and general manager of Hubbard & Co.

She also sold the brick colonial residence of Albert T. Candy Jr., at 1131 Fair Oaks avenue, Oak Park, to Carl Mosier, vice president and general manager of the Union Asbestos Rubber company.

Peabody Estate to Be Cut Up Into Building Sites

W. W. Thompson, president of W. W. Thompson & Co., public accountants, purchased the former 12.9 acre Peabody estate at Hinsdale from Stuyvesant Peabody, president of the Peabody Coal company, for an indicated $40,000. Improvements consist of a forty room brick residence and nine car garage. The property, which is at County Line road and Sixth street, is to be cut up into building lots.

Leo Varty to Open Own Real Estate Office in Loop

Leo G. Varty, who has been active in downtown real estate for more than three decades, yesterday announced that he had resigned as vice president of John R. Magill & Co. and on May 1 will establish the firm of Varty & Co. His son, Leo B. Varty, will be associated with him. He will have offices in the 79 West Monroe building, formerly the Chicago Trust building, of which he has been appointed manager. Varty & Co. also will be renting agents of the Machinery Sales building at Washington and Jefferson and the group of properties at the southeast corner of Van Buren and Sherman.

Mr. Varty, who lives at 423 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, is president of the Realty club of Chicago and a director of the Chicago Real Estate board.

PLAN THEATER FOR THE FIRST TIME IN YEARS

For the first time in several years plans are announced for a new theater in Chicago. Charles F. Farrell is to erect a thousand seat movie playhouse on the west side of Cottage Grove avenue, half way between 78th and 79th streets. The site is 300x125. L. E. Russell is drawing plans for a theater of modern design, to be air conditioned and acoustically treated. It will be 86x125. The front elevation will be of stone and granite.

Mr. Farrell, who is owner of the Chatfield Oil company, says work is expected to get under way within thirty days and he hopes to open his playhouse about Sept. 1. He will announce the name of the management shortly. The building and equipment, he states, will cost about $75,000.

As the theater will occupy less than a third of the entire site, Mr. Farrell said there would be ample room for parking. The building, in addition to containing the theater, will have three stores and several offices. The playhouse probably will be called the "Chatfield."

ARCHITECTS OPEN FIGHT FOR MORE LOCAL HOUSING

Petition to Ickes Stirs Up A. I. A. Chapter.

Vigorous protest against proposed federal housing for Chicago by several hundred local institutions, business firms and individuals, in a petition drawn up by Milo B. French, secretary of the First of Englewood Bond and Mortgage company, and sent last week to Public Works Administrator Ickes, brought prompt action by local architects.

JOHN O. MERRILL.
[De Gueldre Photo.]

After receiving a comprehensive report on the Ickes petition, Earl H. Reed Jr., president of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects, yesterday appointed a committee to investigate the local building situation.

Outlines Program.

The committee, as recommended in the architects' report on the Ickes petition, is instructed to carry out the following program:

"1. Promote needed and legitimate new building activities with special emphasis on the need for housing, both apartments and houses.

"2. Investigate all possible means of financing such new construction from both governmental and private sources.

"3. Conduct an active campaign of publicity which will point out to the public the true facts regarding present inadequacy of housing, imminent shortage of housing of all types, and danger of exorbitant rentals resulting from an effort to block normal new construction."

Headed by John Merrill.

John Merrill of Granger & Bollenbacher, and Miles Colean of Cowles & Colean, who made the report on the Ickes petition to the Chicago chapter at its last meeting, were both appointed members of the "emergency committee on new construction" by President Reed yesterday. The other members are: John R. Fugard of Thielbar & Fugard and also president of the metropolitan housing council, and Elmer Jensen of Mundie & Jensen. Mr. Merrill is chairman of the committee.

The report by Mr. Merrill and Mr. Colean declared that vacancies in Chicago today are about normal, and a radical increase in rents is imminent. It predicted that a continued cessation of new building activity shortly will create a situation similar to that of 1921 when occupancy reached 99 per cent and rents skyrocketed to unusual heights.

The report also said, "We have reason to believe that certain selfish interests are seeking to bring about this abnormal and unsatisfactory condition in an attempt to revive thousands of buildings in Chicago, which are so fundamentally deficient and undesirable that they can operate profitably only during a period of actual housing shortage."

"Needs More Than Fixing."

The report points to the statement in the petition to Ickes which said that "union labor will work for a few months on these housing projects, but that is just a 'drop in the bucket.' Practically every form of union labor could be put back to work over a longer period of time and money would flow into building material supply houses and other channels if the same amount of money allotted for housing projects was appropriated to fix up the hundreds of well built apartment properties."

"It will take more to put the building industry and building labor on its feet today than the 'fixing up' of present buildings," the architects' report replied. "Furthermore, the absence of new building construction and consequent shortage of apartments will tend against modernization.

"Architects and others who recently have been trying to foster modernization programs for old buildings are confronted with the attitude on the part of many building owners that no remodeling is necessary just now because the old buildings will soon be filled up anyway."

Lingerie for Spring Rejoices in the Blues; Frills Once More Disturb Its Simple Lines

By RHEA SEEGER.

BLUER than the blue skies the spring crop of brides pray for their wedding days is the blue that is new for spring bridal lingerie, as well as the same sort of intimate apparel not destined for trousseaux. If you have wearied of flesh, peach, and other pastel shades and if you are either a blonde, brunette, or red head, any of these new " blues " will completely charm you.

Nightgowns made with lace festooned bertha collars, slim tailored affairs with deep V necklines, gowns with round baby necks and matched short puffed sleeves, and models resembling glamorous slinky evening gowns of sleek satin—all are featured in this soft cerulean blue. Almost anybody can wear it, for it is infinitly becoming and of the softest tints imaginable. Either bistre tinted lace or lighter tints hues this new color to perfection.

Some Negligees Have Sweeping Trains.

Some of the season's best sleeping and lounging pajamas come in this new shade. Stunning things are made of silk crêpe as thick as cream or gleaming satins. Some of them are matched to a third piece, the long robe that can be used separately with other lingerie.

Spring negligees will send you scuttling for more cash to spend. They are picturesque and wearable. They cling in long lines, and in many instances sweep the floor in trains. You'll find picture book effects in dusty pink such as illustrated in the seated figure in the lower right hand corner. This particular creation has long princess sleeves and a longish train. It is made of large flowered patterned lace, and is unquestionably one of the most flattering lace creations to be found

You Can Wear a Robe Like Garbo's.

Do you remember the breath taking lounging robe Garbo wore in her last film? The one of heavy silk crêpe with the high round collar and the long silken cord and tassels and the classic beauty of long lines? You can own a similar heart breaker made with a high round neckline, the now famous cowl back collar, the picturesque long full sleeves gathered into cuffs, and the cord and tassels. It is shown on the figure in the upper left hand corner.

Taffeta is as successful for lounging and negligees as it has been for street and general wear Charming robes, perky coats, and breakfast ensembles of this swishy feminine stuff are spring finds in all pastel and indoor colors. Short cape sleeves of the puff varieties with rather full silhouettes are featured. One of them is shown on the standing model photographed in the figure at the lower right.

A glorified version of a simple robe is illustrated in the photograph in the upper right hand corner. It is made of heavy novelty silk, and has a large collar and cuffs.

A chiffon breakfast coat with full short sleeves is shown in the inset at the upper center. It is available in all bon bon colors.

Evening Modes from Paris Are Boldly Bright

Fabrics and Jewels for Formal Wear Frankly Intended to Dazzle.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The Paris social season begins at this time. The evening mode gets its real okay now, and this season it comes trailing in in a blaze of glory. The formal clothes that are worn by the Famous Forty Smartest Women and their satellites are colorful in a big way. Plaid taffeta frocks you can see a good half a kilometer away are in high fashion. Striped, transparent stuffs with their bands of color laid on as a poster artist might apply them make some of the most distinguished late spring evening models here. Dazzling materials woven with cellophane, jet, gold, and silver are part of the giddy picture.

Flowers that have that particular artificial brilliance given by incandescent light are splattered all over the printed silks that are so much worn. Dresses trail, sometimes several feet, and jewels that are set to give the maximum of rajah-like splendor appear around the neck, in the ears, and up in the hair of lovely and aristocratic women going the round of pleasures in Paris. Bracelets, too, are weighty along slender wrists and forearms.

The old bugbear of the smart woman—the horror of being outshone by her clothes—is laid at last. Without the least hint of grimness the Famous Forty are proving this spring that they can outshine any mere rag of wearing apparel, however splendiferous it is. And they do. The entrance of one of these spectacular evening frocks may for a moment command your entire attention, but after the first impact the lady herself is high lighted by the dress, rather than extinguished by it. She dominates what she wears by her sleek, insolent assurance, her breeding, and her taste.

Bouffant Skirt Definitly Taboo.

The evening silhouette is always divinely long and most divinely slender, but apart from this it is varied to suit all the assorted sizes and temperaments of the fashionable feminine world of Paris. Wings, windblown panels, capes, fluffy sleeves, and ruffles, alter the aspect of the long, superslim line of the frock. The full skirt is about the only thing that is taboo. That is, the skirt that looks bouffant. Some of the evening skirts seen in Paris are in fact so narrow they have to be split at the hem to permit getting about with speed.

Modesty is still the rule and nothing more than a slim ankle is visible after dark. Lelong's new evening skirts that trail in back and are only ankle length in front are worn by a lot of fashionable French women. However, the skirt that is long all around is still predominant. The decolleté, too, inclines more toward modesty than toward a big display of flesh.

Mainbocher's Berthas Outline Neck and Shoulders.

Mainbocher's evening dresses with organdy berthas draped high in the back to outline beautiful necks and shoulders are exceedingly smart. The way they look is shown in the model at the left. This is a frock done in the original in poppy red crêpe silk cut to mold the figure. The skirt falls in beautiful folds around the bottom. It has a sash of the material at the back of the waistline. The sheer white organdy bertha is used to fill in the deep round decolleté at the back, being actually sewed to the front along the lower edge in front and back. It rises above the shoulders at the back and in front ties in a huge bow on the bosom.

Second from the right foreground and background is a picture of one of Lucien Lelong's most stunning evening ensembles that is worn by a number of the Famous Forty here. Lelong does it in black jet-like material. The hiplength jacket has a circular back that is held down by a drooping belt. The raglan sleeves are covered solidly with brilliant cellophane fringe, tipped with silver. The front of the bodice, shown in the background, and the small hip peplum are also covered with this cellophane fringe. The skirt has a flaring front panel that is ankle length and trails at the back. When trains are short like this women let them slither along behind as they walk.

At the right and in the center background you can see one of Augustabernard's successful evening frocks made in the original model of boldly striped sapphire blue and white silk organdy. It has a matching organdy cape shirred over the arms and just long enough to cover the low cut decolleté. The dress has Augustabernard's new streamline, being extremely slim. A full gathered panel is set in at the back of the skirt. The stripes are worked vertically and add a lot to the effect of tallness.

They're real only at the back and bottom of the skirt. ● Second from right, foreground and background: This Lelong evening ensemble has sleeves and front-bodice of cellophane fringe. ● At right: A striped silk organdy evening ensemble from Augustabernard. STOPS SMEAR

No, it's not a flower petal, it's grand new gadget designed to eliminate the possibility of ugly smears of lipstick on expensive fabrics. Ida Lupino, popular featured film player, uses this device constantly to protect her dresses.

Artificial Flowers Boast Everything Real Blooms Have

MANY of us cannot afford to keep fresh flowers in every room as we'd like to, no matter how charmingly perfect they are or how very much they do for a room's atmosphere. But it's quite possible now to fill the vases with artificial blooms that have everything real flowers have.

Besides goregous white waxy buds and ones of palest pink there are long stemmed, poetical looking lilies, fresh and crispy branches of white dogwood, huge and spectacular clusters of rhododendron, and all the spring garden flowers: Tulips, jonquils, lilies of the valley, narcissi, and even purple morning glories. The prices are not at all high and the nice thing about these flowers is, of course, the fact that they won't wilt nor fade away.

They are on sale at all the large State street stores.

LATEST SNAPSHOTS FROM PARIS

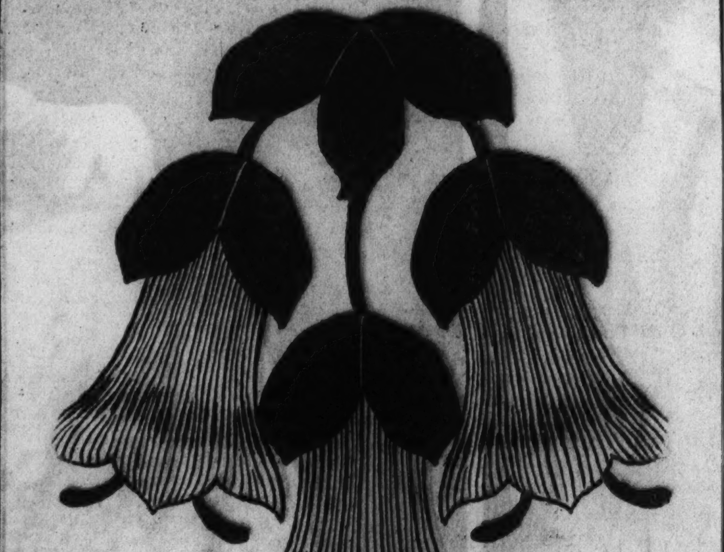
Evening slippers in Paris are as light as a cloud. They are lined with silver or soft pastel colors. Bentivegna makes them with the spangles, lames, and satins on the outside.

Coats for warm days ahead remind the costume expert of the French Directoire. They are made of black linen or of alpaca, and they are cut like redingotes. They are smart and practical to slip on over printed frocks.

Mauboussin's heavy jeweled clip pins and earrings set with topazes and diamonds are being worn by fashionable women in Paris, bringing the topaz back to fashion's favor.

Sweet little summer bonnets are coming out of Agnes' millinery salons in Paris. She makes them of shirred and smocked taffeta to match dresses of the same material.

Floral Block of Many Names Has Wide Favor in Quiltdom



Cathedral Bells.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents each, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

By Nancy Cabot.

THIS floral block is known variously as "Cathedral Bells," "Canterbury Bells," and "Chimney Bellflower." By any name it is equally beautiful, and it makes one of the loveliest quilts in quiltdom. The petal of the flower is a delicate lilac blue, the leaves are soft green, and a touch of orange is used for the stamen. The block measures 12 inches square, and there are 32 applique blocks and 24 plain blocks in the completed spread.

It's ready—Nancy Cabot's new booklet, presenting 96 illustrations of favorite quilt designs, together with one pattern of a popular quilt, "The Framed Rose." Price, 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Good Taste Is Basic in Style of Stationery

Personal Requirements and Standard Form Govern Individual Selection.

By Helen Bartlett.

WHAT are the styles in stationery?

Your own good staste and originality may be exercised in the selection of color and quality of writing paper. And there are styles in monogramming, printing, engraving, and size of envelope and letter paper that must be selected according to your personal tastes and requirements. Our stationer advises us that there is a distinctly noticeable revival of formality in stationery. Personally, my natural conservatism prefers the plain white or slightly off white, gray or oyster white paper, and cringes at the sight of a lively pink envelope, addressed with blue ink, and mailed under the protection of Uncle Sam's purple postage stamps.

Let the following discussion govern your decision as to the type of printing or engraving to be superimposed on the stationery of your selection. You may, of course, prefer to use perfectly plain letter paper, and that is your privilege. We do not mean to infer that your personal stationery must be monogrammed.

Monogram for the Unmarried Woman.

An unmarried woman's monogram is made up of the first letters of her first and last names, or her first, second, and last names. A married woman's monogram has the first letters of her first name, her maiden name, and her husband's last name. A man's monogram is composed, naturally enough, of the initials of his first second, and last names, just as in the case of the maiden woman.

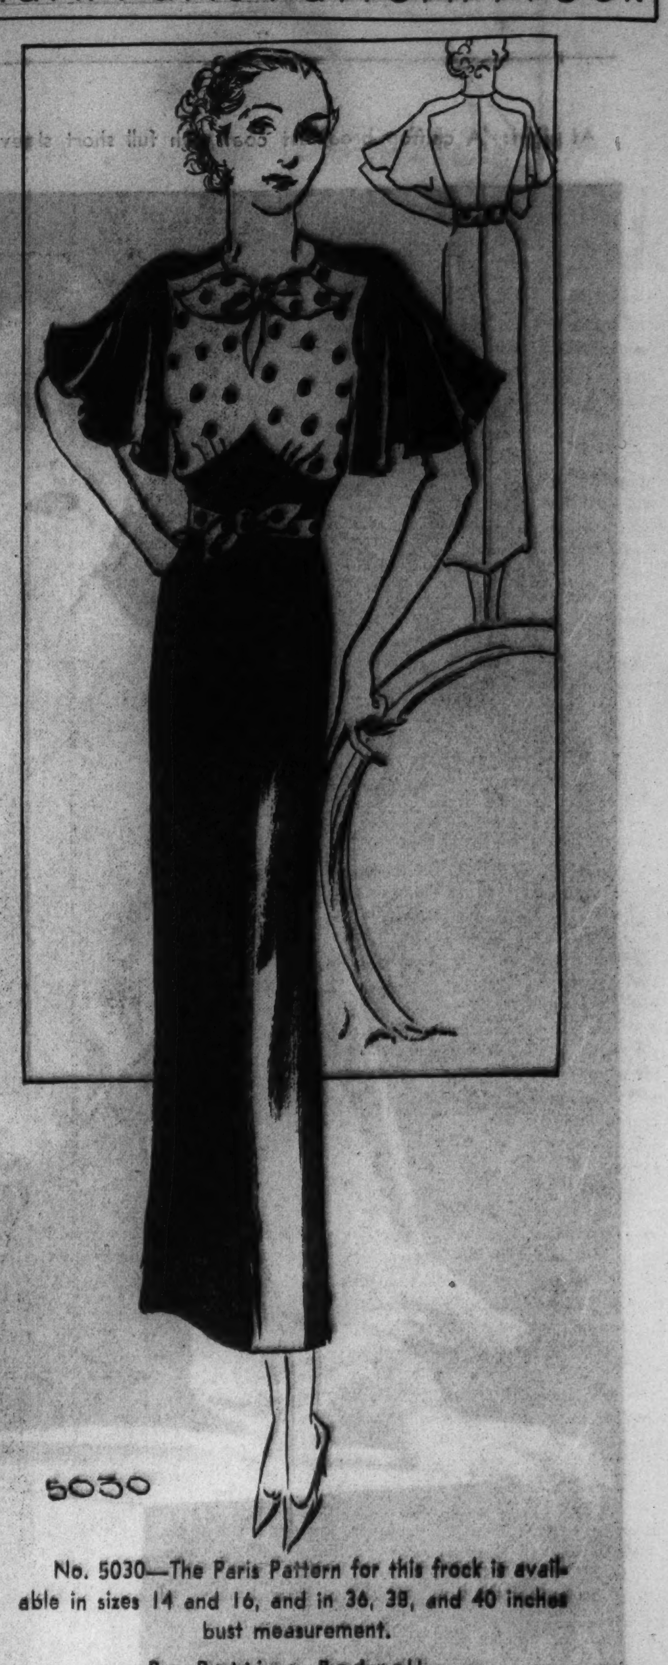
For personal and strictly social correspondence, the best type of engraving on stationery is a monogram, usually placed in the upper left corner or in the center of the page. The style and color of the monogram is up to you. Select a type which harmonizes in both style and color with the paper and the use for which it is intended. Very often a monogram is designed from the individual's own personal handwriting. This style is a little more intimate, but a little less formal and dignified.

In some cases the address is also engraved or printed on the letter paper in addition to the monogram. But it is my opinion that the single monogram, without any other decoration, is the most effective, attractive and of better taste. The address, or the name and address, may or may not be engraved on the flap of the envelope.

Definition of House Stationery.

House stationery is writing paper that may be used by all members of the family, or by any one residing temporarily or permanently at that address. The engraving at the head of the paper is just the street and city address with no individual's name or monogram to personalize it. Some ingenious member of the family might design a cut of the family mansion to be used on house stationery in the position which the personal monogram usually occupies. With such a cut the address may or may not be used in conjunction. Any family that has the right to use it, may have the paternal crest or coat of arms engraved on the letter paper.

Simplicity and Versatility Mark Paris Pattern Frock



No. 5030—The Paris Pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Here is a pattern, No. 5030, that you can make up with one hand tied behind you, and yet it has the breath of Paris chic in its seams and details. It's the kind of a frock you can wear for almost anything, and it takes only a small yardage of material.

The false-vest front on the bodice you may make of a great variety of materials. In the original model this is made of flat crêpe, dotted with polka dots the color of the dress, and the tie-on belt is made to match. Paris likes this frontal piece in pastel color, or white, with dark dots. If you like you may make it of white lingerie material, of floral printed silk, or you can make it of heavy lace if you need a dressy frock.

The short cape sleeves are just the thing to wear in hot weather, and they're as smart as they are cool. Slip on a pair of long gloves, perhaps polka dotted, with this frock when you wish to feel dressed up.

The body of this frock is not closely fitted, but is just sufficiently molded to get away from the straight line, and is becoming to all figures.

Foreign Authority Says Corseting Shoes Cause Pain to Feet

Shank of Slipper Must Not Be Rigid, but Gently Grip and Give Support.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

IS IT surprising, or is it logical that footwear breaks into an art gallery?

A powerful amount of pavement has flowed under soles since shoes were black and brown—and practical. Isn't it so? And lately they've been heading for some distinction with their variegated colors and beautiful fabrics, so why isn't it art?

Anyway, there was such a footwear showing held recently in a New York art gallery alongside portraits of ballet dancers, and yokels, and nudes, and tight rope walkers, and Cannes scenes. The artist exhibiting his footwear was André Perugia, noted French shoemaker, visiting this country at present. If you feel in the mood you may lay down $100, $150, $200 for his shoes, and on up to $500 a pair. Without wishing to get into any argument about luxury spending, it does seem news to record that I saw two pairs of mules which sold to a picturesque New York matron at $65 a pair. [And not a bray in either mule, at that.] Also, I saw an order from another social light for nine pairs of shoes; some $50, some $65, some $75, and up.

To you and to me it just indicates what future shoe history may record. Here's what's on the horizon already: toeless pump with machine age metal heel; mules with metal high ball heel and decor; evening oxford with airplane wire heel; sandal with airplane wire shank; beach sandal inspired by a Chinese warrior; house clog, Chinese inspiration. However, enough of that until the stock market sings a more jovial tune.

But Mr. Perugia, being an artist with a lifetime study of feet on which to draw, says the body weight should be borne on sole and heel and not with the stiffened arch common to present day shoes. It's corseting the foot, so to speak, to depend on the shoe arch for support. When removed the arch of the foot flops and the arch weakens. Nothing stiff or rigid should be in the shank of the shoe. The shoe arch should grip gently, not "corset."

He says, too, that it is pure affectation to call for double A and triple A. The foot is A, B, and C width. M. Perugia holds that you can tell whether a woman is of patrician or peasant stock from her feet; that by looking at them you can tell what the character in the face will read—common, elegant, careless, meticulous, efficient, nonefficient, and so on; that feet in themselves are not beautiful. [In motion, yes; and the better shod the more perfect the motion.] And, for perfect motion, shoes should fit and feel as easy as a glove.

M. Perugia says that the very short vamp and the elongated shoe are each bad taste and bad shoeing.

Asked how many pairs a well dressed woman requires, I learned that twelve or fifteen a season would keep one looking pretty trim. At which news, perhaps, I'd better fade out of the picture here and see about having some of my old soles revamped, eh?

Above: These are what have been called typical American feet. M. Perugia, foreign shoe and foot authority, believes that one may tell character by the build of the feet. What would you say were the personalities of the women who modeled the footwear in the upper picture?

Right: The lovely person in this picture is Patricia Bowman, premiere danseuse of the Follies. According to M. Perugia, noted French shoemaker, Miss Bowman's ankles are among the most beautiful. It is certain that ankles cannot be comely and well built if the feet are crippled by faulty shoes. This expert recommends that footgear be selected less for style than for the manner in which it is constructed. Shoes which bind the arch injure the foot, and freedom and grace in walking are possible only when slippers fit well, gently gripping the arch.

Latest Styles in Smocks Avoid Utilitarian Air

SMOCKS for gardening, as well as for the house, no longer have that dull utilitarian aspect. A specialty shop in Chicago has them with all the style found in Paris models. One of plain, unbleached muslin has long, wide sleeves embroidered with a spray of turkey red leaves. The side closing of the smock is accomplished with the aid of a large red button and is slightly Russian in effect.

In a style similar to the Russian type of smock is one of figured blue chintz with yellow figured pockets and designs of the same color appliqued on the sleeves. The high neck of these smocks afford excellent protection against sun and windburn if one is not partial to bronze coloring.

Another smock, distinctly different, is one of brown and white checked gingham, with a flattering white yoke of pique or organdy to suit individual taste.

DRAGONS FOR MEN!

Men are being given more than their share of attention these days when the question of comfort arises. This handsome dark, heavy gray silk robe has a striking black and white dragon as its only decoration. Combined with a pair of light tan pajamas it is the last word in masculine lounging. The robe and pajamas are inexpensively priced and obtainable in a Chicago clothing store and a Michigan avenue shop.

Hors d'Oeuvres Pique Palates at Dinner Hour

Cocktail Porcupine Lends Delectable Support to Tastily Planned Meal.

By Mary Meade.

FIRST course cocktails—whether they are derived from vegetable juices, fruit juices, or something more potent—are these days accepted as graceful ways of getting into the full swing of the meal. But, to plenty of us, these pleasant little appetite piquers are only half themselves without the support of some small, gay hors d'œuvres to accompany them. Perhaps we serve them at the table, or perhaps we pass around our tomato juice or what-not in the living-room before dinner. But wherever, the accompanying tidbit may be much the same.

It might be canapés, but we've gone into the matter of those so often that I feel more in the mood to give the other, odd, little possibilities a chance.

These "finger foods" are best arranged on a platter or chop plate. If we're sitting at the table, the cocktail will be already in place on a small plate on top of the larger service plate. The platter of hors d'œuvres goes around to the left, and guests select two or more as they wish, and find room for them beside the cocktail on the little plate. If the event is going forward in the living-room, guests annex their cocktails, cocktail napkins, and sometimes a small plate from a tray. On the same tray or on another, serve a plate of the hors d'œuvres, always being sure that they can be picked up without too much soiling of the fingers. Woodpins, poked into many of them, help a lot. Sprinkled in among these special little numbers, don't forget to include a few of the fingerable canapés we've talked over in the past.

Novel Appetizer Simulates Porcupine.

COCKTAIL PORCUPINE.

You'll need at least one large rosy apple, washed and shined within an inch of its life. Or a whopper of an orange will do as neatly. Also, there should be one-quarter pound of unsliced salami and three dozen or so sweet, pickled onions. The salami first gets itself cut into ½ inch cubes. Then wood pins [not toothpicks to you, I hope!], come into play. Spear an onion and then a cube of salami on each pin and stick the nether end of the pin into the apple. Repeat and repeat until the affair looks like a bristly porcupine. Or if this particular combination doesn't suit you, on some of the woodpins impale a curled anchovy or a small cheese ball, or an olive wrapped and broiled in a strip of bacon. Be sure these last are kept sizzling until the last moment, but drain them on soft paper before giving them over to the porcupine. Curled up shrimps with their dark streak removed are other contenders for a place in the cocktail porcupine.

But, if the prickly fellow is to be only one of the offerings, then you have room to play about with any of the following.

Meat and Cheese in Partnership.

Thin ham slices or not-so-thin dried beef slices make grand little cornucopias or roll-ups. Spread the meat [thin bologna or salami slices will also do] with cream cheese lent snap by the addition of horseradish, and chopped chives or minced onion. And a dash of salt and pepper before spreading. Then roll up the meat snugly or wind it into a cornucopia imitation with the cheese peering from one end. Fasten each with a woodpin.

Sections of celery stalk, not more than 3 inches long, may be stuffed with a pickle-cheese sandwich spread, a pineapple-cheese spread, a roquefort and cream cheese mixture, or any other gentle concoction your soul dictates.

Stuffed eggs, each filled half cut in two again, make still more changes. Minced gherkins and a little chili sauce are good mixers with the creamed yolk. Just be sure the mix doesn't get too soft, for such things wreak disaster.

Frankfurters Are Versatile Basis.

Frankfurters, after they've been boiled gently, chilled, skinned, and marinated an hour in French dressing, have all sorts of possibilities. They may be cut in 1 inch lengths and served on toothpicks as is. Or they may be cut, split partially, anointed lightly with mustard or horseradish, and have a bit of pickle poked into their interiors. Spear them through with a woodpin, and there's another addition to the cocktail also-rans.

Dickens' Figures Decorate Baskets

SOME good looking and, at the same time, amusing waste baskets are being shown by a Chicago store. They are decorated with colored prints of Mr. Pickwick, Mr. Micawber, and other famous characters from the books of Charles Dickens. The backgrounds are simulated pages from the London Illustrated News, and the baskets are trimmed in a warm brown that blends in nicely with mahogany or walnut furniture. If you want companion pieces to these utilitarian items, you can procure pictures framed in natural wood. The subjects are similar to those decorating the waste baskets. And the prices are extremely reasonable.

Spring Suits Need the Jaunty Sweater Any Amateur Can Knit

Yarns Amenable to Laundering Make Even Gayest Garment Practical.

By Jean Macdonald.

A PLAIN, simple, everyday sweater is always one of the most popular knitting jobs. Whether it is made of expensive, medium priced, or decidedly inexpensive yarn, this type of blouse is highly successful. With a tailored suit the lovely flame colored sweater illustrated today is ideal. It may be buttoned close to the neck or worn open over the coat, depending upon the weather. Interesting features for sports are the loose shoulder and long armhole which allow perfect freedom of motion. The tightness of the sleeves from the upper forearm to wrist insures a smooth appearance. Ribbing at the waistline is another smart and comfortable style point every woman considers.

Most knitted sweaters should be made of material easily laundered, but this is especially for those worn at camps and holiday cottages. Cold water and a suitable soap solution are the best cleansers. Laying the garment on the grass to dry is a slow but delightful process. Mother Earth seems to impart a pleasant odor of freshness not obtained any other way.

All types of silk and wool crêpe, bouclé, and all wools should be dried slowly and in a slight draft. This is the correct process for knit garments.

HOW TO ORDER.

Its Time to Start Crocheting Junior Misses' Summer Frocks

In Cotton, Linen, or Silk, They're Inexpensive and Easy to Keep Clean.

By Ellen Bruce.

THERE'S still plenty of time to crochet this cunning child's dress before the weather is sufficiently warm for a little girl to wear it. It is crocheted in a round and round form in one of the shell patterns. The stitch is extremely easy to do and affords excellent pickup work. Made of cotton, linen, fine silk and wool crêpe, or luster wool, a dress of this kind is both inexpensive and distinctive.

It is easily laundered and requires no ironing.

The style is most becoming, since short skirts still are the order of the day for the young miss. Raglan shoulders, puffed sleeves, and a simple V neck are as pretty styles as any little girl could wear.

Children of a certain age often do not wear a garment of their age size. Hence instructions for the frock illustrated are for a child of 2 years, but detailed information is given for adjustments. No measurements are needed with the request for the dress illustrated. The original model is crocheted of pale yellow.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the child's dress and hood illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Advent of Baby Means a Crisis for Older Child

He'll Make an Adjustment Only If He Feels Sure of Parents' Affection.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

THE new baby.

When you know one is in the offing does it absorb your thoughts to the exclusion of everything else? Even to the exclusion of your first baby? And does all this talk about preparing the first baby for the coming of the second seem nonsense to you?

If you could know what I do—if you could hear the stories that I hear about the behavior troubles that follow on the pink heels of the adored newcomer—you'd realize how important it is that your first child should have much thought during the waiting months.

Parents Responsible for Jealousy in Their Offspring.

A well known psychiatrist who is successful with children was discussing this problem one night not long ago. She said—in almost these words:

"Parents are responsible for the building up of competition or jealousy in an only child who acquires a little brother or sister. This child must be prepared for the coming of the baby.

"But the best preparation he can have is that things should be fundamentally right in his family. The child who has achieved a balanced relationship with his parents is not threatened by the prospect of the new baby. He has become so identified with his parents—is so much one with them—that he shares the coming of the baby with them. His sense of security with his parents is so firm that he feels no threat of the loss of love when a new baby arrives.

"Even so—even if everything is right with his world—the baby should not be sprung upon him. Preparing him protects him from an anxiety which might arise if he were suddenly plunged into this new situation, this unfamiliar situation of a family of four instead of three."

Small Girl Introduced to Infant Problem via Dolls.

And then the able doctor went on to describe something which was occurring in a family of her acquaintance. To show you—if you don't already realize it—how complex our natures are even when we're small, to let you look in on an interesting phase of this "new baby" subject, I'm going to tell you the little story—a story which has no plot and no ending—just a story of human nature.

The family consists of a man and a woman and a little girl of 2½. The mother and father are most happily married and are emotionally mature—they've grown into poise and understanding. The little girl is loved and understood. A new baby was coming.

The mother decided she'd do something about it to prepare her small and only daughter. So a baby doll was bought and baby doll clothes made and washed and ironed. There was lots of that kind of play.

Then one day the mother said, "How would you like to have a real baby in the house?"

"I would like it werry much," was the immediate answer.

But next day came a change. "I don't think I want a baby here," was the announcement. The mother did no explaining, but mentioned the subject a few times in the next few weeks and then dropped it.

Mother Prepares Daughter for Absence by Overnight Trips.

One day she decided that she'd make a few overnight visits long before she had to go to the hospital to get the small daughter used to the idea of her being away. She broached the subject.

"When will you be back, mommie?"

"Tomorrow morning."

"But mommie, will you surely be back tomorrow?"

"Yes, I promise you, darling."

The next morning small daughter is on her way to the park and sees her mother in the distance, returning.

As they nearly meet——

"Hello, darling," calls out her mother.

But this complex little person has suddenly discovered something interesting across the street and doesn't see her mother!

Now does her mother get upset—does she reproach her small daughter? Not at all. In any case, not visibly. She waves, "See you later," and goes on.

Sudden Aversion to Him Doesn't Disturb Father.

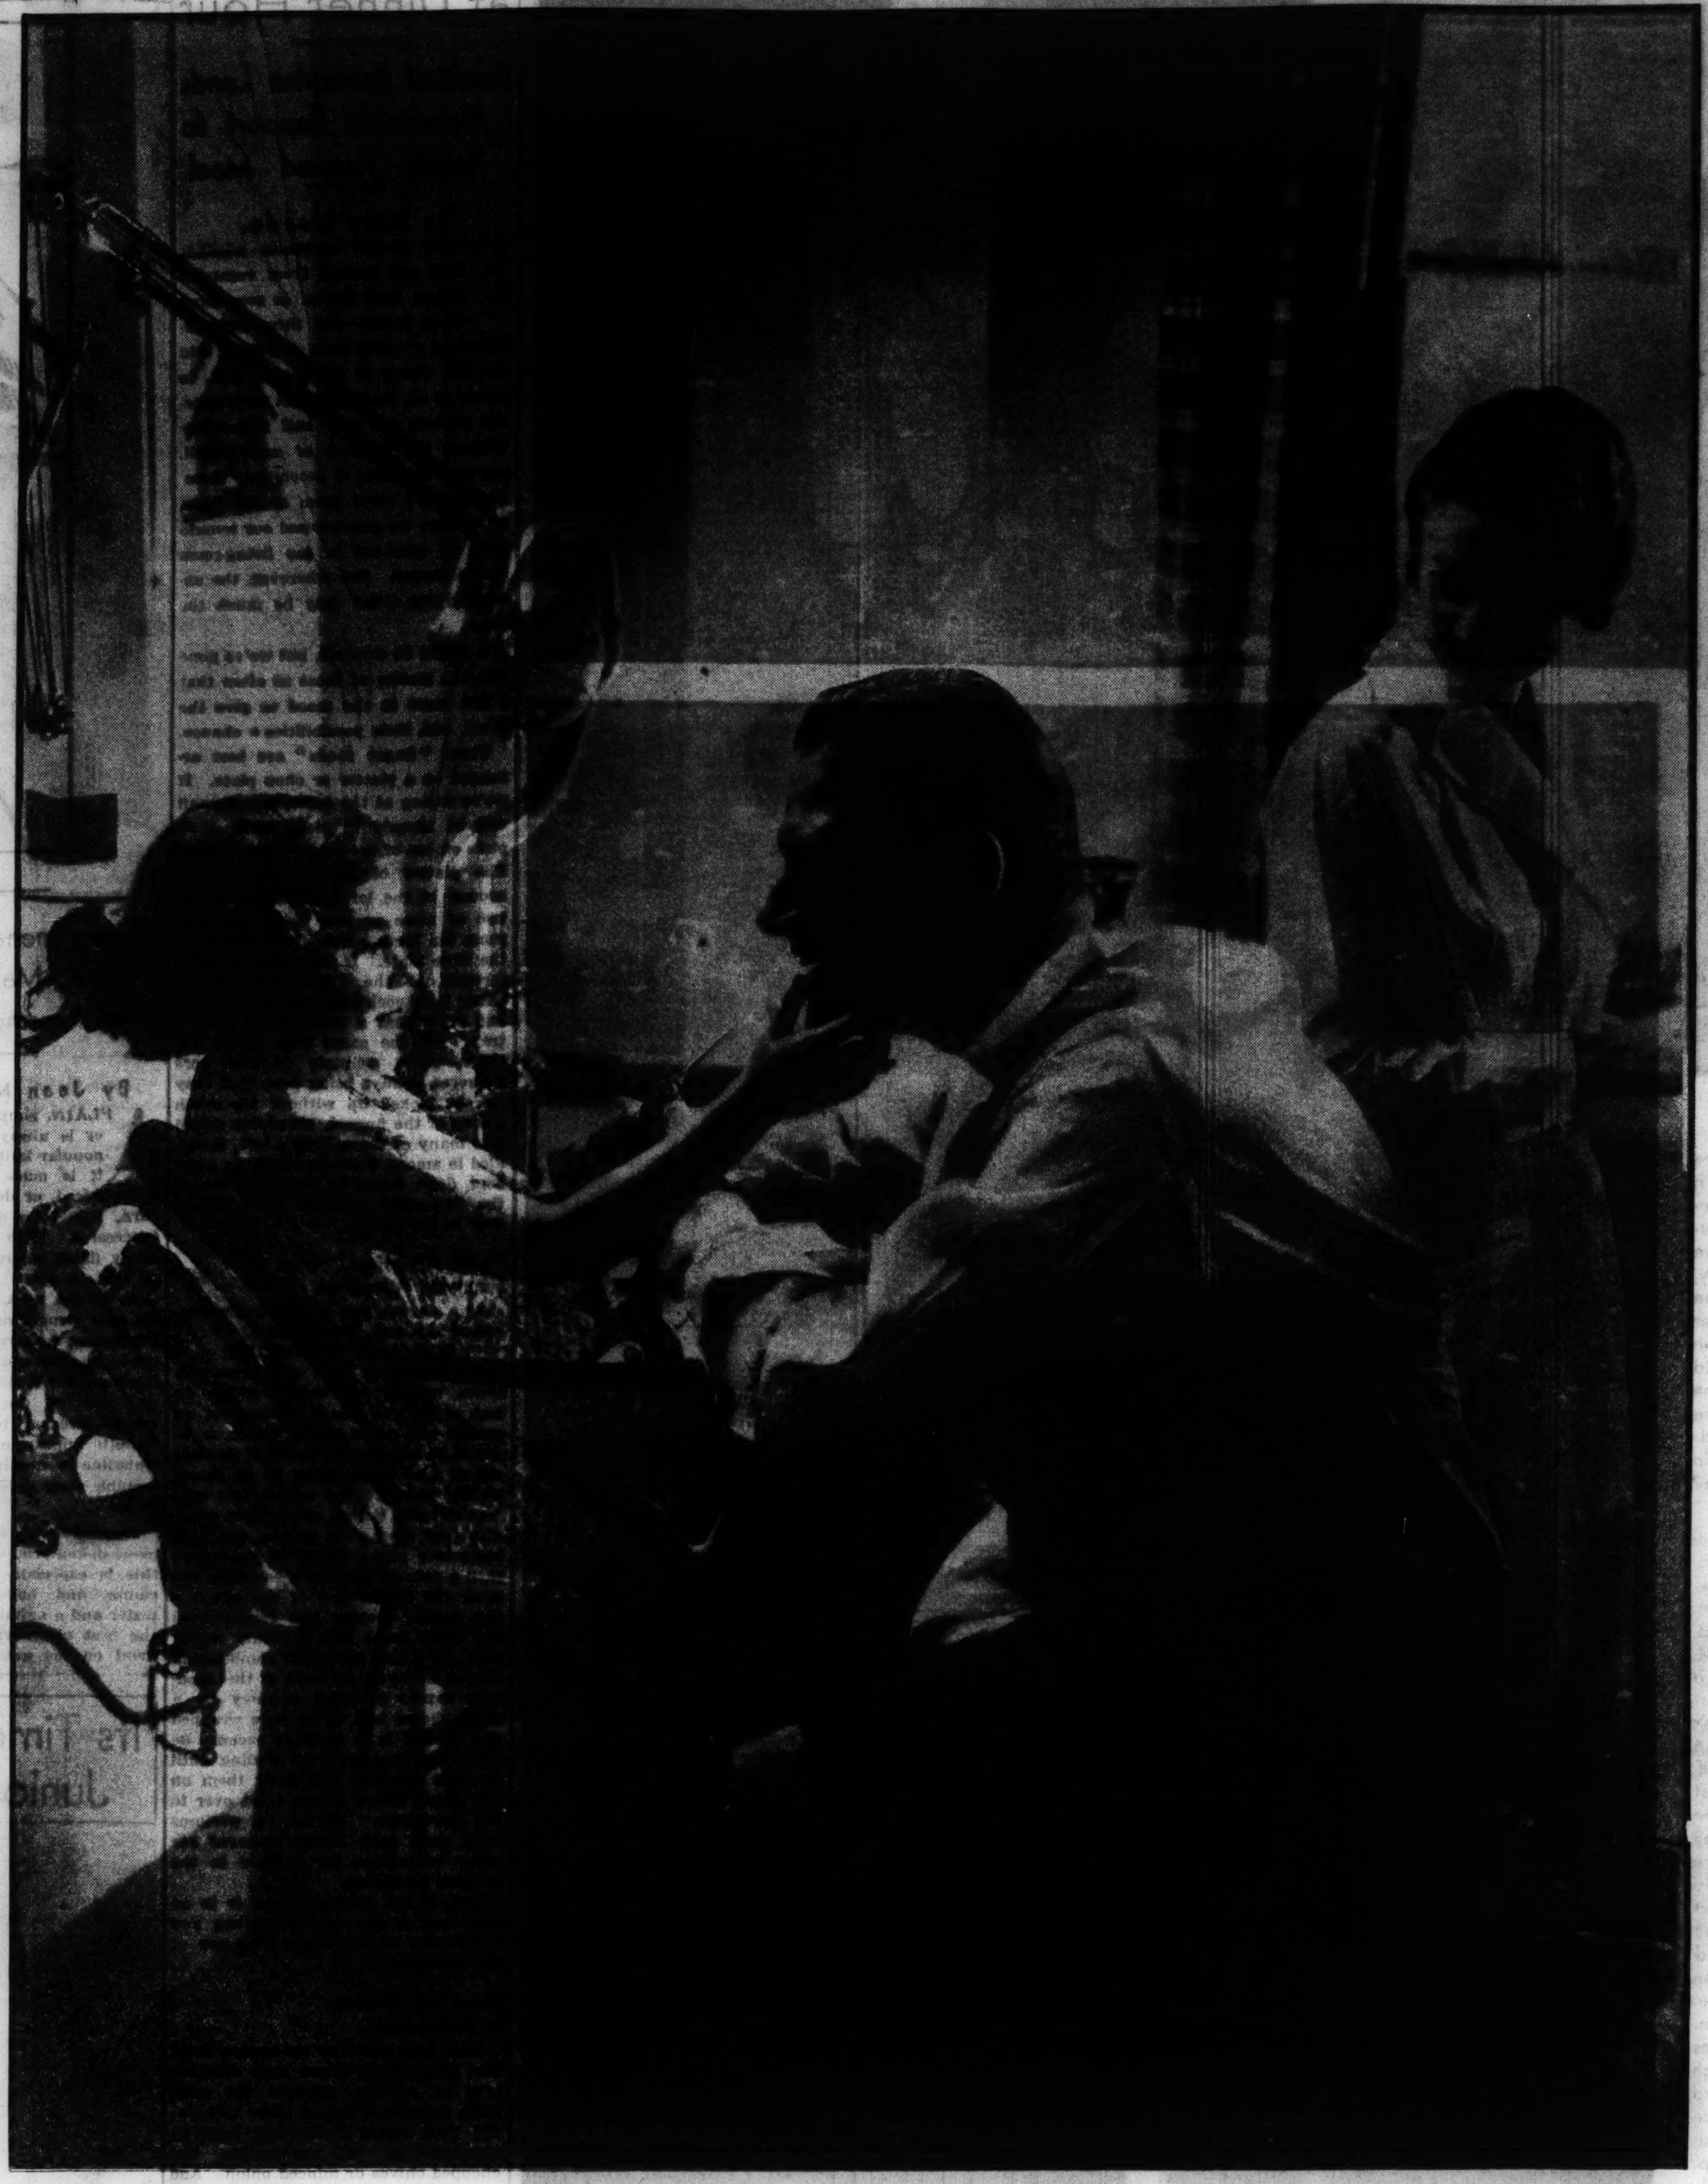
The subject of a baby is brought up again.

Then a new development shows itself. Small daughter suddenly has no use for her father. Now, she and her daddy have always been on the best of terms—he's done almost as much for her physically as her mother and they are real friends and close ones. But now she will have nothing to do with him. Mommie must do everything. Mommie must put her to bed. Mommie is apparently the only one she loves. She begins to act in babyish ways and she wants to get in her mother's bed. Her mother is careful not to reprove her or to repulse her special marks of affection.

It's as if the child knew with some sixth sense her father's responsibility for this change that is coming. And does her father resent this? Does he appear hurt? Does he reproach her? Not he. He accepts this temporary turning away because he is a mature person who is thinking of his child's good.

"But," says the psychiatrist, "everything is going to be all right for this child. Her mother and father are emotionally mature and do nothing to give their child a sense of guilt for any of the things she does, neither by reproaching her nor by having 'hurt feelings.'"

In other words they are her rock of Gibraltar. Soon she will have adjusted herself, the new baby's coming will be definitly announced, and in the intervening months she will come to accept and then look forward with delight to the great event, sharing the preparations, freed of any sense of insecurity.



Getting all nice and chummy with the dentist, who tells her how she can have teeth as strong and white as his when she gets to be a big girl.
[Valentino Sarra Photo.]

Oral Hygiene Is Just Game Played with Trick Toothbrushes, Dentists Teach Children

By Eleanor Nangle.

IT'S agreed that a baby's dental start in life begins before he is born. Last fall Antoinette Donnelly revealed the findings of a group of scientific dental authorities who conducted a dietetic experiment on 450 children at Mooseheart, Ill., which proved conclusively that the child's dental progress thereafter depended on food and tooth brushing habits. Citrus fruit juices, with an otherwise adequate diet, were found the best corrective measures and preventives of tooth decay and disease.

We recently interviewed some Chicago dentists on the matter of teeth cleansing and found that in this city family dentists are doing great work in educating parents and children in dental diet and hygiene. There are, here in Chicago, a number of dentists with offices especially equipped for children, with chairs scaled for them, and with the background and decorations as remote from the old bugaboo room of white walls and a wilderness of drills as human ingenuity and sympathetic understanding of children could possibly contrive.

Clever Brushes Are Inspiration.

Some dentists keep their child patients in tooth brushes, with amusing handles which capture the imagination and inspire pride in tooth brushing. These novel brushes are policemen, figuratively and almost literally. When the small child is casual about tooth cleansing his brush handle is merely a policeman. As he grows more faithful to good and earnest brushing habits his tooth brush handle is promoted from that of an ordinary policeman to that of sergeant and then to lieutenant and captain.

Other child patients of some Chicago dentists are given score cards to hang in their bedroom or bath. On these is the child's name, the dentist's name, and a reminder or the date of the next office visit. There is a diagram, too, showing how the child must brush up, and down, and across, and around each tooth twice a day. The child or his mother marks the score each day and totals it every Saturday night. If his score shows fourteen brushings a week, twice each day, he's a very good child who is right at the top of the oral happiness class.

Friendliness Creates Necessary Interest.

Such chumminess between child and dentist makes teeth care an interest which they share with equal enthusiasm and intelligence. In addition to this the conscientious dentists see to it that parents know the dental value of adequate diet, a knowledge which the child inevitably absorbs for himself.

Dental authorities don't seem unanimous in the choice of dentifrices, since the majority of them feel that a tooth paste or powder is without therapeutic value and can be nothing more than a cleansing agent. One which our own investigation found to be popular with children and acceptable to the profession is neither too abrasive nor too soapy. The youngsters like it because it has a faintly sweet flavor and comes in a pink tube, this last a rather amusing revelation.

Dentists whom we interviewed were insistent in the matter of small brushes for children, with bristles well spaced and stiff. Too large a brush in either a child's or an adult's mouth was found definitly inferior.

A brush highly recommended by the dental profession for children and adults alike is one that is widely sold in Chicago shops and drug stores. The handle may be a bit too broad for small children, but for adults and growing children it is ideal. Bristles may be either medium or stiff, as the purchaser desires, and these bristles are in pyramided tufts set rather widely apart. There are other brushes of excellent quality especially sized for children, which are also sold here.

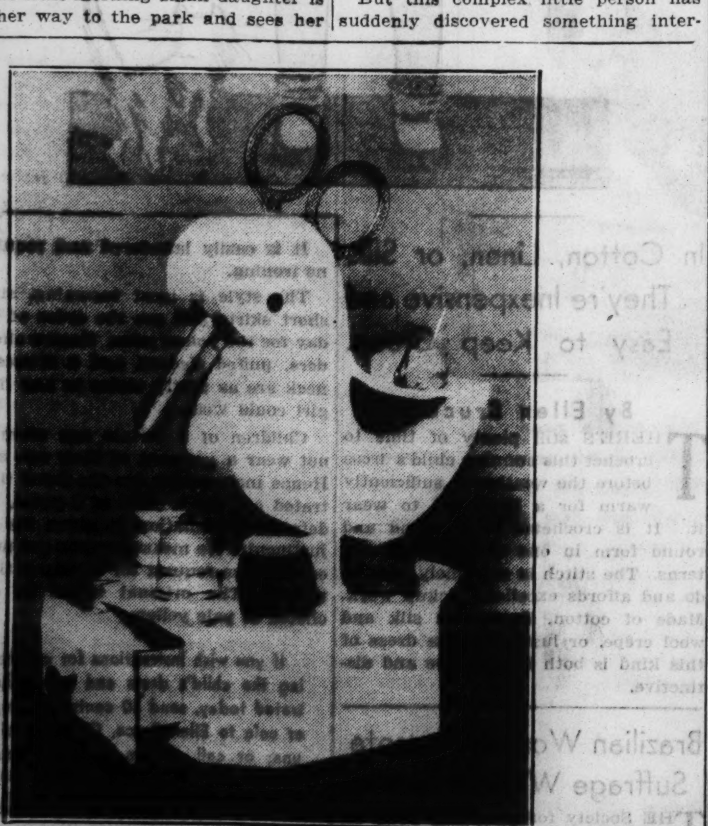
Brown New Summer Furniture Shade

BROWN and yellow combinations no longer belong exclusively to fall. For the summer cottage living room, or porch, one furniture department suggests a yellow and brown wicker chair, flanked by an end table with ochre wicker base and a rich brown top. The latter holds a yellow pottery ash tray shaped like a sombrero, and an exciting deep open jar of rich brown. Just what the latter is for is hard to tell. It seems to fall somewhere between a humidor and a cigaret jar. But, anyhow, the ensemble achieves gayety without sacrificing distinction.

English Mill Girl Leaves Loom to Act as Mayoress

MISS GERTRUDE GARTSIDE, a mill girl of Mossley, England, has been granted a year's leave of absence from her loom to act as mayoress of Glossop to her widowed uncle.



DUCKY DEVICE AIDS SEWING

This "ducky" little fellow is not only ornamental, he is also most practical from a needleworker's point of view. His bill and plumage are achieved by means of useful shears inserted through the head. What seems to be a plump and downy tail is none other than a pin cushion located in a convenient place. The stand on which this quaint gadget rests has a drawer to contain the incidentals of sewing near at hand.

Molds Make an Excellent Gift for the Bride

She'll Thank You Every Time She Serves Attractive Salads and Desserts.

WHY not molds as your offering when the invitation reads it's to be a kitchen shower for the spring bride? For molds in their place are every bit as necessary as the kettle and frying pan.

Should you be among those giving a luncheon during this round of showers for the bride-to-be, your party will be crowned with success if you serve jellied shrimps or crabmeat made in the individual fish molds. These unique molds make a generous portion and when the food is removed there is the impression of a perfect little fish with every one of its scales in bold relief. This style of mold is also good for serving salads of vegetables in lime or lemon jelle.

Diamond Design at Bottom Leaves a Clear Impression.

Every modern housewife eager to do things in her well equipped kitchen should have several styles of these useful molds. They are made of earthenware, fine aluminum, and blocked tin [which is acid proof]. In the bottom of molds are diamond cut designs as well as clusters of grapes and garlands of flowers which leave a distinct impression when food is removed.

Round or oval shaped molds in heavy tin are indispensable for a perfect noodle, carrot, or meat ring. Food served in this attractive style will appeal to the most exacting.

Timbale Mold Should Be in Every Collection.

Individual savarin molds are splendid for use when molding aspic, fruits, jellies, puddings, etc. Every housewife should include timbalé molds in her collection, as timbalés are an excellent style for serving an entrée.

Molds do much to help the up to date hostess set a smart table. So while your shower gift may not be a glamorous one, the recipient will thank you many times in thought when she serves delicious molded food. You just can't go wrong with such selections which are for sale at Chicago department stores.

Novel Place Cards Decorate Parties

THE department store place card departments almost could be mistaken for a toy department, with their display of animals and dolls. For the shower there are small crêpe paper dolls holding umbrellas. Bright feathered cocks and cocktail glasses of cellophane will gleam on the table for an adult's party, while the children will be delighted with animals cut from wood and attached to their place cards. Animals cut from calico scamper over some cards, and others are decorated with flowers and figures cut from bright felt.

Fat Women!

How would you like to lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts which will last you for 4 weeks and costs but a trifle. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you will know the pleasant way to lose unsightly fat and you'll also know that the 6 salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

To take off fat harmlessly and SAFELY, take Kruschen every morning—don't worry—it's the SAFE way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drug store in the world and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why money back.

Ideas Submitted in Interior Decoration Contest Show Modernistic Design Gaining in Public Favor

Majority of Entries, Including Prize Winner, Used Contemporary Decor.

"What's Wrong with Rooms?" a booklet by Edith Weigle, answers many questions on furniture arrangement and tells how to make your home more attractive. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. "Making the Most of the Dinette" is 3 cents by mail; 2 cents at the Public Service offices.

By Edith Weigle.

ONE still hears the remark, "I like to look at modern furniture, but I don't think I'd want to do my home in modern." The voices that lift this chorus are growing fewer and fewer, however. In a recent contest of planning the furnishings and decorations of an apartment conducted by a large Chicago building there were over 12,000 entries and of this enormous number the majority were interested primarily in the contemporary idea.

Each person was provided with plans for a five room home with general suggestions as to suitable furniture and color schemes. Then the contestants were given an opportunity to describe exactly the apartment home each would like to create and live in. The first prize was awarded to Mrs. Peter Brown, Albion avenue, for her strictly modern design. Following the giving of the prize Mrs. Brown's ideas were executed by a large Chicago store and the apartment may now be seen by the public until May 1.

Furniture Has Strong Feeling of Conservatism.

The decoration is called "restrained modern," for there is a strong feeling of the conservative about all the furniture. Because the living room and dining room adjoin they have been treated as a single unit, a wise scheme in a small home. And the same carpeting has been used throughout the entire apartment. It is a soft, neutral gray that makes an excellent background for any colors in draperies, and upholstery.

Because the bedroom is small no patterned fabrics are used for the draperies or bedspread. The furniture is bone white with a silver trimming, the modernized directoire bed having a quilted satin head and a bedspread to match. A dressing table was purchased unfinished and then covered with a white plaited chintz that has a Greek key design border in tones of gray, terra cotta, and black.

Modern furniture combined with Directoire sounds the contemporary note in this apartment which won first prize among 12,000 entires in a recent home decorating contest conducted by a large apartment building.

Modern lamps of chromium and framed colored prints of contemporary feeling emphasize the 1934 note.

Dining Room Window Creates a Vista.

In the living room and dining room the window treatment is exceptionally interesting. It is ideal for any room of small proportions. Instead of two draperies for the window only one is used and that is wide and full and is caught back by a decorative crystal ornament about two feet below the top. A stunning crystal rod with curving ends replaces the old brass fixture, and beautiful white Venetian blinds are used in both rooms, dispensing with glass curtains.

The glimpse of the dining room shown in the picture today shows its window to be identical with that in the living room. Vistas are not usually found in small city apartments but the designer of this delightful home has achieved one here. Although the furniture—table, chairs, and sideboard—shows a directoire influence the contemporary idea is carried out in chromium accessories including two smart flower pot stands flanking the window and the unframed plate glass mirrors on either side of the doorway. The simple vases and tables are also strictly modern. The furniture is finished in antique white, picked out in ebony.

Three Periods May Be Combined with Modernism.

As said before in this column the best periods to combine with the contemporary mode are directoire, empire, and Biedermeier because of their simplicity, their square-ish lines, etc. This prize winning apartment proves the point beautifully and also the fact that soft, pale colors are the wisest choice in limited quarters. Touches of yellow and green and an occasional hint of rust are seen against bone white, platinum gray, and cream. The walls, woodwork, and radiator cabinets throughout are light cream.

This successfully decorated apartment consists of living room, dining room, two bedrooms, and kitchen.

Durability and Charm Are Basic Virtues of All Roofs Today, Be They Shingle, Slate or Tile

Homeowner Now Gets His Money's Worth in Any Material He Chooses.

Are you interested in possible ways to make money at home? Are you wondering how to brighten up or transform your woodwork, walls, furniture or floors? WHEN the time comes to consider re-roofing we have many excellent roofing materials to choose from. So many, indeed, that whatever our final selection—be it wood, tile, asphalt, asbestos, metal, slate, or stone—we can be assured that from a standpoint of looks and service we will obtain a satisfactory return for every dollar spent.

The red cedar shingle, which has been used since colonial days, is our most characteristic American roof. Cypress is another excellent wood shingle much used. Besides these two woods, high in popular favor, we find throughout the country many roofs of white cedar, red wood, and juniper.

A wood shingle roof, properly laid, will last a long, long time.

Many types of wood shingle roofs may be laid unstained and allowed to weather. Red cedar will weather to a soft gray, cypress to a russet brown.

Shingles which are stained at the factory cost a little more, but the staining adds longevity to the product. The preservative enters deeply into the wood. They may be hand dipped, or bundle dipped, or stained by several other established processes. Deep and rich are the colors achieved. So wide is the range of hues that a wood shingle roof may easily be made a most harmonious part of the exterior color scheme.

Split Shingles Give Texture and Shadow Effects.

When one wishes a wood shingle roof which abounds in texture and shadow effects, the split shingle rather than the sawed should be used. These split shingles are sometimes called "shakes" or "rived shakes." Roofs of these styles laid generations ago are still standing.

There are also wood shingles which give the appearance of rough hewn quarry slate. They are especially selected and edged grained with the butts irregular and laid staggered to add to the rustic effect.

Manufacturers of red cedar shingles assert that laying new wood shingles over old ones is practical, safe, and economical. They declare that a new roof will stop decay permanently in the old shingles; that the shelter afforded by the new shingles together with the ventilation provided by the system of application will prevent that decay which is caused by heat and moisture. [Some authorities still advise against this, but in the last years the shingle manufacturers have been making every effort to prove their contention and insist now that they have established this method as a safe remodeling practice.]

Double Roof Has Insulation Value.

Certainly when an old roof is sufficiently sound to warant being retained there are distinct advantages to this form of modernization.

All the litter and dirt involved in renewing the old roof is eliminated. The house is never without a protection should a sudden storm arise in the process of re-roofing. Some labor expense is saved. There is also a distinct insulation value in a double roof—an advantage which is reflected in a cooler second story in summer and in a warmer house with lowered fuel bills in winter.

However, whether it is advisable or necessary to remove the old roofing should be left to an expert to decide. Consult your architect, your roofer, your roofing firm, or modernizing firm on this subject, and have your old roof carefully examined. Insist, too, on having your recovering job done by a reliable firm or roofer who will guarantee workmanship. Consider carefully the durability and suitability of different materials and buy only materials made by reputable manufacturers who can guarantee an approximate length of life and with a reputation to sustain the claims made.

Asphalt Shingles as Gay as They Are Practical.

A modest roofing material, but a popular one because of its low cost, its lively coloring, and its fire resistance, is the asphalt shingle. It is They are excellent insulation against heat and cold and are manufactured to simulate the texture and color of wood, slate, and tile as well as to offer new styles and designs of their own.

Like asphalt shingles, they can be laid atop an old roof.

When it comes to slate and tile we reach the materials long regarded as the aristocrats of the roofing world. In the last few years types of both of these materials have been manufactured to sell for moderate cost, so that the owner of a simple home, with a simple budget, may consider these materials.

Slate Mellows to Soft Shades of Buff and Blue.

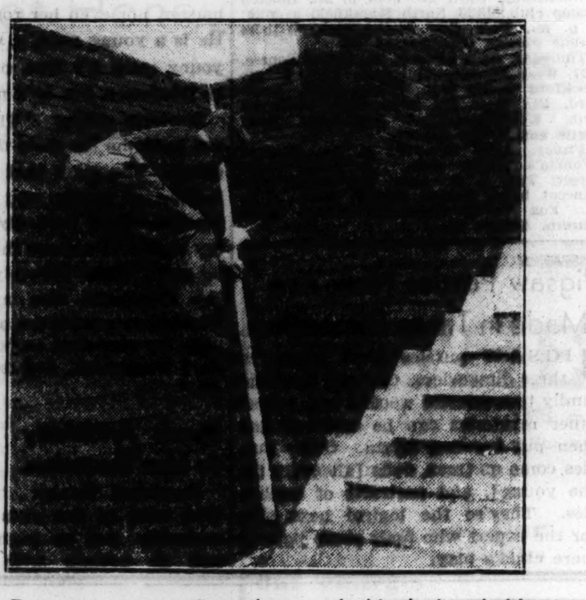
Clay tile is as ancient a building material as brick, and much beauty of color and texture has been given to these tiles.

Slate is a picturesque material. It calls to mind the tall, steeply pitched roofs of Norman and French design There are medium grades of slate widely used in remodeling work today. Spring or early summer is the best time to apply it, though it can be laid any time of the year—and in a short space of time.

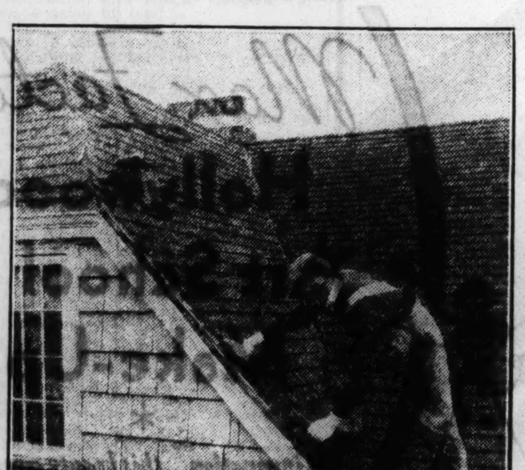
Asbestos shingles are also playing an important part on the roofing stage. They are deservedly popular for their fireproof, enduring qualities, which weather to deep shades of buff and purple and blue and which are within the price range of the not too large budget.

Metal roofs there are of different types which are interesting and have proven themselves worthy of attention over a good many years, both here and abroad.

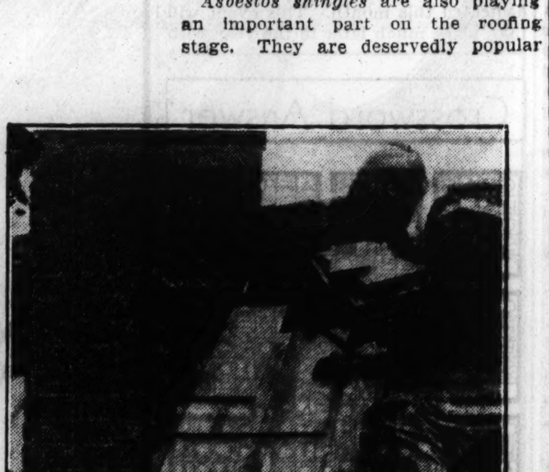
So it is apparent to see, when it comes to re-roofing our own particular home, that there is a roof for every house, to suit that house—and the owner's tastes and purse



For many generations the wood shingle has held high favor as a roofing material. Here red cedar stripes are being applied over an old roof. These shingles are obtainable in all colors or they may be laid unstained and allowed to weather to a soft, natural and very charming gray.



This picture shows a new roof being applied over an old one. Much added all year comfort is given to the home interior. However, one must make sure that the roof is prepared for its new covering. Here a strip of the old shingles is being cut away at the gable edge.



Whatever type of roofing we choose it is vitally important that the material be purchased from a reliable source. It should have been made by a reputable manufacturer who can guarantee an approximate length of life. Expert workmanship should likewise be well assured.

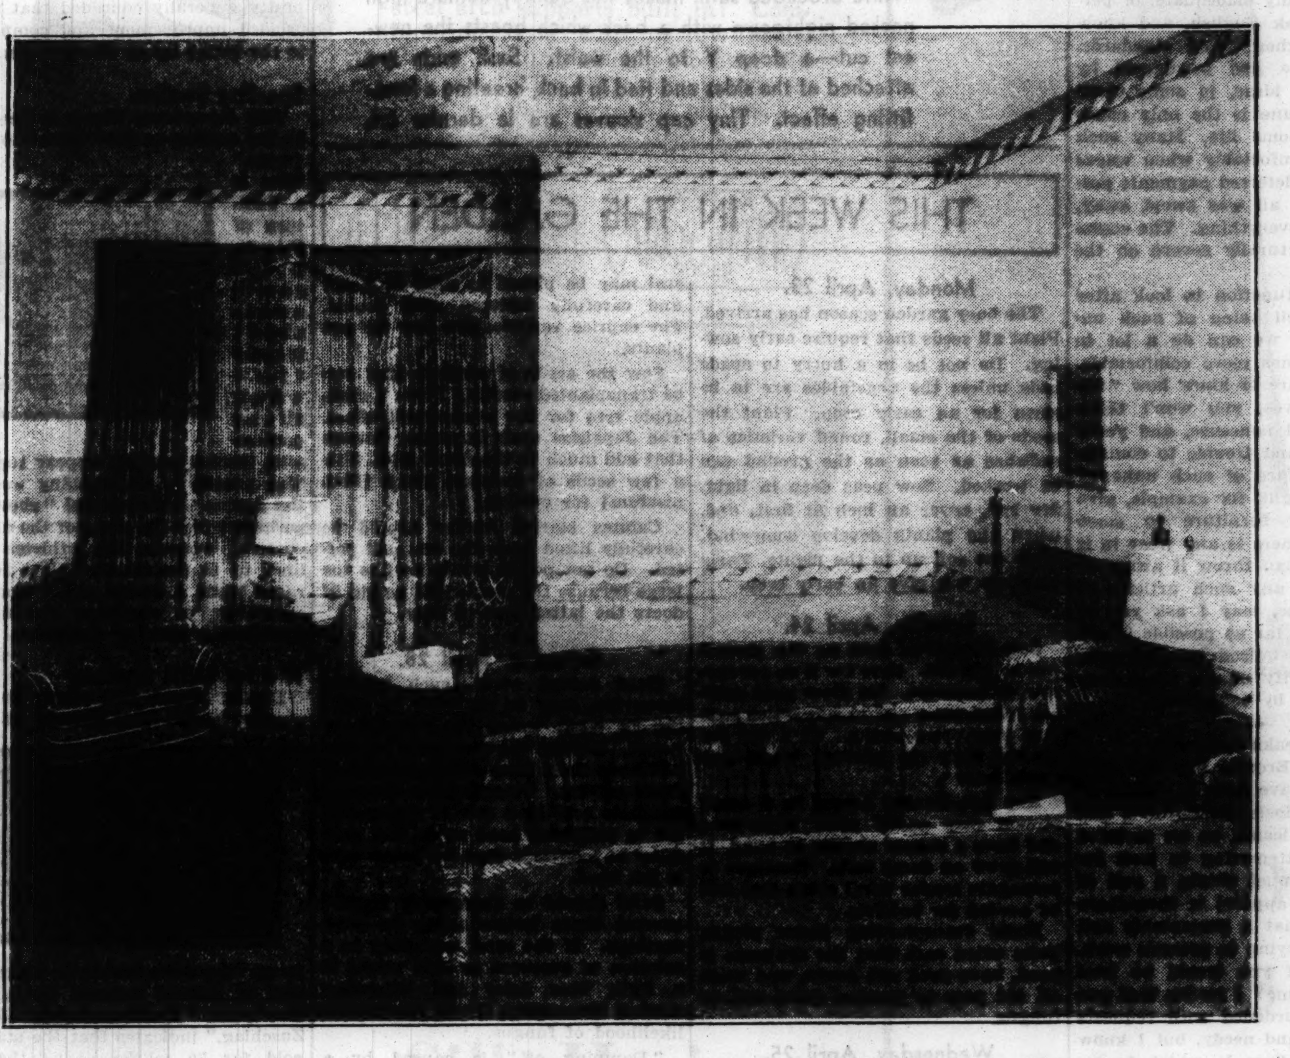
Latest Budget House Furnished in Eighteenth Century Pieces with a Simple, Dignified Grace

Comfortable, livable, reasonably priced is this beautifully decorated living room in the budget house exhibited on the furniture floor of a State street store. Modern accessories are used to complement eighteenth century styles in furniture and white touches furnish accents.



Colonial mahogany furniture in one of the bedrooms in this budget house, done by a State street store, is set off by a cinnamon brown rug, deep, clear blue glazed chintz draperies and bedspreads, and clever plaid wall paper in tones of cinnamon, blue and yellow. Glass curtains are of net.

But Modern Design Is Used in Fabrics, Floor Coverings, and Accessories.

"Spring and Summer Draperies," a new booklet on the latest fabrics, and "Selecting, Framing, and Hanging Pictures," giving many helpful suggestions, are 2 cents each, 3 cents each by mail. "Color Magic in Your Rooms" is 5 cents by mail. Address The Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn and Tribune Tower, Chicago.

By Claire Winslow.

MODERN touches, charming reproductions of eighteenth century English furniture, a beautiful use of color accented by white notes in accessories are some of the ingredients that have made the newly furnished budget house displayed by a State street store one of the most interesting exhibits in Chicago. It has a delightfully fresh, crisp atmosphere combined with the distinction that always results from pleasing grouping of good furniture. Every room is arranged for livableness and comfort, prices are kept within a medium range, and contemporary designs in fabrics, floor coverings, and accessories sing a spring song of 1934.

The handsome living room, a photograph of which is shown today, is done in a color scheme of mulberry, white, beige, and soft green. The walls are mulberry and a broadloom carpet of the same color in deeper tone covers the floor. Before the white fireplace with mulberry trimmings is a stunning new white cut wool rug with a wide white fringe edging.

Mahogany Furniture of Colonial Type in Bedroom.

The long draperies are especially attractive with their wavy mulberry lines on a white ground. Of linen, they hang from silver metal poles over the glass curtains of wide novelty mesh net.

Off this room is one of the bedrooms, a picture of which is also shown today. Here mahogany furniture of the colonial type is set off by cinnamon brown broadloom carpeting, a cinnamon dado and charming plaid wall paper in yellows, blues, and buff. The border, simulating streamers of ribbon, is used both below the molding and at the top of the dado.

Hunting Scenes on Parade in Tavern Room.

On the beds and at the beautifully dressed window are spreads and draperies of deep, clear blue glazed chintz with a beige border design. The window valance is caught up in the center with a silver metal wreath, most effective.

Another bedroom is extremely feminine and pretty, combining yellow and pink and white in its color scheme and having a special set-back nook for the charming dressing table, flanked by white wooden shutter screens.

There is a cozy little tavern room with sturdy maple furniture and fascinating wall paper showing hunting scenes outlined in white on a deep green ground. The woodwork is white and at the long window are homespun draperies in a gorgeous flame color, trimmed with round brass buttons and attached to a brass pole with gleaming brass rings. A white metal floor lamp echoes the flame color in its simple, nicely styled shade.

Lack of space forbids descriptions of the gay and colorful kitchen with its breakfast nook, the bath, and the beautiful dining room and little foyer. But you can enjoy this entire house for yourself; it is open to the public, and let us assure you it is a treat to inspect it.

Household Queries

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: How can I remove brownish stains from my floor? I am going to remove old varnish before refinishing but I know from experience that those stains are stubborn.—Mrs. T.

Answer: Try putting a teaspoonful of oxalic acid in a cup of hot water. Apply solution to stains and let stand overnight. Remove crystals, which will remain, with warm water to which sal soda has been added, about one-half pound of sal soda to half a pail of water.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We are going to give the family car a good painting this spring. But we don't know what is best for giving the wheels and chassis a good cleaning. THOMAS D."

Answer: Saturate parts with crude oil and turpentine, or with kerosene, and let these softeners work for several hours. Then take a scraper, a wire brush, and cotton waste, rub off the grease, and then wash the surface well with turpentine.

"FAT MABEL" FINDS SHE CAN LOSE A POUND A DAY

Scientists have just announced a remarkable discovery which enables the fat person to grow thin at a cost so small that it hardly need be considered!

Begin the quick Jad Method of reducing—tomorrow morning. The Condensed JAD Salts—remember—is urged as a poison-banishing agent ... to banish unhealthy bloating and to eliminate body moisture ... not as a reducing one.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Unfortunate Circumstances Have Made Unsuitable Home Conditions for Adolescence; Anything You May Do in Aid of Stricken Households Will Be Appreciated.

By Sally Joy Brown.

MODERN parents and educators have come to the realization that adolescence is a most important period in any person's life, and that an entire career may hinge on development during that time. Children are apt to be oversensitive, and must have careful understanding and companionship. Youngsters with intelligent parents may be successfully guided past inferiority or superiority, or any other of the numerous complexes which beset them, but the under privileged boys and girls, whose mothers are earning the family living, who have burdens and worries thrust upon them at an early age, who live in districts where bad companions are prevalent, whose homes are shabby or badly kept, these are the future men and women whom community houses and social service organizations are endeavoring to mold and guide to a sensible, balanced mode of living.

The worker whose special field is lending a helping hand to boys and girls brought into court for one reason or another very often encounters cheerless surroundings and miserable home life at the root of such delinquency.

The parents, unless divorce, or death, or separation has parted them, often are mentally inadequate, or perhaps don't speak English, and know nothing of higher living standards. Possibly they're just bewildered by new ways and ideas, in some cases dogged misfortune is the only cause of unnatural home life. Many such people lived comfortably when wages were high and deferred payments possible. Suddenly all was swept away, job, furniture, everything. The consequences are naturally severe on the new generaion.

It's not my function to look after the general well being of such unfortunates, but we can do a lot to make their homes more comfortable. If you really care or know how "the other half" lives, you won't think this sentimental nonsense, and you'll take the time and trouble to contribute to the welfare of such unhappy people. You might, for example, give your discarded furniture to some such home, if there is any wear in it at all, rather than throw it away.

If you have any such articles of which to dispose, may I ask you to let me know as far as possible in advance of the required moving date, since the majority of our cases may not be reached by telephone?

This letter speaks for itself:

"Dear Miss Brown: For the past three years I have been a patient in various tuberculosis sanitariums, and was recently released as an arrested case. Before attempting to look for employment I must obtain a suit of clothes, as my apparel is threadbare and I realize that a presentable suit is an asset in trying to procure work.

"I wonder if you would be kind enough to help me? I realize that you must be overburdened with requests from the poor and needy, but I know of no other medium to which to apply. My size is 37. I also need shirts, size 14½, but they are secondary to the suit.—W. J. M."

Mr. M. is living on the south side of the city, and is willing to call for any clothing offered.

H. M. is the father of a boy eight, and twins, a girl and boy three. His five year old son died last December, several weeks after Mr. M. had secured his first job in many months. While working he broke his wrist, which failed to knit and must be repaired before he is able to work again. They are receiving relief, but the entire family is in need of clothing. Mrs. M. wears size 38. Have you any dresses in that size, or children's clothing, which you could pass on to them?

Mrs. A. O. requests a metronome for her daughter, who is studying piano. If you have such an instrument, no longer in use, she will be glad to call for it.

Novel Bottles and Corks Add Charm to Wine Service

ALL sorts of decanters, many unusual wine baskets and holders as well as cleverly amusing cork stoppers are making their appearance on hospitality tables in the various department stores.

One lightweight bottle holder for sauterne is made of three pieces of metal. There are two circular flexible steel springs into which the bottle fits. The handle of spun aluminum, wrapped with reed, is joined to the circular springs at each end. Thus the bottle is supported around the bottom and middle.

A highly diverting cork for wine bottles is one on which two carved wooden heads are placed, side by side. By pressing a button similar to an electric light switch the necks grow long and the heads turn face to face in an amusing gesture indicating osculation.

HIGH NECKS—1934

White brocaded satin makes this daintily demure high necked nightgown with a back which boasts the newest cut—a deep V to the waist. Sash ends are attached at the sides and tied in back, creating a form-fitting effect. Tiny cap sleeves are le dernier cri.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, April 23.

The busy garden season has arrived. Plant all seeds that require early sowing. Do not be in a hurry to spade beds unless the vegetables are to be sown for an early crop. Plant the seeds of the small, round varieties of radishes as soon as the ground can be worked. Sow peas deep in light, dry soil, cover an inch at first, and, when the plants develop somewhat, draw the soil up to the plants. Early planting will give an early crop.

Tuesday, April 24.

Sow salsify as soon as the ground can be worked. Care for it as for carrots or parsnips. To grow good spinach, plant early and in successive sowings every two weeks. Thin out the plants early to prevent weak and small leaves.

Any one having access to a small stream may easily grow watercress and have a supply always at hand. It will grow on damp soils. Continue to propagate tender floral stock that will be needed for bedding.

Begin transplanting house plants. Take extra care that the drainage is good, have good soil ready, and wash all old pots to remove dried soil or fungus.

Wednesday, April 25.

Plant the lawn with seeds at once unless it has been done. Buy good seed and use plant food if the soil is deficient. A good lawn mixture is 60 per cent Kentucky blue grass and 40 per cent red top. This mixture is for sunny places. Chewing's fescue is excellent on sandy soils. For shady or moist location use 50 per cent rough-stalked meadow grass. For a shady dry soil a better mixture would be 50 per cent wood meadow grass, 40 per cent Kentucky blue, and 10 per cent English rye. For a sandy soil use 75 per cent Chewing's fescue and 25 per cent English rye. The rye acts as a nurse crop and will die out later. A top dressing of ammonium sulphate is beneficial to any lawn except clover.

Thursday, April 26.

The earlier the small fruit garden can be planted the better. Raspberries, blackberries, currants, and gooseberries can be planted for home use.

Sow radishes in the hotbed every ten days for a continuous crop. The early, round varieties take only twenty days for development. Leaf lettuce grows fast and may be used when quite small, if desired. Give the amaryllis a little fertilizer and keep the plant well watered as it grows.

Friday, April 27.

Make chrysanthemum cuttings from the growths which are showing. Several may be placed in sand in a pot and carefully watered until rooted. The caprice varieties are fine for pot plants.

Sow the seeds of annuals that can be transplanted readily. Plant a crab-apple tree for the ornamental effect. The Japanese crab furnishes flowers that add much to the small yard. Sow a few seeds of fountain grass [Pennisetum] for cutting.

Cannas started earlier should be carefully lifted from the box and potted. Do not pot in a size that is too large because the plants will go out of doors the latter part of May.

Saturday, April 28.

Hard coated seeds, such as the moonvine, may be softened by soaking in tepid water for twenty-four hours. Rolling the wet seeds in dust will keep them from sticking together while sowing. Two or three drops of muriatic acid in a cup of water will aid in softening hard seeds, but care must be exercised that too much acid is not used.

Sand should be thoroughly washed several times before using to start cuttings. If the sand is soaked in a solution of copperas or blue vitriol to a light blue color and afterward washed thoroughly, it will remove the likelihood of fungus.

"Damping off" is caused by a fungus. Plan to plant more vines. Plant a clematis Jackmanni, the large blue flowering sort. The wild grape does well on the garden wall, pergola, or arbor.

Tiny Cacti Grow in Thimble-Sized Pots

NO matter how diminutive your abode may be the urge to have living plants can easily be realized by investing in cacti such as we saw when searching for novelties. These wee plants were growing in thimble size pots, which were beautifully colored, each holding a tiny cacti embedded in desert sand. A set of five pots was artistically arranged on a tiny wire branched stand.

It should be fun to invest in some of these teenie weenies and see how large they might grow. Why not try your luck with some? Bear in mind though not to water them too often, for cactus in its native stat has long periods of dryness.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Order and system! Those are the principles explained in "Starting a Stamp Collection," a booklet newly prepared by Mr. Cabeen for beginners and initiates. Price, 3 cents; by mail, 5 cents. There is also a booklet giving the adresses of the "Philatelic Agencies" throughout the world where stamps may be purchased from the government which issues them. Price, 3 cents; 5 cents by mail. Address Richard McP. Cabeen, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

This illustration is reproduced from the original drawings for France's "new deal" issue. As was expected, the series has not met with the complete approval of the nation. The story of this issue is printed in an adjoining column.

WHEN M. Jean Mistler became French minister of posts and telegraphs, he found plenty of evidence that the current issue of French stamps was cordially detested by almost the whole nation, and one of his firsts acts was to call together several artist friends and engage them to design a series of stamps which would be a credit to the country. It has been candidly announced that the stamps are not only for carrying mail, and for filling spaces in stamp albums, but are also for advertising the glories of France, and on this last premise were based the designs.

The commonly used 50c stamp shows the national emblem, "Le Coq," while the 1.50 fr., used for foreign letters pictures a dove bearing reparations. These designs are by Galanis and Daragnes. The other stamps are admittedly designed as tiny posters, and are the work of Giraudoux, Laboureur, Decaris, Chapelain-Midy, and Geria. These designs were studies of the final size of the stamps, which is quite a departure from the usual procedure wherein large drawings or models are made, often as much as thirty to fifty times the stamp size. While the opposition press is hurling verbal briquettes at the issue, it is pretty generally conceded that it is a decided improvement and comparable to the better issues of other countries.

Sporting Section.

This Hungarian stamp is described by the catalog as the "Parade of Athletes."

This is a feature of Olympic games and is about the only time when all the contestants from a country appear together. The parade is the opening event of the games. This general "show up," perhaps takes the place of the ancient custom, wherein the athletes were lined up at the starting place for the races while a herald called upon the spectators to challenge anyone disqualified by blood or character.

Aid for Little Renters.

Danzig issued this stamp to raise money to aid the tenants of little farms who were unable to make their plot of ground support them. The inscription "Kleinrentnerhilfe 30 Mark Zuschlag," indicates that the stamp is sold for 30 marks above the face value, and it is this amount that is given to charity.

New Bermuda Issue.

Bermuda on March 30 issued her first three halfpenny stamp. It is in the same color as the English stamp of that value, and pictures the "Sea Venture," the vessel of Sir George Somers, which was wrecked off the coast in 1609. Bermuda was a part of the Colony of Virginia until 1612, and was known as "Somers Islands."

New General Issue.

The results of the readers' ballot indicates an almost equal division between those who desire a historical set of stamps and those who would like to see the natural scenery of the country pictured on its stamps.

Suggestions have been made that some of the pioneers who did so much to open the country to settlement be honored. Practically all of the votes were in favor of subjects which are historical or scenic, and not one suggested the idea of extending the presidential series.

In fact, one reader in commenting on the subject of honoring presidents, frankly says, "I'd say that most of them had honor enough when they drew their pay check from Uncle Sam."

Mozambique Company Arms.

This postage due stamp of the Mozambique company shows the arms of that organization as its central feature. The unusual thing about this device is the use of elephants as supporters. Supporters are the figures placed on either side of the shield as if to support it. They are sometimes human, but as often animal forms, but rarely are they so large as an elephant, for this destroys the scale of the shield making it appear to be 10 or 12 feet square.

Mother's Day Cachets.

Special first day covers with Mother Day stamps will be prepared and mailed by the American War Mothers, from Washington, D. C., on May 2. Profits will be used for the benefit of veterans, their families and mothers. For details, address National Headquarters, The American War Mothers, 1527 New Hampshire avenue, Washington, D. C.

Story Telling Stamps.

Under this title, Montgomery Mulford has given the collector a new kind of stamp book in which are cuts of various stamps accompanied by a short description of the subject which has been used for the design. These are just the sort of thing which many collectors use when writing up their collections. It is published by Sears of New York.

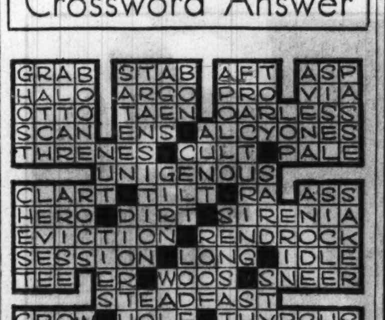
Jigsaw Puzzles Now Are Made in Three Dimensions

JIGSAW puzzles have grown to three dimensions. One can treat the family to a colorful wooden egg, whose inner mysteries can be explored and then put together again. Other puzzles come as trees, dolls [allegedly for the young], and portraits of celebrities. They're the logical next step for the expert who finds plane jigsaws mere child's play.

Crossword Answer



Girls Give Us Idea Why Seven Are Bachelors

They Believe That Perhaps Youths' Exaggerated Self-Esteem Is at Fault.

By Doris Blake.

REMEMBER the letter from a father of three grown boys, concerned over his sons' and their companions' distaste for the current type of girl met socially?

The father thought it odd that these young men [numbering seven in all], all holding good positions for their years, and interested in perfectly healthy pursuits, should be willing to forego girls' company the way they are doing. Father reported that the young men take girls to dances and return social obligations—but anything more serious seems remote from their minds. Father solicited the boys' reasons, and the consensus was that the girls are too artificial in their makeup, manners and speech and, indeed, in their pursuit of life. Father even extracted the opinion that if the girls were more like their mothers, smart and up-to-date, but not so darned artificial, they would be more alluring.

Not that we think it is a charge generally held against girls, nor that young women are largely isolated for their so-called artificiality. Still it is interesting to note this rather serious trend in girl-analysis by our young bachelors. Whether it is the reduced incomes of said young men, and their consequent difficulty in keeping up with entertainment expenditures, that colors their views, we do not know, but think it has a bearing on their point of view.

Not Her Lord and Master.

However, certain readers think that, perhaps, the young men have gone artificial, or possess a feeling of superiority calling for reverence from the modern girl. Their disappointment is keen, because the modern girl does not take the young man on that basis any more. He is not her lord and master, nor even her romantic Romeo. He is a young man, a very attractive young man, it's true, or she wouldn't be interested, but he's no god.

Murietta offers: "The young men are to blame for their unattached condition. You state that they are good looking, of family, and cultural background. They probably know it, and try overly to impose their importance on girls. They probably are guilty of the unnatural airs and graces of which they accuse the other sex, probably too conceited to bestow the ordinary courtesies, and been given the air."

Blames Artificiality on Men Themselves.

Perplexed thinks: "I will admit that most of the girls today overdo cosmetics, put on high-hat manners, and go around with that "come hither" blink in their eyes. But who are the girls that get all the dr[...] Of course, its these painted dolls.

"I am a young girl of twenty-[...] have a high school education, use v[ery] little makeup, am considered go[od] looking, do not go around putting [on] airs, nor with that look in my eye, but O, am I unhappy!

"I love to go to formal parties and dances, but all my friends laugh because I am so fond of formal affairs. They classify me as high-hat and sophisticated. They go to the stag dances, which, of course, I don't. When at a party I'm always a hit, but I never see any of the fellows I met after the party. Why? I'm wondering. Sometimes I think that it pays to pretend and paint oneself up like Alice's pet monkey.

"These young bachelors are looking for girls who may be compared with their mothers. Well, times have changed. I know that I cannot find a fellow like my dad, but I still have hopes. I think the young men of today want too much in a girl. She must be slim and shapely, pretty, a good housekeeper, cook, wife, and mother. Well, what are the ugly ducklings supposed to do? Go lie down and die?

"I am aching to meet these young bachelors face to face. Maybe fate will play an important part in our lives and bring us together.

"Let's hear what other young girls have to say about this matter."

SEDATE AND LONESOME.

Table Lamp Plays Dual Party Role

AS sure as four people gather around a bridge table there will will soon be an assortment of ash trays, glasses, matches, and other articles balancing themselves on the corners of the table. But there needn't be. For, besides lighting the table well, an attractive pair of detachable bridge lamps has bases which hold two glasses, a removable ash tray, matches, and a pencil. These new lamps come in a variety of colors and may be attached or detached in a jiff[y].

New Styles Do Clever Things to Neat Prints

Waistlines Hold Spotlight and Trimming Details Do Share for Fashion.

It's thrilling! The 48 page spring edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions presents, in color, delightful styles for every occasion and for every feminine age. Valuable suggestions for accessories and fabrics are observant of current fashions. The price is 15 cents a copy, but 10 cents when ordered with a pattern. Address Clotilde Patterns, Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, New York City; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn or Tribune Tower, Chicago.

By Clotilde.

IF you are looking for something smart and wearable, choose pattern No. 3417. It's not hard to make, and abounds in chic. The bodice yoke is slightly caped in effect, and is wonderfully attractive looking. The sleeves may be long or short.

There is a prettily shaped neckline, and this may be bound or faced. The buttoned closing makes it easy to slip into and out of, something every girl will appreciate.

The large bow at the neck is all the trimming needed, and you'll have a dress you'll wear a great many times, and always feel smartly dressed. If you want to make a daring splash of color, here is your chance. Make the dress in chartreuse green, printed silk crêpe, and for the big bow use a plain navy blue silk crêpe.

Pattern Affords Choice of Sleeves.

A striped necktie silk made the original dress of pattern No. 2716. It's simple in design, but undeniably smart. There are three different sleeves from which to choose; a short puffed sleeve, a pretty ruffled one, or full length, plain sleeves. The skirt seams will give you a slender appearance, and the flat little turn-over collar, with large bow at the neck in front, gives just the right finish.

Pattern No. 3229 is for an unusually lovely model for a spring dress. The beautifully cut skirt, with its curved raised waistline at the front, the simple little bodice, and puffed sleeves are all smart details, and the only trimming used are buttons down the front of the bodice, and plaited ruffles at the armholes. The neck is cut round at the front, and finished with a narrow bias facing. Always cut these bindings on a "true" bias, and not over three-quarters inch wide.

Jacket Dress Is Not Difficult to Make.

Pattern No. 2951 is for a jacket dress which you needn't be afraid to make yourself. Follow the directions that come with the pattern, for it tells you, step by step, how to put it together. The bodice has a prettily shaped top, and is cut in a very slight V and finished with a small, flat bow. The yoke forms shoulder caps, and the sleeves are full length and plain.

The skirt is cut with a deep yoke, pointed at the center front, and the gored skirt flares enough at the bottom to allow graceful width when walking.

A navy blue, novelty silk crêpe for the dress and jacket, with a blue and white printed crêpe for the bodice top will be smart, for blue is the favored color, and is universally becoming.

CLOUDS

By Eleanor Jewett.

The thunder carefully packed away
After last summer's use
Has been unwrapped and polished
And some of it let loose

Last night a sudden shower
Fell from the April sky
And I heard thunder growling
As it went rolling by—

O, all my winter blankets
That made my winter bed
Are hung across the heavens
And changed to clouds instead!

Buried Treasure in South Africa Is Being Sought

EAST LONDON, South Africa.—(AP)—Buried treasure believed to lie along the coast between East London and the Keiskama river is to be sought by a syndicate.

Records show that in the early days, when wind-jammers carried valuable cargoes to England from India, many ships were wrecked near here.

There also is a widely held theory that the first white people to land along the eastern coast were buccaneers whose wrecked ship carried bullion and gems which the survivors cached ashore.

WOMEN in Japan are now showing interest in military matters. In the event of another war Japan might have its own counterpart of Russia's famous "Battalion of Death," which was composed of women volunteers during the world war.

By MAE TINEE.

GOOD MORNING!

Having been firmly convinced in your own mind since the start of the picture that Linda Fayne is a dim wit, you're relieved to have somebody finally come right out and call her that and so back up your judgment.

A dim wit, undoubtedly, but possessed of marvelous powers of concentration.

There is a little book which says:

". . . the man who has a set, definite objective, deliberately tunes in to one thing, which action automatically makes him positive and consequently wipes out the others. . . . Nothing that such a man tunes in to can be withheld from him. . . ."

So!

Linda, the chorine, says to herself fifty times a day:

"Victor Banki is going to write a song for me!"

Victor Banki, the popular composer, writes a song for her. . . .

But, while singing it Linda goes over fairly well, it occurs to her that she would be more successful if married to Banki, who, she has heard, sometimes tires of his protégées. Again she concentrates and, probably, parrots fifty times each twenty-four hours:

"Victor Banki's going to marry me . . ."

Being a Mother Makes Her Great.

Victor marries her. And still the world is not at her feet.

She reads Ellen Terry's "Memoirs." ". . . I was never really an artist until I had a child, because, till

Below: Constance Cummings is much in our midst this week. You can see her playing opposite Spencer Tracy in "Looking for Trouble," at the United Artists theater, and she is prominent in "Glamor," showing at the Palace.

This scene isn't from a movie. It's a picture of Dolores Del Rio, her portrait in oil, and Ethelreda Leopold, who painted it. Miss Leopold, a Chicago girl, was contracted by Warner Brothers while modeling for Chicago Tribune fashion pictures.

The old problem about the lady and the tiger rises when you glance at this picture. What happens to her? Well, in this case she makes the terror of the jungle perform for the amusement of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus customers in the Coliseum.

New York Critic Lists Plays He'd See Over Again

By BURNS MANTLE.

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—Many of the letters that come to the desk of a man who makes a profession of playgoing these spring days are from students of the drama who are struggling with their examinations. They have a thesis to write on the state of the American theater or they have decided to inform the world as to the value or curse of dramatic criticism. They would like to know which are considered the ten most important plays produced in the last twenty years. Or whom do we consider the most representative (a) actress, (b) actor, (c), producer, (d) playwright on the American stage.

This particular correspondent is usually compelled to decline to testify. If he devoted his time to dictating theses for students the job would suffer and the wife and the heiress would be forced eventually to go without the necessities of life. There just isn't time.

One Query Arouses Interest.

But occasionally there comes a query that is interesting and that not only invites but demands an answer in the sense that the urge to answer is compelling. One such is before me.

Which of the plays that I have seen in the last fifteen years would I like to see again had I the chance?

"They might be plays whose worthiness was widely acknowledged but whose demise was early," reads the letter. "On the other hand they might be plays which were thoroughly successful in their time but would be relished by many today, either because they happened to miss them or because the dramas by now have acquired a semi-classical esteem that seems to merit them a new interpretation."

Sees 3,000 Plays in 15 Years.

It is an interesting question. One that I have often asked myself. Which of the plays that seemed most worth seeing at the time of their production are worthiest of revival?

Critic Names the Plays He'd See Over Again

"Declassee," "Deburau," "Bill of Divorcement" Among His Selections.

Which of them could stand the test of revival? Just how ephemeral is the life of a great drama or of a drama that at least seemed to possess elements of greatness at the time of its production?

In the last fifteen seasons I suspect this particular playgoer has sat through an average of 200 plays a year. That would mean around 3,000 in fifteen years. How many of them would he approach with a curiosity amounting to enthusiasm if they were revived? If you, as an average playgoer, see no more than ten plays a season, that would be 150 in fifteen years. Or 300 if you have seen twenty a year. How many of these plays do you remember well enough, and with sufficient pleasure in the memory, to want to see again?

Many factors enter into the memory of a theater going adventure. If I say, for example, that I should like to see another performance of Zoe Akins' "Dèclassée," do I mean that I should like to see the play as a play performed by any adequate cast, or do I mean that I should like to see the Ethel Barrymore of 1919 again in the rôle of the unhappy Lady Helen Haden, 'whose father was an earl, whose godmother was a queen of England, and whose line of ancestors stretched back a matter of several hundred years," and who came upon emotionally stirring adventures striving defiantly to maintain or to recover social prestige? I forget which. I think I liked the play and Barrymore. I may only have liked Barrymore.

"Deburau" Failed in a Blaze of Glory.

I know that I should like to see "Deburau" again, that poetic drama written by Sacha Guitry, adapted by Harley Granville-Barker, and produced in New York by David Belasco. Here no star dust blinds my memory. It was beautifully played by Lionel Atwill as the great clown and the then Mrs. Atwill, pretty Elsie Mackay, as the first of the Camilles.

Belasco spent a fortune on the production of "Duburau," played it to capacity audiences all season, and was still $90,000 in debt when the piece was withdrawn. He could not send it on tour because of the expensive cast and setting.

I should like to see "A Bill of Divorcement" played again, but I think I should miss terribly the brilliant young ingènue who made her first definite strides toward stardom in the rôle of the loyal daughter of that play. You may recall her, too. Her name was Katharine Cornell.

The ghost of a fine actor, shell-shocked and nerve shattered in the great war that was only over a year or so when this play was produced, would be pretty sure to rise up and demand to be heard. His name was Allan Pollock, and his experiences had not been unlike those of the hero, who in 1932 [the play was a thrust into the future, you remember] came back from a sanitarium for the incurably insane to assert his right to the love of the wife and daughter whom he had not seen in seventeen years.

"Anna Christie" Might Be Played as O'Neill Tribute.

I think I should like to see a performance of "Anna Christie" again as a reminder of that early O'Neill who was still close enough to the accepted drama of commerce to follow conventional forms. But here again I probably would be disappointed in any other Anna than the Pauline Lord of 1921 and any other hero than the fine, upstanding Irishman, Frank Shannon, who came out of nowhere to play the bargeman and redeem her. Not forgetting old George Marion and his "ol' debbil sea."

I have the pleasantest memories of a gentle little A. A. Milne romance called "Dover Road," which came along about this time. Do you remember that one—about the eccentric millionaire who had a passion for stopping eloping couples on the Dover road and holding them prisoner until they got so used to seeing each other at breakfast and knowing each other in all their moods, attractive and unattractive, that they were glad usually to go back home and call the elopement off?

I remember Philip Barry's "You and I," the story of an artist who always thought the soap business sapped his genius and came to an amusing yet pathetic awakening when he got his chance to paint. I should like to see that again, to see whether or not it is, as I still think it is, one of the best plays Barry ever wrote. But H. B. Warner and Frieda Inescort, Lucille Watson, Geoffrey Kerr, and Ferdinand Gottschalk were in that cast. Is it the play I recall or the heart warming performances of these agreeable players?

Two of Galsworthy's Plays Would Bear Revival.

I should like to see John Galsworthy's "Loyalties" again. And his "Escape." It is hard to think of any other player in the rôle of the Jew in "Loyalties" than the James Dale who played it and who has recently finished another fine season with "The Green Bay Tree," but any Galsworthy play is stronger than the actor who plays it. "Escape" might seem pretty empty without Leslie Howard, but another of similar sympathetic quality could do it.

I have seen George Kelly's "The Show Off" recently revived, and it held up so well I am inclined to think it may become a minor comedy classic. Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound" is one of the stirring memories of my last fifteen years of playgoing. There again the cast was impressively fine. You could not bring it together again—Alfred Lunt, Margalo Gillmore, Leslie Howard, J. M. Kerrigan, and Beryl Mercer were in it. But "Outward Bound," played sensitively by any intelligent cast, would still be moving to any whose nature it is to react pleasurably to the finely imaginative story.

Do you recall the infinitely touching moment in "Outward Bound" when the English rector, finding himself moved to prayer on the far shore of the River Styx, could only recall the prayer he was taught as a boy beginning "Gentle Jesus, meek and mild, look down upon this little child"? Audiences reacted amazingly to that scene. Stifled sobs shook many people, and nervous laughter at the churchman's plight moved others.

I still think of one of the earlier Kaufman-Connelly collaborations, "Beggar on Horseback," as being worth seeing again. And Connelly's first individual opus, "The Wisdom Tooth," though this last was too sentimental for most. Now Kaufman is the country's most famous satirist, suffering his first major defeat in ten seasons with "Let 'Em Eat Cake" this winter, and Connelly has waxed rich and independent with "The Green Pastures," which is by way of becoming a favorite that will live on and on.

Maxwell Anderson's "Saturday's Children" should bear repeating with or without Ruth Gordon. And Sidney Howard's "They Knew What They Wanted," though it is difficult to think of it without Pauline Lord, Richard Bennett, and Glenn Anders, who played the original rôles. On second thought I think perhaps I could do without a second viewing of this particular Pulitzer prize winner.

I do think, however, that the Kaufman-Ferber "Royal Family" would bear a second hearing. I know I should like to see "Wings Over Europe" again with the same Alexander Kirkland who played the young inventor in that same rôle. At the moment he would have a little trouble getting away from "Men in White," in which he has been playing all winter.

"Strictly Dishonorable" Is Nominated for Repetition.

But we get too close to the current season with these comparatively recent productions. "Strictly Dishonorable" should always be good fun, so long as the ingénues with lisping southern accents hold out. "Once in a Lifetime" should be worth repeating, though probably not more than once. The polish is rubbed off satire pretty quickly.

I still hope to see Paul Green's "House of Connelly" played by a cast of greater distinction than it had originally, though technically it was well played then. I think I should enjoy seeing "Berkeley Square" again. And probably "Journey's End." I know I shall see "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" when Cornell comes home. But it must be with Cornell. And preferably with Brian Aherne as the Robert Browning of the cast.

But that is the way it goes. Actors and plays. It is difficult to separate them, once impressions are set. Yet they tell me "The Shining Hour" will be played by at least fifty stock companies this summer and probably well played, too. To me it will always demand a selected English cast, because I happened to see it first perfectly played by English actors.

Film Tells How Stupid Actress Wooed Success

then, I had never really lived," wrote Ellen—or words to that effect.

"I want a child!" decides Mrs. Banki.

The child is immediately—or as immediately as the laws of nature will permit—forthcoming.

And so Linda Fayne Banki becomes a great star, goes temperamental, and is loved and understood by Victor Banki, who gallantly gives her up to the romantic looking Lorenzo—her leading man. . . .

Fate at Last Catches Up with Linda.

Fate makes a wry mouth—and then, suddenly, grins broadly. . . .

For a time Linda and Lorenzo are rapturously happy. But—and now you see the reason for the grin—Linda's life becomes analogous to what had been Victor's experience with her. . . . Linda, after sacrificing much for the virile Lorenzo, finds him two-timing her even as she had two-timed her first husband. . . .

Away she goes to find the man and the little son she had deserted for her grande passion . . . and the face of fate becomes grim and unrelenting.

See pix for outcome.

While well played and staged, "Glamor" is a vaguely unsatisfying movie. For the reason, I'm sure, that the heroine IS such a dim wit!

Bitsa BOUTem.

Miriam Jordan has this poisoned dart for English actors who high hat America and Hollywood in general: "They come over here and earn ten times as much money as they ever hoped to see in England and then they bite the hand that feeds them, figuratively speaking. I just can't see their point of view It's terribly insular."

After this SALLY BLANE wishes you would spell it this way—SALLIE. . . . WESLEY EARRY, one time famous freckled faced child actor, is about to stage a comeback in ANN HARDING'S new starring venture, "The Life of Vergie Winters." Pretty much grown up, now, is Wesley. . . . STEPIN FETCHIT'S had his contract renewed by Fox. . . . Columbia will make "Carmen" with GRACE MOORE. . . . FRANCIS LEDERER will have the rôle of Joaquin Murietta, colorful California bandit, in his second screen vehicle for RKO. . . . MAKEUP MEN and HAIRDRESSERS are Hollywood's early birds. They're up with the milkmen and on their way to the various studios by 6:30 a. m. of every working day.

From a press notice: "THE JAZZ AGE is all washed up in pictures. . . . A major depression has rid the world and the screen of the flapper influence. . . . "It is no longer smart to be smarty. . . . CHARLES LAUGHTON will have the rôle of Elizabeth Barrett's father in 'The Barretts of Wimpole Street.' Others in the cast are FREDRIC MARCH, NORMA SHEARER, MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN, and KATHERINE ALEXANDER. . . . JEAN HARLOW, according to Mr. Skolsky in the New York Daily News, calls everybody 'Honey.' Sezze: 'It's amusing to hear Jean speak to her colored maid and say, 'Honey, dear, get me a handkerchief.' . . ." "We are fighting our way to happiness,' declared LUPE VELEZ recently when asked by an interviewer how went marital affairs with herself and husband, JOHNNY WEISSMULLER."

Writes Sara Hamilton in Photoplay: "If Earl Carroll, that New York producer and connoisseur of beauty who came to Hollywood to hunt new beauties for the Paramount picture, 'Murder at the Vanities,' had had even the slightest suspicion of what lay ahead, the sweet innocent lamb would never have so much as left good old below-zero New York. For, strange as it may seem, the beauties won't stand still long enough for Mr. Carroll to pick them. What they want is for Mr. Carroll to stand still so they may pick him, which just upsets everybody's plan all the way 'round.

"For instance, they swarm, these beauties, all over the place. They hide behind trees and pop out at him. 'O, Mr. Carroll, lookie! Can I be murdered at your "Vanities"?' they lisp. They hide behind telephone poles, Gary Cooper, the Academy of Arts and Sciences, and have even been known to pop out from under manhole covers directly in the path of his speeding taxi, shrieking, 'Yoo hoo, Mr. Carroll, lookie,' which just about throws the man into the nervous twitters."

See you tomorrow.

New Contract.

Allan Jones, leading man with Mme. Jeritza in her new operetta, "Annina," has signed a five year contract with the Shuberts. This is his first show

Song and Dance Spectacles on Variety Bills

An ELABORATELY staged revue called "Cocktail Hour," with Rae Samuels, formerly called "the blue streak of vaudeville," as star is the leading item on the program of stage entertainment at the Palace theater this week. It contains thirty singers, dancers, comedians, and musicians, including the Harmony Co-Eds, Eleanor Whitney, tap dancer; Kitty Doner, male impersonator, and Olyn Landick.

Two spectacles of music and dancing, after the manner of last week's "Pirate's Romance," are on the bill of stage amusement at the Chicago theater this week. The first, called "On the Mississippi," has the atmosphere of the old south. Emery Darcy, young Chicago baritone, is the principal singer. The second is named "Algerian Carnival," and offers oriental dancing and costumes. Fifty players appear in the latter number, including Eddie South and his orchestra.

The vaudeville program at the State-Lake theater this week consists of: Evelyn Brent, motion picture star, and Harry Fox, musical comedy star, in a sketch; the Three Queens, dancers; Joe Browning, eccentric comedian; Dave Tannen, comedian; Vernon Rathburn in a dance revue, with Dorothy Jones as auxiliary; Mary Haines, impersonator, and the State-Lake ballet girls.

The Uptown theater's current bill of stage entertainment contains Art Kassel's orchestra, the Radio Rubes, Martha Raye, and George Campo.

Dennis King's "Richard" Wins Critic's Praise

By Charles Collins.

THIS week-end belongs, so far as I am concerned, to "Richard of Bordeaux." The play that Dennis King has brought to the Erlanger theater has cast a spell over me. No doubt, as a midwestern first-nighter who has been on a starvation diet for about two years, this copious draft of historical romance, superbly staged and vividly acted, has gone to my head.

Perhaps, unlike the jaded New Yorkers, I am unaccustomed to such noble wine of the imagination; perhaps I am slightly drunk on medieval glamor. As a certified critic, of course, I should strike a slightly snooty attitude about this story of the Black Prince's unwarlike son and remark that I had heard it before, perhaps in Shakespeare, and that anyway the Theater Guild's production of "Mary of Scotland" is a more important contribution to dramatic literature.

Nevertheless, I am ready to cheer for "Richard of Bordeaux," and if my outcries of enthusiasm happen to annoy any anti-romanticists who may believe that this drama is out of date because it does not contain a tap dancer I shall not take the trouble to apologize. It is the best play of the year, in my experience, with fine stagecraft and persuasive interpretation added to its values. It brings the old glow back into the theater, which has been a pale and sickly thing too long in this region.

Fine Acting by Dennis King.

In the character of Richard II., the lily lad of England, Dennis King has emerged as a romantic actor of the first flight. If you continue to think of him as an operetta star you will hear him sing a little Provençal ballad in this play; but his performance should cause you to forget about "The Vagabond King." He is perfect in the part—a gorgeous picture of handsome, ornate, effeminate youth in many striking costumes, and a dynamic interpreter of the hot, hysterical rages and cold, feline hatreds of England's esthete king.

Mr. King may not be a deep actor, but his surfaces are exceedingly glossy. He has a sure instinct for the striking attitude and the telling gesture. He has grace, vigor and a strong sense of romantic color. Moreover, he has great charm—the quality that holds all of Richard's faults and virtues in solution.

Sir Herbert Tree's Richard II., in Shakespeare's tragedy, was not in the same class with this brilliant achievement. One inevitably thinks of Hamlet as this study of poetic youth breaking under the stress of brutal circumstances passes through its various phases and feels that here is an actor born for that rôle. Mr. King's ambition lies in that direction, and if he ever plays Hamlet I guarantee more fire than Hampden's and more charm than John Barrymore's.

"Richard of Bordeaux" is a historical drama that has an undercurrent of relation to modern conditions. Its hero, an oddity in his era, is a familiar type among contemporary youth—art-minded, intellectual, feminine in certain traits, resentful of the conservatism of the older generation. Highbrow sneers and catty epigrams are its weapons in every clash with the stubbornness of tradition. In this drama Richard II. is any smart young decadent just out of a university, born too soon in an environment that lived by the mailed fist.

Modern Youth in Middle Ages.

The author is sympathetic toward Richard's problems as a pacifist and lover of the gentler arts, including dressmaking. [She omits, however, his service to English literature as a patron of Chaucer.] Nevertheless, she does not shirk the facts in the case. Although his desire for a permanent peace with France was intelligent, although his Irish policy was statesmanlike, Richard was biologically unfit for his destiny as a ruler.

The play portrays his slow cracking up under pressure. He couldn't take it. He was an ineffectual, touched with a malady that the sex psychologists have a name for, and, although there was wonderful mettle in him, as his old chancellor, De La Pole, told his bullheaded uncles, it was inevitable that England should reject him and that his swaggering cousin, Bolingbroke, should thrust him off the throne.

"Richard of Bordeaux" is alive in every rôle of its large cast. Henry Mollison's study of Bolingbroke is a virile opposite to Mr. King's esthetic monarch. Hugh Buckler's Duke of Gloucester is a dominating portrait of feudal power.

Mellow Veterans in Brilliant Cast.

The backgrounds of the members of this excellent cast are impressive. Beatrice de Neergard, who plays Anne of Bohemia winsomely, is a cousin of Eva Le Gallienne. Montague Love, the walruslike Earl of Arundel, is a motion picture veteran.

A. G. Buckler, one of the oldest actors on the American stage, sound actor of Richard's tutor, can be remembered as far back as Richard Mansfield's companies. Charles Bryant, as the astute Duke of Lancaster, had had a career that runs back to 1900. They are a mellow group, but they play "Richard II." with an alert, modern spirit.

FROM FILMS TO STAGE

Evelyn Brent, formerly active in motion pictures, leads the current vaudeville program at the State-Lake theater. She costars with Harry Fox, who used to frolic in musical comedy with the Dolly Sisters.

New Dancers at College Inn; Cabaret Bills

THE College Inn altered and brightened up its cabaret program last night by the addition of a new dance team named Norman and Arlene Selby to the troupe. They give a so-called black-and-tan fantasy, wearing mulatto make-up, and capering through a number called "Harlemania." Young Mr. Selby toots on a muted cornet in order to persuade his companion to wriggle in the approved Harlem fashion. Later on they appear in a Hawaiian dance and a waltz.

Frankie Masters remains in charge of the show and the band, with Jackie Heller, Alan Rogers, Jack Powell, and the Eight Evans Co-eds among his performers.

● The Knickerbocker club, 3131 West Madison street, formerly for members only, is now inviting the public to attend its shows. Its entertainers include Ramon and Lucille, ballroom dancers; Eva Hughes; Fran and Suzanne, eccentric dancers; the Four Knickerbocker Girls; Phil Weir, master of ceremonies, and Willie Tyler's orchestra.

● Chez Paree has always refused to indulge in "celebrity nights," regular weekly events at many other cabarets. Tonight, however, its management will break the rule, in a manner of speaking, in honor of Frances Arms, better known as "Mme. Rubinoff" of Eddie Cantor's radio programs. She will appear in skits with Ray Bolger, star comedian of the current show. Gus Van, of the old Van and Schenck vaudeville team, is also prominent in the proceedings.

● Edward Beck, who directs the handsome floor shows at Rainbo garden, is a veteran of Chicago's theatrical life. He was stage manager and assistant producer at the old La Salle Opera house during the régime of Mort H. Singer and Harry Askin, and made there a reputation for skilful treatment of ballet numbers. His "Indian Fantasy" spectacle in the current show at the Rainbo is a striking example of his method. Helen Wehrle is the leading dancer in this episode. Easter and Hazelton, who once appeared in the "Ziegfeld Follies," are among the other principal entertainers.

● Maurine and Norva, specialty dancers, have been added to the cabaret program in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. They recently completed an engagement in Hollywood in the film called "Viva Villa." Other entertainers are Berenice Stone, dancer; Maxine Chalfont, singer; Chico, who called himself "the singing bus boy," and Jack Law, a singing bandman. Al Kvale is orchestra leader.

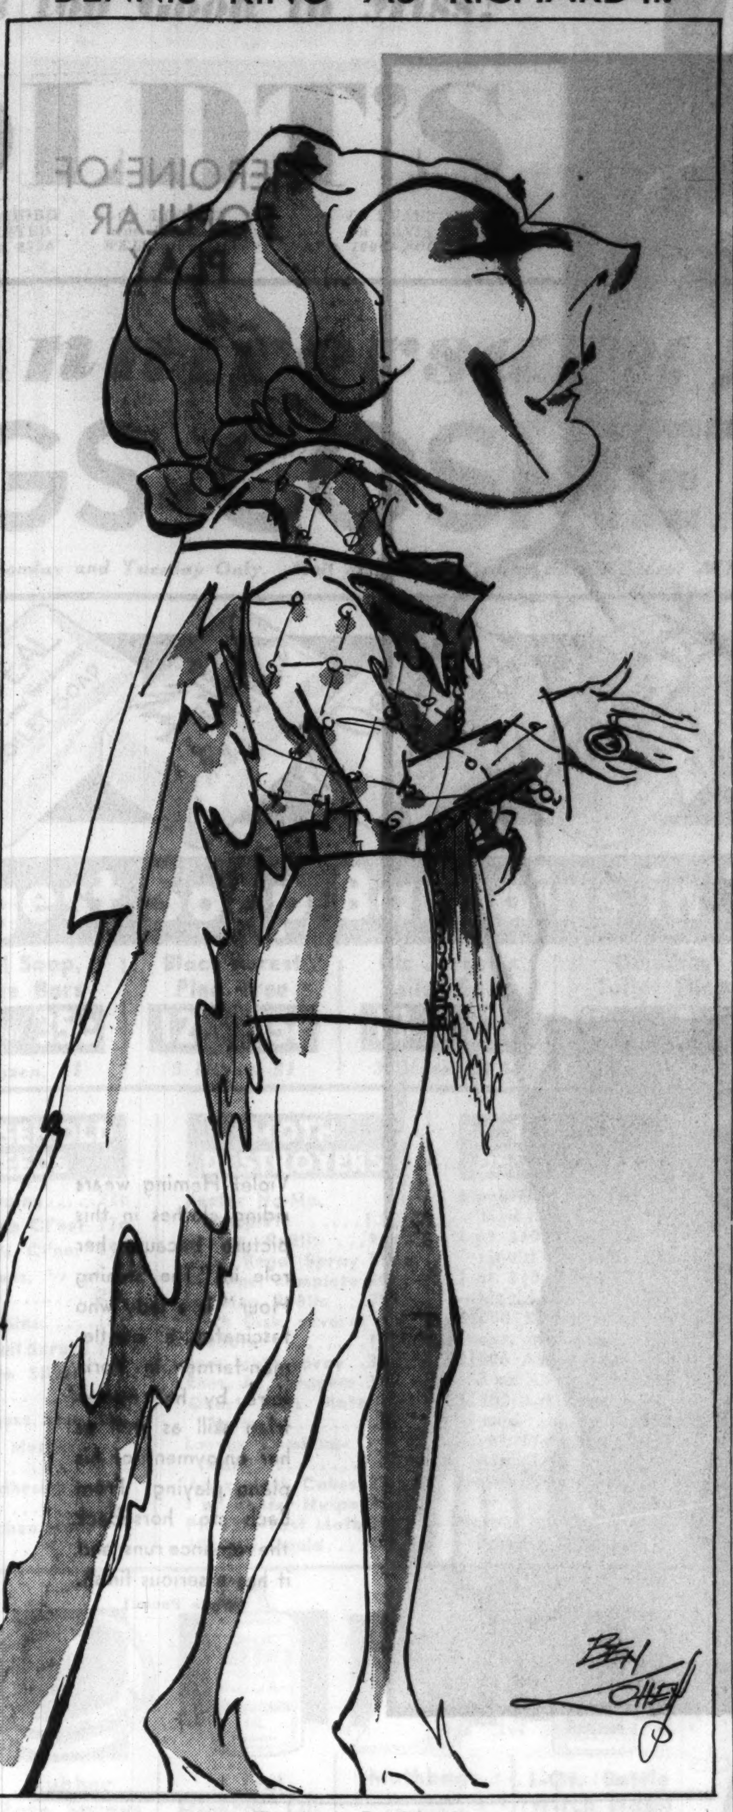
● A week's "Blossom Festival" will begin in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel next Saturday night. The first party will be called "A Night in Japan." There will be special entertainers, including Keyo and Namba, Japanese acrobats, and Muriel La France, prima donna, in "Mme. Butterfly" songs. Harry Sosnik's orchestra continues.

● Jan Garber's orchestra has returned to the Trianon ballroom after a tour. . . . Carlos Molina's tango and rhumba band is week-ending at the Aragon as alternate to Wayne King's orchestra.

Leading Man

JAMES BILLINGS, now in "Affections, Ltd." at the Studebaker, has appeared here in "The Baby Cyclone" at the Central [now the Punch and Judy] theater, and also as leading man at the Ambassador theater. He has been in many Broadway productions, including "Pitter Patter," and has been a leading man in stock companies in Salem, Mass., Malden, Mass., Houston, Tex., and Milwaukee. He bears a likeness to one of the screen's popular actors, Jack Mulhall.

DENNIS KING AS RICHARD II.



[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

Dennis King, who has returned to the dramatic stage with brilliant success in "Richard of Bordeaux" at the Erlanger theater, appears in this drawing as the foppish and artistic lad whose ways of running England annoyed his bellicose uncles. Richard II. was the dandy of his time, but he preferred court costume to armor and peace to war; so he lost his friends, his happiness and his crown.

German Stage

DRESDEN, Germany.—This city has entered the circle of German municipalities that will give elaborate cycles of operatic and dramatic performances during the summer. The first "Reich Theater Festival week" will open on May 27.

The opera program will be directed by Richard Strauss and Karl Boehm and will comprise "Tristan," "Rosenkavalier," "Arabella," "Oberon," "Fidelio" and "Meistersinger."

At the state playhouse, "Prinz von Homburg," "Peer Gynt," "Wilhelm Tell," "Coriolanus," "Eichendorff's "Die Freier," Erler's "Zar Peter," and Kolbenheyer's "Heroische Leidenschaften" will be staged. In addition, the Weimar national theater will produce "Kabale und Liebe."

In the Hellerau Festspielhaus, Gluck's "Alkestis," Haendel's "Julius Caesar" and Goethe's "Iphigenie" will be produced on May 28 and 30 and June 3, respectively.

Orson Welles Plans Summer Drama School

WOODSTOCK, Ill., will be the focus of a repertory theater group next summer, with an old "opera house," which dates from civil war days, as scene of the productions.

Head Master Roger Hill of the school in Woodstock will conduct a summer school of the theater with Whitford Kane as its director. Public performances will be given Saturdays and Sundays through the summer.

A tentative repertory, from which three or four plays will be selected, includes works which have seldom if ever been performed in Chicago. Arthur Schnitzler's "Living Hours," Christopher Marlow's "Dr. Faustus," Dickens' "Bleak House," Leon Feuchtwanger's "Jew Suess," Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," Strindberg's "The Father," Wedekind's "The Awakening of Spring," Margaret Kennedy's "The Constant Nymph," and one of the Beaumont and Fletcher comedies are on the list for consideration.

The actors thus far selected give the company a distinctly Irish flavor. Hilton Edwards and Michael MacLinnoir are both members of the Gate Theater company of Dublin, and Kane made his first successes at the Abbey. Orson Welles, now in Katharine Cornell's company, who made his debut in Dublin at the age of fifteen, was a member of both companies.

without use of dyes, bleaches, henna or oils

Now simply combing hair this way makes faded, harsh-looking hair become youthful, soft and lustrous

Here, at last, is the original make-up for the hair. A new discovery that achieves the same startling difference in the appearance of the hair that rouge, powder and lipstick bring to the face.

It is called GERAL, and today its use is sweeping the country.

Geral instantly heightens the color of the hair. Hidden lights gleam and glisten where the hair was formerly dull and drab. New-found vitality replaces that dead, lifeless look. Alluring softness and fluffiness are gained where the hair was "straw-like" in texture. YET!—Geral is NOT a dye, bleach or henna. It does not contain a drop of oil. It works on an entirely new principle that gives the hair the natural life, sheen and softness of youthful girlhood.

Try Geral and watch your hair regain the beauty which has been lost for years. At all good toilet counters and drug stores.

HEROINE OF POPULAR PLAY

ACTOR'S RADIO OPERATED GATES AREN'T TUNED IN

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Warner Baxter goes in for gadgets. He's got one he wishes he didn't have.

The entrance to his new five acre estate in exclusive Bel-air near here is guarded by two immense gates, medievallike, which are radio controlled.

In each gate is a small short wave radio. In his car is the master radio, which controls the gates. The master set also turns on the floodlights surrounding the house. When Warner is within two or three blocks of his home he pushes a button in his car and when he gets to the gates they're already open. At night the lights are on when he drives in.

The other night he was awakened by the slight creaking of the gates. The lights were on and the gates were swinging back and forth. He pulled the master switch and went back to bed.

Came the dawn. He turned the switch. And the gates started to swing slowly back and forth. But they were out of synchronization; when the right one was in the left one was out. Baxter could walk through the opening, but he couldn't drive his car through.

Lights and gates have been performing like that almost every night since.

Warner thinks some one in his neighborhood has an X-ray or something that's in tune with his gates and lights.

"After all my friends have been amused," says Baxter, "I think I'll take out the radios and open the gates in the old fashioned way."

AT STUDEBAKER

"Affections, Ltd.," the comedy now at the Studebaker theater, contains an intelligent young actress in Beverly Younger, who plays a country mouse who transforms herself into a New York belle. In the first act she is a rural frump; but in the last act she becomes the hero's pride and joy.

Film Comedians Speak Language All Their Own

Odd Vernacular Combines Various Phrases Used by Actors on the Lot.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—If you were told to do a two-and-a-half or a four wings and a scram, you'd probably be bewildered.

But a movie comic wouldn't be. He and the comedy writers have a language peculiar to Hollywood which bears the queer name of "take 'ems." It is the vernacular of the two reel comedy lots, and the various odd phrases which make it up are the standard directions in writing and acting comedy scripts.

Comedians who leave the two reel school for feature pictures invariably continue to use their idioms, says James Gleason, if the comedy is broad or satirical.

In the two reel studios every little movement has a meaning all its own and the directions are written accordingly to save time, Gleason explains. For instance, if a writer wants a comic to express disbelief by closing one eye slowly and turning his head away as he draws back, he economizes by writing: "Joe does a one-eyed fadeaway." It means the same thing and uses less paper.

Hundred and Eight Is Somersault Trick.

A hundred and eight is a certain kind of trick forward somersault and the name is used constantly, although, says Jimmie, no one knows where it originated. Another stunt, in which the player leaps high in the air and falls backward—landing on his neck—is a "high and gruesome" in the "take 'ems" lexicon. No wonder.

Incidentally, there's a legend in Hollywood that a former movie comedian lost his mind taking the bumps—doing high and gruesomes.

Gleason, the comedian in "Change of Heart," suggested to Janet Gaynor that, in a particular scene, she do a "fig bar." Janet was stumped. He explained it was a sheepish grin. A "fig bar" is a more pronounced way of registering embarrassment and a "grease bar" is being embarrassed in a big way.

Here's Data on Doing a "Gribbon."

When the comedian holds one hand beside his eye, like a blinder, meanwhile shaking the other hand in the direction of the person he doesn't want to see, he is doing a "Gribbon." Harry Gribbon is supposed to have been the first to use the action. A "camel" means to register, gradually, disgust or anger. "Babe" Hardy does a "camel" in every picture.

A "four wings," Gleason continued, is done while the body is in the air, with arms and legs stuck out stiffly like those of a jumping jack. It's a hard trick. A "scram" is a hasty scamper off-scene. When a player expresses surprise by a rapid shaking of his head, stopping with a fixed stare on the object of surprise, the action is entitled a "one-and-a-half," or a "two-and-a-half," depending on the number of shakes.

Musical "Cyrano."

Next fall may see Everett Marshall, now in the cast of the "Follies" in New York, acting the part of Cyrano de Bergerac. The Shuberts are planning a musical version of the play. Under the name of "Roxane," the operetta was tried out in several places in 1932, with George Heuston in the rôle of Cyrano.

Old Stage Custom.

An old theatrical custom has been revived at the Selwyn since Conrad Nagel has been acting there in "The Shining Hour." Groups of autograph seekers have been standing outside the stage door after each performance, waiting for Mr. Nagel and invariably requesting his autograph.

TO DIRECT PREMIERE

Conductor of the Woman's Symphony orchestra for several years, during which time she has shown high talents as organizer, trainer, and interpreter, Ebba Sundstrom will wield her baton before the organization tomorrow night in an elaborate concert at Orchestra hall. "Good Morning, America," by Carl Sandburg and Hazel Felman Buchbinder, will receive its first performance on this occasion, with Mina Hager, contralto, and the International singers as assisting artists. Guy Maier and Lee Pattison will play a Mozart concerto for two pianos. Proceeds of the concert will go to the support of the orchestra.

Concerts Show City's Musical Achievements

Chief Choral and Symphony Programs of Week to Employ Local Talent.

By Edward Moore.

AT LEAST three of this week's concerts are to be demonstrations of what Chicago as a community is doing in the cause of music. In the strict sense, they are not entirely professional, nor yet are they amateur. For that reason they take on extra interest as community expressions.

Taking them in the order in which they will occur, the first will be a choral concert this afternoon at Orchestra hall by 650 boys and men drawn from the nineteen outstanding Episcopal boy choirs of Chicago and neighboring suburbs. Alphabetically arranged, the churches to be represented are All Saints of Ravenswood, Ascension, Emmanuel of La Grange, Good Samaritan of Oak Park, Grace of Oak Park, Holy Communion of Maywood, Holy Nativity of Beverly Hills, Redeemer, St. Ansgarius, St. Bartholomew, St. Elisabeth of Glencoe, St. Mark of Chicago, St. Mark of Evanston, St. Mary of Park Ridge, St. Paul of Riverside, St. Paul's Church-by-the-Lake, St. Peter, Trinity, and Trinity of Highland Park.

Concert Proves Excellence of Boy Choirs.

This is the second annual concert to be given under the auspices of the Chicago Choirmasters' association. Its purpose is to bring more sharply to the attention of churchmen and laymen alike the excellent singing that boy choirs can do, and thereby to promote a greater use of the boy choir.

The program is based upon two ideas, one to bring out the various effects of full choral singing, the other to show the development of church music historically. Starting with Martin Luther's great hymn, the program progresses through church history to the works of present, living composers.

The concert will start at 3:30 o'clock and be preceded by an organ recital by Mason Slade at 3:15.

Women's Orchestra Introduces "Good Morning, America."

The Woman's Symphony orchestra conducted by Ebba Sundstrom will appear in a benefit concert for its own finances at Orchestra hall tomorrow night. It is presenting several unusual features, among them the first performance on any stage of "Good Morning, America."

This is an elaborate work of dramatic nature, the poem by Carl Sandburg and the music by Hazel Felman, both librettist and composer being closely attached to Chicago and the middle west. It is written for solo contralto voice, male chorus, and orchestra. The solo part will be sung by Mina Hager, whose midwestern affiliations are also pronounced, and the choral section by the International singers, Jacquest Homier, conductor.

For further special interest, Guy Maier and Lee Pattison also will appear on the program, playing a concerto for two pianos by Mozart. Miss Sundstrom announces some of the finest orchestral numbers in the répertoire of the organization.

The Paulist choristers of Chicago will give their annual spring concert at Orchestra hall Thursday night under the direction of Rev. Eugene O'Malley. This, too, classifies as a benefit concert, for the organization maintains a summer camp in Wisconsin for its members, a season of combined work and recreation, and the proceeds of the concert will go toward its support.

Father O'Malley and his choir have been appearing as regular feature on the Sunday evening concerts of station W-G-N this season, and as a consequence the radio auditors need little information from this column as to the fine training and efficiency of the organization. Thursday night's program will be partly sacred music and partly secular. A group of sixteenth century sacred numbers of England, Germany, and Rome will begin the concert; there will be other groups of Bach and Rachmaninoff, and some seldom heard folk music. Among the soloists will be Walter Curran, Billy Callahan, Philip Seenie, George Lane, and Frank Dunford.

News of Interest to Lovers of Music.

A distinct curiosity in music is to be presented by the University of Chicago Symphony orchestra at Mandel hall this evening under the direction of Prof. Howard Talley. It is a symphony composed by Frederick the Great of Prussia. This monarch is cited in the histories as having been greatly interested in the flute and as having played it until through advancing years he lost his front teeth. He is also said to have been a fluent composer, but it was generally supposed that his composition was confined to works for his favorite solo instrument. This symphony, however, is rated as the third from his pen.

Tonight's concert is an experiment on the part of the orchestra to determine the popularity of Sunday nights for musical events. There will be two soloists. Michael Krasnapolsky will appear with his double bass in the third movement of Serge Koussevitzky's concerto for that instrument; also in the orchestra's presentation of "Kol Nidrei." Robert Wallenborn, pianist, will play the Grieg concerto.

Harold Turner, organist of the North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, will be the guest organist at the Fourth Presbyterian church this afternoon. He will play a program by Bach, Kramer, and Dupré.

"Little Women," the most recent opera from the pen of Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, for which she wrote both words and music, is to be presented in Washington today before the conference of the League of American Pen Women. Frances Coates Grace of Chicago will sing in it. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, a member of the league, is to be the guest of honor of the conference.

Basil Cameron, conductor of the Seattle Symphony orchestra, gave some advice in New York a few days ago on the future of American audiences. "They've got to cut prices, hire larger halls, and cater to more people," he said. "They must forget about the millionaire audiences of the past and play from now on for the general public.

The Seattle orchestra furnishes good testimony on the subject. Last fall it cut its prices from three dollars to fifty cents a seat, went to a hall that seated 6,000 patrons, played to crowded houses, and, so they say, broke even on the season. Next season, instead of concerts once a month, they will present one each week. Mr. Cameron is taking his vacation by making a voyage to the orient on a freighter.

CABARET PRIMA DONNA

The Blackhawk cafe has a policy of handsome prima donnas who warble ambitiously when the jazz band and public dancers are taking a rest. Here is the current specimen — by name, Dorothy Page.

Four Twins in Family Make Film History

Gale Girls, Two 19, Two 20, Add Their Good Looks to Hollywood Scene.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—There is only one case of two sets of twins, all sisters, who have been successful in musical comedy, radio, vaudeville, and film work. The Gales, June and Jane, aged 20, and Jean and Joan, aged 19, are the sort of twins that do not look alike—"fraternal" twins, to be scientific.

They were billed as quadruplets for years when as children they danced in vaudeville and on the Fanchon and Marco circuit.

At the moment Joan is under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Jean is a Wampas baby star, this year's crop, playing in Paramount's "Kiss and Make Up." June is traveling in vaudeville with Hoot Gibson and Jane is married and living happily with her husband, Louis Rapp, one of Vincent Lopez's musicians. Jean, the Wampas baby, has been married to Matty Rosen but is suing for divorce.

It's hard to conceive of so much good looks all in one family, but the palm goes to Jean as the most beautiful, for she has been selected by John Wesley Reynolds, sculptor, as "Hollywood's perfect beauty" and will be the model for his "Spirit of Hollywood."

Jean's Stage Career Began When She Was 5.

Not much imagination was needed to realize that this group of sisters was a natural for the stage and screen from babyhood days. Jean was working on the stage at the age of 5, showing aptitude for dancing. She took dancing lessons till she was 13. Then the four went on the stage, landed in New York musical comedy as a group, and played as quadruplets in George White's "Scandals" and "Flying High." London was next, where they played at the Savoy and the Palladium, topnotch spots for dancers.

All those years when they were in their teens their parents had no worry as to where they could be found. It was at the best theater in town just as long as their parents kept track of the towns.

All but Jean have brown eyes. Jean's are blue flecked with darker color. She's a typical Irish type—blue eyed brunette. June is striking with blonde hair and brown eyes.

Girls Can Discuss Their Scientific Aspects.

So far Jean has played for Fox in "Bottoms Up" and "Cat's Paw" with Harold Lloyd. Joan just finished "Melody in Spring" for Paramount. She's been in several M-G-M shorts, one with the Fio-Rita musicians.

The father of this bouquet of beauty is Jack Gilmartin, building contractor from Ontario, Canada, of Irish extraction. Their mother is of mixed English, German, and French blood. The girls have been examined by many scientists interested in the phenomena of twinning and can chatter quite glibly about the various scientifically interesting aspects of their physical being. They are not self-conscious about such curiosity, taking it as a matter of course. June is the smallest twin, weighing 109 pounds, and Jean is the largest, 117. She's taller than the other girls.

With brother John off on the bounding main on his private yacht Infanta, it remains for Lewis Stone to lure the other Barrymore, Lionel, to the briny deep by high talk of his own yacht. Lionel is listening to the siren song of the sea and will probably be buying a yacht himself shortly. He used to have a small sailboat at one of the San Pedro wharves.

Stone is a yachtsman of years standing. His Aurora, a Diesel engine craft, is one of the showboats of the local waters.

Harlow Sad About Her Reputation.

Jean Harlow was feeling lacrimose at a party recently. Sitting down next to a friend she said sadly, "Why is it every time I enter a room at a party somebody says 'Here comes a bad woman'?"

Sam Goldwyn admits he has spent sleepless nights thinking up those dumb gag sayings of his that feed the columnists. He says it's gotten to be a good deal of a worry, always topping himself and knowing so well what's expected of him. And in case you think Sam's wealth and fame have gone to his stomach like an opera star, you're crazy.

Sam is fed on plain food in his own dining room at the studio where the food is prepared by his own cook. Lunch with Mr. Goldwyn had this simple bill of fare: Tomato juice, Irish stew, and for dessert pineapple fluff and coffee. Plenty of guys carrying dinner pails would holler at that.

"Yellow Waters" to Be Filmed on Yangtse.

Hollywood continues to search the ends of the earth for entertainment. Clyde E. Elliott, maker of "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and "Devil Tiger" is assigned to go to the Yangtse river in China where he hopes to film "Yellow Waters," 1,500 miles up the river past bandit territory.

Robert Florey, director of "Oil for the Lamps of China," is setting forth for Chinese locations in unexplored spots as well as in Canton, Shanghai, and other large cities.

LITTLE MISS KALISH IN NEW HAT

"Girls in Uniform," the drama at the Blackstone theater, does not give Shaindel Kalish, its young heroine, a chance to dress up. So, after the motion picture firms began to send her seductive telegrams, she dashed out and bought herself a new hat. Miss Kalish is the "discovery" of the stage season in Chicago, and it is easy to prophesy a future for her. Incidentally, she is declining all movie bids.

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you want personal replies please enclose stamped self-addressed envelope.

Believes Slavic Accent Unpleasant.

Dear Mae Tinée: The madame and myself just returned from the talkie "Nana" and comments from a business man are as follows: Plot, ordinary but executed grandly; interior decorations, perfect; costumes, correct and interesting to the point of being one of the "stars"; general atmosphere, intriguing, but—the picture was ruined by starring, in a French part, an actress with that disagreeable, distasteful, repulsive Slavic accent of English, which is so out of place even though a Slavic beauty may be captivating as a Slav. I know of no continental European who tries to talk English who hasn't a cuteness in the hyphenated accent but a Slav. Therefore I want to go on record as saying that the picture was "en francaise" [louzée]. The writer feels qualified to speak. He is a man of the world, been in seven countries, met all types of people, quite a good amateur actor, well educated, and a success in life.

BEN K.

Editor's Note—Interesting letter!

Beauty Cannot Gloss Over Dirt.

Mae Tinée: I have just read your Sunday report of "Scandals." Of course, George White and his class should be sent to the Bermuda ilands and kept there [a little hard on the ilands, I'll admit]. But just exactly what do you mean when you say "she [Alice Faye] and the girls with her are pretty enough to gloss over the vulgarity and suggestiveness of the words [referring to the song "O You Nasty Man"]. You are old enough to know there are no girls pretty enough to gloss over dirt.

The writer is older than you are, but not too old to still enjoy decency and, being a man, has seen more of life and this world than have you.

The sooner you and a few others learn that prettiness is not enough for a real man, the better. F. J. C.

Editor's Note—So glad to meet you, F. J. C.!

Wants Cast Listed Twice.

Dear Miss Tinée: If you have any influence with the movie producers I wish you would make this suggestion to them, and many of my friends feel the same way about it.

And that is that the cast of characters for all pictures be shown at the close as well as at the beginning.

Just the other evening, after seeing "The World Changes," with Paul Muni, I wanted to know who so many of that excellent cast were, yet I didn't want to sit through all the preliminaries again in order to see the cast list. How do you feel about this?

BESSE YEARNSHAW.

Editor's Note—I feel that perhaps they'll show the cast for you after they read your letter.

Author's Luck.

J. C. Schiff of the Bronx, New York City, wrote a play. On page 46 he pasted a dollar bill and underneath it wrote the legend, "If you reach here tear off and buy a drink." Presently the manuscript was returned to him. "Well written," said the letter, but the dollar bill was still there.

Hollywood Happenings

Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone are still faithful. They dance at the Cocoanut Grove together, and when Joan has a half day off she goes to spend it on the set with Franchot at another studio where he is working.

Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller are giving the Grove fans a thrill dancing. Lupe and Adrienne Ames have rented a beach house together with Johnny as lifeguard and Bruce Cabot as bouncer. The two couples are exceedingly thick and are everywhere together.

Paul Lukas had a lot of fun demonstrating his strength. On a bet with Eddie Grainger, associate producer at Universal, he lifted a 180 pound man on a chair with one arm. What Grainger didn't know is that Lukas was an Olympic athlete from his native Hungary some years ago.

Theater Guild Thinks Stage Is Recovering

TWO of the most popular plays of the present New York theatrical season—"Mary of Scotland" with Helen Hayes, Philip Merivale, and Helen Menken in the leading rôles, and "Ah, Wilderness!" with George M. Cohan as star—will reach Chicago next fall, under the auspices of the Theater Guild.

"Mary of Scotland," a drama dealing with Mary Stuart, was written by Maxwell Anderson. "Ah, Wilderness!" was written by Eugene O'Neill. Both plays will tour with their original New York casts. Each has run a complete season in New York and each will continue well into the summer.

The fact that the Theater Guild has decided to send these two hits on extensive tours indicates that organization's belief in the return of prosperity in the theatrical field. Each play has been booked for thirty-five weeks.

The Theater Guild has not sent any of its plays on extensive tours since 1929, when "Strange Interlude" traveled to the Pacific coast and back. However, its board of managers now believes that the upturn has come in the theater. "Ah, Wilderness!" will open its tour in Providence, R. I., Sept. 28. "Mary of Scotland" will start in Newark Sept. 24.

Mr. Cohan has not toured extensively for several years. He is perhaps the best known actor in America and has been on the stage since he was five years old. He has written more than forty plays.

Helen Hayes has achieved top rank among American actresses, not only on the stage but in motion pictures.

Veteran from Mansfield's Time

A QUARTER of a century before the footlights is the record of Dallas Tyler, who plays the rôle of Countess Kernitz in "Girls in Uniform" at the Blackstone theater. She proudly points out that she played with six of the greatest stage directors of the present century. They were: Richard Mansfield, William H. Crane, Henry B. Harris, David Belasco, Charles Frohman, and Henry Miller.

Miss Tyler began her career at the age of 14 with Mansfield. At the age of seventeen she played the rôle of Lygia in "Quo Vadis." Shortly afterwards she was given the rôle of Caroline Metford in "Secret Service," considered one of the greatest ingenue parts ever written. She also played with David Warfield in "The Auctioneer."

Municipal Art League's Prize Award Exhibit Shows Chicago Art at Its Best

"Cavaliers at An Inn," by Albert Cuyp (1605-1691), one of the several important old masters in the current exhibition at the Chester Johnson galleries, Fine Arts building.

Critic Suggests Canvases Be Left Intact for A Century of Progress.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE Municipal Art league prize award exhibit, which opened some ten days ago at the Chicago Galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue, should be maintained intact for the Century of Progress, 1934. It reveals better than any other exhibition which comes to mind the strength, versatility, and beauty of contemporary Chicago art. It is an exhibition to be proud of, an array of paintings before which none of us need fear shame or embarrassment. It literally shouts the news over the house tops that there is a local art which is sincere, unaffected, brilliant, and craftsmanlike.

One of the finest paintings in the show, imperative in its color values and technique, is "Taxco Market" by Charles P. Killgore. Another brilliantly executed canvas is "Circus Golden Jubilee" by Walter Krawiec. Elizabeth K. Peyraud shows a fine "Portrait," a portrait of her husband, the landscape painter, Frank C. Peyraud. Arnold Turtle offers a lovely silvery landscape in "Idyll." Harriet Krawiec shows a vigorous, impressionistic flower study, "Hollyhocks." Cora Bliss Taylor is interesting in her handling of "Interior." Gerald A. Frank shows a fascinating prim portrait, "Stina Frederickson." John F. Stacey offers a beautiful landscape, much in the French romantic manner, "Foot Hills of Alps." Anna Lee Stacey is clever and able in her fine "Forty Winks."

Mrs. Merritt Sponsors Exhibit.

So good is the exhibition that every painting in it warants a mention, but space forbids. The exhibit will continue to May 5 and no one should miss it. We repeat the thought that it should be continued somewhere as representative of Chicago during the coming summer.

Mrs. Maude R. Merritt, director of exhibitions and musical teas of the Municipal Art league in studios and private homes, is in a way responsible for the exhibit. Approximately 3,000 persons followed her studio exhibits and teas at a cost of twenty-five cents each.

An interesting exhibit current in the O'Brien galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue, is the showing of paintings by St. Valentin Vidaurreta, a youthful Mexican whose training has been chiefly in Spain and France. He is a superb draftsman and an intelligent colorist. He is not modern in the usual connotation of that term. His work is neither extravagant nor exaggerated. He is an able technician and craftsman, a painter who gives every promise of achieving greatness. The exhibit will continue to April 28 and is well worth seeing.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

An exhibition of oriental sketches by Clara Cahill Park is on view at the Cordon club, Fine Arts building, to May 15.

An exhibit of recent etchings by Morgan Dennis opened last Monday in the Carson Pirie Scott galleries to continue two weeks.

The Gairing gallery, Evanston, is showing paintings by Joseph Pfander to May 15. Several portraits are on view and a number of his summery, green landscapes.

Georgia Lingafelt is showing at 410 North Michigan avenue oils by Jean Hugo, with selected water colors and prints by him. A water color by Picasso, a drawing by Matisse, and lithographs by Matisse, Picasso, and Pascin round out the exhibit. It will run to June 1.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Women's Features

APRIL 22, 1934.

Lovely Miss Edna Doering, who has just returned from a winter abroad with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering. Her engagement to George Peck Earling of Milwaukee was announced recently.
[Du Bois—the Drake Photo.]

Ryerson Has a Tea for a Chimpanzee

Meshie, Pet Ape of Museum Curator, Is Huge Social Success.

By COUSIN EVE.

AT a luncheon Saturday in Lake Forest before the Kirk-Cuthbert wedding, exotic subjects were on the tapis—the walkathon, for example, well patronized by this elegant, well ordered suburb. A contest of physical endurance where contestants are en route for months, cheered on the sidelines by sportsmanlike youngsters who drop down cash from the gallery upon their favorites. Whether or not this be a moronic pursuit was hotly debated.

Then there was the tale of Meshie, charming chimpanzee. Somebody on a trip to New York had week-ended with Meshie's family, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Raven, on Long Island, and there sat the amiable little ape at the table, eating grapefruit and using the finger bowl. Not to forget dining well from soup to nuts. Dr. Raven, who is assistant curator of the American museum, New York, is called the world's greatest zoölogist, and Meshie, an infant, was found by him five years ago in Africa. Of sweet amiability and agreeable ways, she has come up with the Raven children.

Meshie's Manners Perfect.

Joseph Ryerson gave a tea for Meshie last Sunday afternoon in that marvelous early American room of his on the fifth floor of the Astor street house. The guests were mostly youngsters, the three little Ryerson girls and young McCutcheon boys, with a few others scientifically minded. Meshie, who weighs about 50 pounds, was in great form. She is extremely social and has the gentle, quiet manners of those whose good breeding is innate. She is never naughty. Her tea was a fresh water highball. After eating, always with the fork and spoon, she laves her hands and neatly folds her small towel. At home on Long Island she puts on her own galoshes and sweater, tumbles in the snow with the Raven youngsters, and in dry weather races furiously about in her own kiddie car.

Mrs. Raven, who is a beautiful Australian, says that Meshie has really better manners than the children, never teases the cat or irritates the dog, and is exceedingly kind to all animals.

Meshie likes cooking, knows well how to roast an apple in the embers, and when it is done to a turn eats it with a spoon.

Joseph Ryerson's chimpanzee tea was given in the interest of science and not just to make conversation. Dr. Raven's notes on Meshie are a part of the archives of the celebrated New York museum.

Wedding a Spring Idyll.

The wedding of Beatrice Kirk and Ross Cuthbert of London was an idyll of early spring. Celebrated Saturday afternoon at Vallombrosa, an Italian villa, set high between deep ravines of Lake Forest, there were no bright garden flowers nor even a green leaf. Inside the house was delightful, black and white marble floors, the wrought iron rails of the double stairs draped in garlands studded with white narcissus. The large living room, austere and plain as a church, its stucco walls bare, its windows hung in straight folds of purple, held about a hundred people.

Before the stone fireplace, in which burned a sort of druidical flame of small logs, was placed a historic white satin stool, oblong and low. On this Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dempster had knelt years ago and nearly every bride in her large circle ever since. On its reverse side were signatures of a hundred brides and grooms. Flanking the enchanted footstool, two Florentine trees, globes studded with Easter lilies. Wreaths were draped over the stone chimney piece.

Bridal Costume So New It's Old Fashioned.

Mrs. Kirk stood at the left in black tulle frock and large hat, exquisitely distinguished. Capt. Cuthbert and Bruce Harvey, the best man, awaited the bride at the right. And then to a burst of string wedding music in came the beautiful young creature. Walking with her father, Walter R. Kirk, she was the most simple yet exquisite of brides in a costume that was almost old fashioned it was so new. Of plaited white tulle and marvelous lace, it seemed to have a jacket and a tunic. A short tulle veil sprang from what Beatrice called a Turkish headdress. Her bouquet was a mass of lilies of the valley which Peggy Hambleton, a first cousin, caught later on. Mrs. Lawrence Williams, delicate svelte blonde, wore a crisp costume of pink lace that flared out like a halo, with bouquet of brown tulips, brown hat, gloves.

The two families fell into line after the brief ceremony, during which the setting sun shone upon all, and there was an animated reception. Among the guests Mrs. Wallace Kirk wore the smartest and most becoming frock of the season. In powder blue wool, it had apparently a hoodlike cape banded twice in fox that was dark blue. Her large picture hat and accessories were dark blue.

Cuthberts an Old Family.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand were there, the latter in a flowered frock she had latterly bought in New Zealand, being just back. New Zealand's a land apparently of flowers and adventures in enchantment.

Others were Mr. and Mrs. Watson Armour, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rinaker, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. R. T. Crane, Mrs. John Crerar, Mr. and Mrs. W. McCormick Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hamill, Mrs. Warren Fairbanks, Cornelia Fairbanks, Durand Smith, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Laflin, Mrs. Mark Cummings, Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. Stanley Rickords, Volney Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus Swift.

It was a wedding of great simplicity; a simplicity, however, which every sophisticated person knows is most complicated and achieved only by great taste and expense.

The Cuthbert family is English and was baronial in the sixteenth century. An ancestor of the groom fought with Lord Murray in "New France," then settled in Quebec. The groom's triple-great-grandfather, Hon. George Ross Cuthbert, married Emily, daughter of Benjamin Rush, M. D., famous physician of Philadelphia and a "signer."

Capt. Cuthbert retired from the British army in India last year. The wedding presents, many and rare, were not exhibited.

Salome Causes Arrest of Henry Voegeli.

Unique events of last week included the concert Monday night at Orchestra hall, given by members of the Symphony orchestra to the 1,100 subscribers to the deficit. A gala house, all of a twitter, gayly dressed and blithe, it saw the musical jokes and roared its applause from the opening blare of trumpets, "Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolf?" down to the last moments, when a mysterious Salome was discerned in the background, casting off one by one her seven veils. (Augustus Peabody said he counted only five.) This surreptitious Salome caused the arrest of innocent Henry Voegeli, seated in the audience, manager of the Symphony, by a flock of real policemen.

This successful show, followed on Thursday and Friday by the last concerts of the season, caused Mr. Stock to say at the Friday concert that that big, enthusiastic audience, so good natured, was due to it.

And never had the audience seen Dr. Stock so amiable and bland, or leading with such youthful abandon, or putting in a dance of Glière to please a lady. Arthur Cable (a fine figure of a man) rose to speak. "Louder," was the call to hear every precious word. He announced that the fund lacked only $10,000 and that he and his campaign committee are organizing to sell every seat in the house for next season. Then there will be no deficit. These men are Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Charles B. Goodspeed, and Arthur Cable.

Party for Weillers Is Affair of Great Elan.

A party Sunday night at the Casino that had great cachet, not to say élan, was a grand dinner by the directors of the Alliance Française, followed by a reception and music, in honor of M. and Mme. René Weiller, just back from Paris. The French consul general and his charming wife had passed safely over the tumultuous seas and all the terrors of mal de mer and tempest to the safe harbor.

American and French flags were spread, ladies wore shoulder knots of scarlet carnations and their best toilettes de soir. There were many guests and after the directors had emerged from the banquet and every one had greeted the absentees there was a concert. Helen Rend, handsome and accomplished, gave a program at the piano of her own compositions.

Charles S. Dewey, wearing his beautiful French Legion d'Honneur cross and collar, presided in the charmingest way, saying that he was conducting the meeting merely as the husband of his wife, who was présidente of the alliance. Mrs. Dewey, seated in the front row with Robert Hall McCormick, président, and other dignitaries, looked rather more like her Spanish ancestors than her French forbears. In black lace, she wore her high French and Polish medals and scarlet nosegay and it was easy to see who had planned the pretty party and got out such a fine array of guests.

Fashion Passed in Splendid Array.

A quartet of Russian balalaika players from International house of the University of Chicago played during supper, which was en buffet in the fountain room. Mrs. William Nitze in white fringed dress with red velvet gloves was terribly smart, and Mrs. Frank Storrs in white, with ostrich ruff, huge black eyes, vivid Spanish blue gray hair, was handsome, the true Parisian. Mrs. Hayden Harris, in black taffeta, plaided in gold, reflected the new era in dress. Mr. and Mrs. Carter Harrison were there, Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. David Cooke Jr., Miss Alice Gade, Mrs. Spencer Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mulford, Orville Taylor, Ira Morris, Walter Kirk, Robert Hall McCormick, who is said to have made the speech of the evening at the directors' dinner; Col. and Mrs. George Thuis and Miss Mary West.

Here I am leaving out the really outstanding event of the whole evening. Henri David of the University of Chicago received a medal and was decorated by M. Weiller, who kissed him on both checks, all to uproarious applause.

In town this week, a Chicagoan of other days, Mrs. Arthur Schermerhorn, formerly Harriet Pullman, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pullman. Staying with Mrs. Charles D. McAvoy, she is in deep mourning for her husband, member of an old New York family of Dutch descent, who died early in the winter.

Next Thursday at the Blackstone the annual meeting of the Chicago chapter, American Red Cross, at a luncheon in the crystal ballroom. Arranged by a committee of five—Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Mrs. Charles G. King, and Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine—it will bring together war workers and peace workers. Usually Mrs. George McKinlock's canteen women occupy several tables, and there are nurses in uniform, veterans who saw service at the base units in France—rather a thrilling party.

The guest of honor is a Canadian, Dr. J. L. Bigger, national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross.

Letters from Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elting at Santa Barbara indicate that they are highly pleased with their new son-in-law, grandson of the great English poet, Lord Tennyson. Carol Elting Donner became Lady Lionel Tennyson last week, a handsome title for a beautiful young widow with two small children. Along with the title goes a regular fellow, according to his father-in-law, Howard Elting. Tennyson is a war veteran, a hunter of big game, a sportsman, and good at golf or cricket, I forget which. He has also an extra special sense of humor [which is hard to believe] and agreeable manners.

Flappers Said to Be Extinct as the Dodo.

A lordly house on the Isle of Wight goes with the honors and station of this latest international match. Lady Tennyson is slim and tall, with dark hair and eyes and regular features. A favorite with and greatly admired by women, she has most charming natural manners and no flapperish past whatever.

Indeed, one hears nowadays from experts that flappers are becoming extinct as the dodo. All artificial dash is in the discard. Jeanne Wingfield, daughter of Mrs. Paul Hamlin, who was married last week in New York to Chauncey McKeever, is another who has never flapped. A demure maiden, beautifully educated, she belonged to a certain debut group of last season who cared nothing for cigarets nor cocktails, yet were all great belles. Chauncey McKeever, who went east on a business trip without even a dinner jacket, met Miss Wingfield unexpectedly at the New York house of his cousin, Mrs. Lanier Winslow. And so they were married. The bridegroom has spent most of his life in England and is one-quarter Russian, which may or may not contribute to his undeniable charm. Graduated from Oxford, he had high honors both in class and athletics. In general, men admire him greatly, and no dinner table is complete without him. He has the nicest manners in the world and is good looking. Mr. and Mrs. McKeever will live in Chicago.

The Drama league compressed itself happily into the Medinah salle à manger last Tuesday, sardinelike, in honor of "The Shining Hour" company. Seated at the long speaker's table with Mrs. Clarence Hough presiding, was the entire company and a general round-up of actors now playing in town: Conrad Nagel with the divinest voice; Violet Heming, a lovely star; Louise Groody, and a most amusing chap whose name I never knew. He made a speech that had teeth in it. Maybe they were false teeth, but entertaining nevertheless.

Drama League's Guests Break a Tradition.

It is the custom at these Drama league luncheons, famous through long years for their closeups of great stage people, to wring a speech out of each distinguished guest. Every actor who eats broiled breast of chicken and strawberries must "speak" for it, like a nice bow-wow. Mrs. Hough, clever and witty, knows well how to set the ball rolling. But these actor people, not knowing the rules, all dodged the issue, passing from one to the other the supposed favor of speaking, except Conrad Nagel. He said, among other things, that the tempo of life was changed for the better and that returning private hospitality and the passing of the night club with supper dancing were all in favor of a return to the theater. It was absolutely wrong for New York with its daily hundred thousand transients to be the only theatrical center. Chicago, said he, was thoroughly sold to motion pictures. But "tout change."

Seated in the large company were Mrs. Samuel Rinaker, Mrs. Royden Keith, Mrs. William Wright, Mrs. R. T. McKeever, and Mrs. Ira Copley of Aurora, who sailed yesterday for three months in Italy with Mr. Copley.

In Honor of General and Mrs. Brown.

Tooting of bugles and armed devil dogs, with American flags rampant, in the Blackstone ballroom Monday at luncheon time. All in honor of Gen. and Mrs. Preston Brown. For good measure in this interesting potpourri throw in Gen. Pershing and Gen. Dawes, who came, and saw, and sped away, and imagine a speaker's table with Mrs. Marco Adrogna in high command behind a tall barrage of red roses. On the right Gen. Brown and Dr. Frederick Stock, Mrs. Preston Brown, Mrs. Carter Harrison, Admiral and Mrs. Wat Cluverius, Giuseppe Castruccio, Mrs. Paul Steinbrecker, George Woodruff, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Barre Hill, civic opera baritone; Mrs. Edward Leight, Mrs. Helen Walton, Col. T. A. Siqueland, Antonio Ferme. The occasion was a celebration by the Renaissance society, which gives luncheons that are almost weekend parties.

MODEL AT THE SHOW IN GENEVA

Mrs. Arthur Meyer was one of the attractive models in a fashion show arranged recently by Mrs. John J. Finlay at the Little Traveler in Geneva. Mrs. Meyer, the former Hester Sheldon, and her husband and little son and daughter joined the year 'round colony in that picturesque town in the Fox river valley a year ago this spring.

Washington Is Resting After a Large Week

D. A. R., Authors, Blossoms, Coming at One Time, Get Capital Tired Out.

By Genevieve Forbes Herrick.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special.]—The cherry blossoms—the D. A. R.—lady authors. No wonder we are weary this Sabbath morning. For it has been a terrible week, a week of crowds, conversation, flowers, and flags. Personally, we don't care if we never see another pageant.

The Daughters of the American Revolution came first. They got down to work early Monday and kept at it until late Friday.

Mrs. Russell William Magna, the diminutive president, hasn't any patience with black lists and all that. She thinks it's rather silly to be seeing a communist under every bed. She's tried to steer a course of sense and sanity. It hasn't been easy, but she did a good job this week.

● Then came the cherry bloosoms. First the city fathers were afraid lest they'd be delayed and prayed for warm weather. Then the warm weather came along, and the men running the show were in a panic lest the buds would burst too soon. There couldn't have been more uncertainty if the stork had been hovering over the Potomac. Finally came the day—Thursday—and even the most hardened cynic had to blink with pride as he looked at clouds of pink that swirled above the Tidal basin. If you weren't here, then I guess you were the only person this side of the Rockies who didn't drop in town this week.

By the way, if you come to town, do call us up. We all love to hear from you; would be hurt if you didn't look us up. But don't, I beg of you, start off your telephone conversation with a merry, "Hello, guess who this is!"

● Late in the week came the writing ladies—more formally known as the League of American Pen Women. Ladies who write pieces fêted editors who sometimes buy pieces. Ambassadors who pen poetry chatted with Americans who type prose. They had a big breakfast yesterday. Gutzon Borglum [I swear that's about the hardest name I know to pronounce—try it yourself], the sculptor of Stone mountain—and more recently of William Jennings Bryan—headed the long list of speakers.

The convention is in session until this Thursday.

● Tomorrow they honor Shakespeare. That means, of course, that the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay; the Canadian minister, William Duncan Herridge, and the minister of the Union of South Africa, R. W. Close, will be guests of honor at the celebration the English Speaking union is giving. The Irish minister, Michael MacWhite, is not scheduled to be among those present. Neither is Faik Konitza, the Albanian minister, who is, I believe, the second best Shakespeare scholar in town. The first is Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, who is to make the main address.

● One of the most popular admirals in town finds Sunday just one round of cocktail parties. Frequently the cocktails at the first party are so potent that the admiral forgets his next engagement, goes very late to party number three, and never shows up at function number four. But that's all changed now. Sunday he appeared at several swanky parties carrying a big alarm clock. He sets the alarm for the time he has to leave, places the clock on the mantel of the drawing room, and devotes himself to cocktails, confident that he'll be notified, and right loudly, when it's time to get his hat and stick and be off to the next engagement.

I don't know how successful the scheme is about getting him places on time. As a means, however, of getting him talked about, it is 100 per cent successful.

● Judge Florence Allen, third woman to walk into history in the New Deal [Frances Perkins and Ruth Bryan Owen are the others who got precedent smashing jobs for women], is to be in Washington next Saturday. The women Democrats are giving a big tea for her. Washington, in its demand for invitations to the party, seems almost as eager to meet this first feminine federal judge as it was to greet the new ambassador from the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

● Another girl everybody was anxious to meet this week was Signora Margherita Sarfatti, sprightly and scholarly Italian writer, who wrote "Dux," a biography of Mussolini. And he liked it. A brilliant newspaper woman, an entertaining talker, she drew all the town's elite to the Sulgrave club this week when the Italy-American society gave a party for her.

STUDY IN BLACK AND WHITE

White accessories—jabot, belt and gloves—give a springlike appearance to Mrs. Horatio Rogers' smart black wool tailleur. Mrs. Rogers, one of Evanston's most popular young matrons, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Park MacKenzie of Evanston.

Noted Paintings Are Reunited After 60 Years

LONDON.—[U. P.]—A famous painter did the portraits of two sisters 60 years ago. He labeled the results "Yes" and "No." The painter was Millais.

One sister portrayed by the eminent artist was the wife of that Lord Stanley who made famous the expression: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?" when he came upon the explorer in the interior of Africa. She was the subject of the picture entitled "No."

Before and since the death of Lady Stanley, her sister has been trying to bring the portrait into the family. It took Mrs. Myers, the subect of Millais' "Yes," 60 years to achieve her purpose.

Recently the picture came into the market at an auction, and Mrs. Myers was able to secure it for $1,500. Prior to its appearance at the auction the painting was thought to have disappeared.

The pictures by Millais brought fame to both sisters; brought them suitors; and eventually husbands, who had first fallen in love with their images.

Cocktails Are Snobbish, Say French Women

PARIS.—[U. P.]—If you drink cocktails you're a snow. This is the decision rendered by the recently organized women's national committee in favor of wine and against cocktails. They take the stand that cocktail drinking is purely snobbism, as far as French women are concerned, at least, and point out how much more agreeable and healthful is a glass of wine as an appetizer.

Several new names have been added to the committee, including Mme. P. E. Flandin, wife of the present minister of public works.

The other members of the committee include Mme. Achille Fould, wife of the former minister of agriculture, representing the Bordeaux wine region; Countess Bertrand de Vogue, daughter of Count Bertrand de Mun, and Mme. Marchandeau, wife of the former minister of the budget, mayor of Rheims, representing the Champagne region; Viscountess de Moucheron, representing the Burgundy region; Mme. Gault-Sarraut, niece of the minister of the interior, representing the southern, and Mme. Boudin, the central wine regions.

Montecitans Will "Rough It" for Three Days

Men to Revive Pioneer Customs in Annual Mountain Trek on Horseback.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—[Special.]—The last chords of the chorus of wedding marches which have been resounding through the Chicago colonies on the coast during the past weeks are now dying away, and male members of the Montecito group this week are preparing to go "wild west."

Donning full cowboy regalia and answering the urge of the out of doors, 200 men, ranging from farmers to financiers, are making ready for the annual mountain trek of the rancheros visitadores. The unique outing, which winds up on the Rancho Juan y Lolita of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell of Chicago, is made entirely by horseback and stage coach, all automobiles being barred. The group, guided by veteran cowpunchers and trailed by a real old fashioned chuck wagon, forsakes civilization for three days, starting out May 2. The men, who came from all sections of the country, hie themselves into the innermost regions of the mountainous hinterland where they gallop over hills and down valleys on a glorious saddle spree. They sleep and eat in the open during the three days—and usually eat off the mantel for the following three days. The celebration is wound up by a gala program at the Rancho Juan y Lolita with impromptu rodeos and entertainment no end.

Elmer Awl Heads "Wild West" Travelers.

Elmer Awl, well known in Chicago, is the "major domo" of the outfit and is in active charge of arrangements for the trip. Kenneth Curtis is one of the many Chicagoans who will make the trip, in addition to Mr. Mitchell.

Gardens famous for their roses, their lovely pools, and formal plots are now being opened to garden tours.

"Pompeiian court," the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Isham, noted for its lovely roses, is in on the tour for the first time this season. Other gardens open for the first time will be those of Henry Eichheim and Mr. and Mrs. August C. Magnus and Cuesta Linda, the estate of Mrs. E. Palmer Gavit.

Fleischmanns Give a Dinner on Their Yacht.

Maj. and Mrs. Max C. Fleischmann entertained Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury Field and Mrs. Comly Mears at dinner on board their yacht, Haida, this week-end and later enjoyed a cruise in the channel.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Dutton of Chicago have arrived in Montecito for a spring visit.

Robert Chatfield Taylor has returned to Tucson, Ariz., from a short visit at the home of his father, Hobart C. Chatfield Taylor.

Miss Martha Dickinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Dickinson who has been visiting friends in Pasenda, has returned to her home in Hope ranch.

King George Is Weary of Ascot Gate Crashers

Lord Granard Succeeds to Position of Governing Guests at Enclosure.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON. — [Special.] — King George is becoming fed up with the yearly crop of newspaper stories about outré specimens, male and female, who succeed in breaking into the royal enclosure at Ascot and mingle with his majesty's guests.

At any rate, it is announced that he has personally revised the late Viscount Churchill's rules [written and unwritten] regarding admissions to the coveted enclosure during fashionable Ascot week, and has turned them over to Lord Granard, who succeeds Viscount Churchill at that difficult post. Only those who have been invited to the courts or to the king's levees will, in the future, be granted admission. This, it is felt, will do away with Viscount Churchill's famous classification, "certainly," "possibly," and "certainly not." However, there is a further restriction, for those, whether they have been to court or not, who have subsequently been named as the guilty party in divorce proceedings, or who have become bankrupt or otherwise socially impossible, will be rigorously excluded.

For his guidance in this delicate task Earl Granard will have, of course, the voluminous files at St. James palace.

Incidentally this throws a delicate task of inquiry upon the American embassy which, with all the other embassies, is expected to show scrupulous regard for the new rules in requesting tickets for the sacred enclosure.

American Professor Lectures in London.

Prof. Frederick Hall, professor of music at the Negro college, Atlanta university, has been given a fellowship by the Rockefeller Foundation permitting him to spend a year in Europe studying folk music.

He has arrived here and is planning to spend a week or two in Welsh villages, studying Welsh folk music, and after that he is going into Scotland.

He lectured this week at the Friends' house in London on the difference between Negro spirituals and Negro minstrelsy. The latter, he said, was an invention of white folks who blacked their faces and tried to make Negro songs ridiculous. "Jaz," he claimed, was also due to white influence and was not a true Negro product. He sang to his wife's accompaniment on the piano, "I Heard of a City Called Heaven and I've Started to Make It My Home." That, he declared, was a true Negro spiritual.

Sir John Lavery Exhibits Paintings.

Although now seventy-eight, Sir John Lavery is one of our hardest working academicians. This year he is submitting to the Royal academy exhibition five large paintings. The largest, and the one likely to be most discussed, is called "The Prime Minister at Lossiemouth," showing Mr. MacDonald in the kitchen of his house at Lossiemouth with Miss Ishbel knitting and in the background "Jeannie," the housekeeper. Other paintings are his recently completed portrait of Mr. Arthur Young of New York, of Mrs. Cunningham-Reid, of Lady Anne Rhys, and of his granddaughter, Miss Diana Dickinson.

Housing Problem Occupies Politicians.

British politicians are having a perfectly grand time with the "housing problem." They are full of ideas and they air them with a freedom which must breed murderous impulses in the hearts of housing reformers who have been struggling with this problem for many years and know the difficulties.

One public man, actually parliamentary secretary to the ministry of health, suggests using Victoria park, the only recreation ground for a densely populated five square miles, as the site for temporary structures rehousing those slum dwellers whose homes are to be destroyed. Another politician thinks that the railroad yards and the Regent park canal would make useful sites.

And now somebody has suggested that the Pentonville prison, a very old and often criticized prison, should be razed and the site used for a housing project. Actually this idea as whiskers on it.

Back in 1884 the greatest royal commission on housing ever held in this country recommended that Pentonville prison should be razed and the site used for model tenements. Nothing has ever been done about it, although the congestion in London is worse than it was then. The commission also recommended using the sites of the Coldbath Fields prison and the Milbank prison. These two institutions were subsequently razed but his majesty's postoffice seized the one and the present Tate gallery seized the other.

It must be rather discouraging to be a "housing reformer" anywhere, but especially so in Britain. At any rate, the British claim that they have made virtually no real progress in the last fifty years.

Austrian Embassy Promotes Art Show.

The Austrian embassy is promoting an exhibition of Austrian art and architecture. If the latter shows modern Viennese architecture it will be, in effect, a great tribute to that little known Glasgow architect, the late Charles Rennie Mackintosh. He was famous on the continent for initiating the "art noveau" movement in architecture, that style which emphasizes the horizontal and the perpendicular, and avoids the "classical" influences [not to say ruts].

Mrs. Baldwin Opens Home to Americans

LONDON, April 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of Great Britain's former prime minister, will give an exhibition of ancient and modern fans in her London home in the afternoons beginning May 14 and ending May 18. Americans visiting here at that time and wishing to see the interior of the sumptuous home will be permitted to do so for the price of a few shillings. The mansion at 11 Downing street is one of the show places of London, and this is the first time the public has been invited to enter its door for an exhibition. The affair will be for the benefit of the Central club, made up of working girls and women.

Little Season in Full Swing in Old Gotham

Kept Indoors by April Showers, Society Foregathers in Smartest Bars.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—"April's showers bring May flowers!" Town has been so damp and showery of late that society has been forced to keep indoors. All of which, as you may infer, obliges the notables to make acquaintance with the various cocktail nooks being laid out all over Manhattan.

However, the refreshment spots are not to be deplored. After a 4 o'clock wedding at St. Thomas', or St. Bart's, one feels the need of stronger stimulant than wedding reception champagne, and fashionable bars are becoming the town's gossip exchanges. Not in the memory of the younger marrieds has there been so hearty an exchange of this-and-that. It's fun for all.

Kellogg-Edey Wedding Now in Social Spotlight.

With the little season coming in strongly, Cupid continues to hold the stage. A wedding of note on Tuesday will be that of Helen Winthrop Kellogg and Maitland Armstrong Edey in dear old Grace church far, far down on Broadway.

Helen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris W. Kellogg of town and Roslyn, L. I. Her maternal grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan Winthrop, were notable social leaders and direct in line from John Winthrop of pioneer Massachusetts days. Helen is Junior league and Colony club, naturally.

Her bridegroom-to-be is a son of Mrs. Alfred Edey and brother of Helena Edey. He was graduated from Princeton in '32. Through his mother Maitland is a descendant of Eter Stuyvesant, Nicholas Fish, and the Livingston and Beekman clans. He is a nephew of Hamilton Fish Armstrong and of the Misses Armstrong who still uphold the traditions of old New York by residing just above Washington square.

Opening of England's Court Lures Notables to Europe.

One might have thought that difficulties of exchange would keep many of our notables from going abroad this year. However, as has been pointed out several times, society is so international these days that obligations call for a return of visits. There were more British notables here this winter than one could count, from the duchess of Sutherland to the earl and countess of Athlone [which is putting them in the wrong precedence—but who cares?]. Now our fashionables are making preparations to go to dear old England, and King George and Queen Mary are guaranteeing the success of the London season by scheduling courts on May 15 and 16 and June 12 and 13. Not only the debutantes are gladdened, but the older members of society who adore all the entertaining that is part of the Mayfair festivities.

Winter Season Goes Down as One of Best in Gotham's Annals.

Only the second opera ball at the Metropolitan remains before the season is officially fini. When that occurs on Friday night the 1933-'34 winter season will have passed into history in a blaze of color. It will go down as one of the most successful seasons in Gotham's annals.

The Pageant of the Court of Louis, "Le Roi s'Amuse a Fontaine-Bleau," is to have as notable a cast of actors as ever graced a social affair. The ladies of history to be portrayed will be represented by Mrs. Vincent Astor, Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, Mrs. George F. Baker, Mrs. Allan A. Ryan Jr., Mrs. Cornelius H. Bliss Jr., Mrs. Drayton Cochran, Princess Chavchavadze, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, Mrs. Jay O'Brien, Mrs. Benjamin Rogers, Mrs. Dodge Slone, Donna Christiana Torlonia, and Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn Jr.

Among the gentlemen to display silk clad legs will be Lawrence Smith Butler, Alexander Biddle, Cornelius Bliss Jr., Gifford Cochran, Carroll Carstairs, Raymond Guest, Milton W. Holden, Henry Fairfield Osborn Jr., Prince Serge Obolensky, Prince Paul Chavchavadze, and Prince Chlodwig Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst.

He-Men in Miami Make Peacocks Look Very Dull

MIAMI, Fla., April 21.—[U. P.]—Strong men wore red satin breeches in the days of George Washington, so why shouldn't modern he-men be allowed to blossom out in colors?

That's the argument of young men of fashion, who are upsetting tradition these days by clothes of prismatic brilliance in this playground.

Lemon yellow flannels with green sports jackets, scarlet sailcloth slacks with bright blue shirts, corduroy robes with matching shorts in every color of the rainbow—these are a few of the male fashion notes observed daily at the beach rendezvous.

Flannel slacks are the favorite attire of the well dressed golfer this season, and he wears them in colors that would do pride to King Arthur's court—sky blue and grass green, canary yellow and acquamarine. Polo shirts and screw neck sweaters are of deep, vivid, contrasting hues, and jackets, if worn at all, are casual tweed in checked, plaid or monotone browns and grays.

Notables Will Soon Return to Newport

NEWPORT, R. I. — [Special.] — Mr. and Mrs. Michael M. Van Beuren, who are in Rome with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Archbold Van Beuren, will visit other cities in Italy before returning to Gray Craig in June. Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzhugh Whitehouse, who are now in Paris as guests of Mrs. Fitzhugh Whitehouse, will return to Stone Villa in May with their daughter, Adelaide, who has been studying abroad.

Others who are to be here within the next few weeks are Natalie Bayard Merrill, Mrs. Samuel M. Nicolson, now in the Fiji ilands, who will open Marymount in June; Mrs. Bradford Norman, and Mrs. Rieman Duval.

Siamese King and Queen Are Feted in Paris

Visit a Reminder of Bangkok's Crystal Palace with Odd Cooling System.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The king and queen of Siam have been entertained officially in Paris this week. It made us wonder if the palace still exists at Bangkok or near there, about which French travelers of the last century were lost in admiration. It consisted, it appears, entirely of crystal and was about 30 feet long and 20 feet wide. In the hottest weather the space between the walls was filled with water, making the interior quite cool. Even the cement used to hold the crystal together was transparent.

Which reminds one of certain interesting aspects of French crystal making. This art originated in Lorraine, a French town picturesquely situated on the banks of the River Meurthe, in 1765. The industry has grown steadily until it has become one of the most considerable in Europe.

Crystal, whose base is lead, can be turned and molded by clever workmen into objects of use and great beauty. Molded crystal, comparable in appearance to the cut variety, is much cheaper than the latter. M. Robinet received over 100 years ago an important prize for inventing a device which blew crystal mechanically.

Americans Show New Interest in French Crystal.

The increased facilities in the United States for drinking vintage wines have again turned the attention of many of our compatriots to the products of Paris crystal makers. One famous firm creates numerous designs in porcelain, as well as in glass, while another concentrates on crystal and has recently devised, on classic lines, a whole gamut of glasses, all of them extremely thin and some flexible. This series impresses you by its crystalline clarity, its iridescence when held to the light, and its rich sonority. While the glasses for Bordeaux wine are thin and supple, there are extra large ones for red Burgundy; high stemmed, thin ones for Moselle or Anjou, and small thin ones for such sparingly served wines as old Château Yquem. The glasses for the liqueurs are designed both in large and in small compass, the large for the finest old cognac or fine champagne, and the smaller for ordinary liqueurs. The crystal champagne glasses are also thin and extremely flexible.

And may it be said here that a feature of the greatest importance when it comes to French wines is the glass in which they are served. Only these thin glasses are acceptable for the finest of French wines and the classic forms with stems are considered in better taste than the modern shapes.

Colored Wine Glasses Definitly Passe.

Colored glasses are entirely out of the running. In Germany the Rhine wines are often served in a long stemmed colored glass—usually green—but the Frenchman wants to see and remark upon the richness of color of the wine itself and will not have a colored glass on his table—not even for Moselle wines.

The designs for decanters are interesting. The French consider these decanters, usually tall glass containers with glass stoppers, a necessary accessory with a set of wine glasses. An hour or two before serving old Bordeaux and Burgundy should be carefully removed from their bottles in a way that leaves the sediment at the bottom and poured into these glass decanters from which the wines are served at the table.

In the main showroom of one establishment the visitor may see, in a sort of museum, the designs which this manufacturer has supplied for generations to royal and other illustrious consumers of wine. Many of the objects are ornamented with insignia in gilded bronze and other colors. Some of the specimens on view were supplied within the last generation to several of the American ambassadors in Paris and the well known eagle figures in the ornamentation.

LORD ASHFIELD'S DAUGHTER

A charming new portrait of the Hon. Mrs. James Rutland, the elder of Lord Ashfield's two pretty daughters. Lord Ashfield, head of London's transport system, is one of America's contributions to the British peerage, but he is not American by birth. Born in Derby, he was the son of Henry Stanley of Detroit and it was as an office boy for a street railway company in Detroit that he began his career.

When Chicago Was Young

Mid-Victorian Days on the Mid-Continent

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, October, 1, 1883.

DEAR JULIA: It is such a habit with me to write to you, I sometimes think I may overdo it . . . that you will dread the postman's ring, anticipating a letter from Chicago. But even as I write these words, I know they are untrue, by my own joy in hearing from you. I don't possess your graceful style, but I know because of our long friendship you are interested in my small chat about our household and about Chicago.

The foregoing half-hearted apology for my frequent letters was inspired by a little dissertation I have just read written by Father Faber. Miss Eliza Allen Starr, our distinguished teacher of art and literature, who has a studio in our neighborhood, gave me a small volume of Faber's called "Kindness" and I liked it so much that I have sought more of his writings. I found this on "Letter Writing" today. See what you think of it.

"In these days of cheap and rapid postage, we ought to be more jealous of our correspondence than we are. . . . Time is precious and we have little of it and yet how much time is spent in writing letters." He continues, speaking of the trivial gossip of our households: "What is the family circle but ineffable trifles seen through a huge magnifying medium? It reminds one, at every turn, of Wordsworth's real sufferer in the workhouse, when she says:

I heard my neighbors in their beds complain
Of many things which never troubled me."

You see his thought is that we are likely to magnify our troubles or anxieties in relating them . . . "making a romance of ourselves," he calls it . . . "painting life with an artificial rouge."

There may be something in what he says, but I think most of us need encouragement in correspondence, rather than the reverse. I like better Pope's lines:

Heaven first taught letters for some wretch's aid,
Some banished lover or some captive maid.
They live, they speak, they breathe
what love inspires,
Warm from the soul and faithful to its fires.

Returning to Father Faber's writings, I am trying to take to heart his sermon on kindness, and I copy for you a bit from one division, called "Kind Listening."

"There is also a grace of kind listening, as well as a grace of kind speaking. Some men listen with an abstracted air which shows their thoughts are elsewhere. Or, they seem to listen, but by wide answers and irrelevant questions show that they have been occupied with their own thoughts, as being more interesting, at least in their own estimate, than what you were saying. Some listen with a kind of importunate ferocity, which makes you feel that you have been put on trial and that your auditor expects beforehand that you are going to tell him a lie or be inaccurate or say something which he will disapprove and that you must mind your expressions. Some interrupt and will not hear you to the end. Some hear you to the end and then begin forthwith to speak to you of a similar experience which has befallen themselves, making your case only an illustration of their own. Some, meaning to be kind, listen with such a determined, violent attention that you are at once made uncomfortable and the charm of conversation is at an end."

Doesn't every sentence there remind you of some bore who doesn't know how to listen? Father Faber was a keen observer . . . a remarkable character. If he had never written anything else, his great hymn would have made him immortal:

There's a wideness in God's mercy
Like the wideness of the sea.

And now I must not take more of your time with my letter, but just send you much love.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Besides the hymn mentioned by Martha, who can name three others in almost every hymn book, written by Frederick William Faber [1814-1863]?

Eliza Allen Starr [1824-1901] is remembered by many Chicagoans for her lectures and writings on literature and art. She was the first woman to receive the Laetare medal given by the University of Notre Dame.

Miss L. E. Van Kirk sends us a clipping from an old CHICAGO TRIBUNE with a verse honoring Kate Shelley, who risked her life to save passengers on an express train. Miss Van Kirk's father had just crossed the bridge before the accident which led to Kate Shelley's brave act.

We are always glad to hear anything in which you think Martha would be interested. Send to Herma Clark, care of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

IT'S TIME TO SING OF SPRINGTIME

The snows recede slowly from the mountainsides as white clouds float by. All of which might form the basis for a song of spring in the poetic Fex valley, near St. Moritz.

Vagabond's Diary

RATHER hard to think of Sam Insull as a vagabond, but right now he's our most famous wanderer. . . . The S. S. Exilona, bringing him back to America, is one of the largest of the vagabond fleet of vessels that pay visits to unlisted ports in search of commerce and provide the passengers with the tang of mystery and adventure. . . . Its specialty is Constanza and Istanbul, and the fact that it plies the Mediterranean and the Black sea and that it flies the American flag is one of the reasons for it being picked to bring back Uncle Sam.

● One of the big steamship lines is putting forward a "travel now, pay later" plan. . . . You plank down 25 per cent of the total cost of your trip, including railroad and steamer fares, hotel charges and sightseeing expenses, and then have a year to pay the rest. . . . Might not be a bad idea to take the trip on the partial payment, and then kick off before they can nick you for the other 75 per cent.

● Granada, one of those cities of ancient glory and modern decay, has matinées for tourists . . . . gypsy dances outside the cave dwellings . . . . dancing of wild fury, and "the old grandmother the best of them all." . . . Once the capital of Moorish Spain. . . . Now known for its tombs of Ferdinand and Isabella and its gypsy quarter, Albaicin. . . . Be sure to take in the gardens around the Palacia de Generalife, summer residence of the Moorish princes.

● Have to go back some day to Devil's tower. . . . Rises 790 feet above one of the foothills of eastern Wyoming, and is a thousand feet thick at its base. . . . Nothing much near by except buff colored sandstone and a pine forest and the town of Sundance. . . . Many visitors look upon it as the eighth wonder of the world.

● Opening performance of the 1934 Passion play only a month away. . . . Peasant actors who know that true art lies in concealing art . . . tableaux under the sky, with the everlasting hills for a background. . . . After the all day spectacle, there's the village itself . . . eighteenth century frescoes, superb specimens of the woodcarver's art, mountains and forests among the most picturesque in Bavaria.

● Don't come back from Trinidad without a cane . . . made from sharks' spines . . . bones, perfectly round and less than an inch long, held together by wire. . . . The natives have made it a major industry.

● There'll be 5,000 performers in the Pageant of Runnymede, near Windsor, early in June. . . . Forty thousand costumes. . . . One of the scenes will go back to Roman days. . . . Another will show jousting in medieval times. . . . And, of course, there'll be the sealing of the Magna Charta.

● Veere, on the Dutch iland of Walcheren, was once the port of a thousand ships. . . . Now it's just a fishing village. . . . But its great Gothic church still stands to tell of the vanished grandeur. . . . Start there for bicycle tours of the iland.

● Iceland has just about everything. . . . Rugged fjords, waterfalls, volcanic rocks, lava fields, glaciers and geysers. . . . On the rim of the arctic circle, but it has a swell summer climate. . . . Night is like day from June to September.

A GLIMPSE OF THE PARIS OF THE BARBARY COAST

The ramps that lead up from the piers to the business section of Algiers are built on the slopes of a hill. Here extensive commerce is carried on with countries in nearly all parts of the world, and the social life is anything but neglected.

[De Cou Photo: From Ewing Galloway.]

WHEN IT'S TULIP TIME IN HOLLAND

IN his novel "The Black Tulip" Alexander Dumas told of the pains taken in the sixteenth century to raise tulips of unusual hues. Just as Americans in the era of high finance speculated in various securities so 400 years ago the Dutch had a tulip speculative era, and in one instance as much as $2,250 was paid for a single bulb. The speculation finally was stopped by a proclamation of the Netherlands government.

Every country has its seasonal attractions; Holland has its tulips in April and May.

There are picturesque villages with their quaint façades and gables; there are silver blue canals, the frames for the flower beds; there are the Dutch windmills—all these are surrounded by flowers of every color creation could think of. Not hundreds of them, nor thousands, but millions.

This is the "spell of Holland." Some of the roads in the bulb district lie high above the flower gardens, and it is from these roads that the view is most enchanting, disclosing endless stretches of live color schemes.

When wandering from field to field the traveler is likely to ask whether the hyacinths and tulips are indigenous. They are not. The first wild growing bulbous plants were carried from Asia to Holland in the sixteenth century. They soon became popular with the aristocracy, but it took centuries of careful and scientific labor to make them what they are now.

British Women Are Air Heavyweights

LONDON.—(AP)—British women have been found to be the heavy weights among air travelers.

Figures collected by Imperial Airways, which weighs each passenger embarking on its lines, show that the average British woman traveler tips the scales at 140 pounds.

Women air travelers of other nations average eight pounds less.

British men, however, were found to be lighter than foreigners.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

MOST of us have dreamed of having, at some time or another, an iland empire of our own, with no neighbors, no in-laws, no income taxes, no wars and no prohibitions. Which is O. K. if you know where to pick your iland. But not so good if you don't. Witness:

The other day some astronomers getting ready for the 1937 eclipse of the sun doped it out that the only land in the path of the eclipse would be Sarah Ann, a dot in the mid-Pacific. You can't observe such a phenomenon with much accuracy if you're in a boat; so the scientists were all hopped up over their discovery of such a convenient spot. But a few days later they made another discovery. Sarah Ann passed out of the picture ten years ago.

● Ilands that bob up and down—or, as the National Geographic society expresses it, play hide and seek—are the despair of the map makers and the empire builders. Falcon, in the Tonga group, has appeared and disappeared twice within the last century. It is alternately created by the eruption of a submarine volcano and worn away by the action of sea and weather. Every time it bobs up an official party puts out in a boat, plants a flag on the reincarnated infant, and claims it in the name of the ruler of Tonga. All of which may be a swell idea, but not very permanent. As somebody once carved it in the Fine Arts building in Chicago: "All passes; art alone endures."

● Not all the arbitrary behaviorism of the ilands is on the comic side. Nearly a hundred years ago Tuanaki, in the Cook group, slumped down into the sea, carrying more than 13,000 inhabitants with it. Men who had left on fishing trips returned to find an unbroken expanse of water where their homes had been.

● If you take a look at a present day map of the Pacific you won't find any land between Hawaii and Panama. But old-time charts showed a whole group of ilands about half way between.

In 1860 an American sloop of war, the Levant, sailed from Honolulu for Panama, and was never seen again. Months later a broken spar and bits of a vessel were washed up on the Hawaiian shore. They were identified as parts of the Levant, and this was taken to mean that the ship had been wrecked on some unknown iland. There were a lot of rumors, but nothing definite was ever learned. Perhaps the survivors, if any, lived for years on this mystery ile. Perhaps their descendants still live there. And perhaps they lived there until their land decided to go down to the sea in slips.

The Levant was the ship used by Edward Everett Hale in his story, "The Man Without a Country." For many years after that it was suggested from time to time that Philip Nolan might still be found. Thirty years ago the officers of the United States cruiser Tacoma undertook to end the talk for all time by making a careful search of the region where the iland was supposed to lie. They found nothing.

● Malden, lying between Tahiti and Hawaii, is hailed by the Geographic society as the most mysterious of them all. It is uninhabited, it has no vegetation to speak of, and no water except a small brackish pool. But it is rich in guano, and so is worked occasionally by an Australian company.

On this barren ile are ruins of a prehistoric civilization: high walls of coral stone, pyramid tombs, the terrace of a great temple with an altar in the center. From the temple paved roadways lead down to the sea, where they disappear beneath the sand and débris of the shore. The architecture of the remains is similar to that of the ancient ruined city of Ponape, in the Carolines, thousands of miles away. The scientists say the present land mass of the entire south seas couldn't have supported the great civilization these ruins reveal.

● Want to buy an iland? O. K., but don't let a slick salesman put anything over on you when he sells you a home. You'll want something besides a date palm and a coral beach. Ask for a guarantee that the palm and the beach will still be there when you return home on the 5:15.

French Flags Deteriorate

PARIS.—(AP)—Some 300 of the 500 flags of disbanded French regiments kept in the Invalides museum are falling to pieces as the heavy gold fringe tears the silk. To enclose them in protecting netting costs from $25 to $85 each, and war veterans are being asked to contribute for this work.

Young Couple Plans to Circle Globe on Bikes

LONDON.—[U. P.]—Jack Carveth Wells, F. R. G. S., son of the well known explorer, Carveth Wells, who returned 18 months ago from a two year hike around the world, is off on another world jaunt.

This time, accompanied by his young wife, Jill, he plans to cycle round the globe following much the same route that he previously traversed on foot, namely, through Europe to Sicily, then to Egypt and through from Cairo to the cape, thence to Persia, India, and other parts of Asia, or perhaps across from Capetown to South America and so up to the United States.

Crocodile Industry Begun.

Municipal Art League Awards Five New Gifts

Grants Will Be Made at First Artists' Dinner on Thursday Evening.

By Ruth De Young.

FINANCIALLY situated to the extent that it is able to make five new awards this week for artistic merit, the Municipal Art league occupies a position that may be envied by capitalists as well as clubs. At an artists' dinner Thursday evening at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club, the first of its kind sponsored by the art league, prizes totaling $250 will be announced for the paintings and sculpture judged the best in an exhibition now hanging in the Chicago Art gallery by Chicago artists.

Close on the heels of the annual meeting of the league, a week ago yesterday at the Chicago Woman's club, the dinner will wind up its spring season's activities. Paul Schulze, who for five years has served the group as president, will be the host and announce the awards.

Prizes Financed by Studio Teas.

The money for the prizes comes through the series of studio teas which the league has sponsored during the past year under the chairmanship of Mrs. Maud Merritt, while the Chicago Art gallery, where the current exhibition has been hanging since April 11, is another of the league's most successful enterprises.

Ever since the founding of the league thirty-six years ago, it has run a straight course forward for the city's civic good. It's campaign for smoke abatement is well known. Through letters to the President and the secretary of the treasury, the league was instrumental in obtaining an appropriation for the cleaning of the Chicago postoffice, which has revealed it as the light granite building it was when erected in 1904.

League Has Waged Billboard Campaign.

Through a long and hard campaign in coöperation with other civic groups, the league has also eliminated billboards from most of Chicago's residential districts. It is now seeking to persuade national advertisers to eliminate these boards from streets and highways. Less than a month ago the league gave its endorsement to a lake front airport where planes can land and deposit their passengers and then go on to larger fields for servicing, that is, providing the airport is built in harmony with the lake front surroundings.

In its membership the league represents an affiliate of seventy-six clubs, which in turn represent more than 10,000 women. These members are kept informed of the most important developments in Chicago art as well as of the league's interest in civic improvements through lectures, teas, and other social activities.

Hadassah Has Husbands to Dine.

Because they are well aware that masculine coöperation is necessary to the success of any fund raising campaign, the members of the Chicago chapter of Hadassah have invited their husbands to have dinner with them Wednesday evening at the Stevens hotel as the windup of the organization's seventh annual money drive. Rabbi and Mrs. Stephen S. Wise will attend the dinner as special guests.

According to the report yesterday of Mrs. Simon H. Soboroff, who has served for the fourth time as campaign chairman, the drive has bettered records of former years. Its purpose is the extension of the curative and preventive medical program which Hadassah conducts in Palestine.

Preceding the dinner Wednesday evening, there will be a regional conference of Hadassah attended by more than 150 women from the various midwest states.

Among those Hadassah members who have worked the hardest for the success of the fund raising campaign are Mrs. Harry Berkman, president of the Chicago chapter; Mrs. Harry M. Fisher, Mrs. Samuel Messinger, Mrs. Carl Halperim, Mrs. A. E. Rubenstein, and Mrs. James H. Olshan.

Cook County Federation Has Election of Officers.

At the recent annual meeting of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, Mrs. Henry W. Hardy was reëlected president of the federation. Mrs. J. F. Novak was named third vice president to succeed Mrs. Julia E. Klug and Miss Marie Becker was elected treasurer in place of Mrs. Edward O. Brooks.

All of the other officers hold over for another year with the exception of a dozen directors elected to fill vacancies. They are Mrs. Charles King Corsant, Mrs. George V. McIntyre, Mrs. Clarence Holtzman, Mrs. Genola Sills, Mrs. Frank Blankley, Mrs. F. E. Lamore, Mrs. Helen Hartough, Mrs. Alexander Hoffman, Mrs. Freda Koch, Mrs. F. W. Quayle, Mrs. C. A. Hood, and Mrs. David Schmitt.

Chicago Woman's Aid Enters Its 52d Year.

With the installation last week of Mrs. Philip L. Seman as the twenty-fifth president of the Chicago Woman's Aid, the organization entered upon its fifty-second year of civic and philanthropic service. Mrs. Seman has a nation-wide reputation as an educator and worker with young people, principally in the recreational field. For the last fourteen years she has been director of Camp Chi, the girls' camp sponsored by the Jewish People's institute.

Mrs. Alvin Binswanger is the new first vice president of the Aid, Mrs. Michael H. Weinberg, treasurer; Mrs. Jesse R. Gerstley, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry J. Lackritz, chairman of the arts and literature department; Mrs. Philip E. Ringer, chairman of the civics and philanthropy department, and Mrs. Herbert S. Eckhouse, chairman of the education department.

Social Economics Club Announces New Officers.

Election of officers does not close the club year for the Aid. The next month will be devoted to the organization of club departments and committees, and with the coming of June and the reopening of A Century of Progress the club will launch its program of summer meetings and activities.

The Social Economics club announces Mrs. William L. Stapleton as its new president for 1934-'35. Members elected to the vice presidency include Mrs. R. L. Fedderson and Mrs. James F. Flanagan. Mrs. Fleta Childs Petrie is the recording secretary; Mrs. Charles M. Nelson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Louis Kerbechek, treasurer, and Mrs. C. D. Sullivan, co-chairman.

Literature Foundation Awards Prizes Tomorrow.

Three American writers will be recognized for their work at the Shakespeare birthday dinner of the Chicago Foundation for Literature at 6:30 tomorrow evening in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The awards will be made in the fields of poetry, prose, and journalism.

Among those taking part in the program will be Thornton Wilder, who will deliver a tribute to Shakespeare, with responses by the English Consul General Lewis Bernays, Carl Sandburg, Lew Sarett, Howard Vincent O'Brien, Harriet Monroe, Mary Hastings Bradley, Louise Ayers Garnett, Vincent Starrett, Dr. Louis L. Mann, Fanny Butcher, and Dr. Horace J. Bridges.

SHE ASSISTS SERVICE LEAGUE

Spring house cleaning meant a rummage sale last week for Mrs. Paul Anderson. A member of the South Shore Service league, she is one of those young south side matrons who sorted out her attic and closets for the white elephant selling which the league conducted Friday to make a contribution to the Chicago Maternity Center, which it helps support.

WHERE THE ENGLISH STILL CLING TO THEIR PAST

York has been called the loveliest city in all England. The minster, or cathedral, more than 800 years old; the narrow streets, and the white rampart completely surrounding the city make it one of the last anchors holding the country to its medieval past.

Sportsman's Club Acquires New Quarters

Plans to Lease Entire Wing of Hotel Floor for Clubrooms of Rustic Logs.

AT the annual banquet of the Four Seasons Sportsman's club, held Wednesday evening at the La Salle hotel the 530 members present approved plans for permanent clubrooms.

These plans, as submitted by the board of directors, call for leasing the entire southwest wing of the eighteenth floor of the La Salle, where lounge and dining rooms, library, cardroom, and a private bar will be installed. The lounge, library and cardroom will be finished in rustic logs similar to the interior of a north woods lodge. There will be a large bowlder fireplace at the east end of the lodge and the walls will be decorated with trophies furnished by the members.

Mural Paintings in the Bar.

The walls of the bar are to be decorated with mural paintings of every popular species of fish.

The library, in addition to being stocked with outdoor books and periodicals, will have an information file containing data on fishing, hunting, outdoor sports, travel, exploration and adventure. There will also be a bulletin board on which news from fishing and hunting camps, outfitters and resorts will be posted.

Lunches and dinners will be served daily in the private dining room.

John B. Walker Heads Club.

The Four Seasons Sportsman's club was organized in 1928 to promote interest in game fishing, hunting, travel, exploration, and adventure, and to encourage the conservation of wild life, woods, and waters for enjoyment of future generations.

John B. Walker is president, James S. McClellan vice president, and Joe Godfrey Jr. secretary-treasurer. The directors are Dr. Carroll Eugene Cook, Orville F. Cullerton, Edward H. Fabrice, Harry F. Gephart, Joe Godfrey Jr., A. B. Hulls, E. C. Maywald, James S. McClellan, Herbert F. McLaury, Leslie B. McMahon, Roy Tullgren, John B. Walker, Paul G. Warren, and Arthur D. Wiggins.

At the banquet Herbert E. Bradley, Chicago attorney and noted big game hunter and explorer, presented motion pictures of his latest African gorilla and elephant hunting expedition.

YANKS TO VISIT MONUMENTS ON BATTLEFIELDS

QUITE a few Americans who fought in the world war expect to return to the battlefields of France this summer for the ceremonies in connection with the dedication of "The Story of the A. E. F.," as written there in monuments of white marble and rose colored granite.

For the last ten years the United States government has been building commemorative monuments so that future generations, when visiting the scenes of battles in which American troops took part, may have an adequate conception of the A. E. F.'s heroism and sacrifice and the victories it achieved more than fifteen years ago. Each monument endeavors to narrate and depict specific battle.

At Montfaucon a lofty rose granite column, 175 feet high, is surmounted by a sculptured figure, symbolizing American valor. A stairway leads to an observation balcony, from which a panorama of rolling farms can be seen. On Hill 204 at Chateau Thierry there is a double column of majestic proportions, with two giant figures representing France and America, at the center. The monument at St. Michael consists of a circular colonnade in the Greek style, surmounting Mont Sec, while in the cemetery there are a gray stone loggia and a cross with doughboys' figures carved on it.

A chapel has been erected at Belleu Wood, standing on what was once the old front line of the Second division, with collapsed trenches on both sides. In front is the silent field of 6,000 dead. On the top of Blanc Mont, near Somme-Py, a monument has been raised commemorating the divisions which fought under French command in the final drive near the Champagne country.

Another chapel stands at Suresnes, near Paris, on the slopes of Mont Valerien, in the midst of the 1,500 graves of American soldiers who died in Paris hospitals. At Cantigny a square with a small shaft ornamented by carved American eagles recalls the First division's capture of the village, the first independent attack of the A. E. F.

Where and when will the Royal National Eisteddfod of Wales be held this year? And just what is it? M. W.

In the city of Neath, situated in the vale that stretches to Swansea bay. The festival will open Aug. 6 and continue for a week. It is an outgrowth of the ancient Gorsedd, or Druidic congress, and has survived for more than a thousand years. The word Eisteddfod implies an assembly of bards and people, gathered for competition in Welsh poetry, prose, and music. The festival is an institution of importance in the intellectual life of the Welsh people.

We wish to take a vacation trip to Minaki lodge, in the Lake of the Woods district of Ontario, this season, but we're uncertain as to whether it will be open. Will you please tell us? —C. C. J.

The lodge remained closed last summer, due to the depression, but will reopen June 29 and stay open till Sept. 3.

What would be a good time to see an Indian ceremony this summer?—A. K.

You might try the intertribal ceremony at Gallup, N. M., held from Aug. 23 to 30 and attended by tribesmen from all over the southwest.

Please tell me how the cost of touring and staying in France today compares with that of before the depression. S. T. S.

In the last four years the prices at the hotels de luxe have been cut from 35 to 40 per cent [measured in terms of the franc], and at the middle class hotels from 20 to 25 per cent. Restaurant prices have been reduced even more drastically. At such places as the Café de la Paix you may now obtain a full meal, with wine and coffee, for 30 francs, as compared with 75 to 80 francs in 1930. Similar reductions have been put in effect by the theaters, railroads, etc., to make up for the difference in the rate of exchange.

Germany Lifts Tax on Yankee Autoists

THE Chicago branch of the German tourist information office was notified last week that under a new governmental decree foreign motorists would be freed from all taxes and levies for an uninterrupted stay in Germany this season. It was set forth that the change had been adopted with a view to accommodating motorists from America and elsewhere and facilitating their stay in the reich.

Paris Mosque Bans Tipping to Its Guides

PARIS.—[U. P.]—The Mohammedan mosque here is the first religious edifice in Paris to put into effect a no tipping regulation.

In any other house of worship, if you so desire, you can tip your guide, but this positively is forbidden at the mosque, and if you offer money it will be refused. An entrance fee of five francs is charged to get into the mosque, and the money is devoted to charity. The guides receive daily wages for showing visitors about.

Christ of Andes Reached After a Perilous Trip

Tribune Correspondent in Battered Auto Refuses to Sigh for Heaven.

By Philip Kinsley.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MENDOZA, Argentina, April 1.—[By Mail.]—The world famous Christ of the Andes statue, holding aloft the cross in a cold rock wilderness on the roof of the world, stands for something to this correspondent besides peace between Argentina and Chile, admirable as that record has been for three decades. It marks the point of highest achievement in a two days' battle to cross the cordillera of the Andes in an ancient and battered automobile over the worst international highway in the world.

At this point, 12,800 feet above the sea, the majestic stone figure with uplifted arm, outlined vaguely under a darkening moon, seemed to signalize victory for man and machine and to promise rest and warmth and food somewhere below that awful silence, a refuge from the grim white peaks that pointed the way to still higher and profoundly undesired heavens above.

A Nightmare of Imminent Disaster.

This trip from Santiago to Mendoza, undertaken as an incident in a long journey in the interests of THE TRIBUNE's wider market drive, should have, therefore, for its theme not trade and commerce, but good roads. Any increase in Pacific commerce must come this way until the Transandine railroad, which was washed out by a flood a year ago, is opened to trafic. It is only 150 miles over the mountains, but a mile sometimes may seem an eternity. One may fly, of course. That takes two hours and is done every day.

But after it is all over, sitting in the warm sunlight in the rose garden of the Hotel Plaza, shaded by palms and pines, the memory of that terrifying pass, that slow upward crawl behind a bucking engine, the final attainment to the feet of Christ, assumes an increasing value to one's private universe. There is no appreciation of comfort and security until one has passed through discomfort and a nightmare of imminent disaster.

On a previous journey over the Andes, traveling in an observation car of the railroad with the Hoover good will party, some one pointed out the statue, miles away among the peaks. People looked up from card games and said it was nice. They hardly knew it was cold up there. Double windows and upholstery protected them. The Christ was soon forgotten.

Over the Top in a Flivver.

This time it was different. Starting out from Santiago beside an Argentine driver, with an excitable little Italian in the back seat, who talked much to himself and seemed at times to be praying, the first part of the trip is made in lulling comfort over roads that are paved through the foothills, winding through gentle rises over a desert country. Beyond this, entering the Aconcagua valley, which takes its name from the highest peak in the western hemisphere, lifting 23,080 feet, paved roads were forgotten and the car entered the narrow, rutted and ridged stone and gravel trail that was to lead over the top.

Up Rio Blanco way where blue water boils down from the snows, in the neighborhood of the Penitentes, a group of peaks that look like cowled monks marching against the sky, things began to look more forbidding. The engine seemed to need a lot of coddling and the zigzags became more steep and perilous. Sharp turns had to be taken at high speed with inches to spare against rocky barriers and precipices and each one seemed a little worse than the last. The boiling engine finally refused a barrier and had to be taken apart and mended. Its tendency, never entirely overcome, was to falter and buck at the most critical moments of a turn. The starter often would not work and after several failures and much cranking and cursing in Spanish the engine was turned by backing down hill, an interesting proceeding for back seat drivers.

Drawing Out the Ghostly Voices.

The thing to do here was to get out and walk a while. Here one had time to observe this trail of beauty laid out by the Indians long before the Spanish established a courier route between the oceans. There were a few red flowers to pick, something like Indian paintbrush of the Sierras.

The song of the river came up from below and among the peaks there was the voice of winds, gentle as far off surf, or like the murmur of that eternal music in the tops of pine trees.

The staccato sputtering of the engine soon drowned these ghostly voices and a few hundred feet more were achieved. Tourists who think they might come over here in a big, strong car will have that illusion shattered here. Big cars could not negotiate the curves, although the Chilean road builders have put up rock walls at the edges so that in backing up for a fresh start there is little danger of going over the edge. Few accidents occur here despite all the seeming danger. But the trip is made in little cars with no pride of appearance, if it is made at all.

There were many times, in waiting for the engine to decide what to do, placing stones behind the wheels to hold the altitude gained that a night on the road looked highly probable. Looking down into the valleys, a shepherd hut or two could be seen. Wild looking horsemen, wrapped in woolen serapes, came down out of the high hills on strong looking ponies. They regarded the car with contempt and passed on.

By the Light of the Moon.

The goal for the night was Puenta del Inca lodge on the Argentine side. Evening and dark shadows below with a rose glow on the highest peaks above. For a little while the rocks seemed to reflect this soft, ethereal light which beckoned upward. Then it faded and the way was lit by an infrequent moon. At dark a bleak stone house was reached and the road was barred by Chilean carbineers, the mountain police who guard the frontiers. A final examination here and a squeeze for fifty pesos for the privilege of leaving that country.

After all formalities were over the soldiers helped push the car so that it could get started again on the most terrifying climb of all, over the pass to Argentina. This was one long struggle between chauffeur and engine, with footboard out, one hand driving and the other urging and petting and touching some vital spot at the moment when it seemed all was lost. Foot by foot, past snow banks and chasms, hurled with demon courage at higher and higher barriers, the little car finally came out on the wind swept plateau and paused panting in the shadow of the mighty cross and the uplifted arm of the Christ. The chauffeur took off his hat. The little Italian scrambled out of the back seat, where he had been huddled with eyes closed, muttering, and ran to the feet of the majestic figure and knelt there for a moment. Ten thousand feet above this the mighty Aconcagua towered in the white silence of the night.

The Descent Into Darkness.

Then came the descent into the darkness that was Argentina with more perils that could only be guessed at, but with engine troubles over. It was a matter of falling down hill into the arms of the Argentine carbineers who awaited at another barred gate. Customs examination by flashlight in the bitter wind of the pass. Another descent for two or three thousand feet and at last, at 10:30 o'clock, after 12 hours' riding and walking, the welcome lights of the big stone inn. Here people were just finishing supper. A gay party of Argentine men and women filled the lobby. A fireplace, a glass of vino, a supper of hot soup and chicken and bread, and rest under woolen blankets piled on thick.

The morning sun brought out the colors of the rocks. Sage green, tawny yellows, browns, and pinks. The pass in the rear was gloomy with storm clouds. The little car started out again bravely over roads that were worse, if possible, than those of the day before, but with less climbing. Down river beds, rattling over stones, clinging to the edge of great rock walls, through range after range of piled up rocks that looked like the bad lands of Dakota, until the oasis of Uspallata was reached.

Back to Civilization.

From here another desert, level and covered with salt bush, the beginning of the great Argentine pampas, formed an easy path for the little car to scurry along and late in the afternoon Mendoza was reached without a more hazardous proceeding than meeting other cars on single roads and finding space wide enough to pass. The Argentine chauffeur never faltered at the most dire emergency and once here began to hunt for unsuspecting tourists to take them across to Santiago.

Mendoza is a green and comfortable city in the midst of vineyards. Fine plazas, wide streets bordered by palms, evergreens and trees that are beginning to turn brown with the fall, canals flowing along the edge of the sidewalks, shops and well dressed people, hotels and big gambling casino, theaters and churches and banks, all the superstructure of civilization.

Far back of these brown hills the Christ of the Andes reigns in solitude.

THREE TOWERS ALONG THE ANCIENT CITY WALL OF VISBY

Visby, "city of ruins and roses," is an old Hanseatic stronghold. The city wall, once its protection, is one of the best preserved in Europe, many gates and towers still marking its length. No longer needed for defense, it now shelters numerous small houses built against its sides. This picture shows three of the towers.

Canada Offers a Wide Variety for Fishermen

OTTAWA, Canada.—In recent years Canada has taken its place as one of the great playgrounds of the world. Millions of tourists visit the dominion yearly to enjoy its recreational attractions and, perhaps most of all, its fishing.

The interior waters comprise one of the outstanding geographical features of the country. Exclusive of the great lakes, the combined area of the larger Canadian lakes is about 78,000 square miles. The combined length of the principal rivers is more than 47,000 miles. In addition there are the thousands of small lakes and rivers, many of which are not shown on any charts or maps. In these waters the angler is offered a variety of fish under a diversity of conditions not found in any other country.

Millions in Gold Still Lie Buried Near Bourbon?

Fortune Hunters Lured to Illinois Town by Tales of Hidden Treasure.

By Oney Fleener.

TRAVELERS willing to satisfy themselves with romance, Indian arrowheads, mysterious mounds, and thoughts of buried bullion should take a trip to Bourbon—the Illinois town named after Bourbon whisky.

Although in the naughty nineties Bourbon was a bustling town with numerous saloons and grist mills, it has shriveled to a crossroad village with local option against distilled liquors.

On the Ridge of Mystery.

Devil's Backbone, the ridge of mystery, is where the Illini Indians sulked after being driven from the present site of Champaign-Urbana. From that elevation they watched the white demons pass through Little Ambraw river, a short distance below on the Stetson trail, commonly called "settlers' pass."

The Illini refused to bury their dead on their hilly camping ground, but wound their way with the corpses to the bottomland and placed them in the black, rich soil under the sycamores and weeping willows that border the stream. These mounds are never touched by the Bourbon folks, who are too busy toiling in their fields by day and attending socials or church by night to bother with "what is at its best just a graveyard."

The Search Is Still On.

However, there has been some digging done by strangers—not for Indian bones and relics, but for gold hastily buried near the river by Indian-pursued adventurers on their way from California. It is said that several schooner loads of pioneers were killed and that no one has found the hidden treasure. The truth about the bullion is doubted by many and believed by some, and now and then some one gets a "gold" needle and starts searching anew.

Bourbon is 160 miles from Chicago by railroad, and slightly more on state highway 25.

APPLE BLOSSOM TIME IN NORMANDY

+ THE LUXURY OF FRANCE-AFLOAT
= A HARVEST OF BRIGHT MEMORIES

And it can all be done for so little!

AT THE same cost as a vacation at home, you can spend three weeks in a foreign atmosphere, and return with your mind filled with bright memories . . . the smiling valley of the Seine . . . the antique beauty of Rouen . . . the gay excitement of one's first visit to Paris. You can spend over a week in Paris and a dozen days coming and going, on French Line ships, for a surprisingly small sum.

Hotel charges in Paris* are actually one-third less (in francs) than in 1926, a "normal" year. And French Line rates are 15% to 50% less (in our money) for the unique pleasure of traveling on France-Afloat.

Perfect service (English-speaking), the security of Breton seamanship . . . and exquisite food. Prices on our wine list have been lowered. And, at every meal, a bottle of good wine is served you, with our compliments.

Let a travel agent plan your trip for you. You will be amazed at the extremely low cost of the inclusive tours he will prepare for you. His services cost you nothing.

* A room and bath in a good hotel in Paris . . . $3. An excellent dinner, with wine included . . . only $1.25. Other prices are equally reasonable, in dollars, at current rates of exchange. Ask your travel agent. Write for free booklet. Address below.

"Driving a Taxi TAUGHT ME HYDRAULIC BRAKES ARE BEST!"

READ THIS CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH JOHN GRASSANO, BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

1. "It's no cinch driving a taxi. I have to travel fast . . . but always be ready to stop 'on a dime.' I'd be out of luck lots of times if I didn't have hydraulic brakes."

2. "Every day I get 'hurry calls.' People late for appointments—I have to 'make time.' But if anything should happen it would be just too bad for me."

"You Bet I picked Plymouth for my own Family.. I'm not taking any Chances"

STOPPING AND STARTING . . . weaving in and out of traffic . . . taxi driver John Grassano knows the importance of having good brakes . . . always!

That's why he picked a Plymouth for his own family. "Because it has Hydraulic Brakes. I've found they're best. They stop you quicker. They take hold on all four wheels at once—they're automatically self-equalized. There's no side-skidding," said Grassano.

Another reason he picked Plymouth was for its safety-steel body — steel reinforced with steel. "You need this protection these days. No man wants his family to take chances," he says.

3. "Dodging trucks and elevated pillars takes good brakes. In eight years of driving I've never had an accident."

4. "Hydraulic Brakes have kept me out of trouble hundreds of times. You can bet I'm not taking chances on any other kind—in a car for my family."

NEXT TO SAFETY COMES COMFORT. So Plymouth has patented Floating Power engine mountings to keep all vibration away from the passengers.

You'll also find the best kind of Individual Wheel Springing in Plymouth. These big coil springs smooth out the roughest roads.

Plymouth is the only low-priced car that can give you all four of the vital features you need . . . Hydraulic Brakes, Safety-Steel Body, Floating Power and Individual Wheel Springing.

• • •

AND for the smallest extra charge in the industry (only $10 extra on De Luxe Sedan) you can have improved Duplate Safety Plate Glass throughout.

Ride in a Plymouth before you make any decision. Any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer will demonstrate.

5. Above—the De Luxe Plymouth Sedan. Plymouth prices begin at $530 at the factory, Detroit, Michigan—and are subject to change without notice.

SHOPS ALL OVER CHICAGO AND SUBURBS

"Lead on, cowboy!" Dinner is ahead and there'll be plenty of Pabst-ett. Pabst-ett is a good traveler and contains health building vitamins and milk minerals, sugars and proteins of whole milk.

Pabst-ett Supper Delights

Toast slices of bread (crusts trimmed) on one side. Spread the untoasted side of each slice with Pabst-ett. Cover with a thick slice of peeled tomato, then with a strip of partially broiled bacon. Place under low broiler heat until Pabst-ett is melted. Serve hot.

Two Varieties: Standard, Pimento

(Below) This lively threesome is rushing the season just a little, but they don't seem to mind. Pabst-ett is always in season—as digestible as milk, as spreadable as butter, melts without getting stringy, the year around.

Three Cheers For Pabst-ett!

Pabst-ett has made millions of friends. It's the scientific cheese food—as easily digestible as milk, mild in flavor, as smooth and spreadable as butter—all in one.

Serve it, in a hundred delightful ways—in soups and salads, soufflés and rarebits, on sandwiches and crackers, with macaroni, potatoes and vegetables—serve it to your children.

Pabst-ett is so easy to use, by itself and with other foods. It slices neatly when chilled. It mixes, spreads and creams like butter. In cooking it melts quickly, smoothly, without getting stringy or lumpy.

Eat lots of Pabst-ett. It is a good source of Vitamin A (same as found in cod liver oil, cream, butter, spinach) and contains the valuable milk minerals (including calcium), milk sugars and milk proteins of whole milk. It's a nutritious food with a real taste thrill.

Sold at food stores everywhere.

Blue Label Cheese Spreads

by this Revolutionary Pen

Its Visible Column of Ink—like the Gas Gauge on your car—Lets you choose your own time to refill—ends running dry!

WRITES TWO WAYS — WITHOUT ADJUSTMENT

Not only does Parker's revolutionary Vacumatic hold 102% more ink than a rubber sac pen of equal size, but it also shows when your ink supply is running low. Hence it doesn't irritate you by suddenly going dry. You can always refill it when and where ink is handy.

It's a basically new invention—guaranteed mechanically perfect.

A famed designer created this shimmering laminated Pearl Beauty—an utterly original, smart, and alluring style—design patented, hence wholly exclusive.

Now that the world can have the sacless pen it has always wanted, rubber sac pens and piston-pump types are being laid aside as rapidly as silent pictures went out when talking pictures came in.

"What a point!" exclaim those who try it. Precious Platinum and Gold, tipped with a polished pellet of rare Iridium, perfectly formed on both sides, smooth as a watch-bearing, and slightly turned up so it cannot possibly scratch or drag—even beneath the pressure of big-fisted writers.

Give your hand the pleasant adventure of trying this at any nearby pen counter. All stores that sell pens are daily demonstrating this new wonder of science. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wis.

I wish somebody would tell her!

"ISN'T it a shame? There's a girl who has 'come hither' if I ever saw one. But it becomes 'go thither' after a minute in her presence. Why doesn't some kind girl friend put her wise?"

The surprising thing is that there still are girls and women—attractive ones, too—who need to be told that soap and water alone cannot keep their underarms free from that ugly odor of perspiration which refined people hate.

Smart girls who prize their popularity know that the quick, the easy, the sure way to keep their underarms always fresh and odorless, is with Mum

It takes just half a minute to use Mum. Then you're safe for all day. And the instant it's on, slip into your dress. For Mum is perfectly harmless to clothing.

It's soothing to the skin, too—so soothing you can shave your underarms and use Mum immediately.

Don't ever let anybody say you are careless about underarm odor. Use Mum regularly and you'll be safe. Mum Mfg. Co., Inc., 75 West St., New York.

DILLINGER, ARCHENEMY OF SOCIETY, ANOTHER OF CRIME'S MUDDLEHEADS

Like the James Boys and Gerald Chapman, the Desperado of the Wooden Pistol Must Pay in the End

By Joseph U. Dugan

SCAPRED by many gunshot wounds, a broken old man said just before his death in 1915 on a little farm in Excelsior Springs, Mo.: "God alone knows what my brother and I suffered. We starved almost to death with our pockets stuffed with money. Many times we had to lie, badly wounded, for weeks in the woods without medical attention. Always we were hunted like the wolves of the prairie."

His name was Frank James His brother, Jesse, had been shot to death in 1882 by Bob Ford, a member of the James boys' gang, who turned traitor in order to collect the $30,000 reward offered for Jesse, dead or alive. Thus ended the career of the most notorious American criminal of the 19th century.

Let's turn the crimsoned pages of criminal history to the chronicle of an event which occurred within grim gray walls of the prison at Wethersfield, Conn., shortly after midnight on the morning of April 6, 1926. A little group of official witnesses sat muted, staring fixedly at the scaffold and the empty noose before them. Through a small door came a guard. Behind him marched the figure of a prisoner. The executioners were mercifully quick in placing a black hood over his head and fastening the noose about his neck. A few seconds later the trap was sprung. The hooded figure dangled lifeless at the rope's end.

His name was Gerald Chapman, police killer, bank robber, jail breaker—most notorious criminal of the period covering the first quarter of the 20th century.

So much for prelude. We come now to the present and a parallel, the much sung but unhallowed subject of this story. His name is John Dillinger. His account with society, as these words are written, remains unpaid. When it is closed, he will be dead.

Like Jesse James and his infamous companions in crime, the three Younger brothers, Jim, Bob, and Cole, and the lesser members of the gang; like Gerald Chapman and scores of other criminals whose accounts have been settled, John Dillinger has been living through a hell of numbered days. In spite of his melodramatic exploits, his fabled courage and cleverness, Dillinger, like his predecessors, is, in the language of the street, both a sucker and a sap. An obvious fact, which leads to an important question: Why Dillinger?

Psychiatrists offer complex theories and deductions They classify Dillinger as a perverse personality of the anti-social type. Sociologists point with solemn conviction to the influence of his early environment and associations. Another school of thought blames political corruption, lax officials, and deplores the absence in this country of swift, sure punishment as a deterrent of crime.

All of these theories, in greater or lesser degree, may be applied truthfully in solving the riddle presented by this amazing criminal personality In the last analysis our social system must share in the blame. Most certainly officials of the state of Indiana must accept a share of responsibility for crimes committed by Dillinger and his murderous gang following the bandit's unbelievable escape from the Crown Point jail.

The boldness and cold bloodedness of Dillinger's crimes may be compared justly with those of Jesse James and his gang. It must be remembered, however, that the James and Younger gangs came into existence during the civil war. Jesse, Frank, and the Younger brothers were arch sympathizers with the cause of the south. Their early ventures in crime were committed under the sincere, if mistaken, guise of patriotism. As members of Quantrell's guerilla band of rebels operating against union forces in Missouri and Kansas, the James boys and the others learned the tactics which proved so successful in their subsequent criminal careers. None of these bandits had the advantage of more than rudimentary education.

John Dillinger was born in 1902 in Mooresville, a rural village of Morgan county, Indiana, the home county also of the present governor of the state, Paul V. McNutt. At the time of John's birth his father, John W Dillinger, of good Quaker stock, was a substantial farmer of the community. The first tragedy in the family, a fact significant to sociologists, was the death of John's mother when he was but three years old Only recently, in making a pathetic plea against the public attitude toward his son, Dillinger's father said: "John had no mother." Soon after the death of his wife, Dillinger senior moved to Indianapolis, where he conducted a grocery on the west side of the city. Here Dillinger grew up in city slum surroundings. He was 13 years old and had completed grammar school when his father, now remarried and with a family increased by another son, decided to return to Mooresville.

Dillinger entered the Mooresville High school. He was a normal, typical boy. He played baseball on the school nine and helped his father in the grocery the elder Dillinger had acquired in Mooresville. On Sunday the youth was a regular attendant at the Quaker church of the community. But even the wholesome atmosphere of rural villages has its taint of vice, or rather its opportunities for wrong doing. In Dillinger's own words, spoken to newspaper reporters after his capture in Tucson, Ariz.:

"I was just an unfortunate boy. I got drunk ten years ago back in Mooresville. I held up a grocery. I got $550 and then I got caught. They gave me ten to twenty in Michigan City prison. Only a year ago they let me out."

Dillinger's version of his first misstep was not entirely accurate. If, as it has been contended, the initial crime is an important indication of future conduct, the details of this first law violation may be interesting here.

According to the record, Dillinger and another village youth, Ed Singleton, were frequenters of the Mooresville pool hall. Score two for sociology. The year was 1924. Dillinger and Singleton laid plans to waylay and rob a village merchant, Frank Morgan, who then was 65 years old. That night they assaulted Morgan, striking him with a lead pipe and robbing him of his wallet. Morgan recognized his assailants and their arrest followed almost immediately. Singleton, however, bargained with the prosecutor. He pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence. In return he was given a light sentence. Dillinger was sent to the Pendleton reformatory to serve from ten to twenty years.

Whatever sense of fair play he possessed had been violated. He entered prison with his mind embittered against the law and all who uphold it. This bitterness today has increased a thousandfold.

At Pendleton Dillinger was an unruly prisoner. He quickly became a bosom pal of the more vicious of the youthful convicts and was an apt pupil at learning the secrets and habits of young men hardened to criminal pursuits. Twice Dillinger attempted to escape. After the second try, he was transferred to the state penitentiary at Michigan City.

JOHN DILLINGER

That federal operatives and the police of every city in the country are closing the net around the reorganized Dillinger gang is indicated by late developments in the nation-wide man hunt. Evelyn Frechetti, red-haired beauty and Dillinger's latest girl friend, was seized less than two weeks ago in Chicago. At the same time authorities at St. Paul, where Dillinger recently escaped from a police trap, announced a new roll call of the gang. Pictures of some of these men appear on page three. They are:

Alvin Karpis, Oklahoma outlaw, named by Attorney General Cummings as a suspect in the Bremer kidnaping case; Fred Barker, another Oklahoman and a Bremer case suspect; "Doc" Barker, brother of Fred; Tommy Carroll, St. Paul bank robber and machine gunner; John Hamilton, Dillinger's chief ally; Homer Van Meter, another of Dillinger's right-hand men; George ("Baby Face") Nelson, Chicago gunman; and Volney Davis, another suspect in the Bremer kidnaping.

In addition to the Frechetti girl, another woman is said to be a member of the gang. She is Beth Green, "wife" of Eugene Green, gangster slain by St. Paul police.

PRIDE OF ENGLAND'S NAVAL TRADITION

PRIDE of English naval tradition, H. M. S. Victory, flagship of Admiral Nelson in the battle of Trafalgar, is the most interesting sight in Southsea harbor, England. Thousands of persons visit the old ship annually. It was from the deck of the Victory that Nelson directed the course of the famous battle against a fleet of allied French and Spanish ships on Oct. 21, 1805. Nelson was struck by a bullet during the battle and died before the fighting ceased. The victory of Trafalgar was a brilliant naval achievement and was a fitting climax to the career of the great admiral, who has come to be regarded as one of the greatest naval tacticians and leaders of all time. It was at Trafalgar that Nelson made the statement which ever since has been revered by the British nation: "England expects that every man will do his duty." His flagship is kept in good condition by the government as a national shrine.

FOURTH in the alphabet and, consequently, fourth in this series on what's in a name (designed to offer suggestions to harassed parents in christening the new baby) comes the initial D. Ranked numerically, D can't muster quite as many celebrities beneath its banner as do some of the other letters, which may or may not mean anything to the psychologists. But generations of Daniels and Davids have lent it lustre.

Names that have been handed down in one family from generation to generation acquire a wealth of sentiment and significance that deserves perpetuation, but not to the extent of making a fetish of such names. If there already are half a dozen Donalds or Daniels in the brood of young cousins or older uncles a child rates a chance to enjoy some individuality that a completely different title offers, instead of growing up in the shadow as it were, of an earlier personality.

Daniel—The prophet of the Captivity bore in his name an amplification of that of Dan (a judge). It always has flourished as a name in the east and the Armenian, Montenegrin, and Slavonian races all are much attached to it. The Welsh form, Deiniol, was borne by the saint who founded the Bangor monastery in the 6th century, and thus it became known to the Bretons. In Ireland it was adopted as the equivalent of names derived from Don (brown-haired), thus causing Dan to be one of the most frequent of Irish contractions.

David—Among principal reasons for choice of names is the idea of describing qualities desired for the child. David is one of these. The Eastern church seems to have adopted David among its names long before it was received among the Jews. It always has been common among the Armenians and Georgians. A Keltish bishop of the early 6th century was revered in Scotland; affection and honor for this saint filled the lowlands with Davids, and this has continued as a distinctively Scottish name.

Dennis—The name derives from Dionysos (Greek) through the French. A bishop sent to convert the Gauls was martyred near Paris in 272. An abbey in his memory was erected and was under the protection of the counts of Paris, who made St. Denys the patron saint of the country. Denis is a frequent Irish name, and surnames such as Dennis, Denison, and Tennyson attest that Dennis was more common, at one time, as a first name in England than it is at present.

Donald—This is an Anglicization of Donghal "brown stranger," an early Scottish and Irish name, and likewise of Domhnall, which probably is the same, although the Irish translate it as "proud chieftain." Donald is reckoned the first Christian king of Scotland.

Diana—Comes from Diva Jana, feminine Latin deity who presided, along with Divus Janus, her male partner, over day and night. The name was a mere pagan device until the 16th century and the advent of the pastoral romances, the scene of which usually was Greece. The English acquired the name from France whose Diana de Poitiers was the heart interest of Henry II.

Dolores—Times of sorrow and distress have been a prominent inspiration of some names. This name is of Spanish Roman Catholic growth applied to express mournful circumstances.

Dorothea—The Greek feminine form of Theodorus (divine gift) is Theodora. It was prevalent in the Eastern church, but less common in the western than was the incorrect Dorothea which, in Greek, would make the giver feminine gender rather than the gift. The beauty of the legend of St. Dorothea has made her name a great favorite. This tale is of western growth, and the chief center of her popularity as a patroness was in Germany. But the name likewise was in favor in England. Dorothy is one of the most usual of English names. Dora, a German contraction, has become almost an independent name.

Look for your birthday or the group in which it appears throughout the following notes—it may be mentioned more than once. Mark it with a pencil wherever you see it, and then pay attention to the counsel given.

THE CURRENT WEEK AS CHARTED BY THE STARS

MATRIMONY, legal matters and possibly warlike developments are strongly to the fore this week. High interest in foreign affairs. A week in which, personally and nationally co-operation will stand us in good stead. Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday: romantic, constructive creative. Thursday and Friday: check up on health; make adjustments with inferiors. Saturday and next Sunday: do all you can to see the other fellow's side of things and act accordingly.

SOCIAL AND ROMANTIC

Build social reputation and position this week if born Feb. 27-March 22, March 26, April 4, May 25-June 19, Sept 8-18, Sept 28-Oct 8, or Oct. 27-Nov 19; apply tact to make others approve of you and your aims. Relations with the opposite sex can be improved, whether you are married or single, this week if born Dec 1-Jan 5—but don't permit too strenuous or rapid changes in the viewpoint. Somewhat better in this department for those born May 13-June 6. But if you were born April 5-28, go slow; skip all risks. Make new friends and do nice things for old ones, especially if born April 22-May 16, May 28-June 29, or Nov. 14-Dec. 7. Yield not to doubtful doings if a native of March 22-April 14, April 23-27 or Sept 7-Oct 1.

PERSONAL

Your personality is your abject slave and can serve you well. Make it do so. This is particularly advisable this week for natives of April 3-May 8 inclusive. Take note Harold Lloyd, Leslie Howard, Lionel Barrymore, Kate Smith, and Aline McMahon. Steer around emotional upsets if born Aug 7-31, Feb. 23-27, April 12-16, or Oct 16-19. Sudden, ill-considered shifts in location or policy to be avoided by natives of Feb 19-23 and Aug 23-28. Keep your outlook on life free from frivolity, watch responsibilities and go on succeeding to the best of your ability if born Jan 31-Feb 23. Sons and daughters of Feb 27-April 23, including all of March, can make progress through mental, artistic people as well as those younger than themselves. Expansion and general personal development, leading to monetary advantages, should be wholeheartedly followed by those born Sept 15-Oct 8; hope you make good use of your opportunities Helen Vinson, Ricardo Cortez, Margaret Sangster, and Max Schmeling.

Aline McMahon

LEGAL AND MATRIMONIAL

Married or not those born Oct. 3-Nov 9 are apt to find excitement in this department stimulated this week; don't leap into or out of the domestic prize ring. Natives of Feb 4-27 should proceed with emotions under full control in this sector. Those born March 13-April 5 and Aug. 31-Sept 24 are under favorable vibrations for partnership matters this week, in business and in matrimony. Check up on bettering relations with children or others younger than yourself if born Oct. 27-Nov 19 or Nov 28-Dec. 21. Attend to legal matters if born Oct. 3-Nov 9. Keep out of this kind of trouble if a native of Aug 3-27 or Oct. 13-Nov 5, if not already in it. If in, try to settle fairly and get out.

TRAVEL AND STUDY

Now is the time to plan travel and new courses by correspondence if you were born Jan. 12-Feb. 4, May 29-June 23 or Aug. 2-Sept. 6. If you have interests located at a distance, if born May 29-June 23, attend to them. Avoid non-substantial subjects for study and observation if born Dec. 7-30. Travel for pleasure if a native of June 27-July 21.

FINANCE AND ESTATE

Gambling is never the way out—learn the laws and play nothing but sure-thing cause-and-effect—that is, Nature's laws, not man's. Learn more to earn more, especially now, if you were born Feb 22-March 17, June 14-July 8, Aug. 15-Sept 7, March 30-April 3, Sept. 10-14, or Oct. 2-7. Take it easy in untried schemes if born Dec. 26-Jan. 22, Feb 25-March 27, May 5-29, or July 7-31; leave bad enough alone—look ahead, plan your future; but wait for a better time to take action if you are not absolutely desperate.

BUSINESS AND OCCUPATION

NEW MILLINERY FOR MEN

HERE messieurs, are specimens of what the well-dressed man will wear on his head some of these days—perhaps. The one on the left is a checkered affair expected to become very popular. The other is a striped felt guaranteed to be nifty. Both hats were shown at a men's wear style show recently in New York. According to the stylists, men are getting more color and design conscious all the time.

DILLINGER, ARCHFOE OF SOCIETY, ANOTHER MUDDLEHEAD OF CRIME

Four characteristic poses of John Dillinger, considered by police to be the most dangerous criminal of our times. Dillinger has thin brown hair, yellowish eyes, a dimpled chin, and a half-inch scar on the back of his left hand. He weighs 153 pounds and is 5 feet 7 inches tall.

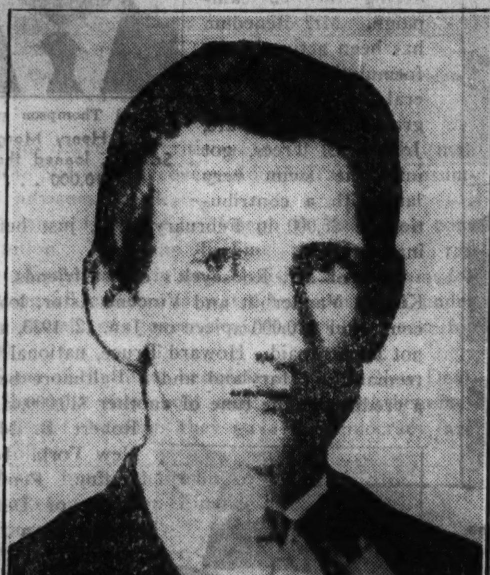
In the spring of 1933 Dillinger had served almost nine years behind prison walls. The good residents of Mooresville, including the victim of the crime, Frank Morgan, and the judge who sentenced Dillinger, petitioned Gov. McNutt to grant a parole.

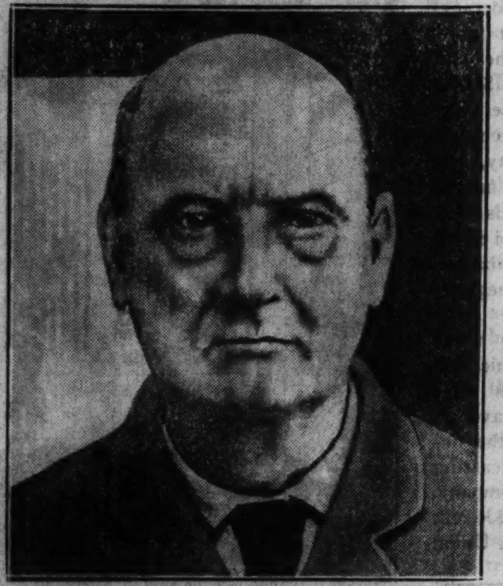
The recommendation of these good people and the acquiescence of Gov. McNutt comprised a social error which the nation will cease regretting only when Dillinger is dead. He was released in May, 1933. Within a few days working with another paroled Indiana convict Dillinger began a series of daring bank robberies. Thus financed, he engineered the smuggling of revolvers into the Michigan City prison which resulted in the escape of ten convicts in September, 1933. On the day of the prison break Dillinger was arrested in Dayton, O., on a charge of bank robbery and was locked up in the jail at Lima to await trial. He didn't stay there long. Several of the ten escaped convicts, including Charles Makley, Harry Pierpont, and Russell Clark appeared one day at the Lima jail. Representing themselves as "Indiana officers," they commanded Sherif Jess Sarber to turn Dillinger over to them.

"His name was Gerald Chapman, police killer, bank robber, jail breaker . . ."

"The boldness and cold-bloodedness of Dillinger's crimes may be compared justly with those of Jesse James and his gang."



"'God alone knows what . . . I suffered' . . . His name was Frank James . . ."



". . . The three Younger brothers . . . Jim . . . and the lesser members of tha gang."

Sarber manfully refused. Without arguing the point farther, one of the escaped felons drew a revolver and shot Sarber dead. Taking his keys, they released Dillinger, then looted the jail arsenal of machine guns and revolvers and sped away with Dillinger in an automobile.

An ungarnished account of Dillinger's murderous career, begun as soon as he had left the prison gates, and yet unfinished, is contained in part in his own words, again spoken to reporters following the capture in Arizona:

"In the prison I met a lot of good fellows," he said. "I wanted to help them out. There's no denying that I helped fix up the break at Michigan City last September when ten men got away. Why not? I stick to my friends and they stick to me.

"Sure, after they got out we did some bank robberies. We moved around in Indiana, in Wisconsin, and in Chicago. One of the fellows that I helped out, John Hamilton, shot and killed Policeman William Shanley there in December. John was my pal, and I drove him out of town in an automobile. He'd have done the same for me."

In this and other statements, however, Dillinger was careful to deny any part in the murder last Jan. 15 of Policeman William P. O'Malley of East Chicago, Ind.

Just ten days after this cold-blooded crime the country was thrilled by the news that this ruthless desperado with three members of his gang—Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley, and Russell Clark, each an escaped Indiana convict had been captured by Tucson, Ariz., police under Chief C. A. Wollard. None of the desperadoes had a chance to use his gun. The police of the Arizona city were too quick on the draw. Within a few days extradition technicalities had been disposed of. Dillinger was whisked eastward in a transport plane. At Chicago hundreds of heavily armed police met him and formed an escort to the Crown Point jail.

There, under the supervision of a woman sherif, Mrs. Lillian Holley, Dillinger was to await trial for the murder of Policeman O'Malley. Jubilant over the capture, Mrs. Holley and Robert G. Estill, prosecutor of Lake county, Indiana, committed the indiscretion of posing beside Dillinger for newspaper photographers. All were smiling. Dillinger's arm was thrown carelessly over Estill's shoulder. It was just a "happy family" scene.

"Mrs. Holley and Robert G. Estill . . . committed the indiscretion of posing . . . All were smiling. Dillinger's arm was thrown carelessly over Estill's shoulder. It was just a 'happy family' scene."

"Within a few days extradition technicalities had been disposed of. Dillinger was whisked eastward in a transport plane. At Chicago . . . police met him."

". . . captured by Tucson, Ariz., police under Chief C. A. Wollard. None of the desperadoes had a chance . . . the police of the Arizona city were too quick on the draw."

"Weeks later the Negro, Youngblood, was cornered by police."

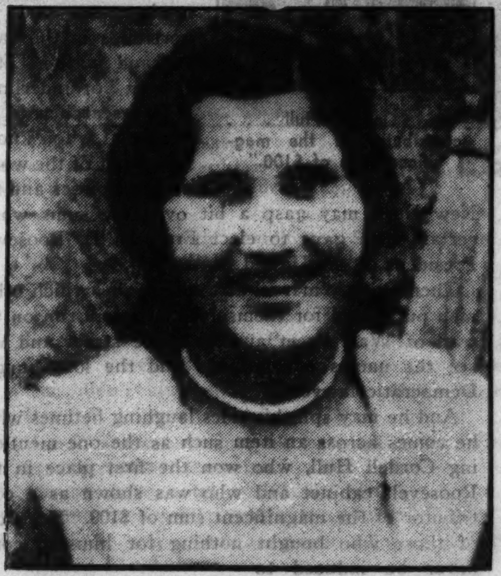
The other three members of the gang caught in Tucson were returned by train and subsequently taken to Lima, O., to stand trial for the murder of Sherif Sarber. All were identified as the men who freed Dillinger. Pierpont and Makley were sentenced to death. Clark was given a life prison sentence.

Dillinger was arraigned before Judge William J. Murray in the Criminal court at Crown Point. The trial was set for March 12. Judge Murray's confidence that the trial would open on that day was premature. While extra guards, armed with automatic pistols and submachine guns, paced importantly about the county jail, Dillinger was busy whittling a toy wooden pistol out of a block of wood in his cell. On Saturday morning, March 3, he had completed his carving. How he fooled Guard Ernest Blunk, then forced all the other guards into cells, armed himself and a Negro prisoner, Herbert Youngblood, with pistols and machine guns, and walked out, is now history.

Forcing Blunk to accompany them, Dillinger and the Negro took Sherif Holley's automobile and sped out of town. Blunk was released at Peotone, Ill. Dillinger then drove to Chicago, where the sherif's car was found abandoned a day later.

Weeks later the Negro, Youngblood, was cornered by police in Port Huron, Mich. He shot it out with them. The battle ended in the deaths of Youngblood and one of the policemen, Charles Cavanaugh.

"There, under the supervision of a woman sherif, Mrs. Lillian Holley, Dillinger was to await trial."

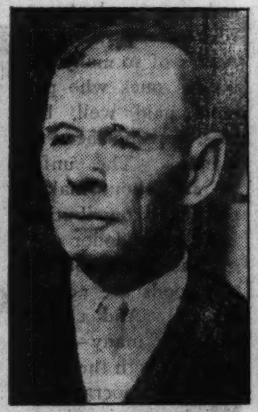


"Evelyn Frechetti, red-haired beauty and Dillinger's newest girl friend . . . seized in Chicago . . ."

"Dillinger was arraigned before Judge William J. Murray in the Criminal court at Crown Point."

In the meantime the country, outraged, read reports of the investigation being conducted in Crown Point. Blunk, the guard, was indicted. A special grand jury absolved Sherif Holley of blame. Rumblings of an imminent political shakeup in Indiana grew loud.

Remaining at large, possibly with Dillinger, are John Hamilton, Joseph Burns, Homer Van Meter, and Joseph Fox.



". . . his father, John W. Dillinger, of good Quaker stock . . ."

John Hamilton, escaped convict, at large. Killer of a Chicago policeman.

Harry Pierpont, sentenced to death in Ohio for murder of Sherif Sarber.

Charles Makley, also given death sentence in Ohio for murder.

Joseph Burns, member of original Dillinger gang of ex-convicts.

Joseph Fox, another escaped Indiana convict, still at large.

Russell Clark, recently sentenced to life imprisonment in Ohio.

CAMPAIGN CON
THE ROOSEVE

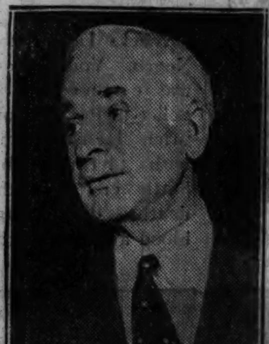
"... Robert Worth Bingham ... is the possessor of the supreme foreign billet of American statecraft ..." (Going by coach to present his credentials to King George.) (Acme photo.)

Ambassador Bingham, America's diplomatic representative at the court of St. James's with Mrs. Bingham and their daughter. Mr. Bingham is a Kentucky newspaper publisher. (Acme photo.)

By John Boettiger

Washington, D. C.

STUFFED very carelessly into a musty old filing case in the basement of the capitol, in an office located right beneath the Hall of Fame—and there is some dry humor in this coincidence—there are kept the records of who pays how much to support and maintain the political parties of the United States.



"... Cordell Hull ... contributor of the magnificent sum of $100."

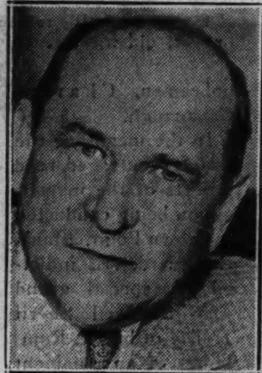
One may learn, if he chooses to pry into the matter, just who holds today the mortgages on the Democratic party.

There are also to be found the prices paid for ambassadorships and for lesser diplomatic posts and for portfolios in the cabinet and in the "little cabinet" of underlings.

The searcher, if he be one who knows somewhat of the workings of politics and the New Deal, may gasp a bit over the sums which certain men gave to elect Franklin D. Roosevelt President of the United States.

Then he may marvel at the bargains which other men purchased for themselves. He will run on the trail of Wall street and La Salle street and will see the names of oil kings and the long-hungry Democratic lawyers.

And he may split his sides laughing betimes when he comes across an item such as the one mentioning Cordell Hull, who won the first place in the Roosevelt cabinet and who was shown as a contributor of the magnificent sum of $100. He is one of those who bought nothing for himself, could never be induced to buy anything like a job for himself.



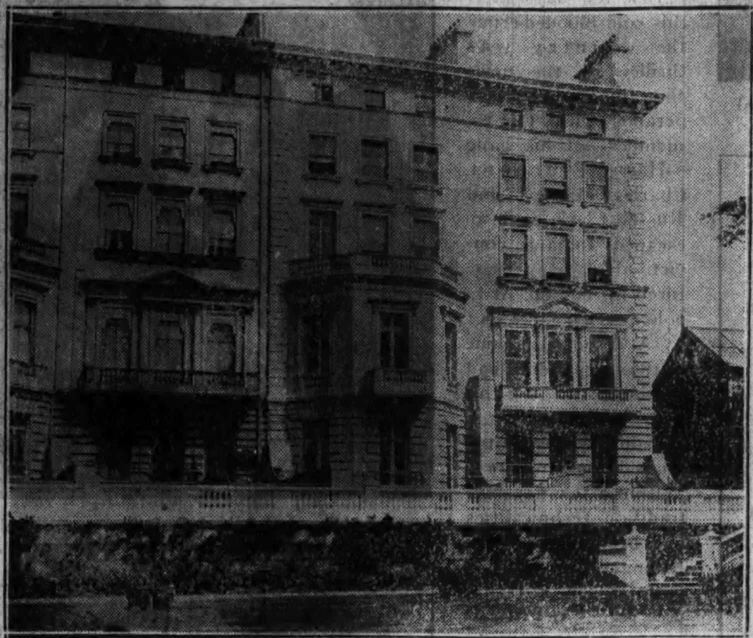
(Acme photo.)
"... Robert H. Gore ... who gave ... a total of $12,000 ..."

Lastly, there will be sadness a-plenty as the searcher finds the names of so many ambitious ones who paid and paid well, but, alas, have not been rewarded. The unfair thing about making political contributions is that the donor can't get his money back if the goods are not delivered. And there were so many—as a riffle through the pages of the Democratic national committee's report to the house of representatives may reveal—so many nice, faithful Democrats who only wanted the social distinction of being an ambassador, or perhaps no more than a minister, and they haven't got it. There weren't enough countries to send diplomats to.

But some of the generous ones, a very few, were Scotchy about their giving and made loans instead of gifts. One of these is Robert H. Gore of Chicago and Florida, who gave the Democratic treasurer his checks for a total of $12,000, but was shrewd enough to get notes in return.

Mr. Gore went to Porto Rico as Mr. Roosevelt's governor, but the natives were unpleasant to Mr. Gore, and the noise of bombs and riots was in his ear and disturbed his sleep and his health, so he resigned.

(Acme photo.)
"... Bingham ... contributions amounting to only $10,000."



(Underwood and Underwood photo.)
"Such modest sums would scarcely have put the donor in line for an African ministry in the opulent days ..." (United States embassy in London.)

And Mr. Gore still has the Democratic committee's notes for $10,000 and cash returned of $2,000.

Before venturing into the sacrosanct realm of American diplomacy, and how much it costs to get there, it may be noted here who else besides Mr. Gore holds the notes of the Democratic committee.

At the top of the list, the most patient creditor, is John J. Raskob, who was the golden-winged angel of Alfred E. Smith and the old Democracy of 1928. But Mr. Raskob's debt is shrinking. A year before it was $115,000, and on the date of this latest report, Jan. 1, 1934, it was $80,000. This was because Mr. Raskob during the campaign contributed $35,000 by signing off part of the debt.

Then comes Joseph P. Kennedy, shrewd and rich Wall streeter, whose claim is for $32,816.67. Once Mr. Kennedy was in the very lap of Mr. Roosevelt, and this was during the height of the campaign for the presidency. The good-looking and witty and wise New Yorker accompanied the Democratic candidate on his stumping tours, advised him on all his speeches.

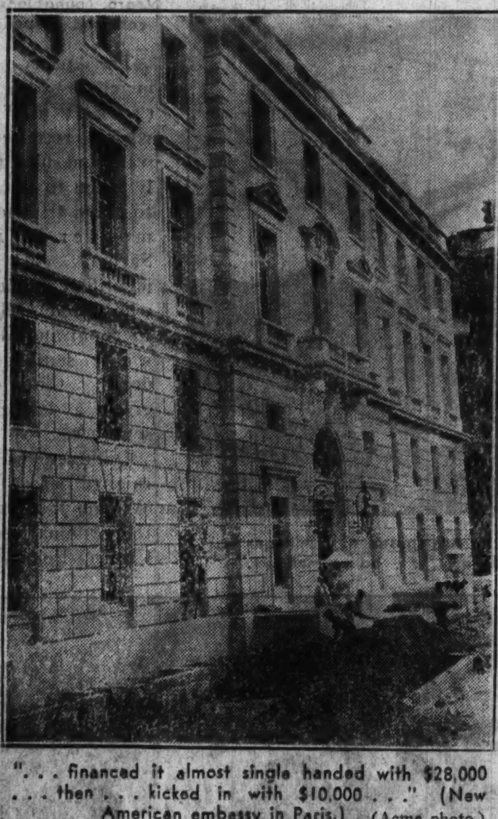
"Jesse Isador Straus, New York merchant, presides over the American establishment in Paris ..."



"... financed it almost single handed with $28,000 ... then ... kicked in with $10,000 ..." (New American embassy in Paris.) (Acme photo.)

During this time Mr. Kennedy donated first $10,000, on Sept. 9, 1932, then $5,000 on Sept. 28; on Oct. 6 he listened to somewhat desperate pleas for ready money and gave a check for $50,000, as a loan, and finally on Oct. 25 he gave $4,000. This represented an investment by Mr. Kennedy of $69,000 and put him at the top of the list.

"... the most patient creditor, is John J. Raskob ..."

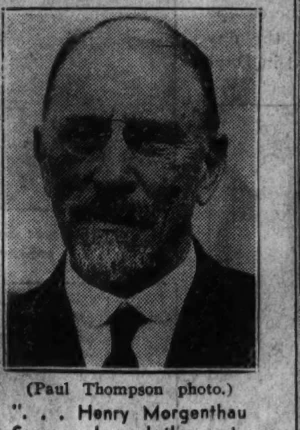
But something happened, and what it was neither Mr. Kennedy nor anyone else seems to be able to find out. Most folks blame it on Louie Howe, the presidential secretary, who never likes to see any newcomers get very close to the President's confidence, that is, any closer than Louie.

Whatever it was, Joe Kennedy didn't get around to advising Mr. Roosevelt any more after the election, and it was then that he began to think about getting his $50,000 back. He is getting it, at the rate of $5,000 a month, and with interest.

The next mortgagee of Democracy is Henry Morgenthau Sr., an old friend of the Roosevelts, who served the President at an international wheat conference, and whose son is secretary of the treasury. Mr. Morgenthau senior loaned the party $10,000 during those stressful days of October, 1932.

Ralph W. Morrison of San Antonio, a newspaper publisher who was sent as a Roosevelt delegate to the London economic conference last year, loaned $25,000 to the committee in the same month and is still unpaid. He also contributed $25,000 in cash.

Next comes Delancy Kountze, of Devoe & Raynolds paint riches, who has $5,000 coming, and then Breckinridge Long, to whom Democracy owes $10,000. Mr. Long's other contributions are mentioned herein, several paragraphs below, as befits his station, with the other gentlemen of the diplomatic corps.



(Paul Thompson photo.)
"... Henry Morgenthau Sr. ... loaned the party $10,000 ..."

M. L. Benedum, Pittsburgh oil magnate, has a mortgage of $17,500, a goodly sum when put alongside the $22,500 he gave outright in weekly checks for $2,500 during the '32 campaign. Mr. Benedum has been active in the formulating of a federal oil control program. His associate, Joseph C. Trees, got into the swim very late with a contribution of $5,000 in February, 1933, just before the inauguration.

Two of Mr. Roosevelt's oldest friends, William Kissam Vanderbilt and Vincent Astor, loaned the committee $10,000 apiece on Jan. 12, 1933, and have not been repaid. Howard Bruce, national committeeman for Maryland and a Baltimore banker, is a creditor to the tune of another $10,000, as is also Robert B. Meyer of New York. Joseph F. Guffey, Pennsylvania boss of Democracy, brings up a bit ignominiously at the end with a note for $1,000.

"... old Roosevelt friends ... gave cash ... Vincent Astor, $35,000 ..."

Those are the individual mortgagees of the ruling party, but there are many unpaid bills for goods and services rendered which the organization seems to have neglected overlong.

Chief among these are the communication services, which the New Dealers have set out to put under federal control. Among the unpaid bills are those of the Columbia Broadcasting system, $47,650; National Broadcasting company, $107,571; New York Telephone company, $36,262; Postal Telegraph company, $13,679; Western Union Telegraph company, $12,793

Other big unpaid bills are: Hotel Biltmore, New York, $17,387; Pullman company, $2,338; Pennsylvania railroad, $813; Railway Express agency, Washington, D. C., $12,100; Street Railway Advertising company, $30,000.

(Acme photo.)
"... Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, who gave $25,000 in cash ..."

The total debts of the Democratic national committee on Jan. 1, 1934, aggregated $542,112.

Now as to the diplomatists.

It is set down to the business sagacity of Mr. Robert Worth Bingham, Kentucky newspaper publisher, that he is the possessor of the supreme foreign billet of American statecraft, the ambassadorship to the Court of St. James's, upon campaign contributions amounting to only $10,000.

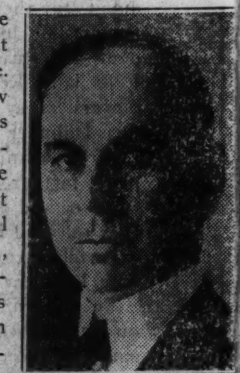
Such modest sums would scarcely have put the donor in line for an African ministry in the opulent days of the Republican regime, it is reckoned, and one commentary, who recalled Mr. Bingham's eagerness to get to the England he loves, felt the Democratic politicians had been badly outmatched.

For a more impressive example there may be cited the winner of the next best assignment, that as ambassador to France.

(Associated Press photo.)
"William Christian Bullitt ... ambassador to Moscow, gave $1,000." (Mr. Bullitt just after a call on President Kalinin.)

Interior of Mr. Bullitt's palatial embassy in a suburb of the capital of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. (Acme photo.)

Jesse Isador Straus, New York merchant, presides over the American establishment in Paris, and he organized the Roosevelt Business and Professional league in New York, financed it almost single-handed with $28,000 of his personal funds, and then in that fretful month of October, 1932, kicked in with $10,000 to the Democratic national committee.



(Acme photo)
"M. L. Benedum ... oil magnate ... has a mortgage of $17,500 ..."

But this $38,000 was not all. His family contributed also. There was Percy Straus, who gave $15,000 Ralph, $250; Robert K., $1,000—a total for th Straus family of $54,250.

"Not bad," Mr. Farley might congratulate him self. "Not bad."

Breckinridge Long, who all these years since th Wilson era has labeled himself a former assistan secretary of state, is in Rome, with Mrs. Long, an they give many parties in the American embass there. In addition to the $10,000 which "Breck loaned the committee, he gave five contribution amounting to $5,500, and Mrs. Long gave $1,000, a total of $16,500.

Incidentally, it is learned that Mr. Long and Mr. Morgenthau are quite willing to tear up their notes for $10,000 apiece, but do not because "it might not look right."

William Christian Bullitt, the new and first ambassador to Moscow, gave $1,000.

Some of the other newcomers to American diplomacy under the New Deal, and the amounts they contributed to the Roosevelt campaign, are these:

Bert Fish, Deland, Fla., minister to Egypt, $5,000.

William Phillips, undersecretary of state, $1,000.

Sumner Welles, former ambassador to Cuba, assistant secretary of state, $2,500 (by Mrs. Welles).

Laurence A. Steinhardt of New York, minister to Sweden, $5,000.

sylvania, minister to Austria, but coming back soon to run for governor, $15,000.

John Cudahy of Milwaukee, Wis., ambassador to Poland, $1,000.

Grenville T. Emmet of New York, former law partner of President Roosevelt and new minister to the Netherlands, $2,000.

John F. Montgomery of Vermont, minister to Hungary, $1,000

Hal Sevier of Texas, ambassador to Chile, $2,000 ($1,500 of which was given by Mrs. Hal Sevier).

"Breckinridge Long . . . . Mrs. Long . . . . give many parties in the American embassy there." (The United States embassy in Rome.)

Of those contributors who were appointed to the cabinet the most generous was William H. Woodin, the New York capitalist and close personal friend of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Woodin during the campaign gave $40,000 in six contributions. However, it is no secret that Mr. Woodin never expected to go into the cabinet; that he urged the appointment of Carter Glass to the post, and then of other men, but finally was prevailed upon by the President to take it himself. Henry Morgenthau Jr., successor to Secretary Woodin, contributed $1,000 and his wife gave another $1,000. Daniel Roper, secretary of commerce, donated $5,250. Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, is not listed as a contributor, but he is scheduled as having "refunded" $350 paid him by the National Progressive League for Roosevelt and Garner."

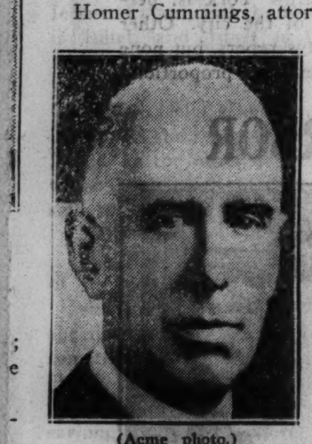
Homer Cummings, attorney general, gave $1,000 and his wife gave $250.



(Acme photo.)
"Howard Bruce . . . creditor to the tune of another $10,000 . . ."

James A. Farley's contribution was $5,000, but his greatest contribution was in toil and strategy.

Mr. Hull's $100 has been mentioned. There is not note in the pages of the committee's report of any contributions by Henry Wallace, Frances Perkins, George Dern, nor even of the rich Virginian, Claude A. Swanson, elevated from the senate to the secretaryship of the navy.

Of all the others who got jobs, the most generous one, perhaps, was Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, who gave $25,000 in cash and who has hung tenaciously through various degrees of criticism to her job as chairman of the National Recovery Administration's consumers' advisory board.

A laugh is raised by Joseph B. Eastman's contribution. He, who became the powerful rail co-ordinator and is now devising a program for putting all motor and water transportation under the thumb of government, sent his check for $100.

Some of the other beneficiaries of the New Deal, if the jobs they hold may be termed benefactions, and the sums they gave to Democracy, are as follows:

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, $5,000.

Mr. Jones' brother, John T. Jones, also gave $2,500.

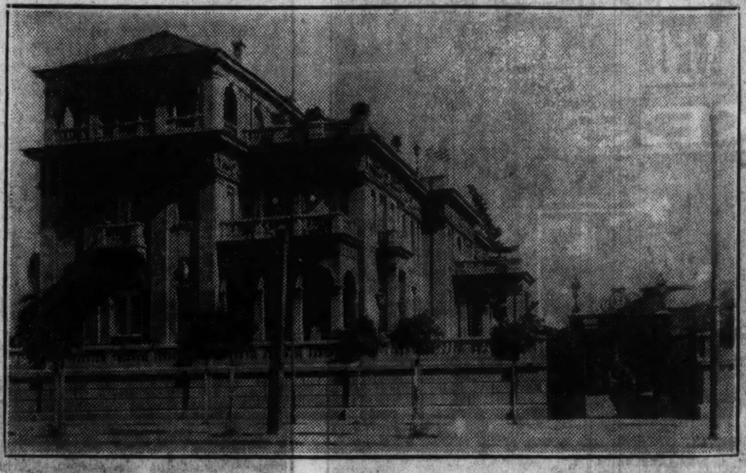
Harvey C. Couch, member of the RFC, $1,500.

James M. Cox, delegate to the London economic conference, $2,000.

W. A. Julian, treasurer of the United States, $11,250.

James A. Moffett, Standard Oil official and a member of the planning and coordinating committee under the oil administrator, $14,500.

Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint, $800.



United States embassy in Santiago, Chile. The Chilean republic is one of three in South America that exchange ambassadors with Washington.

Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, $250.

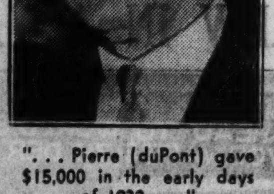
Herbert Bayard Swope, who was Prof. Moley's companion on the latter's trip to the London conference, $2,000.

Gerard Swope, General Electric head and NRA adviser, $500.

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, $3,500.

Pat Malloy, assistant attorney general, $1,000.

M. S. Szymczak, member federal reserve board, $400.



". . . Pierre (duPont) gave $15,000 in the early days of 1932 . . ."

South Trimble Jr., solicitor general, department of commerce, $1,000.

Martin Conboy, district attorney for southern New York, $500.

George Gordon Battle of New York, whose nephew, Turner Battle, is assistant to Madame Secretary Perkins, contributed $1,900.

Earl Bailie of the New York banking house of J. & W. Seligman & Co., who was to have been Mr. Morgenthau's economic adviser, but whose presence in the treasury was resented by Senator Couzens, contributed $5,000 on May 6, 1933.

It is difficult to classify Bernard M. Baruch of New York, for while some declare him to be a leader of the "dissatisfied" ones, others point out that his two proteges, Hugh S. Johnson and George Peek, did very well by themselves with the administration. But Mr. Baruch, who used to be mentioned in the pre-inaugural days of speculation on cabinet appointments as a likely man for the treasury job, has got very little recognition for himself.

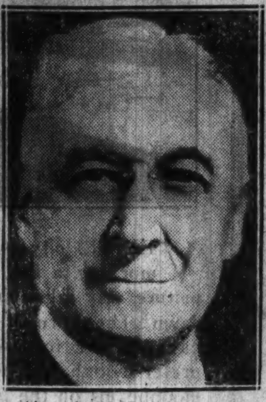
"In addition to the $10,000 . . . he gave five contributions amounting to $5,500 . . ." (Mr. Long and wife with his sister, Mrs. H. G. Charfield, at left.)

Mr. Baruch gave $40,500 to the Democratic national committee and $18,000 to the Democratic senatorial committee, and his brother, Dr. Herman Baruch, gave $3,500 to the Roosevelt campaign. Why Mr. Baruch should be permitted almost single-handed to finance the campaigns of Democratic senators year after year is a matter which has not been made the subject of inquiry by any senatorial investigating committee.



(Associated Press photo.)
". . . Bernard M. Baruch . . . gave $40,500 . . . and $18,000 . . ."

Of the folks who might be put down in the disappointed class, why this is so, and how much they gave for Democracy's great victory, there is this to say:

(Acme photo.)
"Hal Sevier of Texas, ambassador to Chile, $2,000 ($1,500 of which was given by Mrs. Hal Sevier)."

James M. Curley, mayor of Boston, gave $10,500 and expected to be ambassador to Rome. He was offered the lesser task of being ambassador to Poland and refused it.

James W. Gerard of New York, who was Wilson's ambassador to Germany, gave $18,000.

Charles R. Crane of New York, former minister to China, gave $5,000.

"James A. Moffett, Standard Oil official . . . $14,500 . . ."

Richard T. Crane of Virginia, who was minister to Prague in the Wilson regime, and wanted to go back there to dwell in the legation his father built, gave $7,250, of which Mrs. Cornelia Crane provided $5,000.

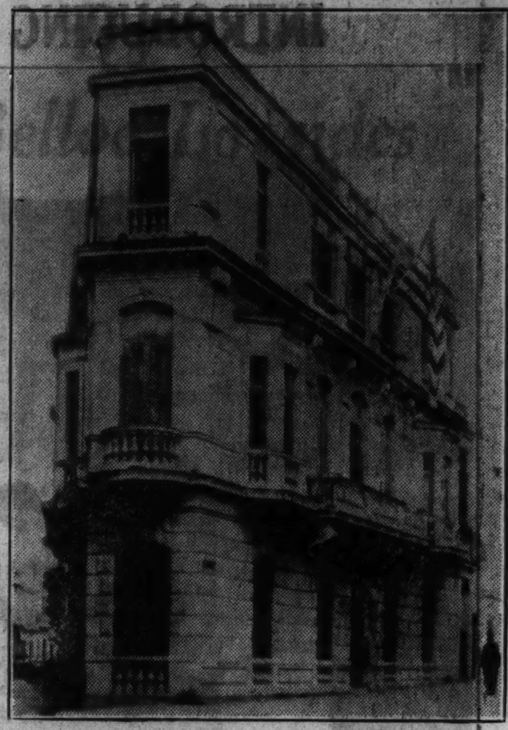
Charles J. Vopicka of Chicago was minister to Rumania under Wilson and gave $2,500 to elect Roosevelt. Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago, former minister to Sweden, wanted Turkey in this administration, and gave $9,000.

Edmond A. Guggenheim, whose kinsman, Harry F. Guggenheim, was Mr. Hoover's ambassador to Cuba, gave $6,000; Frank L. Polk, former assistant secretary of state in the Wilson days, gave $1,500.

Col. Arthur O'Brien, who in addition to toiling on the Roosevelt finance committee gave his own check for $5,000, wanted to be ambassador to Germany.

James M. Thompson, New Orleans publisher with a yen to be secretary of war, is down for various contributions in the records, but they are confusing because of moneys he collected from others.

Daniel J. Tobin, organized labor's candidate for Miss Perkins' job, gave $500. Arthur Mullen, who had both eyes on the attorney general's post, donated $2,000.



American embassy in Havana, Cuba. Recent reports had it is in bad state of repair and unoccupied.

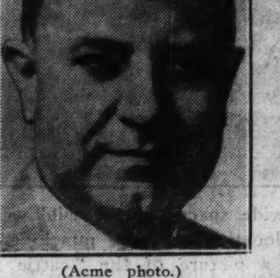
Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island gave $25,000 and has received nothing. He can afford it. Bainbridge Colby, acting secretary of state under Wilson, gave $2,500.

Roy D. Keehn, who sought to be district attorney at Chicago, gave $1,000 in the merry month of October, 1932. Urban A. Lavery of Chicago gave $1,000, and Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, a member of the Chicago school board, contributed $500. Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who is still talked of for secretary of the navy if Mr. Swanson's legs give way, gave $500.

(Associated Press photo.)
"Sumner Welles, former ambassador to Cuba, assistant secretary of state, $2,500 (by Mrs. Welles)." (Mr. Welles with President Roosevelt.)

Of the long list of others who gave, some stick out as of peculiar or particular interest. Some large contributions received from Chicagoans are these:

Peter B. Carey, president of the Board of Trade, $4,000; Thomas Howell, grain trader, $10,000; H. L. Stuart, broker, $5,000 (after the election); Ralph M. Shaw, law partner of the Republican Silas Strawn, $10,000 (also after the election); Robert J. Dunham, $10,000; Arthur G. Leonard, president of the Union Stock Yards and Transit company, $7,500; Vincent Bendix, $2,500 (on Dec. 16, 1933); Robert F. Carr, $5,500.



(Acme photo.)
"Ralph W. Morrison . . . contributed $25,000 in cash."

Tom Bragg, of some dubious fame as one of the "shorts" who rode the stock market down to the gutter, and whose name appeared on a recent senate list as having sold 1,000 shares of Aviation corporation stock just before the government air mail contracts were canceled, is on the list as one of the $10,000 men of October, 1932.

Amon Carter, Fort Worth publisher, is down for $20,500, and he also dug up $11,950 through his friends. R. A. Josey of Houston, close pal of Jesse Jones, donated $22,500. William Randolph Hearst is a generous donor of October, 1933, at $25,000.

Thomas L. Chadbourne, who has been mixing deeply in the sugar program of the administration, gave $6,000 before the election and $10,000 afterwards.

"Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island, gave $25,000 . . ."

Morton L. Schwartz, wealthy horse fancier of New York, gave $21,000 to the national committee and $10,000 to the senatorial committee. A. P. Giannini, California banker, gave $5,000 in June, 1933.

Irenee du Pont, whose brother, Pierre, is now chairman of the NRA industrial advisory board, gave $5,000 on April 24, 1933. Pierre gave $15,000 in the early days of 1932, before the Chicago convention. He was an Al Smith man.

Gen. W. H. Cocke of Claremont, Va., had $15,000 to spare on June 20, 1933.

Democratic lawyers who helped the party were Joseph E. Davies, with $2,000 before the election and $17,500 afterwards; Samuel Untermyer of New York, with $11,000; Joseph P. Tumulty, $1,500; Basil O'Connor, $2,500, and Newton D. Baker, $1,100.

The old Roosevelt friends, besides lending large sums, gave cash donations as follows: Vincent Astor, $35,000; W. K. Vanderbilt, $1,000, and Delancey Kountze, $1,000.

Alfred E. Smith contributed $500 on June 20, 1932, but that was before Chicago.

Other contributions included those of L. P. Bonfoey of Quincy, Ill., $3,000; Tom Taggart, of Indiana, $1,000; Atlee Pomerene, a Hoover appointee on the RFC, though a Democrat, and one who didn't stay under Roosevelt, $100; Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, $250.

In 1932 the contributions received by the "Democratic victory campaign," which was a pre-convention drive, totaled $555,697. The contributions to the Democratic national committee after the campaign proper was on amounted to $1,478,120, a total of $2,033,817.

In 1933 the Democratic national committee collected $595,254 from contributors; borrowed $56,000.

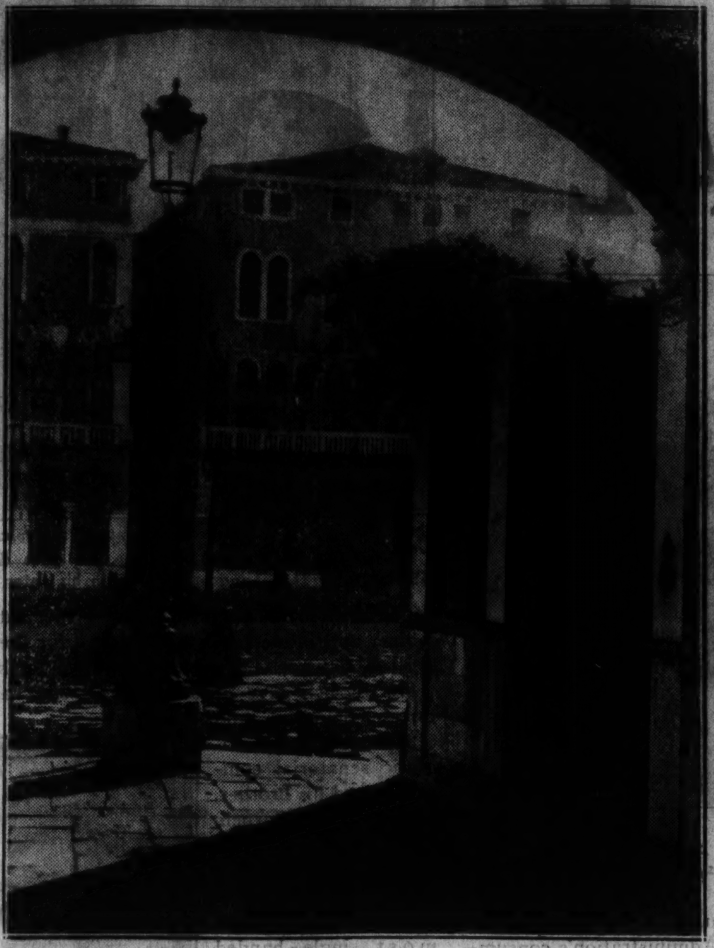
INTRODUCING THE SHORT-SKIRT

(Acme photo.)

FOR getting down the court after a hard bouncing tennis ball—for smacking a golf ball down the fairway—for doing a hundred yards in nothing flat—or perhaps the broad jump—here's the skirt devised by Mrs. R. Pollak of London, for which she claims an all around efficiency in any sport in which women indulge. It comprises a pair of shorts, with front and back panel of the material buttoned at each side to preserve the appearance of a skirt while permitting a maximum of freedom. The demonstration took place on the roof of a London store. If this sort of clothes designing keeps up, we may expect in the near future to see a combination dress, tennis costume, tea gown, and swimming suit!

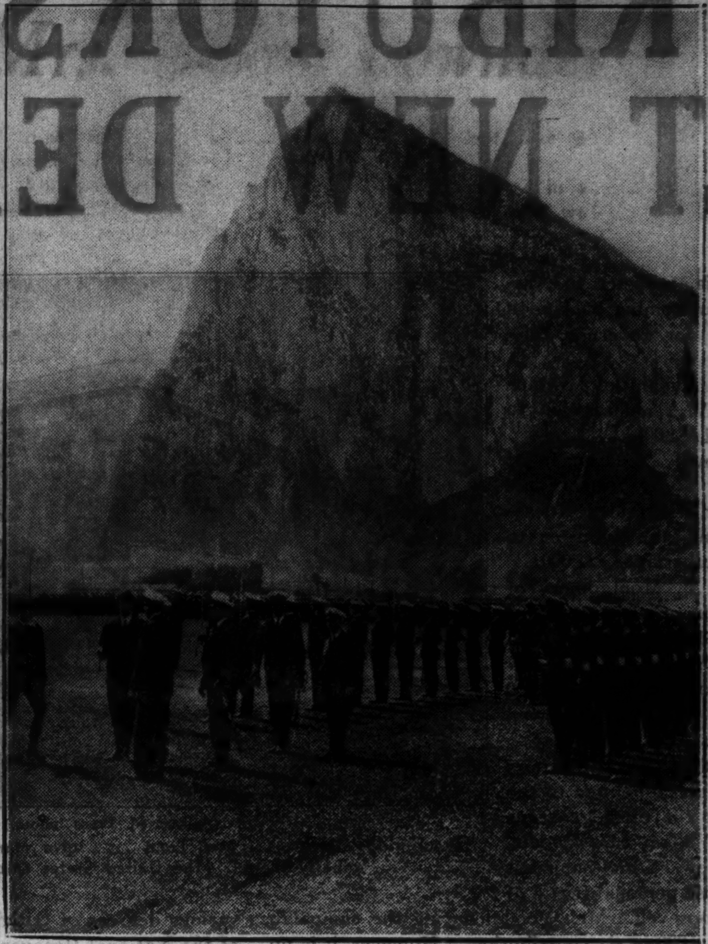
EARLY MORNING IN VENICE



(Acme photo.)

VENICE, city of romance and beauty, is bewitching in the early morning, a fact which this photograph so adequately reveals. The picture was taken from the shadow of a covered street shortly after dawn The morning sunlight casts a golden glow over the water of the canal in the foreground. It is probable, however, that most tourists prefer moonlight when they are in Venice, and it must be admitted that moonbeams on the liquid streets of Venice are equally attractive.

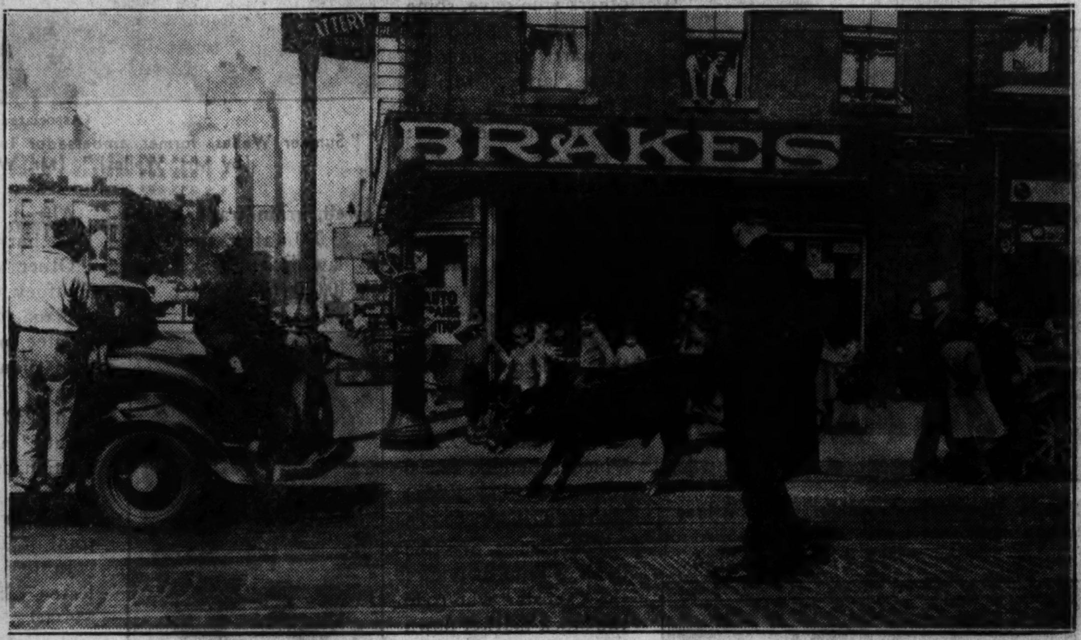
POWER BENEATH GIBRALTAR



(Acme photo.)

GIBRALTAR mighty fortress of Great Britain between the Atlantic ocean and the Mediterranean sea annually is the scene of a review of the combined battle fleets of the British navy This picture, taken while an inspection was in progress, shows the parade ground with the huge rock in the background. The inspection was conducted by the Lords and the Admiralty and was witnessed by thousands of spectators. Following the inspection the sailors staged a parade.

COW PUNCHING IN OLD NEW YORK



THE wide spaces of the wild west are not the only locations for cow punching Here, for instance, is a picture of the "cattle range" of old New York. True, the methods of herding steers are not quite the same in New York as those used in Texas; but the result, in this case, anyway, was entirely satisfactory. The steer had escaped from a packing house, thus providing an impromptu roundup much enjoyed by the city "cowboys" who took part in it. As the picture reveals, the steer was not too happy about returning to the packing house, where he was cut up into steaks.

TWILIGHT SKYLINE IN MANHATTAN

NO LESS inspiring than the picture of Venice at dawn, printed at the top of the page, is this view of Manhattan at twilight. The picture was taken on a clear spring day. The waning sunlight served to throw the miraculous skyline of America's first metropolis into sharp relief. Dominating the other towers of concrete and steel is the giant Empire State building. Those familiar with the outlines of New York's other great buildings may recognize the others. Almost like the work of an inspired artist is this remarkable view of massive buildings against a background of violet sky streaked with fleecy clouds. The skyline of New York is, perhaps, the most beautiful aspect of the city. Other American cities have towering skyscrapers, but none of them has a skyline of such massive proportions.

THE STORY OF THE ALPHABET

	T	UVW	X	Y	Z
EGYPTIAN HIEROGLYPH	(LASSO)				(DUCK)
PHOENICIAN	X+				I
WESTERN GREEK	T	VY	X+	Y	ZI
EARLY LATIN	T	V	X	Y	Z

THE last seven letters of our alphabet, like nearly all of the others, were inherited from the early Greek, which language originally had received them from the Phœnician. The letter T was the final symbol in the Semitic alphabet but its form in the earliest inscriptions was that of X The Greek and Latin symbols for T approached more nearly the modern form of the letter than they did the Semitic form. In English the sound value of T is an alveolar rather than a dental stop. In some cases T becomes a sibilant in English, as in the word motion The letter T also may have the value of an unvoiced sound, as in the word thin.

The next three letters of our alphabet, U, V, and W, are Latin variants of one Greek symbol. The letter Y is another variant of this same symbol The four letters were developed as a means of representing sounds in the Greek alphabet more accurately. Most interesting, perhaps, is the letter W, which is exactly what its name implies, double U. For hundreds of years the sound was represented by UU, but in the English of the 9th century this form was found to be unsatisfactory as representing the consonant sound, and the distinct symbol W was developed. The ordinary W represents a voiced sound but when used in conjunction with H, as in when, it has a tendency to become an unvoiced sound. The letter X, unlike most of the other alphabet symbols, was derived from the western Greek. In the original Semitic alphabet the name for this letter was samekh. The final letter of our alphabet, Z, has a history approximating exactly the other letters discussed here.

The Greek form of Z was a close copy of the Phœnician, but authorities are puzzled by the Greek name for this symbol, zeta. Several explanations have been advanced, but none of them have been accepted. This letter, too, has interesting variations in its sound value.

A RED CREW IN A YANKEE HARBOR

FIRST ship flying the red flag of soviet Russia ever to arrive in New York harbor was the steamer Kim, which reached the eastern port recently with a cargo of general merchandise. This picture shows the comfortable forecastle quarters provided for the crew of thirty-seven Two women members of the crew, both stewardesses, may be seen in the group. The women eat with the men of the crew and have equal privileges. At the time of the cameraman's visit the crew was celebrating the occasion of the first voyage of a soviet ship to America, made possible by the recent recognition of the Russian government by the United States. The sign overhead, written in Russian, German and English, bears the legend, "Ahead to World's Revolution." Soviet Russia, under its five year plans, has shipped into the world markets in recent years an amazing amount of manufactured goods and foodstuffs. Most of this merchandise has been sold at rates below the prevailing price levels. Many foreign countries have protested that Russia was thus "dumping" cheap goods in world markets.

Another Man's Wife

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

SYNOPSIS

Rex Chandos, ace racer, meets and falls madly in love with Delia Seaton, the most beautiful girl he ever has seen. Delia, self-centered, is the wife of Jim Seaton, world-famous cricketer. Under the spell of the masterful Rex Chandos, Delia leads a double life. Her husband receives an injury which necessitates the amputation of a leg. Her once-wealthy father, facing disgrace, commits suicide, leaving nothing but debts. The Seatons' income is reduced to slightly over three pounds a week. Chandos, to get money for Delia, accepts dishonest work. He gets a country home with rent free for Delia and Jim, with a secret cottage near by for himself and Delia. Dr. Harry Wentworth becomes interested in the Seatons. His wife, Juliet, inherited a fortune and the mansion in which they live. His mother and his cousin, Jane Galt, who adores him, live next door. Delia gives Jim an overdose of a sleeping drug which Dr. Wentworth had left. Dr. Wentworth believes Jim took his own life. There is no inquest. Delia, after a fortnight as guest of the Wentworths, is to go into lodgings at Mrs. Deal's. Dr. Wentworth tells her Chandos is under suspicion for robbery.

INSTALMENT XIII.

DELIA waited till Juliet had taken the somewhat nauseous draught. Then, with a wave of the hand, she hastened out of the room. Her dressing case had been put inside the motor. It held what just now had become exceedingly precious to her.

A few minutes later, when in front of Mrs. Deal's little house, she saw with a lightening of the heart Jane Galt waiting for her on the doorstep.

"I've come to ask you to have dinner with me. My aunt has a cold and will have a tray upstairs. I thought it would be rather miserable for you here this first evening. We can go back in Juliet's car after I've helped you unpack."

Tears actually came into Delia's eyes. It was a great comfort to her just now to be with Jane.

They both went up to the small, cold bedroom, and there the kind girl did all the unpacking and put everything neatly away.

They had a cozy little meal, and, as was always the case when they were alone though Jane was unconscious of the fact, their talk drifted to the man who meant so much to each of them.

"I suppose you've seen the death of Dr Laver in the papers?" said Jane.

Delia shook her head.

"If only Juliet would consent to let him have a consulting room in town. I believe my cousin could get the whole of that man's practice. But of course she wouldn't hear of it."

"I suppose" said Delia musingly, "that what he would like to do would be to live in London. I mean, of course, in Harley street."

"Of course he'd like it! This is an appalling backwater for a professional man. But the Old Manor is Juliet, and Juliet is the Old Manor."

THEN Delia asked a question. "Is she really very rich?"

And, as the other hesitated, "It was only that silly Mrs. Roby who said so."

"What Mrs Roby said was true."

"She doesn't get much fun out of her money, does she?"

Jane smiled ruefully. "O, yes, she does, for she loves saving. I sometimes think it must make Harry rather sick to think of all that money always rolling up and earning more and more money. Huge sums are badly needed for medical research, and if Juliet would give only one year's income to one or two of the funds spent on finding ways of dealing with or stamping out disease, it would make poor Harry so happy! But of course such an idea would never occur to her."

Jane's friend said to herself: "One year's income? That would be an awful lot to give away."

And then with a slight pang she told herself that Harry would probably want to give some of his late wife's money away—if, that is, he ever became a widower.

At about half-past nine a piece of good luck befell Delia. Or so she took it to be.

Jane exclaimed: "I wish I could walk back with you, but I can't. I'm expecting some important telephone calls. But we'll meet tomorrow."

As Delia walked away she told herself that she could easily slip through the garden of the Thatched house to the cottage and get back comfortably to Mrs. Deal's lodgings a little after ten.

Everything went as she had hoped it would, and as she walked across the lawn surrounding the empty house she was glad it was a dark night so no one passing the gate could see her running up the grass steps, tiptoeing across the gravel path, and so up to the cottage.

Turning the tiny key in the minute lock of the window frame, she found herself standing in the living room.

With a candle in her hand she went through into the second room. She now drew aside the curtain which masked the staircase that apparently led nowhere and walked up the steps, which, though few, were steep.

The flickering light of the candle in her hand showed that there was a door at the top of the short flight of steps, but it was a door without a handle and without a lock. What could that mean? Slowly she moved the candle up and down all over the surface of the door, and at last she glimpsed a tiny round hole exactly similar to the one which concealed the lock in the window frame.

Quickly she extracted the minute key from her bag and pushed it into the round aperture and at once the door swung open, outward.

Two more high steps on the other side and she was in a low-ceilinged garret.

Crouching down she lifted up her candle, and then she gave a gasp, for the uneven floor was strewn with small jewel cases and paper parcels.

Then it was here that Chandos kept his booty till he had enough to make one of his trips to France!

Leaving everything exactly as she found it she left the cottage in haste, and as she hastened back to Mrs. Deal's lodgings, and later as she lay wide awake in the cold, lumpy bed, she told herself again and again that she had indeed had a miraculous escape.

JUST before seven o'clock in the evening following the day Delia Seaton had gone to Mrs Deal's lodgings a collision between two motor cars took place where the road running between the Old Manor and old Mrs. Wentworth's house debouched on to the common.

The noise of the smash brought Jane running out of doors, and she found that a woman had been seriously injured. So, after leaving one of her own maids in charge, she hastened to her cousin's house and went to the study to find him. He was not there and she told herself that he might be in his wife's sitting room.

Now Jane had no wish to see Juliet for she knew that if she did a detailed account of the accident would be expected of her. So she turned the handle of the door noiselessly, hoping, were he in the room, to attract Harry's attention.

Her cousin was not there, and only the back of Juliet's head was visible, for she was reclining, as usual, on her comfortable couch. Just behind that carefully waved, tow-colored head of hair stood Juliet's visitor. And in the few seconds which followed something occurred of which Jane did not take as much note as she might have done at any other time.

Delia Seaton held a minute fancy flask in her right hand, and just as Jane Galt opened the door with a quick movement she emptied the contents of that tiny flask into the glass of slightly salted water which happened to be young Mrs. Wentworth's latest health fad.

With her mind full of the accident and of the urgency of finding the doctor, Jane left the door of the sitting room ajar. Quickly she sped over the thick carpet toward the baize door shuting off the servants' quarters. As she did so the old parlor maid came waddling through it.

"There's been a bad accident at the corner, and I want the doctor——"

"O, Miss Galt, I am sorry. He said I was to phone and tell you he's gone over to Mrs. Lindsay. He left here at a quarter past five and mayn't be back to dinner."

"Then I must get through to another doctor at once!"

Jane ran back into the study. Then she tried fruitlessly two doctors who lived fairly near by and at last got through to Dr. Purves. He was Juliet's physician and a good friend of them all.

"My car's at the door; I won't be a minute," he exclaimed.

THE following half hour was fully occupied by her in carrying out Dr. Purves' instructions. First she telephoned for an ambulance, then for a nurse, then to a nursing home. All that took some time, and it was close on eight when she was able to sit down. But almost at once the telephone bell rang. "That you, Jane?"

"Yes, Harry."

"Will you phone to the Old Manor and say I'm afraid I can't be back to dinner? Mrs. Lindsay is dying, and they all want me to stay on. I can't do anything, but I don't feel I can leave them. They've been awfully good friends to me ever since I came to Meltham."

At last she was able to go upstairs, and she felt so tired that she flung herself on her bed just to get ten minutes' rest. And as she did so she suddenly remembered the odd thing she had seen Delia Seaton do. Perhaps not so very odd, as young Mrs. Wentworth was fond of trying new dietetic and even new drug experiments. Harry more than once had exclaimed in his cousin's presence: "Where's the good of being married to a doctor and then believing in quacks? It's true we don't know much—but we know more than the people you seem to believe in, my dear!" Juliet had given one of her shrill laughs and declared that her health fads did nobody any harm.

VAGUELY Jane remembered now that the latest fad over the way had been suggested to young Mrs. Wentworth by an American lady. According to this lady, a glass of water taken with a pinch of salt in it four times a day not only cleansed the body but actually in some cases brought back a look of youth. No doubt someone else had come with some further suggestion which Juliet had passed on to Delia Seaton. There had been an unusual look of watchful concentration on the lovely face seen by her in profile.

That evening Jane and her aunt went up early to bed. But Jane did not undress at once. She felt restless and excited without knowing why. Also she had left the light turned on downstairs, knowing that Harry might rush in for a mouthful of food before going home.

Early in his married life an elaborate supper had always been laid in the dining room of the Old Manor when he had to be out late. But it gave a good deal of trouble and was always far more than he wanted. So at last he had explained that he would very much rather take something at his mother's house.

Jane sat down with a book, but presently the telephone rang, and she heard the voice of Mrs. MacNab, Juliet's devoted personal maid.

"My young leddy doesn't seem well, Miss Galt. She has been taking a glass of water lately at eleven o'clock, and when I went in just now to give it to her I couldn't wake her."

"Did she take anything to make her sleep? I mean any new sleeping draught?"

"Not that I know of. But she don't like my asking her a thing like that, because she knows the doctor doesn't like her taking anything. Besides, she's been having that massage lately, and it's helped her to sleep. I don't believe she took anything tonight."

Jane felt cross. What was it Mrs. MacNab wanted her to do?

"D'ye think I'd better send for Dr. Wentworth, miss?"

"You'd better not do that. Mrs. Lindsay is dying, and I'm sure he won't wish to be disturbed."

There came a resentful reply to that. "I think he ought to come, Miss Galt. Miss Juliet is the doctor's wife, after all. His first dooty is to her."

Jane sighed. "Would you like me to come over?"

To her surprise the maid said quickly: "I'd be grateful if ye would come, miss. I do feel uneasy, I really do. Ye're coming would be a comfort to me."

"Very well, I'll come at once."

Wearily Jane opened her bedroom door. As she did so her aunt came out of her room.

"What is it, my dear? I didn't hear anyone at the door."

"Juliet's not well, and Mrs. MacNab wants me to go over there."

"What now?" exclaimed the elder lady. "Juliet is becoming really intolerable!"

To that the younger woman made no answer, though in her heart she agreed.

Jane jammed on an old felt hat, wrapped a big coat around her, and ran across the road to the Old Manor. She found Juliet's maid anxiously waiting for her in the hall.

"O, miss, I am glad you've come! I'm getting more and more frightened. I think you'll agree we ought to send for Dr. Purves."

Just as Jane opened the door with a quick movement Delia emptied the contents.

"That's not a bad idea," said Jane briefly, telling herself the while she was a fool not to have thought of that solution herself.

"Will ye come up and have a look at her, Miss Galt? I mean before we phone to Dr. Purves."

"Certainly I will."

Juliet Wentworth was lying on her back, apparently asleep. She was clad in an old fashioned white lawn embroidered nightgown, and her thin veined hands rested on a blue watered silk eiderdown.

"I can't see anything wrong with her," she whispered.

"Ye just try and wake her, miss."

She first said to her gently, "Wake up, Juliet." Then, more loudly and insistently: "Juliet! Juliet! Wake up——" But the woman lying before her did not even stir.

AT LAST Jane Galt took up the sleeper's right hand and felt her pulse. Quickly then she turned to the elderly maid.

"You are right; there is something wrong with her, Mrs. MacNab. Will you go down and phone to Dr. Purves from the study? Ask him to come around at once."

"Would ye mind phoning yourself, miss? Dr. Purves won't come for me. Ye see, we've sent for him so often when there was nothing much the matter. Not lately, I don't mean. My dear lady has been much better lately and not so fanciful about herself."

And then the maid went on, half to herself, "O, I wish Dr. Wentworth was here!"

Jane ran downstairs feeling bewildered and a little frightened at Juliet's extraordinary state of—was it coma?

"Dr. Purves is not in," answered a cross voice—Mrs. Purves' voice. "I'm sorry to say he was sent for about an hour ago and insisted on going out. Who is it wants him?"

"I'm Jane Galt, Mrs. Purves."

"O, it's you, my dear! I hope your aunt isn't ill?"

"It's Juliet, Harry's wife, who isn't well."

The voice again became sharp and unpleasant: "Is young Mrs. Wentworth really ill?"

"It isn't likely that I would send for Dr. Purves if I didn't think it necessary, is it?"

"If you really think her bad, of course I can get at him. What's the matter with her? Palpitation?"

"We simply can't wake her."

"Can't wake her? What an extraordinary thing! I'll get through to the doctor at once, unless he's on his way home."

Dr. Purves was on his way home, so something like three-quarters of an hour went by before he arrived at the Old Manor, and then he met Harry Wentworth on the doorstep.

"Why, what's the matter, Purves? Who's been taken ill here?"

"I'm afraid it's your wife."

The two doctors went quickly up to Juliet's bedroom.

Jane was standing by the bed, all the healthy color drained from her face.

"I'm afraid," she began, "I'm afraid——"

And then the tears began rolling down her face, for poor, silly, selfish Juliet was dead.

WHEN Mrs. Deal brought up her lodger's breakfast the morning following Jane Galt's tragic night at the Old Manor there were two letters on the tray—one from Jane, the other from Chandos.

When she read Chandos' short note she was very much relieved at the news it contained, for she felt it incumbent on her to leave Meltham for a while. Chandos had taken a small furnished house which would be free for her to move into whenever she liked.

Then she opened Jane Galt's letter:

My dear Delia:

We cannot meet today, for a dreadful thing has happened. Poor Juliet died last night in her sleep. She had, it seems, a slightly defective valve in her heart, and Dr. Purves said her sudden death did not really take him by surprise, so fortunately there will not have to be an inquest.

I will send you a line in a day or two, saying when we can meet.

Affectionately, Jane Galt.

Delia spent a long time over her letter of condolence to Juliet's widower. The final copy ran:

Dear Dr. Wentworth:

I have just heard from Jane Galt of your bereavement, and I feel I must tell you how shocked and grieved I was to hear of the passing of poor, pretty Juliet. She was so exceedingly kind to me that I feel I shall never forget her.

Please accept my deepest sympathy in your sorrow.

Yours sincerely,
Delia Seaton.

The postscript almost wrote itself:

I am leaving Meltham next Thursday, for a friend has lent me a tiny house. The address is 118 Ranelagh row. I hope you will find time to come and see me some day. You have been so good to me that I feel you my only real friend in the world.

Three days went by before there arrived an old-fashioned looking black-bordered envelope addressed in the firm handwriting she knew to be that of Dr. Wentworth.

She opened the envelope and felt a pang of disappointment, for it consisted of four short lines:

Dear Mrs. Seaton:

I thank you for your sympathy.

Yours truly,
Henry Wentworth.

Not a word as to his being her old friend, and not an allusion to the fact that she was leaving the neighborhood.

City Health Doctor Praises Cystex

Doctors and druggists everywhere approve of the prescription Cystex because of its splendid ingredients and quick action. For instance, Dr. W. R. George, graduate Medical Dept., University of Indiana, former Health Commissioner of Indianapolis and Medical Director for insurance company 10 years, recently wrote the following letter:

Dr. W. R. George

"There is little question but what properly functioning Kidney and Bladder organs are vital to the health. Insufficient kidney excretions are the cause of much needless suffering with aching back, weakness, painful joints and rheumatic pains, headaches and a general run-down, exhausted body. This condition also interferes with normal rest at night by causing the sufferer to rise frequently for relief and results in painful excretion, itching, smarting and burning. I am of the opinion that Cystex definitely corrects frequent causes (poor kidney functions) of such conditions and I have actually prescribed in my own practice for many years past the same ingredients contained in your formula. Cystex not only exerts a splendid influence in flushing poisons from the urinary tract, but also has an antiseptic action and assists in freeing the blood of retained toxins. Believing as I do that so meritorious a product deserves the endorsement of the Medical Profession, I am happy indeed to lend my name and photograph for your use in advertising Cystex. Signed W. R. TODAY'S STYLE ARBITER IS THE BUSINESS GIRL

She Learns What to Wear and How to Wear It from Her Career

By Kathleen McLaughlin

MUSSOLINI and Mr. Hitler have had their day and their say as feminine fashion autocrats. Both issued edicts as to what should be worn

This was simple elegance in the nineties. Feminine and fetching, but a bit outside the budget of a business girl.

Amelia Earhart, aviatrix and designer, models her own idea of a versatile modern business frock that can trot to almost any event without apology.

At left: As you were, you business girls of yesteryear. Only Charles Dana Gibson could lend glamour to this uniform, glimpsed in many an office around the turn of the century. At right: As you weren't, but dreamed of looking, what time the Florodora sextet was smashing hearts right and left, and "Heaven will protect the working girl" a solemn ditty.

1905. The machine age exerted its initial influence on fashion in these swanky motoring rigs, shown with a "late" model.

In 1910, the tailored mode beloved of "career" women was advocating briefer skirts. These were pretty scandalous.

1915. Contemporary with the Castle waltz, just prior to the world war era—and still smart.

The streamlined Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin (Irene Castle) as mannequin in a style show a few months ago. Business woman by avocation, her superb carriage and slim figure keep her eminent among style leaders of the world.

by members of the weaker sex within their respective realms, and both bumped their noses against the same implacable force that has saddened—and ruined—many a great business mogul in the past, and will again in the future. Here is a sphere where man proposes but woman disposes.

Style dictators are not born nor made. They evolve. There are plenty of style originators, but he or she treads a precarious path who sets himself or herself up as capable of swaying women's fancy in the matter of what they shall wear and how they shall wear it. They are never singular, because it takes not one woman nor a dozen to set a style, but hundreds and thousands.

In the current era American business women dictate the majority of contemporary fashions launched each year. Casually, even unconsciously they wear the crown that once adorned the placid brow of good Queen Vic; last of the royal tyrants in things sartorial For since the Victorian phase sovereigns have relinquished most or all of the prestige that once attached to their personal adornment, being much more concerned about retaining their diadems than about the angle at which they shall wear them.

Partly because there are so many of her, each dominating an individual income; partly because of her prominence in the scheme of things political and social as well as commercial, the business woman exerts the influence she does on contemporary fashions. Since she is always—or nearly always—in the public eye, whatever she can wear appropriately at her job is apt to be appropriately worn also by women whose job is home-making.

It was not ever thus. Back in the last quarter of the nineteenth century, when she was tiptoeing into the awesome and puzzling atmosphere of trade with no signposts to guide her and many a blunder to be perpetuated in cruel jokes against her ability, the business girl was anything but a style criterion. Poor dear!

That was the era when Alexander Graham Bell had just invented the telephone, and the typewriter was being installed in offices. These two forerunners of a mechanized office equipment created two new careers, as they were called then—telephone operator and typist. Too trifling to be manned by the masculine element, they were seized upon by the feminine

Presently swarms of typists were setting forth each morning for various offices, attired in stiff, uncomfortable mannish costumes they fondly imagined made them look as efficient as their business associates—even if they weren't.

Along about then the business girl's costume difficulties developed. There were starched shirtwaists that rubbed her neck raw and were forever parting company with the separate skirts; leather belts that kept riding up as their wearers bent over a desk; wide sleeves caught into tight cuffs that swiped dust off desk tops and got caught in the typewriter carriage; long, voluminous skirts that dusted a sidewalk neatly enough but had a nasty trick of getting caught beneath chair legs.

When the pendulum swung, it swung wide The reaction brought the frivolous stenographer who regarded a job as a stop-gap between dancing evenings and an office as a good place to wear out old party gowns. Her conception of business garb was a decollete flowered chiffon and many jangling bracelets Her coiffures were fearful and wonderful to behold and her cosmetics freely and publicly applied.

Then the World war jarred the whole structure of industry into different and sobering attitudes. It gave women their real chance in business, and they didn't muff it. The boys came back from France to find women in many a field they never dreamed of entering before that shot at Serajevo. And there they have stayed

They've learned about clothes from business. And they have passed it on to other women Learned to wear conservative colors and to harmonize a season's wardrobe so that frocks don't clash with hats or coats. and vice versa. To insist that those chic lingerie touches on a dark dress be detachable, so that they can be whisked through hot suds and across an ironing board of an evening. To forego floor length skirts for office wear. and wide. elaborate sleeves To demand costumes that can serve all day at a desk and still be in the picture if worn to a restaurant for dinner when there isn't time to change.

Nevertheless and anyhow the business woman is feminine first and practical afterwards. She knows what suits her. but she aims to be in the mode at any cost. Strange quirks of psychology create fashions, and should some fancy dictate to women in general that bustles and crinolines are the smartest things ever next season, we business femmes would jolly well park our dictator's crown by the side of the road, pick up our bouffant skirts, and climb aboard the band wagon.
